"The persons who receive the mark are selected according to a certain token. Distinctions of wealth, refinement, age and sex are all ignored. The qualification is a sign, the token a cry. Their attitude toward sin—do they loathe it or hate it? is only thing regarded. Not what they had done, but what they would like to do, was to be considered one of the most precious pieces of hypocritical cant that is current in Christendom, and one of the most misleading is the specious cry of the liberals, deeds, not creeds. As if the one were the opposite of the other, when the best creeds and the noblest deeds are, and ever should be, united. But according to our text, it is neither creeds nor deeds that bring the saving mark. 'Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh at the heart.' The world sees our faults and failures, our slips and falls. Our familiars watch for our halting. But God will never charge sin against a man who hates sin.

"'Mark a mark,' saith the voice in the prophet's hearing. Now what is the mystic mark which saves from judgment? It is not wealth, or knowledge, or reputation or morality. Literally translated, it would read, 'Mark a Tau,' the last letter in the Hebrew alphabet, whose ancient symbol was a cross. It corresponds with our letter T. Yes, this is the sign that saves. Mark it on the forehead where it will be easily seen. When, for Christ's sake we work and sacrifice unselfishly, the cross appears on the forehead of our actions. When we can truly say, like Paul, 'God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ,' we have the mark of the cross on the forehead of our conversation. When we can say in our meditation:

"'My Savior, on Mount Calvary,
Before Thy cross I stand,
The most delightful place to me

then we show that we have the mark of the cross on the forefront of our affections. Let us never seek to hide it. A Christian prisoner among the Saracens was a skilled draughtsman. He was accustomed to beguile the weary hours of captivity by sketching various designs. His captors, recognizing his skill, promised him his liberty if he would give them an acceptable design for a new mosque. His careful efforts resulted in a design of such exquisite beauty that it far surpassed the rest. It was at once accepted and the day of release was named. Before that day arrived, however, the keen eye of one of the Mohammedans detected that the general design of the structure was cruciform. Upon the discovery of the hated cross in the plan, their admiration was turned to execration, and the reward of liberty was changed to the sentence of death. If we have received the 'mark of the priestly penman, depend upon it, the cross of Christ will be wrought consciously or unconsciously, in the very plan and structure of our lives.

"Profoundly significant are the words 'Begin at my sanctuary.' When reformers start to purge a city they are apt to select the plague spots—the Bowery in New York, the levee in Chicago, Chinatown in San Francisco, the red-light district in Los Angeles. But when God begins, he starts at the sanctuary. The time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God, and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be, of them that obey not the gospel of God?

"In that awful day, when God gets weary of waiting, and invisible protectors are withdrawn, when sin's harvest shall be ripe for the reaping, and the hundred and forty-four thousand are sealed, may the bunch of hyssop dipped in blood mark the lintels and doorposts of our homes, and may the Ancient of Days, the writer who puts the indelible ΑΩ on the forehead and the names in the Lamb's book of life not pass us by, but may each be able to say, with Paul, 'I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.'"

The reopening of the Simpson Tabernacle for the services of Christ Episcopal Church after the midsummer vacation, yesterday morning, called out an overflowing congregation.

Dr. Dowling's discourse on John Wesley, or Methodism as seen by an outsider, was particularly interesting in connection with the bi-centennial celebration of Wesley's birth and the fact that the great Methodist National Conference is to meet in Los Angeles during the coming year.

The hymns selected for the services yesterday morning were all composed by Charles Wesley, brother and lifelong companion of the great founder of Methodism. Dr. Dowling gave a short sketch of how one of these hymns—"Jesus, Lover of My Soul"—was composed. This was sung by a quartette at the offertory to the well-known, simple, soul-stirring tune, "Refuge," to which it is usually set, and it made a profound impression on the worshipers.

The speaker, both by phrase and manner, manifested a most genuine admiration for the preacher who nearly two centuries ago, by his burning zeal kindled anew the spiritual flame in the hearts of the people of England. A synopsis of the discourse follows:

"It is a remarkable fact that history scarcely ever presents an instance of an only child developing into a great man. It seems to be almost a necessity for the fructification of practical power that there shall be the early attrition and disciplinary experience derived from other children in the home. Dip in anywhere into the biographies of the world's leaders, and you will find this fact exemplified. William Ewart Gladstone was one of a family of seven children; Dickens one of eight; Napoleon Bonaparte one of thirteen; Benjamin Franklin one of seventeen and Susanna Wesley, the grandmother of Methodism, was the mother of nineteen children, of whom John Wesley was the fifteenth member. The man or the woman who is the only child seems very likely to have been spoiled in the making.

"Most of you will be surprised when I tell you that we are to study today the life and character of a Protestant Episcopal clergyman; a man who lived and died an ordained priest of the Church of England; a man who was not only a churchman, but the highest kind of a high churchman; observing every fast; partaking of holy communion every Sunday, when he could, and insisting to the end of his life that the reform movement of which he was the head was never intended by him as a movement from the church, but in it. In 1790, only a few months before his death, he wrote what has been termed his valedictory to his followers. Listen to these strong words which he uttered, nearing his departure: 'I never had any design of separating from the church; I have no such design now: I do not believe the Methodists in general design it. I do, and will do all in my power to prevent such a thing.' I went; nevertheless, in spite of all I can do, many will separate from it, although I am inclined to think, not one-half, nor perhaps a third of them. These will be so bold and injudicious as to form a separate party. It is my intention to them I declare, once more, that I live and die a member of the Church of England, and that none who regard my judgment will ever separate from it.'

"At this very time there is being erected in Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, in Savannah, Ga., a tablet to the memory of John Wesley, who was the first minister of that parish, 168 years ago. And this leads me to my first observation concerning Methodism as seen by an outsider. It was a movement toward righteousness which ought to have remained within the church where it was born. I will not unduly condemn the Methodist or English Church of that day. It is always easy to be wise after the fact, and in their places perhaps we might have done no better. We need to remember that it was not John Wesley, the recognized leader of a great religious propaganda, who was thrust from the door of their palaces when he came asking for recognition in his work; but just plain, unknown John Wesley, who might have been John Smith, or John Brown, or any other of the most mistaken, simple-minded John.

"And yet, what a thousand pities that our church did not recognize in this movement an awakening toward righteousness. This country can never appreciate enough its debt to the early pioneers of this denomination, in going ahead of civilization, and blazing the way. As the Los Angeles Times recently stated in an admirable editorial on John Wesley, 'The Methodists have been the religious pathfinders of this country.' If its founder had received one-half an encouragement, all the spiritual power and the resources of this magnificent denomination, which recently raised $20,000,000 in a single year for missionary purposes, might have been kept within the church. Not to have done it was a blunder and a crime. Every church in London was shut against him, and if he would do his work at all, he was driven to what he termed the preaching-houses, for he never called them churches, or to the open fields.

"Are there no lessons for us Protestant Episcopalians of America in this story of yesterday? Yes, if we are sufficently open-minded to learn them. Would to God that all of us might be, but so long as there is published in this communion of ours a sheet, possessed of the narrow and malignant spirit of the 'Living Church,' that modern Milwaukee relic of medieval mediocrity, the organ of the so-called Catholic party within our borders, an organ which is high and also dry, very high and very dry!—so long there will continue to exist some among us, possessed of precisely the same spirit which drove the followers of John Wesley out of the church, because they sought to serve God according to the light which was in them. And yet I am proud to say, that while, if John Wesley were here today, the attempt would probably be made by these, our Protestant Episcopal Catholic brethren, but that thing never could successfully happen in our American church today. And why should it? When I was living in the East, there was pointed out to me an old Onondoga squaw, Aunt Dinah Jones, who died at the age of 109 years. If you asked her as to her religion, she would place her hand upon her head and say: 'Here, me "Piscopal,"' and then, placing her hand upon her heart, 'Here me "Methodist."' Most of us are convinced that for us, at least, there is more intellectual and spiritual impulse in the Protestant Episcopal Church than we can find elsewhere; but sympathetically, here in the heart, let us reach out gladly toward every organization, and everybody, who is seeking to be good, and to do good."

The Lord's Supper.

In Temple Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. Robert J. Burdette, conducted communion services. He based his discourse on Luke xxii, 19, "This do, in remembrance of me." He said, in part:

"A 'sacrament' we call the 'Lord's Supper,' that is, a sign and an oath, 'sacramentum'—the oath of allegiance which the Roman soldier took on his enlistment. It is 'an outward and visible sign of an inward grace;' the pledge by which we bind our souls to the Lord. And we call it the 'Lord's Supper,' because it was instituted by our dear Lord Jesus; it was at the evening time, and at the close of the Passover supper. We call it 'the communion' because here we commune with Christ and His people, our brethren; it is spoken of as the 'Eucharist,' 'a thanksgiving,' because in the institution of it, Jesus gave thanks as He broke the bread and poured the wine. He did not 'bless' the bread and wine. Matthew, Mark and Luke tell us of the institution of the supper, and Paul tells how by special revelation he also received of the Lord Jesus the story of the supper and the manner of its observance. John gives us conversation and the last discourse. And among the many sweet and beautiful ideas which cluster about this, the holiest place on earth, there occurs to you the social thought; it is the assembling of the household of faith; at the Lord's table; upon His own invitation. The gathering of the family; we sit here side by side with brothers and sisters whose faces it may be, we have never seen before, and whom we may never meet again until our Lord shall drink the fruit of the vine new with us in His Father's kingdom, yet are we all of the one household. At no other place in all the worship and service of the church are thoughts of denominational differences of creed and method of ordinance pushed farther away from our hearts. It is His table; and we, present ourselves as His guests, come with no thought in our hearts save of the love of Jesus, our crucified and risen Savior, who meets with us.

If I should ever get to heaven,
The which I ever humbly pray,
And through the Lord God's grace
I may—
I think, among the Christ-forgiven
I'll find some souls there that were shriven,
Far gone upon the other way.

Dear Christ, until we know to say
If this or that be wrong or right—
Keep greens in God's radiant light,
Teach us to mend the faults which lay
A great strong bar in our own way
To Thy celestial radiance bright.

Patience in the Race.

At the First Congregational Church, the pastor, Rev. William Horace Day, just back from his vacation, preached from the text "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us." "The New Testament is virile because it reflects a love for clean, honest sport," said the speaker, in part. "Paul was a true sportsman, and the writer of the Hebrews was no less ready to find in the games of the age the highest spiritual lessons. 'Let us run with patience the race.'

"If living today, I am sure Paul would have been most anxious to get his paper to find the result of the contest between the Reliance and Shamrock. How different their idea of patience from that often held. It was not passive endurance, but active, persistent effort they commended. Abraham, the Arab poet, sang 'To bear with valiant front the onset of Fate were the best of things,' because he knew of no escape. Paul rather wrote 'Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.' Not patience in enduring, but in doing, was the inspiring thought of the Epistles. Such patience depends upon a goal to inspire men. Browning was right when he saw it was the goal that was important. 'Tis not what man does which exalts him, but what man would do.' The weakness of our lives is that they are goalless. We are like the nervous marksman; we 'dodge' when we shoot, we do not look at the mark.

"Unless we make up our minds to fight the sin that so besets, we can never be free. Unless we plan to help our neighbor or take part in the work of some good cause, we will never be real servants of humanity. Only as men stop drifting and begin to steer can they be patient. This patience of the Apostle is full of power. It accomplishes the impossible. We do things because we try. The man who comes out into the kitchen and easily twists off the top of the can of fruit after his wife and the cook have seemed to try in vain does not remember that it came easily because they had really started it. It only needed a little more patience. Small strength with much patience can often do what we expect only from great strength. 'Let us not be weary in well doing, for we shall reap in due season if we faint not.'"

God's Changeless Love.

On Sunday morning Rev. C. C. Pierce of the Memorial Baptist Church, preached on the changeless love of God, taking for his text, Heb. 13:8, "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever."

He said: "Two things are well established in human thought. One is the mutability of all things human, and the other is the changeless nature of God. It is also generally believed by all Christian people, that Jesus came into the world to save a lost race, and that this work whatever its character, and necessity, was and is the expression of the changeless love of a wise and loving God.

"Sin is forever deadly and terrible, the one awful and unreasonable fact in human life. No theory satisfactorily accounts for its presence in the world. The only plausible theory ever yet propounded to account for its presence is the one offered by the theory of evolution, and this is that the race is evolving from a lower to a higher order of life, and has not yet cast off all the coarseness, brutality and ignorance of our past. That we are doing this, that man is slowly rising into a higher state of being and of life, I have no particle of doubt. I take no stock in any theory that accounts for sin on the ground of necessity, as a character builder. It is the destroyer of all that is good and beautiful in human life.

"Jesus is a part of God's original plan and purpose. He is no after thought. He is the eternal protest of God against sin. He is the eternal proclamation of the deadliness of sin. He is: 'The Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.'

"But God's love will never change for the sinner. Jesus, the expression of the love of God, is the same, yesterday, today and forever. Terrible as sin is, God's love prepares a way of escape. The anguish of God over a sinning soul, and over the sin of the world, cannot be crowded into any single moment nor into any single event, even in the life of Christ. In the presence of sin, He is the 'Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.' Just so long as there is one soul in all this great universe which is below the best that God designed it to be, there will be the heart of the loving Father, wrung with the sense of that loss. This measureless and endless love of God fills life with sublime and endless opportunities. What remorse will be ours, if we wantonly reject these opportunities.

"How will it be with the soul who after all the years of life's opportunities, coldly rejects the love of God? Will there not come a time when there will be an awakening to what has been lost? And while I cannot believe that any soul anywhere in this universe hungering for the God who gave it being, will never receive any response to that longing, I cannot but think that if all men could see the dreadful loss and remorse that they bring upon them, when they turn away from God, and His love, there would be a marvelous turning unto the Lord here and now before that loss is upon them.

Knew His Business.

One of the best-known lawyers of the city had a case in court against a man who kept a cigar store opposite one of the large hotels. The man had in some way broken the law.

"Do you mean to say," asked the lawyer, "that you have made a living out of that store for a year?"

"Yes," replied the man, "gentlemen come from the hotel early in the morning and ask for 15 and 25-cent cigars. I hand them out 5-centers, and they don't know the difference."

"Impossible," said the lawyer.

"Oh, no, it isn't," said the storekeeper, calmly, "I have done it on you several times."—[New York Times.

EXTENSION OF THE IMPERIAL RAILWAY.

BRANCH LINE TO HOLTON IS A PROBABILITY.

Indications Are That the Fall and Winter Months Will Witness a Considerable Influx of Actual Settlers—Valley Industrial Notes.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

IMPERIAL, Sept. 5.—The [illegible] for the extension of the Imperial to the Gulf Railway by the Southern Pacific Company has been decided upon, and engineers are now in the field locating the survey permanently. The line will run from Imperial in a direct tangent line to Calexico, passing through the center of what was heretofore known as the townsite of Imperial, which will be vacated, and another plat, covering the same ground, will be made and a new town located, to be called Heber.

The prospects are favorable for a branch line to the new town of Holton, located on the east side of the Alamo River, which will accommodate the settlement known as Eastside. The Imperial Water Company No. 1. There are about thirty thousand acres taken up in that immediate vicinity, and the canal system has been completed. Banker Holt of Imperial and Redlands is the prime mover in securing railway connection with the outside world from his new town. The Southern Pacific Company will probably join with Mr. Holt, and the road will in all probability be constructed in time to handle next season's crop. The acreage promises to be quite large on that side of the valley. Where the Holton branch will leave the main line of the Imperial and Gulf is problematical. All depends upon the wishes of the Southern Pacific Company, although Banker Holt will have a great deal to say as to its final location. From present indications, Calexico seems to have the vantage ground from a traffic view point. Still, the Imperialites beatir themselves, and may be able to secure the coveted prize.

The towns of Heber and Silsbee are located directly on the line of the Calexico extension will be [illegible] about the middle of this month, or later than the first of October, and it is the intention of the company to complete the work as rapidly as can be done. Most of the material for grading the ties and iron is now stored up at Imperial ready for use. It will require about sixty days to complete the grade.

Every indication seems to point to a large influx of actual settlers into the valley during the coming fall and winter. Indeed, many are now arriving. some who have heretofore been content to establishing their homes and farms—new comers—are buying and arranging their affairs to become permanent settlers. It is conservatively estimated that the population of the valley will more than double in the next eight months to come, and the crop acreage will be in the neighborhood of three times the acreage during the season just closed. It will be no doubt that he would have predicted that over 200,000 sacks of grain have been shipped out of the valley. Business at Imperial has been good, even through the hot season. A good criterion of the volume of business and improvement in the valley is the First National Bank. Its deposits have been steadily increasing, and they are now $100,000 or more, with over $60 accounts.

The McNear warehouse is fast nearing completion and the town is steadily growing.

The Imperial Land Company has decided to erect a good-sized brick building and the accommodations of the many visitors to the valley. The contract will be let at once and the building will be rushed to completion as rapidly as men and money can accomplish it.

The bustling town of Brawley is improving and the country tributary to the town is rapidly filling with the best class of settlers in the valley. They are not the dry-goods-box type of farmers and ranchers; neither are they jawsmiths, but actual workers, as the improvements in the neighborhood fully demonstrate.

The East Side is also rapidly booming under the guardianship of Holt, who has planned the development of a forty-foot drop in the All-American canal with a view of supplying the with power and electricity during the coming season.

The Alamo Land Company is locating a great many settlers in the north end of the valley, known as East Side, and before long another town will spring up, about eleven miles north of the town of Holton, and to be known as Easton. Thus it will be seen that, at the risk of having to skip out of two or three towns.

TRUSTEES INVESTIGATE.

The case at last came before the Board of Trustees. My first impression was that the youngster had inherited the instincts of a half-savage country, and that there might be no use in procuring the fight against nature. They ought to send him for a year West, where the modicum of education he had managed to pick up would not fail too visibly below the average. A farm or a stock ranch would just suit him, for all they would need of Confinement in a mine might lead to the usual escapade. But would the trustees consent? They might be narrow-minded, and hard to deal with; they were proud, to some degree, perhaps, as I resolved on training a crow for the parrot market.

To my surprise I found them both men of far more than average intelligence. I do not mean to say that the father had been obliged to dispense with it in stress of circumstances or that he may have felt his deficiencies at every turn; but his struggle for promotion, and all the more anxious to give his son a better start in life. Now he was by any means yet given up all hope of reform. Tommy's older brother had been just as fond of outdoor life, but had ultimately developed a taste for reading, then for engineering, and had sworn never to be an artillery captain when he fell into Sandhurst. There had been other late conversion in the family, and the turning point in the scapegrace's life might come any day; his father thought that all would be well if he only could be kept home long enough to make him take an interest in books. He felt sure that his surroundings had nothing to do with his lack of brains, nor with anything in the way of moral depravity. He was a generous lad, generous to a fault, liked by all his playmates, so much so, unfortunately, that many of them would intrigue and prevaricate to help him in a crisis of his scrapes. He had forged his name to written excuses of their own and "coached" him almost by main force, on the eve of an examination. To help out Tommy Hunter had often been a considerable importance than the preparation of their personal standing, for more than one of his classmates had learned his own lessons to redress the balance of the popular truant.

FINAL WARNING.

The board consulted. Tom Hunter had passed his eleventh year and was no longer claim the baby class of illiteracy. There are children of more gentle animal which even mischievous children could drive. The Trustees was willing to trade, but for one reason insisted upon repeating to the visitor that the local horse did not look so well as the one belonging to the Philadelphia man.

An exchange satisfactory to both parties was eventually made, and the first time this visitor's wife took the new horse out for a drive she discovered that the beast was as blind as a mole. A few days later, when the ruticator met the Trustees, he said:

"See here, you rascal! that horse you swapped with me for mine was stone blind. Why didn't you tell me of it at the time?"

"Ah'm bin try tell you all de time, bin know how fer to tell. Ah'll say my horse was no look at de horse—say so seex, nine times. Ah'm no bin blam' eef you no hear me." [Philadelphia Ledger.

FINAL WARNING.

"I was heard consulted. Tom Hunter had passed his eleventh year and could no longer claim the baby class on account of illiteracy. There are children who go to school at an age of mechanical necessity, "if only to sit still and watch the dawning of their reason," as my early tried teacher of nursery calls it, but here was a case of special emergencies—reason extant, but unsuitable to sedentary pursuits. The truant catcher's shoe soles were worn out, together with the patience and the Hunters were agreed that Master Tom must either change the end of the year or for his action, between a reform school expulsion, or what the Germans call a consilium abeundi (friendly advice to vanish of his own accord).

"I was in September then, and the boy's mind went to work with a will at last, and finally carried the day by omens. For the woods were swarming with birds, and Tommy was interested before—as fast. As a human heart by way of the stomach, or a plan without a chance to show for his case; when his bird trap on the hill it did not matter if he broke his fast with a mouthful or with a bunch of grapes, a branch establishment of birds and rabbits could be set up in Tom's own room?

THE MOTHER'S PLAN.

The idea came, to Mrs. Hunter's mind one night, after a consultation with her youngster's best friend, a lad who could be relied upon to keep a secret.

"Did Tommy ever tell you what he would like to do if he had to work for himself?" she had asked that natural ally.

"Lemme see—yes, he onst tole me he would like to strike a job in a menagerie or a sew'logical garden."

"And do you think we could keep him home if we had a little menagerie of our own?"

"Maybe you could—yes,"—after some reflection. "I'm pretty sure that would fetch 'im, ma'am, but only you mustn't let him know that there's a trick about it."

"Oh—I see. We'll try it—the way you say. It's this: If we can't make him mend his wild ways, they'll send him to prison, and you'll never see him again. Now, will you promise me to keep quiet about this—not tell a soul, till Tom is safe?"

"Not a sole or a heel. That's a bargain, ma'am." Mrs. Hunter passed a sleepless night, but before the dawn of day she had the details of her plan ready.

There were several pet dealers in a neighboring city, and the next week kept the mail carrier busy. Soon after the express office had its share of the trouble. Boxes, cages and crates arrived with every train, and, by special request, were delivered in the early afternoon—the time of the day when Tom's whereabouts were most certain to be uncertain.

"You have your picnics all to yourself, Master Mischief," said she, when her vagrant returned rather late one evening; "skylarking around all the day long, and nothing but trouble for the rest of us. We had bad luck, Tom."

"What is it now, Ma?"—coaxingly—"anything I can help you about?"

"No, it isn't your fault, this time—for a wonder. It's a family in W. town that owes us money and had nothing to pay us back except a lot of live stock, rabbits, speckled rats, pigeons, young mocking birds, and what not. The cages filled up all the back room, and a part of yours."

"Mine? Oh, let me take that lamp—why, ain't they just the prettiest rabbits you ever saw? Oh, and look at those cunning white rats! And birds—they must be those mocking birds they have sent us—I don't see what there is anything to fret about."

"Why, we lose all they owed us if we can't keep those thing alive. Tom, you might ask one of your playmates how to feed all those creatures."

"No, I needn't!" (proudly) "I guess I know as much about rabbits and rats as any of them. And if young mocking birds are anything like young robins, I'll raise them for you, too, so stop fretting, Ma; the only trouble will be about those guinea pigs, their crazy squealing will give you a headache, but I'll sell them for you, every one of them; and tomorrow I'll run over to Grinder's and get you a lot of meal worms, that's the best for young thrushes, till they get their wing feathers. And a little bread and milk, once a day, if you take care not to let it get sour."

A BARGAIN.

"The idea! You knowing all that! A bit of good luck at last." "Say," after a pause of apparent meditation, "I'll tell you what I'll do with you, Tom. I'll give you three dimes out of every dollar we make out of this bad bargain."

"No, indeed you don't; one dime is all I ask. Only you mustn't blame me if maybe two or three of that dozen young birds should die. I never had such luck as to raise the whole of a brood."

"Why! where did you ever try it before?"

"Never you mind (thinking;) I'll show you if I know something about this business or not."

"Then I'll give you a dollar in advance to advertise in the papers. Let's go in partnership; I'll pay for the advertisements and you attend to the replies; answer them, too, if they ask any questions; I'll furnish the postage."

"All right then, but—"

"But what?"

"About answering the—but that's all right, too, I can write a short note, I reckon."

They watched him close, and the next day his exultant father saw him buy an assortment of envelopes and note paper, but didn't turn on a full grin till he had passed the shop.

Replies did come in, demand in one case exceeding the supply. Speckled (or "Japanese") rats were a novelty in Dalton, and, with his mother's consent, Tommy imported an additional dozen from the metropolis.

They cleared $2 on that venture.

Before long the stock of mocking birds likewise gave out, and the new consignment was half sold before it reached the express office.

Answering from ten to fifteen inquiries every day did trouble the young commission merchant a little, but he was too proud of his success to admit his embarrassment.

DESIRE FOR BOOKS AWAKENED.

"Walk easy," whispered Mrs. Hunter when her husband came home early on Saturday afternoon. "I've set him to reading, and you can see him at work through that open door."

"Then we've saved him. But how the wonder ——"

"Oh, I sent for a pet fancier's trade list, and he's now busy copying addresses and prices."

They had a fine work on natural history in the reference department of the public library, but with the librarian's connivance Mr. Hunter borrowed two volumes of it and put them, not in Tom's room, but in his way, on the parlor table, where he could find them in getting his evening mail.

The bait took even better than the first, and the ex-truant twice missed his afternoon walk to pore over the textbook of his hobby science.

The boat was launched. Reading had become a pleasure. Rapid progress in orthography, writing and general information followed, as a matter of course, and Tom Hunter repeatedly reached the schoolhouse ahead of time, anxious to enter the arena of competition under improved auspices of success.

The principal often came down to study this new phase of his character with professional interest. A cripple turned sprinter could hardly have surprised her more. "She half-suspected strong measures of paternal coercion, but the cheerfulness of the phenomenal convert obliged her to relinquish that theory.

The board of trustees, too, kept an eye on him. Was it possible? Not one day missed in six weeks, not one minute of any day. Lost opportunities of the year retrieved in a rush. Series of wonders effected by the mere mention of the reform school. Nothing like an ultimatum, thought the board of trustees.

"Did they lose faith in their method when they found out the truth?" I inquired.

"Not altogether," said Dr. Lewis, "but my belief in the existence of untamable creatures was entirely gone."

THE DELINEATOR FOR OCTOBER

and its issuance answers squarely the question of supremacy among the magazines for woman and the home. In your selection of a magazine you may choose from two classes—those you need and those you read for recreation—or else you take THE DELINEATOR and combine both. If the word "necessary" is susceptible of a superlative, THE DELINEATOR is beyond all question the "most necessary" of all the magazines published for Woman.

Nine hundred thousand families proved this to be so last month; and each month brings its new thousands of members into the ever growing DELINEATOR FAMILY.

Among the fashions it is the "most necessary" because it is all the fashion magazines in one, with their mistakes eliminated, their exaggerations corrected, and the really successful novelties stamped with the seal of authoritative approval, for if it is pictured in THE DELINEATOR it is "good form." It is equally the "most necessary" in the Nursery, in the Sewing-Room, in the Kitchen, throughout the whole house and out-of-doors, in city and in country. The partial list of contents below can only hint at the interest underlying every line.

The Evolution of a Club Woman, by Agnes Surbridge, begins in this number. It is an autobiography and is the predicted success of the year. J.C. Hemment, the world-famed camera expert, begins one of the most remarkable series of photographic articles ever presented. They relate to his personal adventures at home and in foreign lands. The Silent Partner, by Lynn Roby Meekins; A Florida Cracker, by Virginia Frazer Boyle, are prominent among the fiction features, while the departments are fuller than usual of good things, with especial interest centering in the children's pages.

If the "most necessary" of the magazines for Woman is that one which helps most in every hour of "her" day and brings its after-hour of fascinating leisure-reading when the day is over, then, surely,

"Just get The Delineator."

BATTING RALLY IN THE EIGHTH DID THE BUSINESS.

Siwashes Were Bad Actors at Times and Some Bungled Badly—Batting of Dillon and Lumley Were the Features. Only One Game Today.

Los Angeles, 7; Seattle, 5.

By a batting rally in the eighth inning that fairly carried young Carrick off his feet, the Looloos beat out the Siwashes yesterday at Chutes Park in a game that was noticeable for its hard slugging of the ball. Twenty-one hits kept the 4000 fans busy watching things, and errors, passes and strike-outs were sufficient in number to add great variety to the fun.

Dolly Gray went in to pitch instead of Corbett, and came perilously near losing his game, for the visitors clouted him easily at times and then again fell down to nothing. He would have been beaten if the Siwashes had not made so many bungles, and to these large and costly mistakes can be traced just how the game went.

Carrick went in to pitch for Seattle and held the locals safely up to the eighth inning, when four of them rapped him for singles, and three of the men behind him made errors. This combination was enough to beat any Pittsburgh pitcher. It finished Carrick, for the locals did not go to bat again.

The game was devoid of special features, with the exception of a fine running catch by Dillon and his work in general; Toman's fielding and Lumley's batting. Lumley was five times at bat, and at the second one gave Dillon a chance to make his catch of a foul that came near losing itself in the clouds. At his other times at bat he slapped the ball safely each time. Corbett, Cravath, Spies and Andrews were also there with the stick, and each hit the ball for keeps.

The locals scored their first run on Hoy's safe bunt and Dillon's triple shot to left field. The next run on hits by Corbett and Dillon, a fielder's choice and Lumley's booting of Corbett's single. Dillon's run in the sixth was on his fielder's choice that forced Corbett, a stolen base and Cravath's single. Then came the eighth, when singles by Corbett, Dillon, Cravath and Spies and errors by Janssing, Brashear and Mohler netted four runs and the game.

The Siwashes commenced theirs in the first with hits and stolen bases by Lumley and Brashear, Mohler's sacrifice and Wheeler's error of Spies' throw to third. The two runs in the fourth were made on singles by Byers and Carrick and doubles by Andrews and Lumley. In the sixth Lumley scored on his hit and steal and Mohler's Texas leaguer back of short field, which neither Toman nor Hoy caught. That was all, for Dolly settled down after that and allowed but two scattering swats.

INTERESTING GAME.

The last game between Los Angeles and Seattle until the Siwashers come here to close the season the last week in November, will be played this afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Two games were originally scheduled for today, but there will be no game this morning. The fans should remember that from now on all games will begin at 2:30 o'clock. In today's game Corbett will pitch for Los Angeles and Jay Hughes for Seattle. Smith will be back at third base for the locals and Wheeler will go to second base.

The San Francisco team will open its final series here tomorrow, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. There will be but one game on Wednesday, Admission Day, and it will not be a ladies' day. All the fair ones will have to pay on Wednesday.

BALLS AND STRIKES.

NOTES FOR THE FANS.

"Yellowhammer" Bittinger and Joe McGinnity nearly broke up a recent game between the Boston and New York National clubs. Pittinger thought McGinnity was trying to hit him, and acting on his belief in the next inning beat the "Iron man" to it, bounding a bad one off McGinnity's arm. A row was imminent, but the men were kept apart. Both teams were barking at each other like so many dogs, according to reliable report.

Speaking of pitchers, there is a much misnamed young man in Santa Barbara answering to the cognomen of Hitt, who will some day be a find. He has been pitching first-class amateur ball around that burg for some time. The other day a team composed of Ed. Householder, Russ Hall, Bill Gannon, "et alter stellae," made one hit off him, a two-bagger by Householder that should have been caught. Russ Hall says the lad has everything a pitcher needs and with a little training will be valuable for any club.

Mitchell and Duggleby of the Phillies must have broken all records on a rainy day, August 27, when they walked seventeen men. Mitchell a dozen, Duggleby five. The rain made the ball too slippery to control. Schmidt and Reidy, who officiated for Brooklyn in the same game, hit several, and all told, it was one of the wildest exhibitions ever seen on a major league diamond.

Parke Wilson and Jay Hughes evolved a fearful and wonderful scheme the other night. It was born in front of the osslyn Hotel, where the team stays.

Said Wilson:

"I look to see baseball games played on the tops of these high buildings in the big cities before I get out of the game. Ground rents are getting so high that clubs will be forced to do something like that in order to be within easy reach of business men."

"The thing is not hard to do from a mechanical standpoint," added Jay Hughes. "Some of those big buildings in New York are almost big enough for a game now. Anyway, several of them about the same height could be connected. Look at what a time the American League had getting grounds in New York."

"There is one drawback I can see already," remarked Wilson. "If anybody hit a ball off the roof and it fell fifteen or twenty stories it would kill a man deader than a mackerel below."

When that time comes around we'll all be going to our seats in airships. If we're poor we will get a bag and let Parke and Jay talk into it a while, then see the "aerial game" for nothing.

Jay Hughes is a great enthusiast on the sport of duck shooting. His home is in Sacramento, and up the river a few miles in the tules Jay has a comfortable little hunting lodge. This same place nearly broke up the big leagues last winter when Joe Cantillon, Willie Keeler, Lajoie and others of the all-star teams were injured in a runaway while accepting Hughes's invitation to shoot with him.

The clever pitcher is said to be a right handy lad with the scattergun, and can hit 'em in the belly on a flyaway a whole lot better than opposing teams can hit his delivery in midsummer.

Eddie Householder has been dickering with the Little Rock management for a position in the outfield, and according to some of the playing talent has already reported. Householder should have no difficulty in making himself very popular in that company.

"I feel a whole lot of sympathy for these 'kids' that run away from work to see the ball games, for I lost six good jobs that way myself," admitted Parke Wilson the other night. "I was reading where some fellow advertised for a working boy that did not know a foul from third base. Well, I'll bet that if he found him, which you may be sure he didn't—at least an American boy—he was not worth 10 cents a week. I wouldn't have a boy that did not care for baseball."

"Dummy" Hoy gets away with the game of baseball at the expense of as little physical exertion as any player who ever appeared here. Hoy is not a bit lazy, and is no shirker, but he has been playing so long that he knows just how to save himself, and wastes no strength. He is a good example of what intelligent care in taking will do for an athlete physically.

UMPIRES' WORK.

M'DONALD'S FEW REMARKS.

Concerning the recently-issued instructions of Vice-President Burt of the Pacific Coast League as to the duties of umpires in keeping players from wrangling over decisions, Umpire McDonald has the following to say:

"Well, it's about time some decided action was taken to stop the senseless 'beefing' over decisions. It has marred many games, and the fans do not like it a bit. Often a decision is questioned that is perfectly fair. Some players make a terrific howl about them when they know they are in the wrong. That kind ought to be sat on good and hard. When a man has a kick coming, there is some excuse for him, but half the time the players howl worse on a decision that is right than on a mistake."

It has been said by those in a position to know that the league has not given to its umpires the proper authority over players. Big Jack O'Connell last fall was very sore on this point, and he repeatedly declared to the writer that fines he had imposed had not "gone" and that the players took advantage of it. The public will be glad to learn that there is to be a stop to the nonsensical "kicking" that was evidenced in two hour games and worse last week. Fans pay to see play, and are willing to take more or less "jawing" on the side, but do not want it made the main distraction.

Northwestern papers are discovering that Henry Hart was not treated fairly by the Pacific National League. Hart found it out over two months ago.

Minor Baseball.

The Sporting News team of this city was defeated again yesterday at Santa Barbara by the team of that city, the score being 7 to 6. This makes the third defeat of the hitherto invincible local team by the Santa Barbara team. Another game will be played today to decide the amateur championship of the Southwest.

At Tropico yesterday the team of that town beat the Ganahl Lumber Company club of this city by a score of 17 to 6.

The Appeals beat the Reliance team yesterday morning on the Pico Heights grounds by a 22 to 9 score.

The Hamburgers of this city defeated the Green Meadows club at the latter place yesterday by a score of 19 to 2. The features of the game were the pitching of Fitzman, who fanned out fifteen men, and the heavy batting of the Hamburgers. The winners offer to play any amateur team in Southern California.

At Anaheim yesterday the Apex club of this city defeated the Olinda Oil Company club by the score of 14 to 6.

The reorganized Santa Ana ball club desires to challenge any amateur team in this city for a series of games. Challenges should be sent to F. C. Graves, Santa Ana.

STATE BASEBALL.

OLD KNELL BEATEN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 6.—Stockton defeated the Jesse Moore's today in a pitchers' battle in which Ingalls outpitched the veteran, Phil Knell, notwithstanding the fact that the visitors were strengthened by Short-stop Joe McCarthy and Max Muller, ex-Pacific National players and "Flash" Nealon. Score:

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 6.—Thomas, who opened in the pitchers' box for the Sacramentos had nothing good to offer and was batted out of the box in the fifth inning. Fitzgerald, who relieved him, was no better and a fierce batting rally ensued, in which the visitors had somewhat the better of it and eventually won out. Lindsey, who was twirling for the San Francisco team, was also batted freely. Score:

PORTLAND BLANKED.

CRIPPLES DID IT TWICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—Oakland performed the unusual feat of shutting out Portland in both games today and the results were accomplished through the effective deliveries of the California pitchers. In the afternoon play Graham's curves were so puzzling that one hit in the first and another in the seventh were all that the northerners could land. In the same game Oakland hit McFarlan heavily in the third and ninth, getting eight runs for the pair of innings. Shields pitched splendidly for Portland in the morning, but his support was of the poorest kind. Score:

OUTSIDE TROLLING UNUSUALLY ACTIVE.

YELLOWTAIL, BARRACUDA AND MACKEREL BITING FIERCELY.

Big catches of fine fish were the rule yesterday both alongshore and outside in the haunts of yellowtail and barracuda. For once the sport was better than had been generally expected, and nearly all who were out yesterday will be at the same resorts again today.

In point of weight the outside trollers, as usual, carried off the palm. Dozens of parties went out from San Pedro to catch fish, and from Long Beach to watch a very interesting exhibition of how to handle yellowtail on rod and reel which was given by Will Stearns, Simon Spier and E. L. Hedderly, who were out with Harry Lynch in the Pearl. Lynch is a crack boatman and knows the difference between a rod and a hand line, which is more than many of the professional boatmen on this side do. Then, too, he knows the habits of the fish and can find them if there are any to be had.

Yesterday the best feeding ground was found about a mile beyond the breakwater, around White's Point and from that headland to the next promontory south. The Gadabout launch, with Ralph Middleton, Ben Hirsch and several others aboard, and the Pearl vied with each other to see who could make the biggest catch, and both did well, though the Pearl won on both number and quality, taking 4 yellowtail 23 barracuda, 6 cornfed mackerel and 3-bass, beside 10 bonita, which were promptly chucked overboard to fight again another time. The Gadabout's party got several big bonita and a good haul of barracuda. All the Pearl's catch was taken on rod and reel. One of the party succeeded in demonstrating a pet theory of his that yellowtail can be successfully taken from a launch with much lighter gear than that now in use by bringing to gaff a twenty-pounder after a prolonged tussle on a five and one-half ounce five and one-half foot lancewood tip. Innumerable anchovies of small size were affording the fish plenty of work all morning, and most of the strikes came away from the schools. The best biting, as usual, was early.

Not all of the fun was confined to the trollers, however. At the southern beaches the corbina chasers and the channel contingent had splendid success in numbers, though the fish ran small. At Brighton the reports of prepossessing good sport brought an unusually large turnout of anglers, and Messrs. Kremer, Campbell, Lazarus, Germain, Bottiller of the inveterates; Abe Kremer, Ed Wehrle, Ed Gerson and brother, Oscar Baer and others of the Occasionals made the place interesting to a school of nipper surf that was holding forth in the vicinity. Catches averaged about ten fish apiece and the big corbina were conspicuous by their absence.

In the bay, everybody had plenty of fun with small spotfin croakers of from a pound to a pound and a half weight, yellowfins averaging a little smaller, and occasional ladyfish. They were particularly numerous and voracious near Harry Lynch's wharf, and some fine ones were caught. The ladyfish is a very satisfactory proposition on light rod and reel. One weighing two pounds will lead an angler a merry chase before he is put into the boat, and then, like as not, he will jump overboard.

H. W. Comber and son, Eugene Elliott, A. M. Morse, H. T. Van Viper, Frank Lillie and Ernest Beuchel composed the Croaker Point party, and they reported fine sport last night, exhibiting the documentary evidence. The yellowfins are running of fair size now, and occasional China croakers are being caught again. At the cannery the sport was slow. Stearns and Spier the afternoon before did all kinds of things to the small croakers at that resort and lost several huge ones.

Redondo yielded a number of small sea trout during the day, and one splendid fish of ten pounds, so near the line that divides sea trout from sea bass that it might have passed for either. It put up a terrific fight on W. R. Phillips's rod, but he finally played it out and saved his treasure, being prouder of the capture than a father with his first son. It must be admitted Mr. Phillips had some excuse, too. Several fine bass were landed at Redondo. As usual the live bait contingent did the major part of the execution, but others who were busy with smaller game than trout and half-bout did fairly well. The trolling outside Redondo was up to the usual September standard.

A scarcity of bait in town sent many to Redondo and Del Rey today, who otherwise would frequent different places.

WHITE AND BRITT.

WILL MEET IN NOVEMBER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Some time within the next three months the two best white lightweight boxers in the world will meet in the ring in this city and do battle for a purse to be hung up by the Yosemite Club. Jabez White, the acknowledged premier lightweight boxer of England, cabled yesterday that he would accept the Yosemite Club's offer to fight Jimmy Britt of San Francisco, and that he had sent full particulars by mail. A cable message came to Britt himself and was sent from Birmingham.

For weeks Coffroth, manager of the Yosemite Club, has been spending money on cablegrams to White, making overtures to the Englishman for a match with Britt in this city. No reply was received to these messages until yesterday brought White's acceptance of Coffroth's proposition for a meeting in San Francisco. The Yosemite Club will cable instructions to White to start for this country, and there is every likelihood that the battle will take place at Mechanics' Pavilion early in November.

Munroe Prefers San Francisco.

Nothing more definite has been heard from Miner Jack Munroe as to his fight with Champion Jeffries than was contained in the exclusive dispatch to The Times yesterday morning. Jeffries's manager, Billy Delaney, left for San Francisco Saturday evening and empowered Manager McCarey to open any telegrams that came for him. One did come yesterday for Delaney from Munroe, and it merely contained the brief statement that he would prefer to fight in San Francisco.

McCarey himself has received no direct word from Munroe, but expects a message of some kind today. If it is favorable McCarey will at once wire transportation to Munroe at New York.

Aug. 19	Brighton Beach	1:59

The present has been a remarkable year for lovers of the harness horse. Only last week the game little Santa Rosa mare, Lou Dillon, did her mile in 2:00 flat, and a week before Dan Patch, the great and worthy son of Joe Patchen, set a new mark for the side-wheelers, dethroning Star Pointer, 1:59¾, from his exalted position of the previous five years. Dan Patch's time was 1:59 flat, and many well-informed horsemen expect to see him better even that figure.

The mile has been paced in less than 1:59 heretofore. Flying Jib covered the distance of 5280 feet at Independence, Iowa, as long ago as 1894, but the track there is kite-shaped, admittedly faster than the usual elliptical form, so the authorities never recognized the record. Flying Jib's time was 1:58¾, and while few expect to see it equaled on a circular track there are many who think M. W. Savage's fleet pacer will decidedly lower his time made at Brighton Beach, August 19 last. When he made his record-breaking performance he was only seventy-five days out of the stud. It has been generally observed that Dan Patch is a better gaited horse this year than he was last, picks up his feet in more snappy style and has less side motion. Myron McHenry, who drives the horse in all his starts against time or in races, had his heels blistered every few weeks last winter to stimulate their growth, thereby hoping to better his gait. At the same time his toes were cut down, and the effect was to straighten up Dan's feet. McHenry is satisfied the change has been for the better, and has repeatedly expressed his firm belief that the horse will yet pace his mile in 1:58.

Dan Patch is a brown stallion, 7 years old, bred by Dan A. Messner of Oxford, Ind. His sire was Joe Patchen, 2:01¾; his dam, Zelica, by Wilkesberry, 2:30, grandson of George Wilkes, 2:22. His grand dam was Abdallah Belle, by Pacing Abdallah, a son of Alexander's Abdallah. M. W. Savage, Dan Patch's present owner, gave M. E. Sturges of New York $60,000 for the animal last spring. He has been four years on the turf and is yet to be defeated in a race, having lost but two heats in all that time. In one of these he was laid up in his four-year-old form. In the other he cut his hock by striking the axle bar of a mowing and unfamiliar sulky, and had to be pulled up.

Dan Patch's present home is in Minneapolis, and his owner drives him occasionally. In Minneapolis, the great winter sport of the horsemen is racing on the ice. At Lake of the Isles, a pretty sheet of water in summer and a fine, smooth half-mile ice track in winter, dozens of the gentlemen reinsmen congregate every fine Saturday and Sunday afternoon or holiday in midwinter for speed trials, and some rare brushes are to be seen there. The stakes are usually a box of cigars or some similar trifle, but the races are for blood, and horsemen soon learn to put a proper estimate on each other's animals. M. W. Savage is a horseman of considerable skill himself, and he occasionally takes a spin behind his $60,000 prize, but the value of the splendid little stallion is so great that he hardly cares to take any chances with him.

Dan Patch is a handsome animal in appearance, and is a horse of great courage. He is a free and honest goer, and has never been known to shirk. He is a horse that will do his best at all times, and is a credit to the breeder and owner.

Palo Alto a Surprise.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Old Palo Alto, once champion of the racing greyhounds in America, became rejuvenated today and captured the open stake at Union Coursing Park as cleverly as a stake was ever won. This six-year-old hound met a slashing field of the fastest dogs in training and beat them with the greatest ease. In the final he met Lord Brasen, a dog with a world of speed, who has won two stakes within one month, and the victory of the old hound will be long talked over by coursing men. The jack had a long lead from the slips and shot directly for the escapes across the field. Palo Alto jumped to the front in the first few strides and his lead increased at every rod. The hare ran without waver and the race of the two dogs was without a turn. When the hare reached the escapes, Palo Alto was right behind it and led Lord Brasen by seven clear lengths, scoring the maximum for speed, and winning without a turn by a score of 2 to 0. It was one of the finest flights of speed ever seen on a coursing field and the veteran champion seems to have come back to his old-time form.

Only five short-ends won during the day. The worst upset was that of Vina, who, owing to bad fall, lost her course with Precita Maid, a 7 to 1 short-end. Two undecided courses were run between Mickey Free and Tralee Boy before the latter game dog raised the flag.

It is rumored that the Ocean Park and the Monarch teams are likely to meet in a match game for a good-sized purse. Such a match should furnish good sport, for the Ocean Park team holds the Coast record for a single game of 1026, and the Monarchs are said to hold the United States record for trios. The match will probably be bowled the last week in September.

The Long Beach team will play the Coliseum team at the Coliseum alleys on Wednesday night.

F. W. Samuelson, captain of the Monarch duck-pin trio, has challenged the Coliseum trio for a series of duck-pin games. The first batch will be bowled on the Coliseum alleys next Friday night.

An expert yachtswoman herself, she is full of admiration for Americans and American yachts. Still Mrs. Hunter believes that Great Britain can produce a yacht better than any that can be produced beneath the Stars and Stripes. Her husband, with his millions, shares that belief. Accordingly Mr. and Mrs. Hunter have gone so far in their intention to lift the America's cup that they have arranged with Messrs. Denny to build the yacht which will become in time the new challenger for the famous trophy. So far has the matter progressed. During the cup series off Sandy Hook Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were close observers of every attempt to sail the race.

First round, mixed doubles, Freeman and Mrs. Seymour defeated Miss Violet Sutton and Mr. Variel, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

TRAIN'S FAST SPEED.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—A new world's record for long-distance running was made by a passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad early this morning. A stretch of 128 miles was covered in 125 minutes. No stops were made. The distance traversed is between Chicago Junction, O., and Garrett, Ind. During the run a speed of 85 miles an hour was reached. This was the maximum. Bursts of speed of 70 and 75 miles an hour were frequent. The train was made up of five cars and was pulled by locomotive No. 1460 in charge of Engineer William Dunton. This locomotive is of the new Atlantic type, weighing 177,000 pounds. It is the most powerful style in service on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. An extra large water tank helped in this performance, saving stops for water. The distance of 131 miles between Garrett, Ind., and South Chicago, was covered in 153 minutes, making the whole run of 259 miles in 278 minutes.

GOOD ADVICE COMES FROM CONNIE MACK.

COACHING IS AN ESSENTIAL TO WINNING BASEBALL.

Players Most Successful Who do Minimum of Faultfinding With Umpire and Attend Strictly to Play. Lively Coaching Popular, and Wins.

"The best kind of coacher to have on the lines is the one who is daring—the one who is not afraid to take a chance," says Connie Mack, the manager of the Philadelphias, champions of the American League. A bold risk, if successful, becomes fine baserunning; if unsuccessful, it is condemned as foolish. But Mack believes in taking the bold risks. He wants no timid men upon the coaching lines, but men who know the moment to take a long and desperate chance and seize it instantly.

"The coacher must, of couse, be intelligent," he said. "There are times in the game when it is eight to one against the baserunner and yet the proper thing for him to do is to move along and try to win out on the slim chance. These situations depend on various things—who is at the bat, the score, and other things. At such times I want the daring coacher up to direct the runner, but one who also has good judgment.

"I believe in lively coaching and the public likes it. But I don't think the public cares anything for noise and bellowing and monkey-shines on the lines that have for their sole object to rattle the other side. Lively earnest coaching keys up your own side and that is what it should be used for—not to upset the other team. For that matter, I don't believe any kind of coaching has much effect on any opposing player—the pitcher, for instance, at whom it is most often directed.

"Legitimate coaching with a view to helping your own side is the only kind that ought to be practised and you are wasting your time when you go in for confusing your opponents, who pay no attention to your coaching. They have too much to think about without bothering with you, and by the same token you have all you can do helping your own man without paying attention to the other side. The team that devotes its energies and lung power to playing its own game and minding its own business is the team that wins.

"The older players in the business leave the coaching too much to the younger ones. There ought to be more coaching by the regular players, too, without men from the bench getting us so often. Everybody in the game ought to have enough interest in his team to be willing to take a turn on the lines. Yet as I said, there are times when it wouldn't do to have a timid man up. The man who is afraid he will be blamed if the runner is put out is not the man to have coaching at third base in a pinch. The coacher should study who is at the bat—whether he has been hitting or not. They say you can't tell, but I think you can tell, when a man's been up twice whether he is going to hit or not.

"The man who is playing a good game is the one to have up when bold coaching is needed. You can't say much to a man like that if he makes a mistake and he is not in dread of being reproved. The man who is no doing well himself lacks confidence on the coaching lines. I wouldn't want such a man coaching at third base, but still it is a good idea to have this very player do some coaching, for it gets his mind off his troubles, keeps him occupied and may brace him up.

"Take two teams that are evenly matched and the team that doesn't wrangle or sputter at the other players or the umpire will win the most games. According to the old Baltimore and Cleveland style, you had to kick up a great fuss to win. But those teams, with their strength, would have won twice as many games had they sat still on the bench. The Boston American League team is a quiet one yet always in the game, and winning without making any fuss about it.

"Kicking at the umpire is played out. It is a losing card, a waste of time. I know our team is not doing any of it, having had only one man put out of the game this year. Baseball is too fast and occupies all of your time and watchfulness and ability too completely to permit of a useless expenditure of time in finding fault with the umpire or trying to disconcert the other side. You can't do these latter things and keep your mind wholly on your own game. And unless you watch your own play strictly all the time you won't win."

Sassed by a Bootblack.

Senator Clark of Montana is a very unostentatious man. He has a habit of going around the streets downtown without much regard to the niceties of his personal appearance. He was walking down Exchange place the other day with his hat in his hand, a very informal-looking "magnate." At the corner of New street Pat Curran, 10 years old and Irish, stopped him.

The latter glanced down, noted the shoes were dusty, but remembered he had an appointment with the Harriman directors at his office.

"No—haven't time," he said.

And the boy grunted savagely: "You mean you ain't got the price, don't yer, mister?"

The Senator told the story on himself when he signed the check for $10,000,000 about ten minutes later that paid for 500 miles of Oregon Short Line.—[New York Times.

I HAVE been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all his different methods and can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his method of treatment. MILO M. POTTER, Prop. Van Nuys Hotel and Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara.

Ten years ago a reputable D. D. S. of Va, told me that a certain molar tooth could not be satisfactorily saved and that it would probably not be of service for one year. It has not only served me for ten years, as Dr. Schiffman saved and crowned it, and comparatively speaking without pain. I sing his praise. I. M. ANDREWS, Pastor M. E. Church, South, Cor. 6th and Mateo Streets.

On account of some unfortunate experience I had in the extraction of my teeth I became a great coward in this respect. Today Dr. Schiffman extracted one of my very refractory teeth without causing me one particle of pain. D. K. TRASK, Judge Superior Court, Los Angeles.

EVERAL years ago Dr. Schiffman did some crown and bridge work for me which has proved entirely satisfactory. The work was done painlessly and with great skill. It gives me great pleasure to recommend him. IRVING R. SMITH, L. A. Times.

Dr. Schiffman has put in almost an entire upper bridge for me. The bridge is perfect in every respect, and I can use it as well as my natural teeth. The work was done promptly and painlessly done. J. F. WILL, 901 West Twelfth.

Dr. Schiffman pulled two of my wisdom teeth, and it didn't hurt a bit; on the contrary, the sensation was pleasant. GUY L. HARRISON, Vice-Pres. Herald Pub. Co.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he filled and extracted the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth and put on a porcelain crown, which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON R. RUSH, Of Davis & Rush, Attorneys, 8 Rogers Blk.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to anyone wishing dental work done without pain. MRS. C. T. W. SCHRAMM, Mother of Paloma Schramm, Cor. Austin and Wadsworth.

Dr. Schiffman has put in a very satisfactory piece of bridge work for me and I cheerfully recommend him to anyone in need of dentistry. F. FLORENTINE, 1535 North Main St. County and City Criminal Photographer.

About a year ago I had a so 14 gold bridge put in by Dr. Schiffman. The work was absolutely painless, and has proved entirely satisfactory, and I cannot say too much in praise of the doctor. GUS BASLER, 215 W. First St.

Dr. Schiffman extracted my teeth and replaced same by bridge work. He also treated and filled two teeth, which I thought were too far gone to save. The above work was all done painlessly and is perfectly satisfactory. M. A. POLLARD, 727 Central Ave.

This is to certify that Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me seven years ago and the work is as good today as it was when he finished the job. S. J. McKENZIE, Police Officer, 1422 Essex St.

Have just had a large back tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman; had been hesitating, but it was only a trifle and gave no pain. FRED A. DAY, Deputy City Assessor.

NATIVE SONS' PLANS FOR ADMISSION DAY.

SAN BERNARDINO PREPARES FOR ELABORATE CELEBRATION.

Railroad Superintendent's Fast Ride on Switch Engine to Catch the Limited—Wife of J. M. Victor Granted Divorce for Cruelty.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 6.—Under the auspices of Arrowhead Parlor, No. 110, Native Sons of the Golden West, Admission Day will be celebrated as never before next Wednesday in San Bernardino. "Natives" will be here from all over Southern California and nothing will be left undone to insure a rip-rousing good time for all who participate in the festivities, the headquarters of which will be at Urbita Springs, the popular pleasure resort two miles south of the city. The Native Daughters will likewise be out in force. A local Parlor of Daughters has not yet been established, but it soon will be, and the Daughters from Los Angeles and elsewhere will flock here justthe same on Wednesday Special excursions will be run from Los Angeles by both the Santa Fé and Southern Pacific roads, and the Traction Company will furnish extra accomodations on all its lines. The literary exercises will commence at 2:30 o'clock. John Brown, Esq., will deliver an address on "The Pioneers;" Miss Eva T. Buissuis of Los Angeles, Grand Marshal of the N.D.G.W., will speak on "The Native Daughters," and the oration of the day will be delivered by Hon. R. F. Del Valle of Los Angeles, on the subject of "California." Dancing and a watermelon spread will follow, and in the evening there will be a ball at the pavilion. A committee consisting of W. D. F. Allen and Geo. Boren has arranged an attractive programme of sports for the day, handsome prizes to be awarded the winners in the different contests.

REAMER RIDES THE "GOAT."

W. B. Beamer, superintendent of the Southern California division of the Santa Fé, made a record-breaking ride on a "goat" locomotive up Cajon Pass last night. When the east-bound overland left Los Angeles Superintendent Beamer's private car was attached to the rear end of the train. Arriving here, Mr. Beamer alighted to shake hands with other railroad officials, who were at the station to wish him a pleasant journey East. While the superintendent talked his car had been switched to the first section of the overland, and before he knew it, both sections of the train had pulled out. Mr. Beamer waxed wroth, but the trouble was quickly remedied by calling a switch engine into requisition. Mr. Beamer boarded the "goat," which rattled and bounded over the rails to Verdemont in thirteen minutes, where it caught up with the overland, and the superintendent thereupon hied himself to his private car, which he will probably not leave again until he arrives at his destination.

DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY.

In Judge Bledsoe's court yesterday afternoon, Elizabeth M. Victor was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from J. N. Victor, on the ground of cruelty. The charges against Victor were to the effect that during the past five years he frequently struck his wife with his fist and sometimes he used a club or horsewhip to administer a beating. The plaintiff's testimony was corroborated by that of her son, Royal Victor. The property interests involved in the suit were settled out of court, Mrs. Victor getting a considerable share of her husband's estate, which is valued at about $30,000. J. N. Victor is well known throughout Southern California. He served as County Supervisor for two terms, and was at one time a director of the Santa Fé company. He has large property interests hereabouts.

M'LAIN CENSURED FOR THREE DEATHS.

"WE, THE jury, find that Ernest E. Sabin came to his death by being crushed and suffocated by falling earth while at work for George L. McLain at Sixth and San Joaquin streets, in excavating for a foundation for a building, and we do find that said George L. McLain did not take proper measures and precautions to protect the lives of his workmen by bracing up the banks."

The lamentable accident of Saturday afternoon, in which Sabin, Oscar W. Crans and Michael Jessie, laborers, lost their lives beneath a falling bank of earth, resulted in the above verdict at Bresee Bros.' morgue yesterday in the inquest over the body of Sabin. The verdicts in the other two cases were identically the same as that quoted.

Although McLain is blamed for carelessness it is a somewhat remarkable circumstance that of the seven witnesses who testified, the statements of six were in his favor. These, who are in the employ of McLain and were digging in the excavation Saturday when the bank caved in, testified that they did not consider the wall of earth dangerous; that is, before it toppled over. They said that they would be willing to work again under such an embankment.

But the seventh man was drunk. He said that he considered the bank very dangerous that he wouldn't for the life of him ever throw a shovelful of earth in such a precarious situation again.

He said it with blinking, shifty eyes, and his breath added strength to his remarks. It wasn't the right kind of strength, though, and the jury chose to disregard his testimony.

In spite of this witness's condition, his testimony was given with the greatest honesty. He was at least free from any influence of the contractor. The other six were evidently anxious to stand well with their employer and manifested a restraint remarked by those conducting the inquest.

McLain would undoubtedly have been exonerated from blame had not Coroner Trout himself been at the scene of the accident while one of the victims was still under the tons of earth that killed him. The testimony of McLain's employés was so apparently at variance with the facts that the jury made an independent verdict.

One important result of the catastrophe will be an ordinance compelling contractors and excavators to brace trenches and excavations over six feet deep. Building Superintendent Krause stated yesterday that he would do his utmost to have such a law passed, and the necessity for it being so apparent, there will undoubtedly be no opposition to the measure.

Oscar W. Crans was a married man, with children, and belonged to the Odd Fellows. His funeral services will be conducted by that order. Jessie was a widower and left one child.

MY Method of treatment is the most rational, most reasonable and most effective yet known.

A Saying Often Heard.
More Men Might Be Well.

I am convinced from the many that have come to me for cure that many men have been treated for conditions which they did not have—failure to obtain a positive and complete history in many cases is the cause. Guessing from certain symptoms is very often misleading—and for this and other uncertain reasons I often refuse to treat by mail—uncertain and unreliable methods. When I treat any condition I must know what for and why and you may know what you can depend upon.

Good results are not had by guessing, but by knowing what to do and how to do it.

I make definite claims for my treatment and method of application, which have proved the most effective in use. Half the failures are due to misunderstanding of cause and condition to be treated. I WAIT FOR MY FEE UNTIL YOU ARE CURED.

Special Attention Given To

Varicocele, Stricture, Rupture, Piles and Rectal Troubles, Hydrocele, Contagious Blood Diseases and acute and chronic urethral, bladder and prostatic troubles. My facilities are the best for giving thorough and affective treatment. I accomplish more in one week to ten days than you could ever hope for by guessing through the mail. Rooms furnished free to patients.

ECCENTRIC PASADENAN DIES IN MYSTERY.

MRS. MORRIS BELIEVED TO HAVE HIDDEN HER MONEY.

Lived in House Without Roof so That She Could Commune With Spirits—Labor Day Programme Includes Foot Races for Women.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. [illegible] South Raymond avenue, Sept. 7.—The sudden death of an old Spiritualist and otherwise eccentric character in North Pasadena under mysterious circumstances has set the tongues of Pasadena to wagging and the burden of rumor is that the old man was a miser. He is believed by some people to have buried quite a large sum of money in the neighborhood of his home. It would not be strange if a concerted effort is made to find the hidden gold. Or perhaps some papers in the old fellow left and which have not yet been examined, will save some would-be treasure-hunters the trouble.

The old man's name was James Morris. He was a native of New York, 77 years of age, and had resided here for six years. He was at one time quite wealthy, and so far as is known, has no relatives. Several years ago he had considerable property in the form of lots which paid him rentals. It is said that he still owned some of this property at the time of his death, having only holding in Pasadena was his home near Kirkwood and Dakota avenues, in North Pasadena, not far from the bank of the arroyo. A peculiar-looking affair was this place. It consisted of a box about ten feet square upon which was built another box or upper story, about eight feet square. At first the old man had placed diamond-shaped windows in this, so that the spirits could come in and go out at leisure. This sash was blew down, and reasoning that the spirits did not get in as they pleased, Mr. Morris rebuilt the place, leaving the top or roof off. During inclement weather he stretched a canvas over it. For a day or two ago his friend, D. W. Lewis, of the Board of Education, who looked after Morris a great deal, missed him from his usual haunts, and after investigating, found him dying of starvation. Morris was removed to the home of D. W. Lewis.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. today from the home of D. W. Lewis.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 24 South Raymond avenue, Sept. 7.—The sudden death of an old Spiritualist and otherwise eccentric character under circumstances has set the tongues of Pasadena busybodies to wagging and the burden of the rumor is that the old man was a miser. Only a few days ago his friend, D. W. Lewis, of the Board of Education, who visited after Morris a great deal, missed him from his usual haunts, and on investigating, found him dying of pneumonia. Morris was removed to Dr. Lewis' home, No. 1030 North Fair Oaks avenue, where he breathed his last yesterday morning, leaving word with Dr. Lewis's care, to be opened today or tomorrow.

There is some ground for believing that he was a miser. A short time ago he surprised people by purchasing a second-hand and a chainless bicycle. It was for the purpose of getting from the other to the chainless "bike" they know. He has for years suffered with rheumatism and was very lame.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. today from the home of D. W. Lewis.

SAN PEDRO.

DISPUTE OVER TIDE LANDS.

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 6.—The dispute between the Crescent Wharf and Warehouse Company and the Pacific Dredging and Reclamation Company, relative to certain portions of the water front at East San Pedro, has assumed serious proportions. Yesterday the Wharf Company made another attempt to build its pier line over the disputed property, and as a result of the move it is probable that legal proceedings will be instituted to determine ownership. Developments in this case are being closely watched by the residents of the East Side, many of them fearing that they will be ousted from the tide lands should the present contest be decided in favor of the Crescent people.

The prompt retreat and sprinting powers of E. L. Frank, a local contractor, who engaged in a quarrel with a Mrs. Deckeman at East San Pedro yesterday, relative to a portion of tide land held on squatter's rights, probably saved him a thrashing at the hands of this woman. Frank attempted to drive stakes around a tent occupied by Mrs. Deckeman, but she pulled them up as fast as he could put them down. Finally, seeing that she could not hold out much longer against the persistent work of the contractor, the woman secured a long stick and an old piece of iron, with which she succeeded in driving Frank away, threatening him with bodily injury if he returned.

SAN PEDRO POINTS

The handsome new launch built by Joe Fellows, at Terminal Island, for H. M. Russell of Los Angeles, will be shipped to Alaska in a few days, where it is to be used as a tow-boat on the Yukon River.

The new concern is capitalized at $25,000, and has quarters in the old Bank of San Pedro building on Beacon street. The directors are George H. Peck, Henry Baly, John H. F. Peck, E. D. Seward and Joseph Weldt.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

GREETING FOR GEN. BLACK.

SOLDIERS' HOME, Sept. 6.—A letter received by the Governor yesterday from the secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce states that Gen. J. C. Black, Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R., will visit the Home Wednesday. The contemplated visit is viewed with gratification, and the new-made chief will receive a hearty welcome. Officers of the Home have planned to meet and escort the general to Memorial Hall, and it is hoped the veterans will have an opportunity to listen to an address by him. Work generally will be suspended that all may participate in the reception.

GRAND ARMY MEMBERS REMEMBER THEIR DEAD.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT LONG BEACH ENCAMPMENT.

Largest Crowd That Ever Attended Any Meeting in the Big Tent Attends to Pay Tribute to Memory of Those Named in Roll of Honor.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 6.—Memorial Day has always been made a feature of the veterans' encampments, but never have the services been made more impressive than today. Under the hands of the auxiliary ladies, the platform in the big tent had been transformed into a veritable bower of cut flowers, potted plants and evergreens, while flags were gracefully draped from all the available points on that great auditorium. One of the largest audiences of the session, far beyond the seating capacity of the tent, gathered to assist in paying tribute to the memory of the veterans who had been mustered, out during the year. On the platform, in addition to Commander T. McE. Brady and his staff, were Past Commanders T. D. Kanouse, J. H. Hatting, C. B. Hamilton, D. G. Mitchell, Samuel Kutz, George Downing, Ed Seymour, and Frank Hobart. In addition there were the orator of the day, Rev. T. C. Miller, field secretary of the University of California; Rev. D. B. Shuey of Emporia, Kan.; Chaplain-in-chief of the G.A.R. department, J. A. Medler, and Maj. E. B. Cushman of the Sons of Veterans.

The ladies, too, were well represented, Mrs. Mary E. Hattery, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, having nearly her full staff of officers present. There were also Past Presidents Mesdames A. M. Sproul, Julia Hobart, Martha Packard, Alice Fitch, Lillian Harris and Lena Brady. Army nurses present were Mesdames Margaret Hayes, Mary E. Threlkeld, Smith, Jewell, Lizzie T. Mills, Reynolds, "Grandma" Call and Miss Addie Miller. The guest of honor was Mrs. Florence O. McClelland of Chicago, Past National Inspector and Past Department President of Illinois.

Commander Brady opened the exercises by asking the audience to assist in singing the Doxology; Rev. Stuntz of Pasadena offered prayer and Mrs. Princess Long and J. W. Patterson sang the "Vacant Chair" with great feeling and expression. The scripture reading was by Rev. A. A. H. Wilson, after which Mrs. D. B. Mason sang "A Day's March Nearer Home."

The "Roll of Honor," containing the names of the veterans who had been mustered out during the past year was read by Adjt. B. Brown and Mrs. Martha P. Bronson, chaplain of the auxiliary, performed a like duty for that organization. At the close of each list Comrade B. F. Hilliker beat the long roll and at the close Comrade O. F. Thomas sounded "Taps." A quartette composed of W. E. Herendern, Prof. Packard, Matthew Aigle and J. W. Patterson closed that portion of the programme was "Nearer My God to Thee."

Dr. T. C. Miller, when introduced as the speaker of the day, spoke to the general subject, "Let no man take away thy crown." He began by stating that he knew of no better way of showing honor to the memory of the departed heroes than by living true and upright lives. "The crown of the Grand Army is a glorious crown," he said. "It is glorious because you decided to stand for the right and did not count the cost. You made a great social and financial sacrifice and there was no figuring on the cost. Your lives were cast freely into the scale. Why was the list of the dead read today so long? It was because no man can go through the stress of battle and come out the same man, and those whose names we have heard today as surely died for their country as those who were shot on the field of battle. Your crown is glorious on account of the results you won. Your honor is increased by the men who met you on the fields of the South. You were fighting with giants in those days. Lincoln, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Logan, all are greater today and will be greater still 100 years from now. More than all thee, you were the soldiers of the Living God, marching in tune with the infinite. To those who have fallen the crown is assured, but to the living comes the exhortation of the text, let no man take away thy crown. You must continue to be right. You must be true to American liberty if you would preserve your crown. You must preserve the free state, free church and free schools. Let capital and labor both be free, and if either becomes tyrant, crush it. Add to these free traffic and free speech and you have a free country that cannot help but flourish. As it grows you must grow with it. Keep your faces to the future. Your career has not gone by, everything is before you. The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal for all the veterans to enlist in the army of the great Captain, who died in the service of the world.

At the close of the eloquent address by Dr. Miller, Rev. D. B. Shuey, past chaplain-in-chief of the G.A.R., was introduced and spoke briefly of the organization and the duties of the members. He dwelt especially upon the wisdom of teaching patriotism to the children of today, so that the nation may have their backing tomorrow. The programme closed with "America" sung by the audience under the leadership of J. W. Patterson.

Maj. Hilton gave an interesting programme of selected music in the big tent tonight.

Today's registration at 4 o'clock brought the total up to 1093, the largest number of veterans that have ever attended an encampment in Long Beach. If present indications hold there will be 1500 names on the roster before the end of the week.

LONG BEACH BRIEFS.

The Wisconsin Association will hold its annual meeting in the surgeon's tent at 2 o'clock p.m. tomorrow. There is no set programme for tomorrow and a special entertainment is being prepared for the evening.

Today's crowd has been the largest of the season since July 4. Many were brought down by the encampment, but thousands came simply to pass the day at the beach. Judging by the throng the end of the season must be still far distant.

SAN DIMAS.

PROMINENT ENGINEER DEAD.

SAN DIMAS, Sept. 6.—J. P. Burnham, chief engineer of the San Dimas Irrigation Company, died Saturday night at his home in LaVerne, the immediate cause of his death being heart failure. He sustained a stroke of paralysis about a year ago, but recovered. Although he was a civtim of consumption, he did not relinquish his duties until four days ago. He was 63 years of age, unmarried, and lived with his sister, Mrs. M. Orcutt, besides whom he leaves a brother, F. P. Burnham, of Riverside. The funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The deceased was one of the most highly esteemed men in this section of the county, and particularly was he popular among those with whom his duties associated him. He had resided in this part of the county about six years, having come to California from Chicago. In order that the employés of the various irrigation organizations and others interested in them may have an opportunity to attend the funeral, practically all the pumping plants in this section will close down Tuesday morning until after the services.

GLENDORA.

NO MORE "CULLS."

GLENDORA, Sept. 6.—At the annual meeting of the A.C.G. Association the "cull" question received considerable attention, and it was unanimously declared the sense of the association that no more "culls" be sold to Italian peddlers, and that the management in Los Angeles be notified.

The orange growers have received a few hundred dollars for their "culls" this season, but they feel that the small amount was but a poor compensation for the injury they did the local orange market in placing this poor fruit in competition with the good fruit of the valley.

HERE AND THERE.

The Glendora Water Company is installing a No. 6 Jackson centrifugal pump in well No. 2, which, when completed, will double its present supply of water. The workmen in charge through carelessness or otherwise, dropped the pump when within thirty feet of the bottom of the shaft, doing some damage to the machinery, which will delay matters for a short time.

The sub-contractor who had charge of the work on the Citrus Union High School building, managed to get several ugly snarls and kinks in his work, and it finally became necessary for the trustees to declare the original contract forfeited. The trustees have been kept busy two weeks unraveling the entanglement. The work is being pushed along in a satisfactory manner by the day's work plan, and the new building will be ready for occupancy about October 1.

The Citrus Union High School will open Monday with Prof. W. A. Sheldon as superintendent in the old school building.

L. C. Barber and wife of Ocean Park are registered at Hotel Glendora.

Prof. Carlos Reynard and wife of Pasadena were the guests of relatives in Glendora last week.

When Chamberlain Was Silent.

Some fanciful stories are being circulated about Joseph Chamberlain and his oratorical powers as a youth, but from what a friend of his says concerning the great statesman's college days it is a mistake to say that young Chamberlain could speak well when at school. In fact, he could never be induced to speak, and in this he somewhat resembled the retiring Arthur Balfour.

One day one of the masters of the school which he was at asked Chamberlain to make the reply to a speech which had just been delivered by one of the elder students of the debating class. The hour came, and with a firm step Chamberlain mounted the platform. With perfect outward self-possession he faced the audience and made his bow—a low bow. Everyone waited expectantly. People became anxious when the young man again bowed but said nothing. Then a titter went round among the boys. Suddenly the coming colonial secretary, with a look of utter despair sidled off the platform with another bow, not having said one word.—[London Answers.

CAMPAIGN OF ARCHEOLOGY.

Rich Fields of the Southwest Will Be Worked.

Los Angeles to Be Center of Wide Operations.

The Archeological Institute of America, well known for its work in historic and prehistoric fields abroad as well as for its coöperation with the United States government in the work of research in this country, has decided to further the work of exploration and preservation with vigor in the Southwest, and has chosen Los Angeles as the basis of its operations in this field.

The man who has been sent out by the society to seek to arouse interest in the project among the people here, with a view to establishing an active affiliated society in this city, is Prof. Martin L. D'Ooge, professor of Greek in the University of Michigan, who arrived at the Van Nuys yesterday.

The Archeological Institute of America was founded in Boston in 1881 for the purpose of furthering, in cooperation with the great universities and the government's scientists, the work of scientific exploration of ruins and research of languages and histories of the past, and has since itself been the founder of the American School of Classical Studies at Rome and at Athens. The secretary of the society, Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, of the University of Michigan, is a member of the national commission appointed by the United States government for the recommendation of measures for the preservation of historic and prehistoric ruins and sites in America.

In explanation of the work to be taken up in this section, Prof. D'Ooge said yesterday:

"At a meeting of the council of the Archeological Society held in New York in May, it was decided to make a campaign on the Pacific Coast, and found auxiliary societies in Los Angeles, as the capital of the historic Southwest; and in Salt Lake City and San Francisco. These will be especially for the study of American archeology. The other branches taken up by the society are the classical, involving studies and exploration in the classical countries of Southern Europe, and the Biblical, dealing with Palestine, etc. The American side has not been pushed as it should have been, and the time has come now when careful exploration should be taken up here in the West, and steps taken for arousing general public interest in the preservation of ancient landmarks, in coöperation with the government and such societies as may already be engaged in the good work in a small way.

"After the organization of an auxiliary society, it is entitled to the services of the lecturers sent out by the institute three times a year. This year the lecturers will be Prof. Francis W. Kelsey of Michigan, secretary of the institute, who will speak on "Recent Discoveries in Pompeii;" Prof. McGee of the Smithsonian Institution, on "Cliff Dwellings of the Southwest," and Prof. R. B. Richardson, for ten years in charge of the institute's school at Athens, on "Excavations at Corinth." Prof. Kelsey will be here in December to perfect the organization of the society, which I hope public sentiment will enable us to gather together in Los Angeles.

"Where an affiliated society seems advisable, it is necessary to unite in cordial coöperation the classes of persons who might be presumed to have an interest in the work. These classes are, first, teachers in all grades of institutions whose work comes in contact with that of the society in the direction of ancient languages, history and art; second, professional men whose field of activity touches the society's work as architects and artists; and, third, cultivated men and women in all the walks of life who have an interest in the work as a means of promoting general culture. Schools, art museums and scientific societies are admittable to membership."

When an affiliated society desires to send an exploring party into the field the institute supplies the funds necessary to add to the sum which the society may have been able to collect in its section.

DOUBLE HUGGING.

Two Colored Women on Their Way to Church Roughly Embraced by Drunk Men in Crowd.

Shrill feminine screams rending the air in the vicinity of Seventh and San Pedro streets last night attracted a large crowd. Two colored women on their way to church furnished the noise. C. R. Hall and F. A. Eckman, lusty drunks, the cause.

The men seeing the women going demurely to church with Bibles under their arms couldn't resist, so they embraced the women with bearish hugs. Patrolmen Childs reached the scene when the women were in paroxysms of terror and found a large crowd surrounding te huggers and the hugged. Everyone was laughing; "better than a circus." Being more afraid of the star than they were attracted by the women's charms, the men sheepaddled, one running into a saloon.

The officer found him hiding under a table, dragged him out and clicked a pair of handcuffs on his wrists. The other fellow, who thought it was a joke, wandered into the officer's arms. He was doubling up with laughter and was about to tell his companion what a good joke it was when Childs imprisoned him with the other band of steel and took the huggers to jail. They were charged with being drunk.

The gas cookstove is especially useful in everything.

Reminds us of an enthusiast's recommendation of her physician. "Why don't you go to my doctor?" she said; "he's a specialist in everything."

In Its Natural State.

James H. McDonald is the highway commissioner of Connecticut, and in the course of his travels through the 168 towns in the State sometimes finds himself at luncheon time without means of satisfying his hunger, unless he will accept the hospitality of the first selectman of the town, which he generally does.

"I've eaten so much codfish as to make for the prosperity of the Massachusetts fishing industry," he said recently. "I expect before I die to turn into a pillar of salt like Lot's wife."

Mr. McDonald tells a story of his visit to a small town, where he was thus entertained, and where he listened to the same old apology for codfish.

"How do you like your codfish?" the housewife asked of the assistant superintendent of highway construction, R. G. Pike. "I like mine," he answered, "picked up fine, with milk and potato, etc."

"How do you like yours?" she asked of a visiting town official, and he "'lowed he liked a little more potato and made into cakes so thin as to brown easy."

"How do you like yours, commissioner?" she finally inquired of Mr. McDonald.

"If it is all the same to you, my good woman," said he, "I like mine swimming."—[New York Times.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Burglar in Grocery.

G. O. Roach's grocery store at No. 842 West Ninth street was broken into yesterday evening. A burglar pried a padlock from a rear heavy screen door. Two boxes of cigars, candy and fruit was the plunder.

Hip Broken by Car.

Luigi Danzo, a cooper, was struck by a Pasadena electric car while riding a wheel on Mission road yesterday afternoon and his left hip was broken. He also sustained scalp wounds, and his left hand was bruised. He was taken to the County Hospital.

Salvationist Dead.

Adjt. Wolfe of the Salvation Army received a telegram of the death of J. J. Burke, in the County Hospital at Santa Rosa. He was a member of the Salvation Army in 1896. Any one knowing his sisters should report to No. 423 South Spring street, Army headquarters.

Academy of Sciences.

The Southern California Academy of Sciences will resume the regular monthly meetings this evening at the Woman's Club House, No. 940 South Figueroa street. There will be a lecture on "Scientific Commercial Standards" by A. H. Low, and a paper on "Hints of Measure" by Prof. Melville Dosier. Members and friends invited.

In a Sumphole.

Arrayed in a man's shirt, coat and vest, a skirt and a hat yellow with age, with faded flowers drooping o'er, Mrs. Margaret May fell into a sumphole used by the Los Angeles Lighting Company in the river bed near Macy street yesterday afternoon, and emerged covered with oil and tar. Her sex was a matter of conjecture. At the Receiving Hospital she gave the following information about herself: "Oi am a saleslady. Where do Oi live? Wheriver Oi hang me ha-at." Mrs. May was intoxicated.

Orpheum Christening.

The new Orpheum, rebuilt within the walls of the old Los Angeles Theater, had a sort of private christening last night, preparatory to the public event which is to take place this evening. The guests at Manager Drown's informal ceremony were a dozen or fifteen newspaper men, the builders and finishers of the new house, and a few of the local theatrical people. There was nothing formal on the programme, and the new playhouse was lit up from top to bottom, looking very cheery in its warm glow of bright coloring under the electric lights. Especially comforting to the journalistic spirit was a long table on the stage, laden with delicacies and numerous wired bottles of real "fizz." With this spacious, comfortable and artistic theater opened, as it will be tonight, it is doubtless true that Los Angeles has the finest vaudeville theater in the West.

He Still Had His Nerve.

The engineer had been many years in the service of the road, and ti is a well-known fact in railroad circles that in time the majority of engineers lose their nerve. They become too cautious an das a result they get their trains in late.

This engineer—and this is a true story—had lost his nerve. He had a passenger engine, and twice he had been told that if he could not bring his train in on time he would have to begin hauling freight. That is a pretty hard threat to throw to an engineer, and he meekly promis 1 to do better.

On the occasion of the third warning he asserted that he would bring the train in on time, "even if there was a brick house on the track and a barn in addition."

He came into the office after his "run" a day or so later, glanced about the room, looked up at the ceiling and then asked: "Seen any of it?"

"Of what?" asked an official.

"Coal!" said the engineer.

"Coal!" repeated the official. "Why should we expect to see any coal here?"

"Oh, I guess it hasn't come down yet," answered the engineer, carelessly.

"What do you mean?" demanded the official.

"Some one left a loaded car on the main track," explained the engineer. "Switch turned too soon or a coupling broke, I guess. Anyway, it wasn't there."

"And you——"

"Oh, I got in on time. I'm not like a man who has lost his nerve—not by a good deal."

"But the car! How did you get around——"

"I didn't get a—round. I pulled her wide open and came through. There's about half a ton of coal on the top of the rear coach, and I was expecting to find the rest of it here. The last I saw of it it was high and scattering."

"Great Scott!"

"Well?"

"The smokestack of the engine is gone, there's no pilot left, and the windows of the cab are busted. But, of course, I was acting under orders and I got in on time. And say, again!"

"Well?"

"Just put it down on your books somewhere that an engineer who hasn't lost his nerve, but is tired of keeping it, resigned from the service of the road today, and is going to look for a job on a farm."—[Brooklyn Eagle.

TWO CENTS TO LONDON.

British Postoffice Has Detailed a Number of Clerks to Compile Statistics on Lower Postage.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 20.—It seems that the Postmaster-General's statement in the House of Commons on the eve of the prorogation of Parliament, that he was not prepared to promise a penny post arrangement with the United States, must not be taken to indicate that such an arrangement is not probable. I am informed that a number of clerks have been on extra duty for the last three months getting out figures that will enable Mr. Austen Chamberlain to come to some definite decision on the matter by the time Parliament assembles in November. Postal reformers like Henniker-Heaton, M.P., have been keeping in close touch with leading officials at the general postoffice, and they are satisfied that a penny post between England and the United States is a thing that must come.

The clerks engaged in compiling the statistics are complaining that they are on extra duty without extra pay.

Horse Tamers at Work.

"One of these horse tamers," said the keeper of a livery stable, "gave me some pointers the other day. If what he says is true, to tame wild horses isn't such a wonderful thing as you'd think.

"It seems," the man went on, "that horses are tamed by smell. By attacking that sense the most vicious nags can be made gentle. The tamer says only three smells are required—the smell of horse castor and of oil of cumin and of oil of rhodium. Cumin and rhodium you buy. Horse castor you make yourself.

"There is an excrescence that appears on horses' feet, a kind of warty growth. That is horse castor. You chip it off and it has a musty smell. Carry a little of it in your pocket. It is attractive to horses.

"Now, when you are going to bring in from the fields a bad horse—one of that kind that is apt to kick you in the back or to bite off your ear—you put a few drops of oil of cumin on your hand and you can approach the animal from the windward. He sniffs the delicious cumin and draws near with a gentle whinny. You rub his nose with the hand that is odoriferous, and then you pour on his tongue about eight drops of the rhodium. That settles him. He follows you, then, like a pet dog. He is all yours. Because you have made him acquainted with the heavenly bliss that comes from smelling horse castor, cumin and rhodium, the animal will love you like a brother, and he will do anything you want him to do until his dying day. According to my friend, it's by these tactics, by this appeal to the nose, that all horse tamers work."—[Philadelphia Record.

One Opinion

The many testimonials we receive every day prove—"There's no lady or mother who has tried GROGAN'S PURITY OLIVE OIL SOAP, made from the finest grade of pure table Olive Oil, would use any other."

This is a genuine Olive Oil Soap, made from pure olive oil and contains no animal fats or animal grease. It is made from the finest olive oil and therefore does not become too frosty, lasts much longer and is good for the most delicate skin. It is used by all of the "society" people. Olive Oil Soaps on the market are made from cotton-seed tallow and a small percentage of animal fats and some colored green soap, containing little or no Olive Oil.

Our Olive Oil Soap is purely vegetable, and is pronounced by prominent physicians to be

ABSOLUTELY THE BEST SKIN SOAP

Now, we all know that some unscrupulous dealers will recommend other soaps for article in order to make a larger profit. Olive Oil is expensive, and consequently the profits in making and selling pure Olive Oil Soap must be small for all concerned, so as to give the public

THE BEST QUALITY FOR THE SAME MONEY

Therefore, Beware of any just as good!!! THERE IS NONE!

LABOR.

MAMMOTH OVATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Syracuse Never Held Such a Throng Before in Its History.

Five Thousand Workingmen Uncover Their Heads as They Pass in Review Where the Chief Executive Stands. His Great Address on Good Citizenship and the Relations Which Should Exist Between Labor and Capital.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Sept. 7.—The President was today accorded a magnificent reception by the citizens of his own State. From the moment of his arrival in this city this morning, at 9:30 o'clock, until he stepped aboard his special train at 10:30 o'clock tonight to begin his return trip to Oyster Bay, he was given a continuous ovation.

Syracuse never held such a throng as assembled here today to greet the President. Fully 100,000 persons from all sections of New York State tested the carrying capacity of the various lines of railroad, and many additional thousands came fro mthe country contiguous to the city. Everywhere in the city and at the grounds of the New York State Fair Association he was received with notable enthusiasm. As he drove through the streets the tens of thousands of persons banked along the sidewalks greeted him with cheers. Business houses and residences were ablaze with bunting, and the American flag floated in the breeze from almost every window.

It was a busy day for the President as well as a day full of incidents. In the morning, soon after his arrival, he reviewed from a beautifully-decorated stand in Hanover Square a great parade of labor organizations of the city. He then went to the State Fair Grounds, where he delivered before 50,000 people an address on good citizenship and the relations that should exist between labor and capital. He was the principal guest at a luncheon at the clubhouse on the grounds—a luncheon which was attended by every important State official except Gov. Odell, who could not be present on account of a previous engagement. He reviewed a fine parade of the National Letter Carriers' Association and fraternal bodies of the city, and was the guest tonight of former United States Senator Frank Hiscock at a dinner, which was attended by about thirty persons invited to meet the President.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SYRACUSE, Sept. 7.—In the reviewing stand beside the President were Senator Depew, Bishop P. A. Ludden of Syracuse and influential citizens. There was never before such a demonstration by organized labor in this city. Fully 5000 men and women were in line.

The Labor Day Committee, as it reached the stand, sent its chairman to greet the President, and to pin a badge upon his coat. The President expressed his pleasure in a few words, and the line began to move. Union after union uncovered as it reached the stand.

Now and again the President shouted compliments to a fine-looking body of men. From start to finish, his attention was never diverted from the workingmen. In the parade were a few floats with placards. One read: "The trust fights us; let fight the trust by not using their goods."

"They are the 'power behind the throne,'" remarked a Syracusan to the President, as the men marched by.

"Exactly the power behind the throne; exactly, and it makes one proud to think he is an American to see these men," remarked the President.

When the President reached the State fair grounds a crowd estimated at 50,000 had arrived, and crowds were pouring through all the gates.

A citizens' committee of 100 occupied the speakers' stand. Promptly upon arrival of the President, he was introduced by Lieut.-Gov. Higgins, president of the State Fair Committee. After the cheering had subsided, the President spoke as follows:

In speaking on Labor Day at the annual fair of the New York State Agricultural Association, it is natural to keep especially in mind the two bodies who compose the majority of our people and upon whose welfare depends the welfare of the entire State. If circumstances are such that thrift, energy, industry, and forethought enable the farmer, the tiller of the soil, on the one hand and the wage worker on the other to keep themselves, their wives, and their children in reasonable comfort, then the State is well off, and we can be assured that the other classes in the community will likewise prosper. On the other hand, if there is in the long run a lack of prosperity among the two classes named, then all other prosperity is sure to be more seeming than real.

It has been our profound good fortune as a nation that hitherto, disregarding exceptional periods of depression and the normal and inevitable fluctuations in the business of the whole from the beginning of our government to the present day a progressive betterment alike in the condition of the tiller of the soil and in the condition of the man who, by his manual skill and labor, supports himself and his family, and endeavors to bring up his children so that they may be at least as well off as, and if possible better off than, he himself has been. There are, of course, exceptions, but as a whole, the standard of living among the farmers of our country has risen from generation to generation, and the wealth represented on the farms has steadily increased, while the wages of labor have likewise risen—both as regards the actual money paid and as regards the purchasing power which that money represents.

Side by side with this increase in the prosperity of the wage worker and the tiller of the soil has gone on a great increase in the prosperity among this business men and among certain classes of professional men, and the prosperity of these men has been partly the cause and partly the consequence of the prosperity of farmer and wage worker. It cannot be too often repeated that in this country, in the long run, we all of us tend to go up or down together. If the average of well being is high, it means that the average wage worker, the average farmer, and the average business man are all alike well off. If the average shrinks, there is not one of these classes which will not feel the shrinkage. Of course, there are always some men who are not affected by good times, just as there are some men who are not affected by bad times. But speaking broadly, it is true that if prosperity comes all of us tend to share more or less therein, and that if adversity comes each of us, to a greater or less extent, feels the tension.

A GREAT TRUTH.

Unfortunately, in this world the innocent frequently find themselves obliged to pay some of the penalty for the misdeeds of the guilty, and so, if hard times come, whether they be due to our own fault or to our misfortune, whether they be due to some burst of speculative frenzy that has caused a portion of the business world to lose its head—a loss which no legislation can possibly supply—or whether they be due to any lack of wisdom in a portion of the world of labor, in each case the trouble once started is felt more or less in every walk of life.

It is all-essential to the continuance of our healthy national life that we should recognize this community of interest among our people. The welfare of each of us is dependent fundamentally upon the welfare of all of us; and therefore in public life that man is the best representative of each of us who seeks to do good to each by doing good to all; in other words, whose endeavor it is not to represent any special class and promote merely that class's selfish interests, but to represent all true and honest men of all sections and all classes and to work for their interests by working for our common country.

We can keep our government on a sane and healthy basis, we can make and keep our social system what it should be, only on condition of judging each man not as a member of a class, but on his worth as a man.

THE INFAMOUS THING.

It is an infamous thing in our American life, and fundamentally treacherous to our institutions to apply to any man any test save that of his personal worth, or to draw between two sets of men any distinction save the distinction of conduct, the distinction that marks off those who do well and wisely from those who do ill and foolishly. There are good citizens and bad citizens in every class, as in every locality, and the attitude of decent people toward great public and social questions should be determined, not by the accidental questions of employment or locality, but by those deep-set principles which represent the inspired spirit of man.

The failure in public and private life thus to judge each man on his own merits, and the tendency to establish a system of class government, is the most dangerous symptom of the day. Such failure and such recognition have always proved fatal in the past to other republics. A healthy republican government must rest upon individuals, not upon classes or sections. As soon as it becomes government by a class or by a section, it departs from the old American ideal.

It is, of course, the merest truism to say that free institutions are of avail only to people who possess the high and peculiar characteristics needed to take advantage of such institutions. The century that has just closed has witnessed many and lamentable instances in which people have seized a government free in form, or have had it bestowed upon them, and yet have permitted it under the forms of liberty to become some species of despotism or anarchy, because they did not have in them the power to make this seeming liberty one of deed instead of one merely of word. Under such circumstances, the seeming liberty may be supplanted by a tyranny or despotism in the first place, or it may reach the road of despotism by the path of license and anarchy. It matters but little which road is taken. In either case, the same goal is reached. People show themselves just as unfit for liberty, whether they submit to anarchy or to tyranny; and class government, whether it be the government of a plutocracy or the government of a mob, is equally incompatible with the principles established in the days of Washington and perpetuated in the days of Lincoln.

Many qualities are needed by a people which would preserve the power of self-government in fact as well as in name. Among these qualities are forethought, shrewdness, self-restraint, the courage which refuses to abandon one's own rights, and the disinterested and kindly good sense which enables one to do justice to the rights of others. Lack of strength and lack of courage unfit men for self-government on the one hand; and on the other, brutal arrogance, envy, in short, any manifestation of the spirit of selfish disregard, whether of one's own duties or of the rights of others, are equally fatal.

WHY REPUBLICS FELL.

In the history of mankind, many republics have risen, have flourished for a less or greater time, and then have fallen because their citizens lost the power of governing themselves and thereby of governing their State, and in no way has this loss of power been so often and so clearly shown as in the tendency to turn the government into a government primarily for the benefit of one class instead of a government for the benefit of the people as a whole.

Again and again, in the republics of ancient Greece, in those of mediaeval Italy and mediaeval Flanders, this tendency was shown, and wherever the tendency became a habit it invariably and inevitably proved fatal to the State. In the final result it mattered not one whit whether the movement was in favor of one class or of another. The outcome was equally fatal, whether the country fell into the hands of a wealthy oligarchy, which exploited the poor, or whether it fell under the domination of a turbulent mob, which plundered the rich. In both cases, there resulted violent alternations between tyranny and disorder, and a final complete loss of liberty to all citizens—destruction in the end overtaking the class which had for the moment been victorious as well as that which had momentarily been defeated. The death knell of the republic had rung as soon as the active power became lodged in the hands of those who sought, not to do justice to all citizens, rich and poor alike, but to stand for one special class and for its inter-

WANTED TO SHOOT CHIEF EXECUTIVE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SYRACUSE, Sept. 7.—John Miller, a German, was arrested this afternoon at his home, and is charged with having threatened to shoot the President during his stay in this city.

Sunday evening, the police learned that a man named Miller, living in the southwestern part of the city, had said that he would shoot the President while the letter carriers' parade was being reviewed. They could find no trace of the man until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when he was placed under arrest. He denies that he made threats against the President's life, and claims the woman from whom the police learned of it, is lying. When questioned at the police headquarters, he was unable to give a clear explanation of his whereabouts since 6 o'clock Sunday morning. He is held pending a more thorough investigation.

SUSPECTED MAN ARRESTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A powerfully built man caused considerable excitement as the President was about to board the train in Hoboken for his trip to Syracuse, by persistently trying to follow, and making several efforts to speak to the Chief Executive. He was seized by the Chief of Police of Hoboken and two police and hustled into a waiting room, where he was searched. He was found to be unarmed and was released.

PREPARES FOR WAR.

Turkey Expects It This Month.

No Formal Declaration Expected in View of the Vassal State of the Bulgarians.

Insurrection in Monastir Stamped Out With Lives of Christians of All Nationalities.

Burning up of Kastoria—Call to Arms in Provinces—American Warships.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] War between Turkey and Bulgaria is now regarded here as inevitable. It is even believed that the outbreak of hostilities will occur before the end of September, when the reinforcements from Asia will have been concentrated in Macedonia and in the vilayet of Adrianople. It is not thought that there will be any formal declaration of war in view of Bulgaria's vassal status, but that some frontier incident will precipitate hostilities.

The Bulgarians and Macedonians residing in Constantinople are in terror of massacre. A large number of them were arrested a few days ago as a "preventative measure," and they have not yet been released. The fear of a massacre is probably exaggerated, although, in view of the present excited state of Mussulman feeling, an insignificant incident might possibly lead to a massacre. The terrible accounts regarding the conduct of the Turkish troops have not surprised European circles here, but many who have hitherto been optimistic in their views now accept the prevailing belief that Turkey is on the eve of a catastrophe.

A consular dispatch from Salonica says that, according to authentic information, the insurrection in the district of Monastir has been practically stamped out. Bashi Bazouks assisted the regular troops in the work of suppression, and the object of the Turks being apparently to exterminate not only the Bulgarian inhabitants, but all the Christians of whatever nationality.

NEW COMPLICATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 7.—A consular dispatch from Beirut, received at one of the embassies, states that a fierce brawl occurred there yesterday between parties of Mussulmans and Christians. It was due to a shot fired by a Mussulman upon a Christian employed at the American College. The Christian was wounded.

The fight broke out while the Vali was on the United States cruiser Brooklyn, returning Admiral Cotton's visit. No further details have been received. In diplomatic circles here the affair is regarded as being serious, and a renewal of the disturbances is feared

BURNING UP KASTORIA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 7.—The revolutionaries received information today that the Turks have burned or otherwise destroyed nearly all the villages in the district of Kastoria, near the Greek frontier. The villages in that district were the largest in Macedonia, each having from 1000 to 2000 inhabitants. Among the largest burned were Zagoritchani, Dumbeni, Kenomladi, Makrent and Kosinets. Altogether about twenty-five villages in that part of Macedonia have been destroyed. It is added that 300 women and children, fugitives from Zagoritchani, went to the Turkish commander of the district to seek assistance and protection from the Bashi Bazouks. The commander promised them protection, but when the fugitives left the Bashi Bazouks pursued, outraged and killed many of the women and children.

The Turks have concentrated 18,000 soldiers in the Kastoria district, who are openly burning villages.

PASHA PRATES OF PEACE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 7.—In an interview published in the Gaulois this morning, Munir Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador, declares the published stories of atrocities and massacres in Macedonia to be grossly exaggerated. Though such acts may have been committed by Turkish soldiers, he says, they are mere isolated instances, and acts of reprisal for similar deeds committed by the insurgents.

Turkey wants peace, and has mobilised a sufficient force to crush all opposition, which is the best means to prevent bloodshed and secure peace. Munir Pasha does not believe there will be war with Bulgaria, as Prince Ferdinand desires peace. He asserts that much of the money of the insurgents came from the ransom of Miss Stone, the American missionary.

POWERS' ATTITUDE REVEALED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The Russian and Austrian representations regarding the necessary action against Bulgaria reveal the attitude of these powers toward Turkey and the whole Balkan question. They affirm that Bulgaria has been acting in bad faith in giving secret countenance to the insurgents and giving them hope of ultimate success, thus rendering Turkey's task of pacification more difficult and delaying yet longer the execution of the programme of reform accepted by Turkey.

The language of the joint proposal

assumes that a settlement of the Balkan trouble is attainable if Bulgaria is forced to cut off all connection between the two sides of the frontier. No official confirmation is obtainable of the Constantinople report that Austria and Russia will ask the signatures of the Berlin treaty to sanction their joint military occupancy of the disturbed territories, but such a policy is not considered improbable.

Russia and Austria have proposed that the powers take coercive diplomatic action at Sofia with the aim of severing the relations now existing between Bulgaria and the Macedonia insurgents. Germany has assented, but several of the powers have objected and the Russian and Austrian proposal, the Associated Press is officially informed, has probably fallen through.

NO IMPROVEMENTS.

BRITAIN LOOKS FOR WAR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Balkan situation shows no sign of improvement. Indeed, it is now thought that war between Turkey and Bulgaria is inevitable, but the Turkish Ambassador here expects hostilities can only result from an overt act on the part of Bulgaria. The Sofia government, on the other hand, preserves strict neutrality, as advised by Russia and Austria. The announcement today of Bulgaria's attitude caused an optimistic tone in the papers. All foreign bonds and foreign securities became firmer. Roumania, too, is enforcing neutrality in compliance with the advice of Russia, having taken measures to suppress the Macedonian agitators within her borders.

The Pope's refusal to appeal to the powers to act, save in the direction of stopping the massacres in the Balkans, is accepted as evidence that even the Holy See appreciates the inadvisability of intervention at this time.

Turkey is largely increasing the number of her troops in Macedonia in spite of her depleted treasury, and is determined to suppress the revolution before the powers can intervene. In the vilayet of Monastir, the rising has been ruthlessly suppressed, the Turks having burned many villages and committed grave excesses.

ATTACHES INVESTIGATING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A dispatch to a news agency from Constantinople says that military attachés of Great Britain, Austro-Hungary, France and Russia have arrived at Monastir, and will commence an investigation into the situation in all the disturbed districts of European Turkey.

SQUADRON'S PRESENCE COUNTS.

COTTON MAKES A REPORT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Navy Department has received a long cablegram from Rear-Admiral Cotton at Beirut, stating that matters are quiet now, and that the presence of a squadron has had an excellent effect. He says he has been in communication with Consul Ravndal and Minister Leishman.

The Navy Department has been advised of the arrival of the Machias at Port Said. The department today made public the following cablegram from Admiral Cotton regarding the Turkish situation, dated Beirut, September 6:

"Vice-Consul shot at, but uninjured. The Turkish officials have informed Consul that four men have been placed under arrest. It is suspected that they had attacked the Vice-Consul. I cabled Friday afternoon to the American Minister at Constantinople the arrival of the United States squadron. The American Minister had nothing to communicate. I have strengthened the American representative's position by announced recognition. The American Consul and the Vice-Consul accompanied me on my call on the Turkish Governor and the Turkish general and were present during their call on board the Brooklyn. The Turkish officials are very cordial. The Turkish admiral is here. The following warships are here: One small gunboat, one armored cruiser. Usual courtesies are exchanged. Have conferred with the Consul freely. Will confer with other prominent American citizens Saturday and next day. I shall require a full statement in writing of the situation at Beirut. The presence of the American squadron inspires a feeling of security in all foreigners and Christians.

[Signed] "COTTON."

The cablegram has been communicated to the President and to the State Department, but no instructions have yet been sent to Admiral Cotton.

CHICAGO BULGARIANS UP.

ORGANIZING FOR WAR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Believing war with Turkey to be imminent, Chicago Bulgarians are organizing to give financial support to their native land and to send fighting men to the field. A number of Bulgarians have left for Philadelphia, where a regiment is being formed.

Meanwhile 4000 Chicago members of the Greek Patriotic Society, that has for its chief object the extension of Greek territory, have manifested their lack of sympathy with the Bulgarian revolutionary movement. The Greeks declare that the Bulgarian revolution is prompted by Russia.

NEWS FROM "NEAR EAST."

WILL SOON BE STARTLING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Special dispatches from the "Near East" published this morning add little news regarding the situation in the Balkans. All the correspondents at Constantinople emphasize the apparent danger of war with Bulgaria, while the Sofia correspondents are equally insistent as to the prudent and correct attitude of Prince Ferdinand and his government.

Accounts from both Turkish and insurgent sources of the operations in Macedonia show that the work of extermination is proceeding unchecked, and although apparently emphasizing the danger of a conflagration while the powers are making some effort to interfere it is believed nothing of a serious nature will be done until after the meeting of the Czar and Emperor Francis Joseph at Vienna, when it may be too late.

The insurgents are now said to number 2500 well-armed and efficiently commanded men. Their leaders will stop at nothing to secure resources for their equipment.

The Sofia correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "I am in close touch with the insurgents, and am enabled to affirm emphatically that unless acceptable proposals shall be made within two or three weeks, Europe will be startled by a record of deeds unequaled in the bloodstained history of the East."

The Morning Leader's correspondent at Sofia says the Turkish policy is to draw the insurgents into action at all points. The bands, however, are avoiding conflicts until their preparations shall be completed. They are gathering in masses at various strategic points with a view to a comprehensive movement inside of ten days.

An unconfirmed report from Vienna states that the Bulgarian ex-arch has been shut up in his palace because of his refusal to issue a further pastoral letter asking the Bulgarians to lay down their arms.

A dispatch to the Times from Monastir, dated September 5, says:

"In Turkish circles, war with Bulgaria is considered to be imminent. Hilmi Pasha, inspector-general of Macedonia, says he sees no other solution. The final reserves are being warned to hold themselves in readiness, and orders have been issued to the principal towns to supply horses and money, and otherwise to aid the military preparations.

"In the feverish attempt to stamp out the insurrection in this quarter, so as to release the troops for operations elsewhere, there is unfortunately every reason to suspect that an attempt is being made to produce the indiscriminate slaughter of the Bulgarian element in which Christians of all denominations are in danger of being treated alike. Should this prove true, there can be no hope of saving the greater part of the Christian population in the remote districts of Western Macedonia."

OBALDIA GOVERNOR FOR THE ISTHMUS.

CHANGE NOT EXPECTED BY THE STATESMEN AT PANAMA.

Bogota Government Hopes by This Means to Allay the Revolutionary Sentiment—Not Likely to Succeed Unless the Hay-Herran Canal Treaty is Carried Through.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PANAMA (Colombia) Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Considerable surprise has been caused here by the receipt of a cable dispatch from the national government to Gov. Mutis Duran, informing him of his appointment as Minister of Finance of Bogota, and naming as his successor here Senator Domingo Obaldia.

This unexpected change in the governorship is attributed to the excitement in Bogota over recent publications in American newspapers and reproduced in Bogota, regarding the increased revolutionary feeling on the Isthmus and the fear that the United States will eventually assist Panama to become an independent republic.

Senator Obaldia, being a native Isthmian, it is believed here that the Bogota government hopes that his appointment will allay the feelings of revolt on the Isthmus. The hopes of the government, however, are not generally shared here, and it is freely stated that the appointment will have no practical results unless the Herran-Hay canal treaty is carried through, as originally stipulated.

REPLY TO HERRAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge, today received the following cablegram from the retiring government of Panama, dated Panama, yesterday, in reply to an inquiry that he sent last night:

"Nothing is known here regarding the withdrawal from Congress of the Panama delegation. I have been informed that Senator Obaldia has been appointed governor, and he is on his way with Representative Fahuega."

PRESENTED A PLAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOGOTA (Colombia) Wednesday, Sept. 2.—[Via Buena Ventura, Sunday, Sept. 6.] The committee of the Senate yesterday presented a plan to form the basis of a law providing for a new canal treaty which the government is authorized to negotiate with the United States. The discussion of the project will take place Monday, September 7. It is believed that Congress will close its sessions September 20.

HAYTI'S BIG SCANDAL.

PORT AU PRINCE (Hayti) Sept. 7.—The Moniteur today published the second report of the commission appointed to inquire into the financial scandals here. Manager Delamyrek, assistant manager, and Puybauden and Tippenahauser, chiefs of the department, all formerly in the employ of the National Bank; former President Sam, and nearly all of his former ministers are charged with being connected with the issuing of the fraudulent Haytien government securities to the amount of $300,000, discovered several months ago.

SANDUSKY (Ohio) Sept. 7.—The steamer Louise, with 125 persons aboard, which left Sandusky at 6 a. m. today for Leamington, Canada, has not yet landed there and it is thought the boat is lost. The trip usually requires but a few hours.

LABOR DAY.

ests as opposed to the interests of others.

WHEREIN WE ARE WISE.

The reason why our future is assured lies in the fact that our people are genuinely skilled in and fitted for self-government, and therefore will spurn the leadership of those who seek to excite this ferocious and foolish class antagonism. The average American knows not only that he himself intends to do about what is right, but that his average fellow-countryman has the same intention and the same power to make his intention effective. He knows, whether he be business man, professional man, farmer, mechanic, employer, or wage-worker, that the welfare of each of these men is bound up with the welfare of all the others; that each is neighbor to the other, is actuated by the same hopes and fears, has fundamentally the same ideals, and that all alike have much the same virtues and the same faults.

Our average fellow-citizen is a sane and healthy man, who believes in decency and has a wholesome mind. He therefore feels an equal scorn alike for the man of wealth guilty of the mean and base spirit of arrogance toward those who are less well off, and for the man of small means who in his turn either feels, or seeks to excite in others the feeling of mean and base envy for those who are better off.

The two feelings, envy and arrogance, are but opposite sides of the same shield, but different developments of the same spirit. Fundamentally, the unscrupulous rich man who seeks to exploit and oppress those who are less well off is in spirit not opposed to, but identical with, the unscrupulous poor man who desires to plunder and oppress those who are better off. The courtier and demagogue are but development of the same type under different conditions, each manifesting the same servile spirit, the same desire to rise by pandering to base passions; though one panders to power in the shape of a single man and the other to power in the shape of a multitude.

So likewise, the man who wishes to rise by wronging others must by right be contrasted, not with the man who likewise wishes to do wrong, though to a different set of people, but with the man who wishes to do justice to all people and to wrong none.

TRUE LINE OF CLEAVAGE.

The line of cleavage between good and bad citizenship lies, not between the man of wealth who acts squarely by his fellows and the man who seeks each day's wage by that day's work, wronging no one and doing his duty by his neighbor; nor yet does this line of cleavage divide the unscrupulous wealthy man who exploits others in his own interest, from the demagogue, or from the sullen and envious being who wishes to attack all men of property, whether they do well or ill. On the contrary, the line of cleavage between good citizenship and bad citizenship separates the rich man who does well from the rich man who does ill, the poor man of good conduct from the poor man of bad conduct. This line of cleavage lies at right angles to any such arbitrary line of division as that separating one class from another, one locality from another, or men with a certain degree of property from those of a less degree of property.

The good citizen is the man who, whatever his wealth or his poverty, strives manfully to do his duty to himself, to his family, to his neighbor, to the State; who is incapable of the baseness which manifests itself either in arrogance or in envy, but who while demanding justice for himself is no less scrupulous to do justice to others. It is because the average American citizen, rich or poor, is of just this type that we have cause for our profound faith in the future of the republic.

Ours is a government of liberty, by, through, and under the law. Lawlessness and connivance at lawbreaking—whether the lawbreaking take the form of a crime of greed and cunning, or of a crime of violence—are destructive not only of order, but of the true liberties which can only come through order. If alive to their true interests rich and poor alike will set their faces like flint against the spirit which seeks personal advantage by terrifying the law, without regard to whether this spirit shows itself in the form of bodily violence by one set of men, or in the form of vulpine cunning by another set of men.

Let the watchwords of all our people be the old familiar watchwords of honesty, decency, fair-dealing and common sense. The qualities denoted by these words are essential to all of us, as we deal with the complex industrial problems of today, the problems affecting not merely the accumulation, but even more the wise distribution of wealth. We ask no man's permission when we require him to obey the law; neither the permission of the poor man, nor yet of the rich. Least of all can the man of great wealth afford to break the law, even for his own financial advantage; for the law is his prop and support, and it is both foolish and profoundly unpatriotic for him to fail in giving hearty support to those who show that there is in very fact one law, and one law only, alike for rich and poor, for the great and small.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

Men sincerely interested in the due protection of property and men sincerely interested in seeing that just rights of labor are guaranteed, should alike remember not only that in the long run neither the capitalist nor the wage-worker can be helped in healthy fashion, save by helping the other; but also that to require either side to obey the law and do its full duty toward the community is emphatically to that side's real interest.

There is no worse enemy of the wage-worker than the man who condones mob violence in any shape or who preaches class hatred, and surely the slightest acquaintance with our industrial history should teach even the most shortsighted that the times of most suffering for our people as a whole, the times when business is stagnant, and capital suffers from shrinkage, and gets no returns from its investments, are exactly the times of hardship, and want, and grim disaster among the poor. If all the existing instrumentalities of wealth could be abolished, the first and severest suffering would come among those of us who are least well off at present. The wage-worker is well off only when the rest of the country is well off and he can best contribute to his general well-being by showing sanity and a firm purpose to do justice to others.

In his turn, the capitalist who is really a conservative, the man who has forethought as well as patriotism, should heartily welcome every effort, legislative or otherwise, which has for its object to secure fair dealing by capital, corporate or individual, toward the public and toward the employé. Such laws as the franchise-tax law in this State, which the Court of Appeals recently unanimously decided constitutional—such a law as that passed in Congress last year for the purpose of establishing a Department of Commerce and Labor, under which there should be a bureau to oversee and secure publicity from the great corporations which do an interstate business—such a law as that passed at the same time for the regulation of the great highways of commerce, so as to keep these roads clear on fair terms to all producers in getting their goods to market—these laws are in the interest, not merely of the people as a whole, but of the properties classes. For in no way is the stability of property better assured than by making it patent to our people that property bears its proper share of the burdens of the State, that property is handled not only in the interest of the owner, but in the interest of the whole community.

TEST FOR LEGISLATION.

In other words, legislation to be permanently good for any class must also be good for the nation as a whole, and legislation which does injustice to any class is certain to work harm to the nation. Take our currency system for example. This nation is on a gold basis. The treasury of the public is in excellent condition. Never before has the per capita of circulation been as large as it this day; and this circulation, moreover, is of money, every dollar of which is at par with gold. Now, our having this sound currency system is a benfit to banks, of course, but it is of infinitely more benfit to the people as a whole, because of the healthy effect on business conditions.

In the same way, whatever is advisable in the way of remedial or corrective currency legislation—and nothing revolutionary is advisable under present conditions—must be undertaken only from the standpoint of the business community as a whole, that is, of the American body politic as a whole. Whatever is done, we can not afford to take any step backward or to cast any doubt upon the certain redemption in standard coin of every circulating note.

Among ourselves, we differ in many qualities, of body, head and heart; we are unequally developed, mentally as well as physically. But each of us has the right to ask that he shall be protected from wrongdoing as he does his work and carries his burden through life. No man needs sympathy because he has to work, because he has a burden to carry. Far and away the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing; and this is a prize open to every man, for there can be no work better worth doing than that done to keep in health and comfort and with reasonable advantages those immediately dependent upon the husband, the father, or the son.

There is no room in our healthy American life for the mere idler, for the man who lives by mere cunning, whose object it is throughout life to shirk the duties which life ought to bring. Life can mean nothing worth meaning, unless its prime aim is the doing of duty, the achievement of results worth achieving. A recent writer has finely said: "After all, the saddest thing that can happen to a man is to carry no burdens. To be bent under too great a load is bad; to be crushed by it is lamentable; but even in that there are possibilities that are glorious. But to carry no load at all—there is nothing in that. No one seems to arrive at any goal really worth reaching in this world who does not come to it heavy laden."

Surely, from our own experience, each of us knows that this is true. From the greatest to the smallest, happiness and usefulness are largely found in the same soul, and the joy of life is won in its deepest and truest sense only by those who have not shirked life's burdens.

HEROES OF THE LAND.

The men whom we most delight to honor in all this land are those who, in the iron years from '61 to '65 bore on their shoulders the burden of saving the Union. They did not choose the easy task. They did not shirk the difficult duty. Deliberately and of their own free will they strove for an ideal, upward and onward across the stony slopes of greatness. They did the hardest work that was then to be done; they bore the heaviest burden that any generation of Americans ever had to bear; and because they did this they have won such proud joy as it has fallen to the lot of no other men to win, and have written their names forevermore on the golden honor roll of the nation.

As it is with the soldier, so it is with the civilian. To win success in the business world, to become a first-class farmer, a successful farmer, an able lawyer or doctor, means that the man has devoted his best energy and power through long years to the achievement of his ends.

So it is in the life of the family, upon which in the last analysis the whole welfare of the nation rests. The man or woman who as bread winner and home maker, or as wife and mother, has done all that he or she can do, patiently and uncomplainingly, is to be honored, and is to be envied by all those who have never had the good fortune to feel the need and duty of doing such work. The woman who has borne, and who has reared as they should be reared, a family of children, has in the most emphatic manner deserved well of the republic. Her burden has been heavy, and she has been able to bear it worthily only by the possession of resolution, of good sense, of conscience, and of unselfishness. But if she has borne it well, then to her shall come the supreme blessing, for in the words of the oldest and greatest of books, "Her children shall rise up and call her blessed," and among the benefactors of the land her place must be with those who have done the best and the hardest work, whether as law givers or as soldiers, whether in public or in private life.

AN AMERICAN CREED.

This is not a soft and easy creed to preach. It is a creed willingly learned only by men and women, who, together with the softer virtues, possess also the stronger; who can do, and dare, and die at need, but who while life lasts will never flinch from their allotted task. You farmers and wage-workers and business men of this great State, of this mighty and wonderful nation, are gathered together today, proud of your State and still prouder of your nation, because your forefathers and predecessors have lived up to just this creed. You have received from their hands a great inheritance, and you will leave an even greater inheritance to your children and your children's children, provided only that you practice alike in your private and your public lives the strong virtues that have given us as a people greatness in the past.

It is not enough to be well meaning and kindly, but weak; neither is it enough to be strong, unless morality and decency go hand in hand with strength. We must possess the qualities which make us do our duty in our homes and among our neighbors, and in addition we must possess the qualities which are indispensable to the make-up of every great and masterful nation—the qualities of courage and hardihood, of individual initiative and yet of power to combine for a common end, and above all, the resolute determination to permit no man and no set of men to sunder us one from the other by lines of caste or creed or section. We must act upon the motto of "All for each and each for all." There must be ever present in our minds the fundamental truth that in a republic such as ours the only safety is to stand neither for nor against any man because he is rich or because he is poor, because he is engaged in one occupation or another, because he works with his brains or because he works with his hands. We must treat each man on his worth and merits as a man. We must see that each is given a square deal, because he is entitled to no more and should receive no less. Finally, we must keep ever in mind that a republic such as ours can exist only in virtue of the orderly liberty which comes through the equal domination of the law over all men alike, and through its administration in such resolute and fearless fashion as shall teach all that no man is above it and no man below it.

After the applause which had greeted his address had subsided, the crowd called for Senator Chauncey M. Depew. He spoke briefly, and pronounced the President's address the best that he ever had heard him deliver.

COAST CELEBRATIONS.

PARADES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Labor Day was observed in this city with unprecedented enthusiasm, all stores, banks and business houses being closed. The two branches of organized labor in this city, the San Francisco Labor Council and the San Francisco Building Trades Council, paraded the streets independently and it is estimated that 40,000 men participated in the two parades.

In the afternoon the building trades unionists affiliated with the labor unions of Alameda county in an open-air celebration at Shell Mound Park in Alameda county, and the San Francisco Labor Council held literary exercises at the Chutes in this city, various leaders and several prominent citizens addressing the large gathering of workmen.

There were parades in all the principal cities of the Coast.

RUNAWAY HORSE.

INJURES FIVE CHILDREN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—While thousands of persons were awaiting the appearance of the parade near Park Square a runaway horse dashed through the crowds, seriously injuring five children:

MILDRED TOWNSEND, aged 6, skull fractured; will probably die.

EDWARD COLGAN, aged 10, leg fractured.

RICHARD COLGAN, aged 3, severe injury to leg.

DENNIS AND JOHN O'BRIEN, brothers, aged 9 and 8, respectively, contusions about the body.

A number of others were slightly injured in the rush to avoid the runaway horse.

SHAFFER SHOWS UP.

SEEMS A PHYSICAL WRECK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) Sept. 7.—Theodore Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron Workers, who has been missing from his home in Poughkeepsie, surprised the labor unions of this city by appearing at the Labor-Day celebration. He had been announced as the orator of the day, but owing to the published accounts of his disappearance, Herman Robinson of New York, secretary of the New York Central Labor Union, was invited to take his place.

Mr. Robinson was received by the committee and escorted to the Hudson River Driving Park, where more than 10,000 persons were assembled. Just before Robinson was introduced, Shaffer arrived in a cab, and made his way to the platform, not recognized by the crowd. He looked pale and showed signs of exhaustion.

After Robinson's address, President Shaffer was introduced. In a husky voice, he said: "The thing I will most gladly do is to keep still, and say nothing. Two years ago I made a mistake by trying to make 13,000 people bear me, and as a result of such efforts I am reduced physically. Nine months ago I was operated upon in one day, and I will not again allow people to use me up in that way."

That was all the reference he made to himself, and he then proceeded with evident difficulty to make a brief speech.

When asked for a statement, he said that he was anxious to make one, and arranged with the reporters to meet them at the Nelson House at 7 o'clock tonight. He was then driven away in company with John Bradley, a prominent local labor man. It was found that he had not been at the Nelson House at all, and a thorough search of the city failed to reveal any trace of either Shaffer or Bradley. It is believed that Shaffer hurried away from the city.

GOMPERS TALKS.

WILLING TO MEET PARRY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, in his address to 15,000 persons this afternoon at the Fair Grounds, said in part:

"I ask every thoughtful man and woman within the sound of my voice, I ask anyone who may perhaps have the opportunity of reading anything I may say this afternoon, how can a workman, an individual workman, act upon his own initiative and from his own volition? Where can he act, as an individual, to try to secure improvement in his condition, much less protection against a great corporation?

"Some may say the workingmen lose their individuality when they join a union of labor. In the United States the workingman has lost his individuality just as soon as he enters one of our great modern industrial plants."

President Gompers turned his attention to D. M. Parry, president of the National Manufacturers' Association. He said:

"I have not as yet challenged Mr. Parry to join a debate, but I say now I will challenge Mr. Parry to a debate upon the labor question and labor movement, not necessarily before a great public gathering, although I will do that if it pleases him, but I am willing to meet him in debate before any economic association that he may select. I will meet him before the Indianapolis Ministerial Association or the Manufacturers' Association or that of any other city in America. I challenge him to submit the report that he prepared for the last convention at New Orleans, to the next convention of the Manufacturers' Association, and ask the convention to indorse all he said in that report. He knows that the National Manufacturers' Association would not be committed to such as unjustifiable and unreasonable attack on organized labor."

Cripple Creek Under Guard.

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 7.—Cripple Creek's seven rich hills are today fairly dotted with soldiers of the National Guard. Every large property is belted with a line of blue-coated pickets, and it is no exaggeration to say that one cannot go 100 yards in any part of the famous mineral district without encountering a sentinal. Supplementing the troops scattered over the district are squads of cavalry, which will canter over the hills and make those points which no infantry patrol.

Laborites Mobbed Thornton.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—J. J. Thornton, the proprietor of a warehouse and van company was assaulted today during the labor parade in which he was driving one of his own teams without having a union card in his possession. Thornton employs a large number of teamsters, all of whom are members of the union and has never had any trouble with the organization before today.

FRIENDS OF CLEVELAND BUSY IN INDIANA.

SEEK CONTROL OF DELEGATION TO NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Avowed Anti-Bryan Candidates Already in the Field in a Majority of the Districts and There Promises to be a Lively Fight.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The large and influential class of Indiana Democrats who refused to follow the leadership of William Jennings Bryan in 1896 and 1900, and who are regarded as being in the confidence of former President Cleveland and his eastern friends, are rapidly perfecting Cleveland organizations in this State, and there promises to be exceedingly lively times in all Congress districts when the new State Central Committee is selected. There are already avowed anti-Bryan candidates in the field in a majority of the districts, and while there is very discreet silence regarding their actual preference for 1904, the fact that they were gold Democrats in the last two national campaigns, and that Mr. Cleveland has been regarded by them as a political Moses, leaves no doubt that he is their choice and that they are his representatives before the people.

The work is being done systematically, and by men who were at the head of the gold Democratic organization in 1896 and who contributed so much to the crushing defeat of Bryan at that time. The old poll of the State taken in 1896 by the gold Democratic State Central Committee, has been brought from its long resting place, correspondence has been opened with men who were then so active, and every county is being organized for the coming fight.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Brunning Hurls Himself in Front of Train After Almost Killing Policeman Who Tried to Prevent Him.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Charles Brunning, 42 years of age, committed suicide today by jumping in front of a heavily loaded Third avenue electric elevated train at Fifty-ninth street. Brunning was literally cut to pieces. Brunning attempted to commit suicide last Friday, when he stabbed himself five times with an ice pick.

While being taken to court today to be arraigned for the attempted suicide, Brunning, who was a man of great strength, overpowered the policeman who had him in charge, and almost succeeded in hurling him before the approaching train. The officer was rescued by bystanders on the station platform, and Brunning then threw himself under the wheels. The fight on the station platform, and the subsequent suicide of Brunning caused a panic among the hundreds of passengers on the platform and train.

FREE BATH FOR CROWD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Three hundred negro men, women and children, dressed in their Sunday best and singing gospel hymns, were precipitated into three feet of water and mud at low tide in Newark Bay, at Bayonne, N. J. The pier on which they were standing collapsed, just as the Rev. John T. Thornton was about to baptise a member of his flock. Forty persons were injured, the majority by the hysterical efforts of their companions to escape from what for the moment they thought was death by drowning. But when the ambulance surgeon looked over the bruised ones he found only four who needed attention.

Kenney's story is as follows: "We were eating breakfast on the edge of the orchard, on Campbell avenue at 7:30 this morning, when Theron came up and asked for something to eat. I suspected him instantly, but he did not appear to see me, and I did not speak to him to, and I stepped behind a tree. SAN JOSE, Sept. 7.—About midnight Sheriff Langford and deputies returned from Los Gatos, bringing with him Kenney and three companions, all of whom were under the influence of drink. The Sheriff is inclined to discredit Kenney's story concerning Theron.

DUEL WITH PISTOLS BETWEEN TWO MINERS.

TWO OF THEM KILLED AND THE OTHER MORTALLY WOUNDED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

TUOLUMNE, Sept. 7.—Walter Jones, a Soulsbyville miner, was shot and instantly killed here today by Jesse Godat, also a miner of the same town, who received a bullet through his head, and will probably die during the night. The men met at the station at 7 o'clock this evening, when Walter Brown was accompanied by his own wife, and Mrs. Godat, and had not had threatened to attack Brown at their first meeting, Brown fired the first shot with his pistol. Godat was almost as quick, and returned the fire with fatal effect, two balls passing through Brown's body.

Mrs. Russell, wife of a mining man passing along in the crowded street at the time, and received a bullet in one of her thighs, but the wound is not serious. Godat was taken to a hospital, and is being cared for by surgeons, but they do not think he will live.

Godat had quarreled at Soulsbyville, five miles from here, several days ago, and their falling out was over a woman. Godat left the place and went to Arizona, leaving his family at Soulsbyville. It was not believed he would return, but he came back to the scene today, and arrived here during the celebration of Labor Day. He met some of his friends that there would be trouble when he and Brown met, and the threat was carried to Brown, who prepared for a hostile meeting.

The shooting occurred, Mrs. Russell passing between the men and trying to stop the fight, but she was brushed aside and was rather roughly handled, though she was not seriously injured.

Brown was a prominent member of the Soulsbyville Miners' Union for a number of years, and Brown was also a member of the same union. Many of their friends were here today, as there was a great drilling contest as one of the features of the celebration, and men from all sections came to witness the trials. The shooting created great excitement among the members.

TWO COUNTIES REPORT.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 7.—Although not a legal holiday, the State Board of Equalization held a session this afternoon for the accommodation of the assessors and other officials of the counties.

Tuolumne county was represented by Assessor C. M. Young. In 1902 the county's assessed valuation was $3,-[illegible]. This year's valuation was returned to be $3,293,282. There was a decrease in Lake county ten or twelve years ago, but in the last ten years there has been a falling off in the population of 1004. The crops this year were short on account of the absence of rain.

One hundred flasks of quicksilver were produced in the county during the past year. The Bradford mine, which was sold for $150,000, closed down [illegible] years ago. The springs among the hills keep the county up. The mining industry has been abandoned. The temperance people in the county have abandoned the hop business, with the result that the industry fell down to a very low point.

Nevada county was represented by Assessor, Henry E. Schooder. The assessment of the county in 1902 was $6,453,015. This year it is $6,478,110. The increase in ten years was $1,350,000. On account of the suspension of hydraulic mining in 1881, the assessed valuation of the county was decreased $2,500,000. In 1880 the assessment roll amounted to $9,064,000. In 1889 it fell to $5,473,000. At that time hydraulic mining was the principal mining industry. Since that time the mining industry has worked gradually from hydraulic to quartz mining. There are now six dividend-paying mines in the county. There are only about twenty sections of timber land in the county at the present time. The best assessment on land outside of mineral land is $12.50 an acre. Lowest assessment on non-mineral land is about $5 an acre.

STANFORD DEGREES.

FOURTEEN ARE GRANTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 7.—At a regular meeting of the University Council held today, fourteen degrees were conferred upon students who have completed their graduation requirements during the summer recess. Those who were given the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and the department from which they were graduated, are:

Ross, Belmont; A. G. Thompson, Palo Alto; physiology, Miss Mary Hodge, San Diego; geology, Irving Anderson, Wallace, Idaho; E. P. Kneeper, Los Angeles; E. A. conferred upon Miss Dorothea Nath, Smith, Pocatello, Idaho.

The degree of Master of Arts was Davenport, Iowa, by the department of German, and upon Miss Effie Le Monds, Palo Alto, by the English department.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Small Crop of Potatoes.

STOCKTON, Sept. 7.—There is but an acreage of 15,000 acres of potatoes in San Joaquin county this season, against 28,000 last year. Not only is the acreage small, but the yield per acre is from 20 to 25 per cent. less. They are now selling at from 85 to 90 cents a sack, as against 35 to 40 cents last season at the opening. As to onions, prices range from 60 to 70 cents a sack, which is a trifle higher than the previous season, and the prices are better sustained. The acreage this year is about the same as last year, or perhaps a trifle less. There is an unusual condition in the fact that onions are rather small.

World's Biggest Hotel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—William Mode Cook, a capitalist of New York, who is president of the company which is building what is claimed to be the biggest hotel in the world, at St. Louis, arrived here on a tour of the Pacific Coast. The big hotel is said to cover fourteen acres of land, and with a frontage of 2500 feet, or nearly half a mile. The hotel will be two stories high, except the front portion, which will have three stories and will contain 4200 rooms.

Gen. Foote Very Sick.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Gen. Lucius H. Foote, secretary and treasurer of the Academy of Sciences, is confined to his room, suffering from the after effects of a severe cold. Gen. Foote is 77 years of age, and his physician, Dr. George C. Chismore, expresses grave doubts whether his patient will survive the severe strain with which his system has been taxed. There is a possibility of typhoid fever setting in, and if such be the case his condition will be considered extremely dangerous.

No Claim Against State.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Attorney-General U. S. Webb has advised the prison directors that there is no statute in this State authorizing the payment of such a claim as that presented by a man who suffered from depredations of the escaped Folsom convicts. Furthermore, he declares that the State Board of Prison Directors has no authority to pay the claim out of any State funds under their control, nor has the State Board of Examiners any authority to audit such a claim.

Woman Killed by Train.

OAKLAND, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Frederick Hillman, a native of Germany 72 years of age, was struck by a local train today and instantly killed. Mrs. Hillman, accompanied by her husband, Charles Hillman, was on her way from Nebraska to Southern California.

Decision Affecting Bankrupts.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—In a decision handed down by Judge De Haven in the United States District Court today, the opinion is given that the discharge of an insolvent in the State courts under the old bankrupt law is not in all cases a final discharge from all debts. The decision was in the case of J. H. Bybee, a voluntary bankrupt.

Salmon Fleet Arrives.

SAN FRANCISCO Sept. 7.—Five vessels of the Alaskan salmon fleet arrived today from the north. They are the ship Isaac Reid, 45,000 cases of salmon; ship Sintram, 53,000 cases; Star of Italy, 61,729 cases; Indiana, 49,255 cases, and the barkentine Skagit, 2350 barrels of salmon.

FIVE WIVES HAVE DIED.

Short Lease on Life of the Women That Were Married to Green.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WATSONVILLE, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Elvira Scales Green, whose death the authorities are investigating, was Green's fifth wife.

Sheriff Trafton and Chief of Police Rassette are investigating the cause of the death of Green's four previous wives.

Dist.-Atty. Knight, on leaving Watsonville late last night, said that the officers were laboring under a disadvantage in not having knowledge of the alleged crime at the time of the Coroner's inquest. It is probable that he will cause Mrs. Green's body to be exhumed tomorrow, as a number of persons say that her face shows marks of violence.

PRIZES FOR FRUIT AT OGDEN EXHIBIT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OGDEN, (Utah) Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On request of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the officers of the Semi-arid States Fruit Exhibit, which is to be given here September 15th to 18th, in connection with the Eleventh National Irrigation Congress, have added a prize for olive oils to the list of prizes heretofore offered. The exhibition features of the Congress, which were at first introduced as a side issue for the entertainment of the visitors, have grown until the event has taken on the importance of an interstate fair. Besides four 22-pound solid silver cups, valued at $500 each, offered for the best exhibit of fruit, hops, barley and sugar beets, the local committee has offered prizes.

The acceptance by Gov. Pardee of the invitation to attend, together with similar acceptance from other noted Californians, has stimulated interest in the gathering. A number of the prizes offered are for products which thrive specially in California. Besides cups, the rewards put up by the local managers include a number of gold medals of the value of $50 each, with second prizes of $10.

The products for which the above are offered are honey, plums, prunes, quinces, apples, peaches, pears, grapes, olives, etc. For the following, the prizes offered are gold medals, valued at $10; culled figs, raisins, oranges, lemons, pickled olives, sun-dried fruits, evaporated fruits and pickles. Express charges both ways on the exhibits are free.

DALBY'S LAST RIDE WAS AGAINST DEATH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. William T. Dalby, the foremost surgeon of the Far West, died here today, after having won a thrilling race against death. While on a trip for his health, Dalby was seized with a sudden illness, in Los Angeles. His physicians informed him he was doomed, and that perhaps a day would end all.

Dalby's one determination was to reach home before he died. Ordering a carriage he rode to the Los Angeles depot and boarded the train. So near to death was he while en route here that the conductor telegraphed to have an undertaker meet the train. Dalby's strong will triumphed, and he arrived here alive. Unable to speak, but smiling in his pain, he was taken home where, an hour later, he died in his wife's arms. His death was due to cancer of the stomach.

Dalby was formerly surgeon-general of the Harriman lines. He came here from New York in 1883. He was a Thirty-third degree Mason. He was always prominent at national medical conventions.

ORIENT.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN SPARRING FOR POINTS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Times correspondent at Peking telegraphs: "Although they may be officially contradicted, the following particulars of the Russo-Japanese negotiations are reported in too circumstantial and persistent a form to be disregarded. In a memorandum which the Japanese Minister presented to Count Lamsdorf, the Rusian Foreign Minister, provision was made for the mutual recognition of the respective railway rights of the two powers in Manchuria and Korea, each power to define its rights, and have authority to guard its railways, and send troops for the suppression of disturbances within its sphere. In this connection it should be noted that Japan has very extended preferential rights for railway construction in Korea."

The Times correspondent at Tokio says the report that the basis of the Russo-Japanese negotiations is the mutual recognition of the interests of the two countries in Manchuria and Korea is officially denied here.

EMPRESS DOWAGER HAS FATAL MALADY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Empress Dowager of China has what is expected to be a fatal malady, according to news received today from Yokohama. Maj. Watanabe of the Japanese Legation at Peking has made public at Tokio the statement that the Empress has developed a swelling under one eye, which German physicians who examined her say will prove fatal. In their opinion she will not survive more than one year.

This announcement has created great surprise in court circles at Peking, but the general public has not been informed.

CIRCUS TENT BLOWN DOWN ON THOUSANDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ANTHONY (Kan.) Sept. 7.—During a severe windstorm today the tent in which John Robinson's circus was exhibiting was blown down. An immense throng of people was in the menagerie, and when the poles and canvas came down a hundred or more people were hurt, of whom fifty required medical attention.

Price Joyner, a farmer, was probably fatally hurt. Cages containing the wild animals were overturned, some of the cages falling on people. None of the animals escaped.

KANSAS COAL TRUST FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOPEKA, Sept. 7.—The first case against the alleged coal dealers' trust was brought in the District Court today by Atty.-Gen. Coleman. The day was taken up with arguments as to the right of the Legislature to pass a law forcing the operators and dealers to testify against their own interests. Twenty-two operators are here today to give testimony in case the court decides against them. In addition to this case brought by the State the assistant United States Attorney is preparing a suit to be brought in the Federal Court.

HISSES AND JEERS FOR SAM PARKS.

They Mingle With the Cheers From His Supporters.

Convict Leads Parade in New York and Thereby Learns that Thousands Refuse to Accept Him as a Hero and a Martyr.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Perched on the back of a big white horse, with a bob tail, Samuel J. Parks, convict and walking delegate of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's Union, led the annual Labor Day parade today on its march down Fifth avenue. If that long defile, through one of the chief streets of the city served no better purpose, it demonstrated one fact, and that is that Parks has been dethroned. He is no longer the idol of organized labor.

Parks had claimed that despite the defection from him in labor ranks, 32,000 men would follow him and his white horse. A careful count showed that about one-third that number paraded. Last year there were 45,000 in line.

All along the line of march there were cheers for the tall, gaunt figure, slouching down the avenue at the head of the parade, but they came from the faction in his own union, which is still under his rule. These cheers were doubtless genuine, but there were many others that did not seem to ring true. And for every welcoming shout that rang out for the lanky man on the white horse, there were a hundred hisses. All the length of Fifth avenue this sound of derision poured into the ears of Parks, and must have made even a man of his caliber wince.

"This is my day; I've got the bunch," he shouted to a crowd of his henchmen just before the parade began to move. He glanced triumphantly back at the long line of red-shirted and white-hatted men, as if to say: "Where I go they will follow," but when it was all over he must have realized that the day was not so triumphant as in former years.

PHILADELPHIA CELEBRATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) Sept. 7.—Labor Day celebrations were many in many of the cities and towns of the State. In this city there were three distinct parades and picnics. Addresses were made at the park by John S. Crosby of New York City, a single-tax advocate; James O'Connell of Washington, D. C., general president of the International Association of Machinists, and B. A. Langer of Covington, Ky., general president of the United Garment Workers of America.

CHICAGO'S BIG PARADE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—It is estimated that between 100,000 and 125,000 trade unionists took part in the Labor Day parade here, making it the greatest demonstration in the history of Cook county labor celebrations. The parade marched past a reviewing stand opposite the Auditorium. The day was generally observed as a holiday, nearly every factory in the city, the banks, Board of Trade and Stock Exchange suspending business. The parade disbanded at noon, and a majority of the marchers hurried to various picnics in outlying parks and groves, where a number of locally-prominent speakers delivered addresses.

THE DAY IN ST. LOUIS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Sept. 7.—Labor Day was celebrated in St. Louis with two parades, in which it is estimated that at least 40,000 men participated. That of the Building Trades Council was held first, followed immediately by a procession held under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Assembly.

BEAT CINCINNATI RECORDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CINCINNATI (O.) Sept. 7.—The Labor Day parade and demonstration generally here was the largest in the history of the city, owing to the dual phase of the occasion. The Cincinnati fall festival opened today for twelve days, and the open day was that of the labor organizations. The many bands engaged for the fall festival participated in the great demonstration, also those connected with the Venetian spectacle of Marco Polo.

TRIP THAT PAID.

Ten Miles to Get a Package of Postum.

Some sufferers won't turn over a hand to help themselves but there are others to whom health is worth something. A German woman living in the country made a 10-mile trip to get a package of Postum. She was well-paid, for it brought health and happiness in return.

A translation of the good frau's letter says: "From a child I had been used to drinking coffee daily but the longer I continued drinking it the worse I felt. I suffered with heart trouble, headaches and dizziness. Then I had such an uneasy feeling around my heart that I often thought death to be near.

"I gave up drinking coffee and tried hot water but that did not taste good and I did not get well. Then I read some letters from people who had been helped by Postum Food Coffee and I determined to try it.

"I had to go ten miles to get a package but I went. I prepared it carefully according to directions and we have used it now in our family for nearly two years, drinking it twice a day. It agrees well with all of us. My heart and bowel troubles slowly but surely disappeared. It is seldom that I ever have a headache, my nerves are steady and strong again and I am otherwise strong and well. My husband has been lately cured of his sick headaches since we threw coffee out of our home and have used Postum." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TO SACRIFICE LANDSDOWNE.

Brodrick May Succeed Him, While War Portfolio May Be Given to Wyndham.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] As an outcome of the disclosures made in the report of the South African War Commission, it is rumored that the resignation of Lord Lansdowne, the former War Secretary and present Foreign Secretary, may be expected shortly. It is added that he will be succeeded as Foreign Secretary by Mr. Brodrick, the present War Secretary, and that Mr. Wyndham, the Irish Secretary, will be made head of the War Office.

A meeting of the Cabinet will be held shortly for the purpose of discussing the fiscal questions now before the country, but it is generally believed that the attitude of the people with respect to the findings of the War Committee, as shown by the proposal to send a monster petition to King Edward for Lord Lansdowne's dismissal, and by the publication of cartoons illustrating his incompetency will be considered, and that something will be determined upon as necessary to stem the tide of indignation now flowing against the Ministry.

EXCHANGE COMMISSION.

BRITISH CONGRATULATIONS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The members of the United States International Exchange Commission, in anticipation of their departure for New York, September 9, dined tonight with the members of the British Commission. In a general discussion of the work of the commission the British commissioners expressed their congratulations of the commission's labors.

The plan which has been approved by the powers approached by the commission is based on the Dutch plan, which has been maintained successfully during the last twenty-five years in Java, and resembles the new currency system recently inaugurated in the Philippine Islands. It will enable merchants in China to settle their outside purchases in gold in order to avoid the constant fluctuations in the market price of silver. The details of the plan will be determined by China herself, and if the undertaking shall be successfully accomplished, those interested believe that it will result in a great benefit to the commerce of the world.

GERMANY.

EIGHTY THOUSAND MEN IN ARMY MANEUVERS.

THEY ARE ASSEMBLED ON BATTLE FIELDS FAMOUS IN HISTORY.

To Engage in Mimic Warfare Where Gustavus Adolphus Lost His Life and Frederick the Great Defeated Marshal Soubis of France.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CORBETHA (Saxony) Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Eighty thousand men in full war equipment with the heat at 120 degs. in the sun, are taking part in the autumn maneuvers here. The ambulances are nearly as busy as in real war, picking up sunstricken soldiers, instead of wounded men.

Two Saxon army corps are engaged against two Prussian corps in the Valley of the Saale, the field of strategy embracing Luetzen, where in 1813 Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden defeated the Austrians and lost his life; Rossbach, where Frederick the Great in 1757, defeated the French under Marshal Soubis, and Gross-Goerschen, where the Russians and Prussians fought the French.

Emperor William alluded, in talking to the generals today, to these historic battles, and to the distinguished characteristics of each.

The Saxons rose earlier than the Prussians this morning, and the Saxon cavalry swam the Saale at three points before 6 o'clock, surprising the Prussians, who were on the left bank in a thick fog, and forced them to retreat until they fell back on the main body.

The Emperor will bivouac with the troops tonight, and will lead one army tomorrow.

SAVED THE CIVILIANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Emperor William stopped a number of Uhlans who were riding into a crowd at the military parade near Leipsic on Saturday. The shrieks of the mass of spectators whose pressure broke through the alignment of the troops, as the cavalry pushed them back, caused the Emperor to spur his horse toward the scene of the disturbance and harshly reprove the Uhlans. The spectators cheered the Emperor for his rebuke of the cavalrymen.

COLORADO DEMOCRATS.

State Convention Nominates Adair Wilson as Candidate for Supreme Bench—Epitome of the Resolutions.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DENVER, Sept. 7.—The Democratic State Convention met in this city today for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court.

The convention was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock at the Democratic Club by Milton Smith, chairman of the State Committee, who was chosen as temporary and permanent chairman.

It was 3:15 o'clock when the convention resumed business. The report of the Committee on Resolutions was very brief. It reaffirmed allegiance to the principles of the Democratic party as set forth in the Kansas City platform; declared that there should be no compromise with lawlessness, whether it be in an individual or a corporation; condemned the use of the military arm of the government at any time unless it was demonstrated that the civil authorities are unable to enforce law and order, and denounced the State Board of Equalization for "allowing the corporations to escape from paying their just proportion of taxes," thus among other things, preventing "a proper representation at the St. Louis World's Fair."

The report was adopted and the work of nominating a candidate for Supreme Judge was taken up. The names of John I. Mullins, district judge; Adair Wilson, State Court of Appeals of La Piatta county; M. F. Bailey, district judge of Fremont county; Frank P. Johnson, district judge, Denver; W. H. Bryant, Denver, and former Congressman John C. Bell were submitted. Bell's name was withdrawn. But one ballot was taken. The roll call showed such a preponderance of sentiment in favor of Wilson that the votes of the other candidates aside from Mullins were changed to him, and the announced result was: Wilson, 151½; Mullins, 107½.

After the announcement of the vote, a resolution was presented and passed to the effect that the party still favors an eight-hour law. The convention then adjourned.

CAUSE OF LEO'S DEATH.

Eminent Italian Physician Preparing a Pamphlet for Purpose of Showing that it Was Not Pleurisy.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

Lapponi and Massoni during the illness of the late Pope Leo, but who was not called because he was a Senator, and therefore, having taken the oath of allegiance to the King, is on the point of publishing a pamphlet with the intention of proving that the Pope did not die of pleurisy.

The appearance of the pamphlet is awaited with great curiosity, as it is foreseen that it will give rise to a heated discussion.

INSURRECTOS DISPERSED.

Driven by a Force of Scouts and Constabulary from Mountains Where They Had Taken Refuge.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

The blaze originated in the stables, supposedly from the overturning of a lamp, setting fire to some hay. There were 138 horses in the stable, and fully 100 of them were either burned to death or so badly hurt that they will have to be killed.

SISTERS OF THE POPE VISIT HIM AT VATICAN.

ONE OF THEM REGRETS THAT HE HAS NOT HEEDED HER.

They Try to Kneel, but Are Prevented from Doing so by the Pontiff, Who Tells Them He is Always Their "Beppo."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ROME, Sept. 7.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The three sisters of Pope Pius X. who lived with him at Venice, arrived in Rome today after a separation of about six weeks. A special carriage was provided for them by the railroad company, so that they traveled in a much different way from what they had been accustomed to do in the past. They were received by Pope Pius and the reunion was most touching. The sisters tried to kneel, but were prevented from doing so by their brother, who took them in his arms and embraced them.

One sister, in a tone of disappointment, said: "How well you look, brother. You have not needed us at all."

The Pontiff replied: "I am always your Beppo, but I am doing very well here."

An hour was spent in exchanging reminiscences and making plans for the future. The three sisters are now staying at a convent until a place which is being arranged for them at San Angelo Bridge shall be ready for occupancy.

"JIMMIE THE BUM."

He Died as He Lived a Mystery to the Denizens of Mulberry Bend and New York Chinatown.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Dying, as he had lived, a mystery to the denizens of Mulberry Bend, and Chinatown, "Jimmie the Bum," who gave his name to the police a few days ago, as James Murray, but who is believed by his closest friends to have been the scapegrace son of a former judge of the Supreme Court, who once lived in Brooklyn, will be buried tomorrow afternoon by those among whom he lived.

It is not their contributions alone which will pay the expenses of his funeral. As his body lay in a casket in a Mulberry-street undertaker's, the past of "Jimmie the Bum," was wrapped still further in mystery, when two well dressed women, heavily veiled, who declined to give any names or addresses, joined the mourners, and when they left dropped two bank notes into the battered cup, which stood at the head of the casket.

No one could be found who new "Jimmie" by any other name, although for a dozen years he had spent his life in the space of two or three blocks. Once he received an income from some source, but of recent years his income was irregular. When the news of his death spread through the Bowery, hunderds of his miserable comrades visited the room where his body lay, and as each passed, pennies, nickels and dimes fell into the cup to pay for the funeral.

Puccini Drops His Crutches.

ROME, Sept. 7.—Giacomo Puccini, the composer, who broke his leg in an automobile accident last Spring, has so much improved that he has abandone his crutches and can walk with the aid of sticks, which the doctors say he will soon be able to put aside. Puccini expects to finish his new opera, "Mme. Butterfly," in a few weeks. In the meantime he will go to Paris to be present at the production of his opera, "Tosca," at the Opera Comique

THE PRESIDENT'S PLAIN TALK.

In his address at Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday, the President discussed, in his usual plain, straightforward way, some phases of the industrial situation. The President's words, and the sentiments which they so well express, bear the impress of absolute sincerity and of firm conviction. There is no getting away from the candid logic of his conclusions, so unaffectedly yet so eloquently expressed. That the President values truth and justice above all else, is convincingly evident from the manner and the matter of his discourse.

Tersely and forcibly the President points out the fact that "the welfare of each of us is dependent, fundamentally, upon the welfare of all of us," and that, therefore, "in public life that man is the best representative of each of us who seeks to do good to each by doing good to all." He declares that all good citizens should "spurn the leadership of those who seek to excite this ferocious and foolish class antagonism." The average American "feels an equal scorn for the man of wealth guilty of the mean and base spirit of arrogance toward those who are less well off, and for the man of small means who in his turn either feels, or seeks to excite in others the feeling of mean and base envy for those who are better off. The two feelings, envy and arrogance, are but opposite sides of the same shield—but different developments of the same spirit."

Here is simple but true gospel, alike for the rich man and the poor man, for capitalist and wage-earner, for employer and employé—the gospel of right and justice, of common sense and of true Americanism.

Discussing mob violence and the relations between capital and labor, the President well and forcefully says:

"There is no worse enemy of the wage-worker than the man who condones mob violence in any shape or who preaches class hatred; and surely the slightest acquaintance with our industrial history should teach even the most shortsighted that the times of most suffering for our people as a whole, the times when business is stagnant, and capital suffers from shrinkage and gets no return from its investments, are exactly the times of hardship and want, and grim disaster among the poor.

"If all the existing instrumentalities of wealth could be abolished, the first and severest suffering would come among those of us who are least well off at present. The wage-worker is well off only when the rest of the country is well off; and he can best contribute to this general well-being by showing sanity and a firm purpose to do justice to others.

"In his turn, the capitalist who is really a conservative, the man who has forethought as well as patriotism, should heartily welcome every effort, legislative or otherwise, which has for its object to secure fair dealing by capital, corporate or individual, toward the public and toward the employé."

There has been some talk to the effect that labor-unionism would make a determined and deadly effort to defeat the President for renomination, and that, failing to accomplish that result, trade-unionists would make a concerted effort to defeat him at the polls. There have also been many rumors to the effect that Wall street and the trusts were sharpening their knives for the slaughter of our strenuous President. If any of these rumors, or all of them, be true, let the dance go on. The people will stand by the man who holds, and is not afraid to express, such sentiments as those quoted above, even though he should be opposed by the monopolists of capital and the monopolists of labor.

The Colombians appear to be showing a tendency to want to curry favor with a country that has the money to build a canal with, and the inclination to do the job. The recent hanging back at Bogota may be attributed to certain statesmen possessed of a desire to show their authority, like the aged darky who pounded the hog.

A tribe of human beings has been discovered in British New Guinea which is lapsing back into animals. We have some of the same sort in this country—notably at Evansville, Ind., Danville, Ill., and elsewhere, where the mobs gather and raise Ned.

J. BUDD, RHEUMATIZ, AND THINGS.

Our old friend, J. Budd, Esq., by the grace of God ex-Governor of California, has been for some time sojourning in the gay city of Paree. As a consequence, James appears to have been getting gay (to use a permissible figure of speech,) and rheumatic. Just before leaving the gay and festive French capital for Carlsbad, to take treatment for his rheumatic difficulties, Jeems delivered himself of some rather remarkable opinions concerning American politics. Whether Jeems's delfverances were an effect of his "rheumatiz" will perhaps never be definitely known, although the general consensus of opinion will probably be that they were. They read that way, anyhow.

"The question upon which the American people will be called to pass judgment next year," said Jeems, "is trusts. All other planks in the two party platforms will, I think, be secondary. Both parties will adopt an anti-trust plank. The Democrats will do it in intense earnestness. The Republicans will not fight trusts seriously. How can they? All leading Republicans are financially in trusts. Their attitude is to pretend to do something against trusts. In reality they will do nothing." We pause to await the "intense earnestness" of the Democratic onset against trusts. Until the onset shall have "came," we shall steadily believe that in the matter of earnestness it will be equaled, if not exceeded, by the rush of Democratic hosts (including our old friend Jeems) to get in touch with the pie counter. When it comes to the manifestation of that sort of earnestness, there is nothing on the earth, nor in the waters under the earth, to equal the organized appetite of the good old Democratic party, trusts or no trusts. And there is not the remotest shadow of a doubt that when the rush begins Jeems will be well up toward the front, notwithstanding his bad case of rheumatis. It is more than probable that that is what he has gone to Carlsbad for—to get himself in training for the grand Democratic rush for the pie counter in 1904. Rheumatiz is a bad thing to have in one's bones when these grand patriotic rallies are in full swing.

Further unbosoming himself, Jeems declares that "President Roosevelt's anti-trust declarations are hollow;" that "he has done absolutely nothing; he has not even applied the existing machinery of law: he is simply a man on horseback—an American Boulanger. The people are growing tired of spectacular ostentation," says Jeems. "They don't like to see the President adopting the aristocratic habits of the Czar." If one may diagnose Jeems's ailment from these symptoms, it would seem that he has rheumatis in his mind as well as in his hind legs, complicated with mental strabismus of a pronounced and malignant type. Jeems evidently "sees things" frequently and vividly—things which are, so to speak, unutterable. It will be remembered that Jeems left California—we will not say for California's good—in order to go to New York to support the Congressional aspirations of Willie Hearst. Maybe that is what gave Jeems his bad case of rheumatiz, strabismus, and other things too numerous to mention.

Anyhow, there is no doubt that if he survives and keeps his size, Jeems will support the "candidacy" of Willie Hearst for the Presidential nomination in 1904. Jeems would virtually be compelled to this course by reason of his abhorrence of "spectacular ostentation," and his intense admiration of sweet simplicity, unaffectedness, disingenuousness, and all that, for which Willie Hearst is noted (and even notorious,) no less than for his modesty, his self-abnegating spirit, and his democratic simplicity. It is needless to say that if there is on the continent of North America, or on any other old continent, a real, genuine, yard-wide statesman "from the common people," sans culotte, sans peur et sans reproche, the same it is Willie Hearst—erstwhile our Willie, but now, alas! New York's. Willie is certainly no "man on hossback," and, as we know, he is absolutely without guile; hence, there will be no "spectacular demonstration" in his case, and Jeems may hustle for him and for "orfis" with a clear conscience.

Coming down to a discussion of the country's prosperity, Jeems finds that it is "fictitious." He finds that values are "inflated"—even more, perhaps, than his hopes of obtaining "orfis" under the administration of Willie Hearst. Still, there is some comfort in the thought that the situation is not altogether without hope, for he thinks that "Congressional legislation can and will find a remedy." This is indeed comfortin'. He says that "our producers, especially farmers, suffer from trusts, but they have reached the limit of their patience." Not quite so sure about that, Jeems. While the farmers are paying off their mortgages at a rate never before known in the country's history, and are selling their wheat for about one dollar per, the limit of their patience is apt to be quite elastic.

We hope that Jeems will derive untold and untellable benefit from the healing waters of Carlsbad. He needs it. He is in a very bad way. Perhaps, when he shall have got the rheumatiz microbes out of his blood, he will feel better, and so will look at things out of eyes that are a little less rheumy. It is mighty uncomfortable to have a man around feeling so bad as Jeems feels just now.

It will interest every lover of the game of baseball in the West to know that the Pacific Coast League magnates have decided that, on the diamond during the game, the umpire's word shall be law, and that the kickers must and shall be suppressed. Such a consummation is one that has been devoutly wished for lo! these many years. The kicking ball player is an aggravation to the flesh and wearisome to the spirit. He is a nuisance, and a disturber of the peace, and it is high time that he were sat upon with a dull and sickening thud. Patrons of the great national game go to the park to see ball playing and not to hear an uproar from some player, or a bunch of them, every time the umpire makes a decision. If a player would be popular with the audience and do his duty by the team in which he plays let him play ball and not "beef." It is earnestly to be hoped that the promised reform regarding the roasting of umpires by ball players is coming, and coming to stay.

It will surprise no one to learn that the bulk of the wine that is imported from France to this country isn't fit for swill for hogs. And yet unless California wine is sold under a French label, in most instances, Americans refuse to look at it. It is a matter of common knowledge that large shipments of California wines are made to France, and that they are there doctored out of all semblance of purity or their original condition. But the American wine drinker must have his wine under a French label, or it won't go down. Such a condition of affairs is not only a reflection upon American patriotism, but a decided slur upon the capacity of many of our people to appreciate what pure wine is when they drink it. It is gratifying to know that the governmental authorities are after the wine adulterators and that our wine drinkers are to be placed under the guardianship of Uncle Sam. They have needed "gardeens" for a long while.

That is a shocking tale which comes from Texas to the effect that the Standard Oil Company has been pumping salt water into the Beaumont wells, in order to depress their value. Many mean things have been said about the master octopus of all the ages, but this is a little more than human credulity can stand for. Now, had it been stated that Mr. Rockefeller had been filling the holes with sand and scrap iron we might have believed it.

Vermont boasts of a citizen in her midst who is 100 years old, and yet has never used tobacco. Judging by the advice that is given to users of the weed, and the promises made for them if they will be good and refrain from smoking or chewing, he ought to be worth something like $48,000,000. But he probably isn't. The money went for something else.

The frequency with which locomotives are blowing up in different parts of the country would appear to indicate that the steel trust is turning out some mighty poor truck these days, or else that the Yankee mechanics are losing their cunning. Just which it is we are not prepared to say, but there's something wrong some place.

Bulgaria declares that she will carefully refrain from declaring war against Turkey, but that if she is crowded there will be trouble. Just how much crowding will be necessary isn't stated, but it does look as if she had already had enough smashes up against the fence to roll even the most amiable of peoples.

When our doping milkmen hear of those possibilities in adulteration we may expect to get a few quarts of the stuff in this section of the United States.

Beautiful state of affairs at New Orleans. Owing to the strike of freight handlers at that point ships arriving from New York and other points are turned back when but half unloaded. How would we possibly be able to get along without our boon of American liberty?

THE PLAYHOUSES.

ORPHEUM. The new Orpheum was opened last evening in regular first-night, society style. There was a large attendance of the local four hundred, and the seats that they left over were filled with other people quite as eager to be in at the event and to see a good show. Standing room was at a premium, and some venturesome ones who came late, but were well supplied with money, offered three or four times the usual price of seats outside the door.

The house is a veritable little beauty under its sheen of prettily-placed electric lights—except the curtain. That bunch of cigar, soap and patent-medicine advertisements still depends from the back of the proscenium, and is a jar on the happy effect of tasteful decorations. There is no call for such a curtain in as dainty a new house as the Orpheum, and it called for scathing, although quiet remarks, from many of the audience last night.

The opening bill is distinctly the best of the season. It is very full, and contains an unusual number of good acts. The best of these is that of Edwin Keough and Dorothy Ballard, called "A Vaudeville Surprise." Keough has a marvelously mobile face, and in his make-up is an exact facsimile of some broken-down Irving Hamlet Booth, only too far, alas, from the palmy days. His "legit" turn is a well-set scene from "Ingomar," and his act calls for two quick changes of scenic setting, including, of course, a change of costume each time for the players.

Sam Edwards is the leader of the bill, and in a skit called "A Pass for Two," he amuses the audience with a good imitation of a beefy, horsey individual getting a joke on himself. Sophie Brant, who is his female support, is a woman of tremendous voice and—Amazonian appearance.

Rosie Rendel, the English transformation dancer who was billed last week, appears now for the first time. Although none of her dancing is new it is dainty and graceful, and the costumes worn are pretty. Another terpsichorean team is made up of a volatile Frenchman and two damsels Parisienne.

James Larkins, a huge "mulled" man who looks like Pugilist Jack Johnson, sings old songs with a handsome octoroon called Dora Patterson, and completes the list of new arrivals. Lew Hawkins gets off a parody on the local police department's inability to catch the hold-up gang, and with Le Clair and Heeley and Meeley keeps up the reputation of the hold-overs.

A moving-picture series called the "Kinodrome" is introduced as a late novelty. In reality it was first presented here at Tally's Electric Theater a year ago.

"Among those present" last evening was Morris Meyerfield, president of the Orpheum Circuit.

BURBANK. "The Cowboy and the Lady," written by that prolific phenomenon, Clyde Fitch, for Nat Goodwin, is the presentation of James Neill this week. Fitch has written some things which have an element of probability about them, and some which have not, and "The Cowboy and the Lady" is one of the latter. However, it has a basis of adventure and a certain comedy element which make a good evening's amusement.

Fitch's story relates the cowboy career of a certain Harvard graduate named Teddy North. North lives with the punchers in Colorado, where he falls unwillingly in love with the high-bred wife of a shiftless character named Weston. Weston seeks one night during a dance to lead astray the sweetheart of a half-breed Indian and is shot by the outraged lover. North, being in the room, is suspected and put on trial for his life. He believes that Mrs. Weston slew her unfaithful spouse and to save her confesses to a die. In court the proprietress of the dance hall, after seeing North convicted, breaks out and tells the true story. The love of North and Mrs. Weston comes triumphantly to the top here, and the threatened tragedy is averted.

Mr. Neill takes the part of the gentlemanly cowboy hero. He seems to find it peculiarly sympathetic, for he makes a far better impression in it than he has in any production for some weeks. John W. Burton is togged out as "Joe," a typical noisy, great-hearted frontiersman, and a prominent figure in the happenings of the drama. Burton, with his nice distinctions in comic rendition, makes a real hit with a role which might be easily spoiled in overdoing. Clifford Dempsey plays the part of the murderous half-breed, Quick-Foot Jim, and during the final courtroom scene handles wordless by-play very effectively.

Miss Chapman, Miss Gertrude Keilar and Miss Andrews are happily cast, and another young Los Angeles girl, Miss Edith Campbell, is given one strong scene in which she makes a pleasing impression.

The management reports that the summer admission records were again broken at the Sunday-night performance. The only matinée will be given Saturday.

UNCLE SAM TAKES A HAND.

BUFFALO (N. Y.) Sept. 7.—The State Department at Washington has informed Representative Alexander that the department has authorized the Consul-General of the United States in Canada to retain counsel in the case of the fishing tug Kitty D., seized off Dunkirk, in Lake Erie, by the Canadian boat Petrel, a few months ago. An effort will be made to have the imaginary line between Canadian and American waters marked by buoys.

WASHINGTON

PEARY'S NEW EXPEDITION.

Vessel Will Be Named for Charles E. Darling.

Personnel of the Party Not Yet Decided Upon.

Investigation Into Navy Yards Leads to Some Friction. Capital Notes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Commander Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, said today that he would probably name his new Arctic vessel the Charles E. Darling, in honor of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who has proved a sterling friend of the explorer in inaugurating a new expedition in search of the pole. Although the Peary Arctic Club of New York is said by Commander Peary to be behind his fresh expedition, it is probable that funds will be contributed by new men, and mostly by Morris K. Jessup.

The last expedition cost $150,000, and the new one is estimated to cost $200,000. The personnel of Peary's party has not yet been decided upon, but it will be limited, and will consist of men chosen by Peary himself.

"One man," said Commander Peary today, "is sure to go, and he is Mathew Hansen." Hansen is a negro bodyservant, who has served Peary for several years, and shared the dangers of previous expeditions.

"Hansen will be one of the few men I shall choose to make a dash with me from Grant Land toward the pole," said Peary today. "He is a good shot, a good oarsman and one of the bravest men I ever knew. I can trust my life to him. I have three other men in mind, all Esquimos, who will probably make up the party that will make a start with sledges for the pole. Dogs will be used exclusively in transporting supplies for the party which starts across the ice. They are much better adapted to this work than either men or ponies. Then some of the dogs can be used to feed the remainder of the pack, and in case of necessity, the dogs will furnish food for the men in the party."

Mrs. Peary expected to accompany her husband on his next Arctic expedition, but the arrival of a new heir in the Peary household last week will make it impossible for the explorer's wife to make another trip into the frozen north.

DOLE TO RETIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Private advices received here say that Gov. Dole intends to retire from the governorship of Hawaii at the end of his present term. He has been the head of the island government continuously since the revolution of 1893, and is weary of the cares of office. The campaign for succession has already begun, and the islanders are trying to avert the appointment of a mainlander.

George R. Carter, Secretary of the Territory, is thought to be the choice of the President. This impression has resulted in certain interests working against him in Washington. Carter is a Republican. He is a graduate of Yale, and is comparatively a strong man.

Another candidate talked of is Henry E. Cooper, ex-secretary and now superintendent of Public Works. Cooper has been acting governor twice during the illnesses or absences of Gov. Dole. He has the support of the Governor and of a large element in the home-rule ranks. The proposition that the Organic Act of Hawaii be amended to provide for the appointment of a Governor from the mainland is being discussed.

NAVY YARD INVESTIGATION.

SWIFT CAUSING FRICTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Criticism is heard in naval circles of the movements of Capt. William Swift, member of the General Board, who has for several months been engaged in a tour of navy yards and shipbuilding establishments on the Atlantic Coast.

The object of this inspection is not disclosed, except in a general way, but it is understood that the whole matter has been productive of considerable dissatisfaction on the part of bureau officers and commandants stationed at the yards visited.

Capt. Swift has had an officer detailed to assist him, and in visiting the yards he has explained his orders from the Secretary. This has not served, however, to satisfy the officers on duty, and more than one communication has reached the Navy Department complaining of the interference of the General Board. It was pointed out by one bureau chief tonight that the scheme could only result in friction and confusion.

No criticism is heard of Secretary Moody or of Capt. Swift personally in regard to the inspection trip, but the chiefs of bureaus say the General Board is exceeding its jurisdiction. It is said the idea of the General Board is to put a stop to the duplication of work in the navy yards by various bureaus. It is contended that every year there is needless expense incurred, for example in the construction power plants for two or more bureaus at the same yard, when one plant would suffice for the entire yard.

DIGNIFIED PATIENCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The State Department today received a routine message from Mr. Beaupre, the American Minister at Bogota, acknowledging the receipt of Secretary Hay's cablegram of August 6, stating that the Washington government would enter into no engagement which would hamper the President's freedom of action under the law. This was all the cablegram stated, although it has been the basis for speculative report about Mr. Beaupre's ideas of the Bogota situation. The State Department's attitude is one of dignified patience. No indication of its course of action in the event that the Colombian Congress rejects or amends the treaty will be forthcoming until the time for the exchange of ratifications expires, September 23. It is known at the State Department that the Colombian Congress already is regretting its hasty action in rejecting the treaty as approved by the Washington government and ratified by the American Senate. It is up to the Bogota government to ratify that identical treaty, if Colombia desires an Isthmian Canal.

HAWAII.

GEHR ON WAR PATH AFTER SENATOR BURTON.

CAPITALIST SAYS KANSAN MADE FALSE CHARGES.

He Wants the Grand Jury to Investigate—Remains of Hawaiian Monarchs Removed from Royal Mausoleum, so as to Allow Needed Repairs.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HONOLULU, Sept. 7.—[By Pacific Cable.] H. B. Gehr, an applicant for the Kohala, Hawaiian ditch franchise which will confer the privilege of constructing an immense system of waterworks, has asked the grand jury to investigate certain charges which he says have been made to his detriment. Gehr alleges that Senator Burton reported to Senator Foraker that Gov. Dole, Commissioner of Public Lands Boyd and other Territorial officials, had been corruptly influenced in his favor, and against the interests of Samuel Parker, who is seeking the same franchise.

The questions in dispute have been fought in committee, during two sessions of Congress at Washington, being finally remanded here for settlement, as Territorial business.

Senator Foraker communicated the charges to Gehr, who informed Gov. Dole regarding them, and the latter will be asked to testify before the grand jury. Gov. Dole now favors the sale of the franchise at public auction. Gehr threatens to sue his accusers for criminal libel.

REPAIRING ROYAL MAUSOLEUM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HONOLULU, Sept. 1.—[A. P. Correspondence. Wired from San Francisco, Sept. 7.] All the remains of Hawaiian monarchs in the royal mausoleum in Nuuanu Cemetery have been removed from the mausoleum to a temporary structure near by to allow repairs and improvements of the mausoleum, for which the last Legislature appropriated $17,500. The bodies were removed in their costly caskets by night, and with something of the old-time Hawaiian ceremony for such occasions, and the scene at the cemetery was an impressive one.

The ex-Queen Liliuokalani was present to witness the removal of the bodies of her ancestors, and other relatives, and the Prince and Princess Kalanianaole and others of royal lineage. Twenty-three caskets were removed, with much solemnity, from the mausoleum and placed in order in the temporary shelter prepared for them, while the royal retainers chanted olollis, or funeral songs. The mausoleum will be repaved, and the walls and roof will be plastered. Insects were beginning to eat their way into the chamber, and threatened to attack the caskets.

PLANT QUARANTINE.

The Board of Agriculture and Forestry has decided to take severe measures to keep out plant diseases from Australia, Samoa, the Bahamas and other countries from which pineapples, coffee plants and other plants come here. The board will maintain a plant quarantine as long as there are reports of dangerous plant diseases in the countries, which send seeds and plants here.

BONDS TAKEN.

All of the $327,000 worth of bonds issued to pay off the Chinatown fire claims growing out of the plague fire have been taken up with the exception of $57,000, which are tied up by litigation.

ST. LOUIS BUILDING.

The question of whether Hawaii should erect a building at the St. Louis Exposition, or not is being much discussed in Honolulu. There is talk of adding to the legislative appropriation of $30,000 enough to provide for a separate building in which to house the exhibit to be made.

NOBLE CHIEF DYING.

HIS SERVICES TO MANKIND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TUTUILA (Samoa (Aug. 25.—[A. P. Correspondence. Wired from San Francisco, Sept. 7.] Seumanutafa, the high chief of Apia, is dying. He is the chief who rendered noble service to the United States during the great hurricane of 1889, and received recognition from the government for his assistance in saving the lives of the shipwrecked men. Although the Germans were fighting against his party at that time, when he saw his enemies cast upon the beach he took them under his care and allowed no man to interfere with them. His son-in-law, Judge Gurr of Tutuila, who was with him during the troubles of 1889, proceeds today to Apia to attend him.

There have been continuous rains in Tutuila during the so-called "dry season." The copra crop for the year has been considerably reduced, and the drying of the nut stopped for the present.

WILL INQUIRY BE A FARCE?

Highland Hospital Officials Hedging a Bit.

Think a Formal Probing is Quite Superfluous Now.

Presbyterian Ministers Will Attend Investigation Today.

Judging from present indications the investigation set for today at the Southern California State Hospital for the Insane will result in a simple inquiry, preliminary to a thorough probing at the hands of the State Commission in Lunacy.

Without the presence of Dr. Foster, who cannot be present, inquiry into the charges of cruelty can but be of a cursory nature. Realizing this to be true, an attempt was made by the State commissioners to secure a postponement. This effort was frustrated by the board of managers and the hospital authorities, their claim being that there was no necessity for a formal investigation.

This action may be significant when compared with a communication sent by Dr. Campbell to the secretary of the board. In his letter the doctor asked if he was to be forced to face every Tom, Dick and Harry having a grievance. If so he would positively decline to appear. This was regarded as strange language from a medical superintendent charged with general mismanagement and permitting the inhuman treatment of patients. The average taxpayer will be interested in having every kick registered, and that there shall be no recourse to the executive session dodge.

For several days Charles Waymire of Alameda, son of ex-Judge Waymire, has been expecting the books of the hospital, but just what the result will be remains for the investigation to determine.

UNLIMITED SCOPE.

The absence of formulated charges need not thwart the commissioners in their efforts to get to the bottom of the trouble. In fact, this lack gives an unlimited scope to the undertaking. Handicapped by the refusal of witnesses to attend the commissioners purpose taking individual testimony, if necessary visiting the several cities and towns where these people live, and from results make a formal report to the Commission in Lunacy. Then if findings warrant it the matter will be taken up as provided by law.

The testimony of Fred Howard, ex-druggist at the hospital, was taken yesterday, and Mrs. Varney and Mrs. Hutton were visited. R. C. Harbison, F. N. Whitaker and others will be present at the investigation today and point out discrepancies, and emphasize charges already made.

PLANNETTE CASE.

A fact that may add weight to the investigation is that a committee from the Los Angeles Presbyterian Ministers' Association will be in attendance. This committee is composed of Rev. Dr. Hugh K. Walker, Rev. Dr. J. S. Young and Rev Dr. W. D. Landon. These gentlemen will demand a hearing in the matter of the alleged ill treatment of Rev. Dr. Plannette, formerly pastor of the Bay Cities Presbyterian Church, this city. Dr. Plannette is now at the San Gabriel Institute.

It is intimated that Mrs. Plannette will have quite another story to tell before the board from that at its last meeting. Fear, it is alleged, that the patient might suffer from retaliatory punishment, prompted Mrs. Plannette to the conservative attitude formerly assumed.

NEW STEWARD.

At this session of the Board of Managers, a steward is to be selected from the small army of the "faithful." The principal fight between Frank Nutter of the Islands and an Ontario man, the latter running as favorite. Should Nutter secure the job, those claiming that Stoker's dismissal was programmed will give place to Nutter, will receive the verification.

The people of the State demand a careful consideration of every allegation made, and nothing short of that will be accepted.

The State Commissioners have given it out that every employé of the hospital and others will be fully protected in the giving of testimony, and all having knowledge of mismanagement of affairs are urged to the fullest extent.

A BURDEN TOO HEAVY.

Edward Smiley, aged about 32, died at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a cottage at No. 111 North Broadway over the entrance to the Tally Ho stables, from the effects of a dose of morphine taken with suicidal intent. He entered the place about an hour before and died that he was ill. He asked to be allowed to lie down and was accommodated. Mrs. Frank, proprietor of the place, suspected that something was wrong and summoned Drs. Vaughn and Ferguson. By that time Smaley was unconscious. It was evident to the physicians that he had taken an opiate and they administered stimulants and used other restoratives, but the young man's condition was such when they found him that they were unable to counteract the effects of the poison. He died within an hour after entering the place. By order of Coroner Trout the remains were taken to Breese Bros.' undertaking where an inquest will be held today.

The deceased came here from Milwaukee, Wis., with an invalid sister and for a time roomed at No. 626 San Pedro street. They recently removed to No. 111 South Spring street. Smaley was employed at work and the care of his sister and the gradual disappearance of his savings caused him to become despondent. Why he should go to such extreme to end his life cannot be understood but it is known that he had been to the North Broadway resort before and had spent some money there. The Coroner has telegraphed his brother and the body will be held pending instructions from her.

The saddest feature of the affair is that his invalid sister, for the benefit of whose health he came here, has suffered a relapse as a result of the news of her brother's death, and she may not recover.

The greatest gathering of livestock breeders that ever visited Pittsburgh attended the formal opening yesterday of the new union stock yards at Herrs Island. Cattlemen from all parts of the country were there.

WILL INQUIRY BE A FARCE?

Highland Hospital Officials Hedging a Bit.

Presbyterian Ministers Will Attend Investigation Today.

Judging from present indications the investigation set for today at the Southern California State Hospital for the Insane will result in a simple inquiry, preliminary to a thorough probing at the hands of the State Commission in Lunacy.

Without the presence of Dr. Foster, who cannot be present, inquiry into the charges of cruelty can but be of a cursory nature. Realizing this to be true, an attempt was made by the State commissioners to secure a postponement. This effort was frustrated by the board of managers and the hospital authorities, their claim being that there was no necessity for a formal investigation.

This action may be significant when compared with a communication sent by Dr. Campbell to the secretary of the board. In his letter the doctor asked if he was to be forced to face every Tom, Dick and Harry having a grievance. If so he would positively decline to appear. This was regarded as strange language from a medical superintendent charged with general management and permitting the inhuman treatment of patients. The average taxpayer will be interested in having every kick registered, and that there shall be no recourse to the executive session dodge.

For several days Charles Waymire of Alameda, son of ex-Judge Waymire, has been expering the books of the hospital, but just what the result will be remains for the investigation to determine.

FRUIT EXCHANGES IN A SOLID COMPACT.

CONCESSIONS BY BOTH SIDES LEAD TO A REUNION.

San Bernardino Growers Come to Terms With the Southern California Association—Ninety Per Cent. of the Crop Said to Have Come in.

The San Bernardino County Fruit Exchange which voted two weeks ago to withdraw from the Southern California Fruit Exchange, has reconsidered its action. At a meeting of the growers held in San Bernardino last Saturday night it was decided to remain with the parent exchange. G. W. Felts, a director in the California Citrus Union, and secretary of the California Fruit Agency, conducted the negotiations for the central exchange. Some concessions were made by both sides, and it was stated yesterday at the office of the parent exchange that a complete and satisfactory understanding now exists with the San Bernardino growers.

The recent secession of the San Bernardino organization from the parent exchange caused a furore throughout the country, and gave the impression that a disintegration of the citrus exchange was in progress. The dispute between the county and the parent exchange rested solely on certain operating questions, and not because of poor results. When the parent exchange made a compact with the outside packers to control the market and prevent ruinous price cutting, some members of the San Bernardino exchange thought the terms were unfavorable to them as cooperative growers. The dispute developed almost into a quarrel, and soon resulted in the public break. Large growers interested in giving a test to concerted marketing methods, such as have proven so successful with raisins and deciduous fruits, entered the field, and after several conferences were able to bring about a harmonious adjustment of all perplexing difficulties.

Speaking of the situation yesterday, Mr. Felts said: "This adjustment of the San Bernardino matter now leaves a clear field for the operation of the merging plans. Fully 90 per cent. of the crop, if not 94 per cent., will be under the control of this office, and many of the evils in marketing are expected to be done away with. At least the plan is going to have one unanimous trial by growers in all districts.

GRATEFUL, HAPPY WOMEN

Miss Muriel Armitage

Thank Pe-ru-na for Their Recovery After Years of Suffering.

Miss Muriel Armitage, 36 Greenwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, in a recent letter, says:

"I think that a woman naturally shrinks from making her troubles public, but restored health has meant so much to me that I feel for the sake of other suffering women it is my duty to tell what Peruna has done for me.

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I thought this was the least I could do and procured a bottle. I knew as soon as I began taking it that it was affecting me differently from anything I had used before, and so I kept on taking it. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman today."—Miss Muriel Armitage.

Peruna cures catarrh of the pelvic organs with the same surety as it cures catarrh of the head. Peruna has become renowned as a positive cure for female ailments simply because the ailments are mostly due to catarrh. Catarrh is the cause of the trouble. Peruna cures the catarrh. The symptoms disappear.

Always Ha'f Sick are the Women Who Have Pelvic Catarrh.

Catarrh of any organ, if allowed to progress, will affect the whole body. Catarrh without nervousness is very rare, but pelvic catarrh and nervousness go hand in hand.

What is so distressing a sight as a poor half-sick, nervous woman, suffering from the many almost unbearable symptoms of pelvic catarrh? She does not consider herself ill enough to go to bed, but she is far from being able to do her work without the greatest exhaustion. This is a very common sight and is almost always due to pelvic catarrh.

It is worse than foolish for so many women to suffer year after year with a disease that can be permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh permanently. It cures old chronic cases as well as a slight attack, the only difference being in the length of time that it should be taken to effect a cure.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A Strange Mania.
One of the strangest cases on record has been discovered in Wellston, O., and medical men have been unable to do anything to relieve the victim of a new and peculiar habit.

Mary Monday, an employé of the International Hotel, some months ago began eating small bits of ice. She experienced an inordinate craving for something cold, and nothing seemed to satisfy this desire but ice, and that only temporarily. As time passed she found that it required more of the frozen stuff to satisfy her, and as she went about her work she kept a vessel filled with cracked ice within her reach. Now she cannot do without it. Otherwise she is, so far as can be discovered, a perfectly normal and healthy young woman.

She has gradually increased the quantity consumed each day until now she requires the startling amount of from fifteen to twenty pounds. This barely satisfies her.

She thinks she could devour more, but since she has been compelled to pay for the ice she has tried to cut down the quantity consumed. When the employer of the girl discovered the cause of the increase in his ice bill he naturally was much astonished, but, not desiring to keep up a human ice chest, he informed the girl that she must pay for her own ice or quit eating it. She promptly agreed to pay for it, saying that she would rather die than do without it.

So far as she knows, there have as yet developed no other ill effects than the swelling of her face, hands and feet. These are puffed and flabby, a condition which is possibly due to the ammonia in the manufactured ice that she consumes. This swelling continues all the time she uses the ice, but when she abandons the habit for a day it disappears. She suffers no pain, and so long as she has as much ice as she wants seems to be perfectly happy.—[New York Herald.

TWIN CITY HANDICAP.

Great Race at Sheepshead Bay Won by McChesney.

Thousand Persons Join in Cheering the Favorite.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—E. E. Smathers's McChesney, the pride of the West, won the $5000 Twin City Handicap at Sheepshead Bay today. McChesney was always a warm favorite, closing at even money. He equaled the track record for a mile and a quarter, made by Sysonby June 2, this year, by covering the distance in 2:08 3-5. E. R. Thomas's Hermis was second, with the favorite, His Eminence, third.

The demonstration accorded McChesney as he flashed under the wire was probably the heartiest that has ever hailed a winner on the eastern turf. The cheering began before McChesney had finished and continued until Fuller pulled up his mount on the paddock side. Upon his return to his stall, it is estimated, 10,000 persons joining in the cheering, while hats, canes, handkerchiefs and umbrellas were thrown high in the air.

The horses were at the post, but Fuller's money began to show itself before the stewards and commissioners were busy, and it is estimated that he cleaned up a little more than $50,000.

There was only a few moments' delay at the post, and they were off to a good start. McChesney was the first to show, but Odom, on Hermis, immediately sent his mount to the front, and during the paddock turn, opened up two lengths, with Injunction a close length in front of McChesney. At the half-mile pole Hermis had increased the lead to four lengths, and he won easily. Injunction was second in front of "Big Mac." Coming to the three-quarters pole, Hermis was still leading, but here Fuller began to make his run, and quickly the cry of Injunction, set sail for Hermis. Rounding the far turn, McChesney passed the leader between the leader, and three furlongs from the finish he was right behind Hermis and gaining at every stride. With a fair swung into the stretch, and gave his whip, and shook it at Hermis. The Smathers horse drew away from him easily by one and a half lengths. Hermis had to be ridden out to the place. Results:

First race, short course: Pulminate first, Leonora Loring won, second, Wood Pigeon third; time 1:09 2-5.

Second race: Stake, five and a half furlongs: Luxembourg won, Hazel Dimple third; time 1:07.

Twin City Handicap, mile and a quarter: McChesney won, Hermis second, Eminence third; time 2:04 3-5.

Fourth race: Selling, five and a half furlongs: Sunny Side won, Sandstone second, Toi third; time 1:09 2-5.

Fifth race: Selling, three-quarters: Moon Daisy won, Lord Badge second, Lord Badge third; time 1:16 4-5.

SAN FRANCISCO BATS OUT.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 7.—The San Francisco team batted out another victory today by landing on Keefe's offerings in the third inning for seven runs, which, combined with a batting fest, allowed six runs to score. The reception had no apparent effect on the youngster, however, who pitched a fine game out and did excellent work in the finish. Bua his display in the pinch inning gave the visitors the game. The Sacramento team could do nothing with Dorner. Score:

BIG SHOOTING TOURNAMENT.

RIFLE CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

SEAGIRT (N. J.) Sept. 7.—The opening day of the second week of the big shooting tournament here is filled with events of general interest. The weather is all that could be desired. The first target work of the morning was begun shortly after 8:30 o'clock, when the competitors reported to complete the firing in the skirmish team match which was not concluded Saturday because of a storm. The Leech cup match, next in order, is being shot in the stages of 800, yards, 900 yards and 1000 yards.

The interclub match for the rifle club championship of the United States, open to teams of five men from any rifle club or association, ten shots per man with any military rifle and any ammunition, will begin late this afternoon, as will the company team match, seven shots per man at 200 and 500 yards, and open to military teams of five members each.

In order to provide for the events mentioned, the range is being kept open continuously, the customary midday recess having been omitted.

The skirmish team match concluded today was won by the team representing the Second District of Columbia Regiment, with a total of 351 out of a possible 360.

Having won the match in 1901 and also in 1902, the valuable Hazard trophy now becomes the permanent property of the Second District of Columbia Regiment.

SAN RAFAEL TENNIS.

MIXED DOUBLES MATCH GOOD.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 7.—The weather at the Hotel Rafael tennis court this morning was quite warm. Two of the matches in the mixed doubles tournament were played.

The first was between J. Drummond MacGavin and Florence Sutton against Ethel and Walter Ratcliff. The latter team put up a hard fight, but lost after a very close two-out-of-three set match. MacGavin and Miss Sutton lost the first set, 6-2, but captured the two following, each by the score of 6-4.

Undoubtedly the best mixed doubles match yet witnessed here was played in the semi-final match between Drummond MacGavin and Florence Sutton against Archie Way and May Sutton. The latter team won in straight sets, but the first was enough for twenty games, which Way and his partner won out. The victors played a steady game, while MacGavin and his partner were somewhat erratic. Miss Florence Sutton played brilliant tennis, probably the best game of the four, and had MacGavin been up to form the northerners would undoubtedly have won this match. Way and May Sutton, after leading in the first set at 4-1, won out, 6-3.

In the second set, which proved to be the last, it was anybody's match up to the last. MacGavin and Miss Sutton should, however, have won, as they led all through the match at 3-2, 4-2, 5-2, 5-3, 5-4, 6-5, 7-6, 8-7, 9-8, until 9 all, when the team from the South won the next two games, set and match.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Middle States regatta, under the auspices of the Potomac River Regatta Association, was held here today and was witnessed by a large crowd. Senior singles: Frank Vesley, Bohemia Boat Club, New York, won. No time.

Intermediate four-oared shells—Won by Metropolitan Boat Club; Ariel Rowing Club disqualified. The race was fouled once, and had to be rowed over again from where it was fouled, therefore no time was given.

At 11:30 o'clock, Mr. Way and Miss Sutton defeated Drummond MacGavin and Miss Florence Sutton in a hotly-contested match, the score being 6-3, 11-9.

The best game of the day was played at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, when the final men's singles was won by Alfonso Bell of Southern California over Parcy Murdock of San Francisco by the score of 8-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2. Bell won out more by endurance than by superiority in strokes.

BUDD DOBLE THROWN.

THE ROMAN CASTS A SHOE.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.)

HARTFORD (CL.) Sept. 7.—The throwing of Budd Doble in the 2:10 trot, which resulted in the distancing of The Roman, who had won two heats, prevented the completing of the programme at the opening day's races in the fall meet of the Grand Circuit at Charter Oak Track today. It was during the last event on the programme that the misnap occurred, and it was too late to finish the long-drawn-out 2:10 trot, the judges postponing the final heat until tomorrow, when the heat winners will decide the contest.

At the three-quarters mark, in the fifth heat, Doble, behind The Roman, was forging to the front, when a boot became loose and dropped, so as to trip The Roman, who staggered. Doble, realizing that an accident was unavoidable, threw himself from the sulky, landing hard on the track. Thousands of persons swarmed across the track to the scene of the accident, believing that both horse and driver were seriously injured, but both escaped with a few scratches. Doble went before the judges and claimed that he had been interfered with, but as he made no specific charge, the judges, after a long consultation, decided that The Roman was distanced. Summary:

In the 2:30 pace, purse $3000: King Direct won three straight heats in 2:09¼, 2:09¾, 2:09¾. Elastic Pointer only other starter.

In the 2:14 pace, purse $1500: Sagwa won three straight heats in 2:11¼, 2:13½, 2:15¾. Kiowa and Alvin Raiso started.

Hartford Futurity, foals of 1900, 2 in 3, purse $7500: Sadie Mc won the second and third heats in 2:12¾, 2:11¼. Ethel's Pride won the first heat in 2:14¼. Lord Roberts, Delight, Lisa and Miss Alwine also started.

In the 2:10 trot, purse $1500, unfinished: Dr. Strong won the third and fourth heats in 2:11¼, 2:12¾. McKinley won the fifth heat in 2:15¼. The Roman, who won the first and second heats in 2:12¾ and 2:10, was distanced in the fifth. Four others also started.

SIWASHES WIN THROUGH HITS.

Drinkwater Proved an Easy Mark for Visitors,

Wild Work by Looloo Infield Also Helped Some.

Toman in Particular Had Boots on and Game Was a Loose Exhibition.

Batteries—St. Vrain and Byers; Drinkwater and Hurlburt.

Features—The spectacular rottenness of the Los Angeles infield; the plays Toman didn't make; the pitching Drinkwater didn't do, and the Siwashes' hitting.

It's a shame to take the money for a game like that of yesterday. Drinkwater, the Looloo pitcher, was sick, and certain of the infielders, Toman, in particular, played as if they had been up too late the night before. The official score charges up about half the mistakes that were made by Morley's base warmers, and does not begin to cover the chances that were not taken. Drinkwater might have made a kick on the subject of poor support, for the Looloos certainly threw him down with the traditional thud, but his pitching was not of the stamp that will ever precipitate any violations of the National agreement. He tried to pitch too fast a ball, but could not put it where he wished, and the Siwashes laid up against it for swats of various dimensions into the nethermost corners of the lot. Chutes Park was not big enough to hold all of them.

Some seventeen bingles were chalked up when the curtain finally rung down. St. Vrain, who officiated for the visitors, was the receiver general of a sufficient clouting to win most games, but not in the face of such stick doings as Drinkwater's weakness made possible. The Siwashes were at bat forty-four times, and that tells the whole sad story to the initiates. Others can read the rest in the error column. The fouls that Hurlburt did not get, the throws he did not make, one that Ross did, and the mauling Toman accorded his chances at short are a picture that had better be turned to memory's wall.

Some individual in the stand suggested that interfering boots be put on Toman and some of the other infielders—perish the thought. They all had enough on yesterday. Further additions would be superfluous. Joe Corbett and Frank Dillon did nearly all that was asked of them in fielding and quite all that was expected at bat. Likewise Dummy Hoy.

The game started out like a taste of something better, for Lumley, the first man up, flew to right, Mohler, after singling to left, was caught off first, and Smith's hit to right only resulted in his arrest by Hurlburt on an attempted steal. The Siwashes in the second decided Drinkwater was a good thing and went to him accordingly. Brashear started it by going out via the Toman-Dillon route, but Toman atoned for it by letting a couple of balls get through his territory that ordinarily he would have eaten up. Zinsar whacked a slow, weak liner plump into second base and Toman was absent with the goods. Andrews fanned. Janssing thumped one through short as Toman played over toward second base, Zinssar having stolen that bag. The hit was a two-bagger, and scored one run. Pat Byers then walloped another to left and brought in Janssing. Hoy rose to the demands of the situation by taking in a hard fly of St. Vrain's and the inning was over.

The Siwash half of the fourth was a Wild West exhibition. It started like the other, with a successful assist by Toman. Janssing, the next man up, got a pass. Byers scored him with a smash to the score board for two bags. St. Vrain diked out a measly shot to Dillon off first and Drinkwater failed to hold the assist. He threw to second to undo the work and Toman let the ball get by, Byers scoring in the melee. Lumly swatted the ball to short and Toman threw it past first base, allowing St. Vrain to come in. Hurlburt surprised everybody by getting Mohler's foul, and the next installment of one was delivered in chapter five. This time Wheeler helped the Siwashes out. With one down, Brashear singled to left center.

Zinssar having been hurt, Barber, who officiated in his place, lifted a hard foul back of third and Wheeler got it by a good run, then undid the noble work by throwing the ball past Dillon at first. It would have made no difference, for Andrews swatted a man's size liner to left field fence for two bags, delivering the run. Barber did the business for two more in canto 7, by putting the ball over left-field fence after Drinkwater had hit Brashear.

The grand finale came an inning later on some hitting of the free and easy order. Mohler whacked a nasty grounder to second, which Corbett fumbled; Carl Smith swung late at a wide one and lined it through third base like a belated bullet. That scored Mohler. Brashear clouted a hit through to deep left center and Ross catapulted the ball over Hurlburt's head at the plate. Smith scored and Barber's fly to right brought in Brashear from third base.

Corbett had his batting eye unpacked yesterday and in the fourth led off with a long high fly to left center just where neither Lumley nor Barber could quite get to it. The ball bounded almost vertically and cleared centerfield fence. Joe cantered home amid applause, for he is a slight fellow and the fans like to see him do swat wonders. They expect them of the giants like Hurlburt and Dillon. That was one of the Looloo runs. Dillon followed Corbett with a two-bagger to right-field fence and everybody thought a batting rally was on tap, but Brashear got down to earth long enough to get Cravath's foul, and the next two men did nothing more that hit the ball hard right at somebody.

Brainy baseball by Hoy got the other tally. In a close game the little mute's trick would have won him a big hand. He led off in the eighth by bunting a short fly beside St. Vrain. It plumped down dead, spun around before the pitcher could get to it, and proved so mean to handle that he threw it into right field letting Dummy go to second. He took third on Wheeler's long fly to Lumley, and scored when Corbett hit a hot shot to Andrews at short and was put out at first. Dillon followed with a hit to second, one of those slow ones which the big captain knows how to place so well. Ev[illegible]ler could not handle it. Cravath forced the captain at second, and the Looloos went out one, two, three in the ninth.

MISSES BUGGY RIDE AND KILLS HERSELF.

SICK AND SENSITIVE GIRL DIES OVER A TRIVIAL SLIGHT.

Pretty Tillie Contreras Thinks None of the Family Loves Her and Drinks Carbolic Acid to End Her Earthly Sorrows.

Because she was left at home while the other members of the family took a buggy ride, Miss Tillie Contreras, aged 18, committed suicide last night at her home, No. 326 Buena Vista street, by taking carbolic acid. She was discovered about 11 o'clock last night, a few minutes after she took the poison, but despite strenuous efforts to save her, death resulted in fifteen minutes at the Receiving Hospital.

The girl had been ill for several days, and her relatives noticed she was peevish, but attributed it to her illness. Yesterday afternoon the family secured a rig for a holiday, but it was not large enough to accommodate all, and Tillie was told to remain at home. She had set her heart on going, and when the rest drove away and left her all alone, she went into the house weeping bitterly.

When the family returned she showed by words and actions that she resented what she considered their harsh treatment of her. It seemed to prey upon her mind, and more than once during the evening she stated that she believed they did not care for her any more. Little attention was paid to her brooding, so little in fact that some of her relatives teased her about taking so small a matter to heart. But she answered their taunts angrily, and finally entered the parlor of her home and laid down upon a sofa.

It was supposed that she was asleep, and no attention was paid to her. Her brother-in-law, Henry Zerbeves, a plasterer, went to bed in the next room, but before he had fallen asleep he heard something fall to the floor in the next room. He went into the parlor to investigate, and found the empty poison bottle and the girl. She was lying on the floor unconscious, her lips and tongue parched and swollen.

The police were notified, and the dying girl taken to the Receiving Hospital with all possible speed. On arrival there it was seen she was practically dead. Dr. Spencer forced open her jaws and administered alcohol, and then applied artificial respiration, but she expired within a few minutes. The body was removed to Pierce Bros.' undertaking establishment, where the Coroner will hold an inquest.

The death of the girl under such circumstances has almost prostrated the members of her family. They tearfully stated after her death that they had no idea that she felt as she did about such a trivial matter as a buggy ride, and they seemed to blame themselves for not having taken her, inasmuch as she had been ill. She was an exceptionally handsome girl, and was of a cheerful disposition. She had scores of friends, among whom she was extremely popular.

Essay on the Horse.

The following remarkable essay on the horse is said to be from the pen of an Indian student:

"The horse is a very noble quadruped; but when he is angry he will not do so. He is ridden on the spinal cord by the bridle, and sadly the driver places his foots on the stirrup, and divides his lower limbs across the saddle and drives his animal to the meadow. He has four legs; two are on the front side and two are afterward. These are the weapons on which he runs. He also defends himself by extending those in the rear in a parallel direction toward his foe, but this he does only when in a vexatious mood. There is no animal like the horse. No sooner they see their guardian or master than they always cry for food, but it is always at the morning time. They have got tails, but not so long as the cow and other such like animals.—[Scottish American.

The idea is to use the present highways wherever practicable.

EDITORS' OUTING OVER.

Most of the members of the Southern California Editorial Association, who have spent three days in annual outing on Coronado Beach and in this city, returned to their homes this afternoon, though some of them have remained for another day. Yesterday was spent at La Jolla, where the editors inspected the big caves in the bluffs. This morning a large party took a run down to Tia Juana, spending an hour in the quaint little Mexican town.

CITY CLOSED UP.

Today was generally observed as a holiday in this city. At 2 o'clock a parade was formed and marched through the business streets. There were many handsome floats in the procession, a flag being awarded to the union adjudged to have made the most creditable showing. After the parade a band concert was given on the Plaza, where an address was made by Mayor Noyes of Riverside.

DAY OF BLOODY RIOTING AT LABOR UNIONS' PICNIC.

Policemen Brutally Mauled by the Mob. Fight Follows Fight at Chutes Park—One of the Gang Carried Home With Broken Ribs—Fifteen Arrests.

FIGHT after fight, booze and gore, broken ribs and black eyes were features of the union celebration of Labor Day at Chutes Park yesterday. There was a riot which grew out of a drunken quarrel; Officer Horton was mobbed and beaten black and blue; Officer Sloane was used up; other officers knocked down and injured. Fifteen arrests were made.

When the policemen on the grounds realized that they were powerless to cope with the drunken mob a riot call was sent to the central station, and Chief Elton and twelve officers promptly responded. Chief Elton was hooted when he entered the grounds by the lawless element. Order was soon restored, however, although the mob hung around watching for the reappearance of Officer Horton, who had been taken into the Chutes office, for over an hour.

As a result of the disturbance R. J. Walsh and H. M. Kennedy were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. The police believe them to be the men who started the fight in which Officer Horton was so roughly used.

The trouble began in the restaurant which is well back from the street. The tables were crowded all afternoon with union men—"Jim Gray," Lem Biddle and other union leaders, being much in evidence—and the beer flowed much faster than water. A large force of waiters was busily engaged uncorking the foamy beverage and men, women and children drank copiously.

Several fights had occurred in and about the restaurant during the afternoon, and the management could not control the crowd. Two men who were seated at a table with a woman started a furious quarrel. One of the two men refused to buy beer for the crowd and accused the other of paying too assiduous attention to the woman in the party. The war of words ended in a bout at fisticuffs in which the belligerents meant well, but were prevented by their intoxicated condition from doing much execution. Considerable excitement was caused, however, and several chairs and tables were overturned, their burdens of beer bottles and glasses crashing on the floor.

THE RUSH ON THE POLICE.

Officer Horton, who is taking his vacation, was standing near by, dressed in citizen's clothes. The manager of the restaurant asked him to assist in quelling the disturbance. Horton tried to subdue the fighters and both of them turned on him. The officer then pulled out a small leather club and began to use it on the two drunks. This angered the other "laborites" sitting near by and they started a rush for the officer. Because he was not in uniform the drink-crazed rioters thought Horton a special officer. Crying, "Down with the special," "Soak the fly cop," "Punch him," "Hit him," and other fiery utterances, several hundred of the Labor Day celebrators joined in the rush on the officer, who was knocked down, beaten, pounded and kicked all the way across the Chutes grounds to the old entrance way on Main street. The other officers rushed to Horton's assistance, but were powerless to stem the tide of crazed humanity. Policeman Kristovich was knocked down twice in the melee. Officer T. R. Sloane was thrown against a tree and his back was badly sprained. Officers White, Walsh and Strode were lost in the crush.

Horton finally wrenched a piece of billiard cue from one of his assailants and laid about him with such good effect that he entirely freed himself from the mob. But that was only for a moment. The crowd was bent upon rushing him outside of the grounds and when the leaders made another charge upon him, Horton backed up against the fence and pulled his revolver.

GUN SOBERS MOB.

Standing there facing that mob of drunken rioters, Horton declared that he would drop the next man that laid a hand upon him. The pause occasioned by the drawing of the gun which the officer held at his side, and did not point at the crowd, was sufficient to allow the other policemen to get between Horton and his assailants. Horton was then rushed inside the office of the Chutes and the mob closed in about the doors and windows. No attempt was made to force an entrance, however, the crowd being content with staying in at the windows and yelling at the officers.

At this stage Lem Biddle, trouble-breeder of the Los Angeles Council of Labor, forced his way to the front and was admitted by the officers. After a few minutes he emerged and addressed the mob in characteristic fashion.

BIDDLE ORATES.

"He's no good," yelled Biddle pointing inside where Horton had taken refuge. "He's no man. I told him that if he would put up his gun and come out here on the grass that any union man in the crowd would slap h—l out of him singlehanded." [Prolonged cheering.]

One of the officers tried to dissuade Biddle from further speechmaking at this stage, but the walking delegate only laughed at him.

"I've just told this officer that this was a free country and a land of free speech," he continued. "Now I am going to say what I think about this officer. I think he's no good. He ought not to be allowed to wear a star. He's a disgrace to our department. And furthermore, boys, he's a coward and he don't dare to fight us singlehanded."

GRIM HUMOR OF IT.

This kind of talk was much to the liking of the mob, and Biddle was cheered and cheered. The offer to fight the officer singlehanded coming from the recognized leader of a mob of nearly one thousand men, which had just beaten the aforesaid officer to a jelly, certainly had a grim humor about it, which was not fully appreciated by Biddle's audience.

Soon after this the detail of police appeared in response to the riot call, but owing to the inflamed state of the mob no attempt was made to remove Horton until nearly an hour later. Guarded by several officers he was then escorted to the patrol wagon and taken home. Most of the mob had in the meantime dispersed and no attempt was made to continue the hostile demonstration.

The attack on the officer, while the most sensational of the day, was by no means the only attraction of the kind offered the "laborites." The foreman of the park was knocked senseless by a drunken ruffian during the progress of the baseball game in the afternoon. He had attempted to pull the man off the fence, and was rewarded by a solar-plexus blow. A policeman was standing near by, but declared that he did not see any reason to arrest the man. A little later, while trying to force back the crowd around the balloon just before the ascension, another big, husky drunk became incensed, and hit the foreman a terrific blow under the heart, breaking one rib. The foreman was left senseless for some minutes from this blow.

GLASS SMASHED.

A longshoreman from San Pedro and a young butcher had an altercation in the restaurant early in the afternoon, which nearly wrecked the Chutes supply of glassware. Tables were overturned, glasses and bottles smashed, and even some of the electric globes were broken. Pandemonium reigned. The tables left upright were used by the mob as points of vantage from which to view the fight. The police finally forced their way to the front and stopped the fight. The young butcher was crazy drunk, and four men were required to take him out of the grounds. No arrests were made, although one of the officers ordered the young man put off the grounds.

One young man was standing watching the field sports when another of heavier build walked up and, without warning, struck him a blow on the point of the jaw that was distinctly heard half-way across the Chutes grounds. The man hit was knocked senseless, and did not regain consciousness for several minutes. His assailant was evidently drunk, and declared that the young man had insulted his young lady. This the young man denied when he recovered sufficiently to talk.

There were other fights by the score. Some of them originated at the dance where as many couples as could possibly stand on the floor of a small pavilion were trying to waltz in all the crazy and tough fashions that are countenanced. The air was stifling and the flow of beer uninterrupted. The results could easily be foreseen.

Fifteen arrests were made by the police for fighting, drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons.

It was the policy of the officers to make few arrests. They went on the assumption that if the union labor men wished to pound each other into mincemeat that it was a family affair in which they should not meddle. Just a case of "dog eat dog."

"Many fights?" was asked an officer.

"One every minute," he replied.

"Do you arrest them?"

"Oh, no. We just keep them milling around. When they start fighting we separate them and let them look for someone else to fight. It's the best way. It seems to be all in the game."

"The baseball game would have been stopped on account of darkness if it had not broken up because of the drunkenness," was the way one spectator summarized that event. During the game the catcher for the union cement workers slugged a bystander, and by some peculiar coincidence another player hit him at the identical moment on the other side of the head. The two blows counterbalanced, but the onlooker was not anxious to renew the experience.

Between lights the crowd feasted their eyes on the incomparable "Juno;" the animal that is said to be "half horse and half beast," a most peculiar combination, surely; visited the theater; ate sandwiches and drank beer; shot the chutes; drank more beer; viewed the animals and took in all the attractions offered by the park and zoo.

It was stated last night that the Chutes management felt disgusted with the performance of yesterday and that no more Labor Day celebrations will be held in the park. In some cities such occurrences as happened yesterday would cost a beer garden its license.

The Mob Attacking the Officer Near the Bandstand—Portrait in Upper Right Hand Corner is that of H. M. Kennedy, Ringleader of the Gang, Under Arrest.

EVENING DOINGS.

MORE FIGHT AND BOOZE.

Enough motive force was wasted chewing union gum at the Chutes last night to run a factory.

Enough beer was sopped up to start a brewery.

The star feature of the evening performance was a big sheet stretched up to throw insults on. It was mainly devoted to airily-tossed blackguardisms of The Times.

Sad to say, this feature was a very dismal "frost." Time after time the stereopticon artist would fling his damnedest one on the sheet, but the jaded crowd only looked on in apathetic silence. Not once during the entire evening did one of the offensive taunts draw forth applause. Evidently they are wearied of the wit of the walking delegate.

Once after a particularly nasty one, a yell of applause went up and hope entered the heart of the man behind the machine. But the applause turned out to be because a man was going to ride a bike down the chutes. The stereopticon man's disappointment was so bitter that soon afterward he shut the machine up and turned off the light.

The only reason they got an audience at all was because the sheet was plunked down in front of the beer joint so conveniently.

As the evening wore on the results of their simple, joyous sport, teasing the Wurstburger became evident.

Two young sports were drinking with a couple of girls whose hats were beginning to list to starboard and who wanted to tell the story of their lives. One of the young men was weeping because he could hear the lion roaring and it made him think of his chum who was drowned at sea before he ever knew him.

A waiter said something and the young union man jumped to his feet with an oath. There was a rattle of furniture, the scuffle of feet, two men slugging wildly, and the fight was on.

It went over the grounds like an electric shock. Hundreds stampeded to the scene, climbing over one another. They went over the tables like a cyclone.

You could hear the yells of "Fight, fight, fight!" for half a mile.

As the policemen came up on the run, the mob suddenly broke and rushed wildly into the inner recesses of the pavilion. The crowd was surging and bumping and slamming around just as the tide water surges and bangs around the rocks at low tide.

The police could be heard in the muffled midst of the mob, yelling for room. At last the surge gave way and broke for the open air again. Presently the crowd heaved, and gave up a cop holding onto the arm of a waiter in white uniform. The tearful young man had vanished.

An attempt to find out what the fight was about did not net many returns to the policeman. The tearful young man probably didn't know what it was about himself.

THE DANCING SLOUCHES.

Most of the men in the poetic ardor of tripping the light fantastic, had ripped off their coats and danced in their shirt sleeves, showing a varied and choice assortment of suspenders.

As the music struck up, each fellow slouched across the room to the lady of his choice and called her out with a jerk of his head. The lady would switch her quid to the other side, get a long breath and tackle him.

There was something practical and substantial about the way they grabbed on. Each girl, instead of foolishly wasting her left arm the way they do at other dances, reached up and twined it firmly around the fellow's neck.

One of the men was a big lubber in shirt sleeves. He had got to the point where he needed something to hang on to.

He was just drunk enough to be ingenious. Each time he danced, he picked out a good husky girl to tie to. When the music started up, he grabbed her in a death clinch with both hands at her belt. Of course, he couldn't steer so very well. This difficulty he also obviated, however. Whenever another couple got in the way, he simply threw the girl into them as though she were a stuffed club. They went staggering away and he picked the girl up again and danced on with great determination.

WASHING BLOOD STAINS.

Some of these fellows got into a scrap. In the mob, thick as maggots, the fight was lost. Afterward a gory youth, who had bled all over his white uniform, sat down at a beer table and looked on with austere dignity while his comrades tried to rub off the blood. The result was highly picturesque. The blood smeared until he looked like an Indian made up for the war dance.

OFFICERS' STATEMENTS.

PATROLMAN SLOANE'S VERSION.

J. R. Sloane, one of the police officers detailed at Chutes Park, was so exhausted with the rough usage he had been subjected to by the labor union fanatics, and suffering so from a wrenched back that it was with the greatest difficulty he made a statement to a Times reporter last night.

"If I live to be a hundred," said he, "I never expect to see again such a mob. When I think over it now it seems the biggest wonder in the world that someone was not killed. It's certainly not the fault of the union rioters that there are not a few dead people to pay for their day's sport.

"That Horton was not rent and ground to pieces by the insane mob is pretty near a miracle.

"When I was told that some union men were mobbing Horton near the restaurant I rushed over and saw at least 200 men surging around some object. They made me think of wild animals fighting for their prey. They were swearing fearfully, striking, kicking and struggling.

"Of course I knew that Horton was the object of their fury, and I broke through where the crowd was thinnest and reached his side just as half a dozen brawny, drunken fellows were beating him to the ground.

"I helped break the force of their attack, and Horton was able to get on his feet. The mob yelled louder than ever, like bloodthirsty animals, when they met with this rebuff, and directed their assaults on both of us.

"By this time the mob had been increased by hundreds of others and Horton and I had been pushed and beaten along, carried off our feet, until we were on the porch of the restaurant. Just at the door of the building two big fellows grabbed me and threw me backward against a post. I felt a fearful pain shoot up my spine and knew that my back had been wrenched.

"One of these fellows tried to grab my throat. By the crazed look in his eyes and his drunken condition I knew that he would have killed me if he could.

"But Horton fared worse than I. He was the object of the mob's hatred, and they tried to climb over each other's heads and fought with each other to get at him. I saw men reaching over the shoulders of those nearer us trying to lay their hands on Horton. I couldn't help thinking even then that their hands resembled talons.

"Those immediately around us struck Horton when they could, but the pressure of the mob behind them was so great that their arms were pinned to their sides most of the time.

"When it seemed to me that we must be beaten down by the furious unionists Officers Kristovich and Strode succeeded in making their way to us and, with their guarding I hurried Horton off to the Chutes office on Main street.

"The mob, several hundred strong, followed, and the leaders tried to surround us again. During our progress at least a dozen rioters tried to strike Horton, but both of us had our clubs drawn and managed to keep them at bay. Kristovich and Strode had become separated from us shortly after their arrival.

"Their failure to renew the attack on Horton made them all the more violent, and they took it out in calling names. The most insulting and vilest language I ever heard was used by those men. They called Horton every name imaginable, and more than that, they made threats on his life, which, if carried out, will leave him a corpse before another sun sets. I heard a number of men say: 'I'll kill you, you — — — —, if I ever get a good chance,' and their manner certainly showed they meant it at that time.

"When Horton and I reached the office, I telephoned to the Police Station for more officers, and Horton kept the mob at a distance with his drawn revolver. He didn't want to leave the grounds, but I knew that if he stayed he would be murdered, so I insisted that he should leave, and with some persuasion he himself saw the good sense in such a move.

"Many women fainted in the terrible crush, and spectators who became mixed with the mob through curiosity were cuffed and beaten about unmercifully in the mob's frenzy.

"I saw one red-faced brute with his collar torn away and hat off—he was the ideal type of anarchist, by the way—come fighting toward us just as we were lifted onto the porch. In his way was a woman who had been caught unwillingly in the crowd.

"Striking right and left, one of this maniac's blows struck the woman on the head and she went down. The brute kept on, but did not reach us, as the mob became so dense. If I could have reached my revolver then I'm afraid there would have been more than bruised heads and sore shins in that gang of rioters.

"So far as I could see Horton only performed his duty and did nothing to incite the mob to such fury. He tried to separate some fighters, and they turned on him like wild beasts. He was down under a heap of the toughs twice, and, as I say, was only saved from being killed by what seems to be a miracle."

THE PARADE.

SEVENTY-SIX UNIONS.

The union labor parade formed at Seventh and Main streets at 9 o'clock in the morning and headed by a platoon of police, marched through the principal streets of the city. From 2500 to 3000 men were in line. Seventy-six unions were represented in the parade, according to official statement.

WHY THEY MARCHED.

Union members who failed to turn out were subject to fine. Free beer was another motive that swelled the

FIELD SPORTS.

No serious disturbances occurred in that portion of the grounds where the programme of field sports was carried out. There were one or two fistic altercations between "boozy" onlookers, but the combatants were parted by their more sober friends before they could do each other injury. Fights were so numerous during the afternoon that these incipient broils attarcted only the passing attention of the crowd.

The running races were somewhat impeded by the determination of the crowd to occupy the space set apart for the runner, and everything was informal about the events. W. S. Smith, officer of the day, and his teamster aides, did what they could to preserve order, but it was next to impossible to control the crowd. When a race was started several of the burly aides would run around the course ahead of the contestants pushing people out of the way and yelling, "They're coming."

The judges were W. S. Smith, Thomas Poulton, William Brown. The starters were Miss Mary Brand, Tom Winters and Laurence Butler. The results follow:

It was very hot and dusty along the course laid out for the races and in the 100 yards race for ladies Mrs. Butler was overcome by the heat after crossing the line and was carried from the crowd in a faint. She revived shortly but was very weak from her unwonted exertions.

In the ladies' race at 75 yards Mrs. Mary Stickelbout was first; Mrs. Freeman, second; Mrs. Andrews, third.

Men's race, 100 yards—J. Conley, first; H. Graves, second; C. B. Horton, thirdd, and J. W. Preston, fourth.

Sam Mitchell won the prize offered for the largest family on the ground. Mr. Mitchell brought six young hopefuls along.

The teamsters had a tug of war among themselves and the team captained by Tom Winters defeated one captained by W. S. Smith.

There was also a baseball game late in the afternoon between the pressmen and the cement workers. The identity of the players and the number of runs scored were matters of equal mystery after the first inning. The riot over in the main Chutes grounds drew nearly all the crowd and some of the players as well.

Prizes donated by the business houses of the city were awarded to the place men in the several events.

"DRUNKS DAY."

WHAT IT LOOKED LIKE.

LOS ANGELES (Cal.) Sept. 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] If the exhibition given by organized labor (so called) today is a sample of what they believe in, and what they do, then I can devoutly exclaim, "Thank God, I am not of the organized variety."

For the sake of satisfying myself as to the merits and claims of the laborites who are trying to run Los Angeles, I have spent the day with Fennesy, Lem Biddle and 'out-of-jail' crooks, and how any decent man can connect himself with such a gang is beyond my comprehension. The show started with the great (?) parade this morning. It was quite large in numbers, but from my observations and later conversations had with several men who were marching, I am of the opinion that not one-thim of the marchers were in sympathy with the movement. As one man put it to me, "Damn it, I just had to do it whether I wanted to or not; I'd lose my job if I didn't. Say you can bet your sweet life I'm thankful The Times is making the fight it is, or it would be a thousand times worse. I kicked a number of times on this parade business, but what's the use?" When I ventured to remind him that there was such a thing as "liberty under the law," he repiled: "Yes, I know that; and some of these fine days we will rise in our own ranks and knock the heads off of some of them black guards riding in carriages today, and then it will be still easier for us to live."

I counted as many as ten men in the parade who were some the worse for John Barleycorn, and one man had to be held up by his companions. The silence which greeted the so-called labor leaders must have been very impressive to them. Within four blocks in the best part of the town I did not hear so much as a cheer for any of them. In fact, the trend of the remarks of the crowd was anything but complimentary.

After the parade was over a great many of the men who had marched proceeded to tank up in the most approved fashion, and when they reached Chutes Park this afternoon they were in a fit condition to do anybody or anything. The scene at the close of the ball game between Seattle and Los Angeles beggars description. There was an immense crowd, and most of them were decent enough, but many of the labeled representatives of the Los Angeles Council of Labor were in a condition far from sober. If there was one man in the crowd full there were five hundred, and all of them wore some sort of a badge denoting his connection with some union. Their principal diversion seemed to be to drink, and between drinks they would damn Gen. Otis and The Times. Sometimes they damned both in the same breath, and sometimes they would take one and then the other in order to drag out their pleasure. And these are the men that others are supposed to look up to for help and guidance! It was something awful! Coney Island, N. Y., in its palmiest days was not one whit worse than was Chutes Park this afternoon.

OBSERVER.

Greatest Map in the World.

A complete, minute and exact map of the whole of France was completed over half a century ago, after thirty-five years of incessant labor and at an expense of over f.10,000,000, or $2,000,000. It was executed by officers of the general staff and the engineers of the army. It is the grandest work of the kind ever undertaken by any country in the world. Ha! I have it! Here is something for the United States general staff to set about. A MAP! There is no map of the United States worthy of the name.—[Victor Smith, in New York Press.

MRS. GRIFFITH NOW SAYS THAT HER HUSBAND WAS SOBER WHEN HE SHOT.

ALTHOUGH Attorneys Charles Silent and John D. Works, who are to defend Col. Griffith against the charge of attempt to murder his wife, were more reticent than ever yesterday in regard to what the defense will be, it is said by some of Col. Griffith's friends that the defense will attempt to prove that Mrs. Griffith held the weapon in her hand with intent to take her life; that Col. Griffith attempted to wrest the revolver from her and that in the scuffle it was discharged; that after the discharge of the revolver Col. Griffith succeeded in gaining possession of it and thereupon Mrs. Griffith rushed to the window, raised it and threw herself out in sheer recklessness of the consequences.

LOOKS LIKE A FEUD.

Developments indicate that there has been a feud between Col. Griffith and the members of his wife's family. This will probably be brought out in the trial. The case partakes of the nature of the Melrose-Broome feud, and it goes without saying that there will be a long and bitter fight, with sharp attorneys on both sides.

"There is a disposition in some quarters to convict Col. Griffith before his trial," say Griffith's friends. "All we ask is that he be given a fair hearing."

MRS. GRIFFITH'S LATEST STATEMENTS.

"A further deposition was taken by me from Mrs. Griffith this afternoon at 4 o'clock," said I. B. Dockweiler yesterday. "Three distinct statements were made, which are an amplification of what she has already said. Perhaps the most important was to the effect that her husband was sober on the night of the shooting, that he had not been drinking during the day and that his manner during the afternoon of Thursday in no way indicated that he had been drinking. 'He was unusually kind to me when he asked me to go for a walk,'[5] said Mrs. Griffith, and she mentioned the name of a lady who was present when he extended the invitation.

"The other two statements I would rather not give out at this time, but they strengthen the case against Col. Griffith. Mrs. Griffith was told of the arrest of her husband and inquired where he was staying. When told that he was the guest of Dr. Griffith she seemed surprised, and added that she remembered having met Dr. Griffith about fifteen years ago."

"We are not ready to state the final selection of our counsel, as the matter is not fully decided, but we are working night and day. We believe that the evidence found within the room will preclude the claim of accident on the part of the defense, and although there seems to be some evidence tending to show that the defense will claim attempted suicide on the part of Mrs. Griffith, we do not think that such a defense would have a leg to stand upon.

"The Evening Express states that at first Mrs. Griffith would not consent to the arrest of her husband on any charge except that of insanity. That is false. She said that she wished she could believe that he was insane, but felt certain that he attempted to kill her with malice aforethought. All of his actions showed extreme deliberation and intention, and that is one of the things which her statements taken this afternoon tend to prove.

"It has been said that if Col. Griffith could see his wife he would be able to obtain the withdrawal of the charge against him. That is all talk. I tell you that Mrs. Griffith is through with her husband for good, and is ready to go on the witness stand and swear that he attempted to murder her; if he ever did have a power over her it is gone forever."

PATIENT RECOVERING.

"Our patient is showing wonderful vitality and recuperative power," said Dr. Moore last evening, in speaking of the condition of Mrs. Griffith. "Although her temperature has risen a little over its high mark of yesterday, being 99 4-5 when I left her at 5:30, yet we see a marked improvement. She is not relaxed and prostrated as she has been since the affair, and is able to take more substantial nourishment. It is only within the last two days that she has been able to keep anything on her stomach, as she vomited violently on Friday and Saturday. Her pulse still hovers about 80.

"The wound in her head is dressed twice a day and is doing very well. The drainage from it is proving so complete that we are ceasing to fear the possibility of meningitis."

In answer to questions on the probable time required for her recovery, Dr. Moore said: "She will not be able to appear in court for at least a month, and then it will be with bandages over her empty eye socket and her left shoulder still in splints. The disfiguring of Mrs. Griffith will prove less than was at first feared. The ball from the revolver entered in the eyebrow, which was, of course, shaved off for the operation, and when this eyebrow grows out again it will entirely cover the scar. The eyelid is not injured in any way, and a glass eye will be placed in the socket.

"Mrs. Griffith is seen daily by her sister, Mrs. Whipple, and is waited upon by a priest and nuns. She is calmer than most women would be. Her mind is very clear, and she fully realizes her danger and the steps which she is taking against her husband."

"WELSH BLOOD."

"I am a little sentimental about Welsh blood," said Dr. E. M. Griffith last night in answer to the question as to how Col. Griffith happened to be with him. The visit of Col. Griffith at Dr. Griffith's has caused some comment because of the fact that the two men had not seen each other since 1888 until last Friday morning—the day following the shooting at Santa Monica—when Col. Griffith went out to the doctor's residence, on Valencia street, and had an extended conversation with him.

"Welsh blood is very thick," the doctor continued. "And perhaps it is more on account of a clannish feeling than anything else that I have Col. Griffith as my guest. No, I have not seen him since 1888, but the day after the injury to his wife he came out here to call on me and then went to Santa Monica. The following day I looked him up down town and told him that I would like to offer him my home as a place to rest in. He may stay with me for some time.

"I know nothing about the case for which Col. Griffith is held to answer. He attempted to tell me all about it but I told him that I did not care to hear it. I suppose I will be subpoenaed on the case, but I know nothing about it, nor did I know Col. Griffith very well in the past. We are just a couple of Welshmen and we both belong to the Cambro-American Society."

Dr. Griffith stated that the colonel spent most of yesterday morning at his office in the Bryson Block. "He walked about this neighborhood part of the afternoon, and this evening took a trip to the Hollywood Hotel, accompanied by his son. He will return here for the night.

"Yesterday was a hard day for the colonel, and he seemed to suffer a reaction from the nervous strain of the past few days, but today he is himself again and is looking much better. He was glad to see his boy and take him on the trip this evening."

Col. Griffith refuses to speak for publication, having been so instructed by his attorneys. All he would say was: "I am not afraid and have no doubt as to the outcome of the impending trial."

His son is pale and frightened and does not seem to fully understand the trouble which has come between his parents. He also has been told to keep his lips sealed.

DR. GRIFFITH'S HOUSE.

THE COLONEL'S MORNING WALK.

RESIGNATION AS COMMISSIONER.

"I rather expect to receive the resignation of Col. Griffith as Park Commissioner tomorrow," said Mayor Snyder last night, "and if it is not forthcoming by tomorrow it will be requested of him through his attorneys the following day. I have the power of removal, subject to the approval of the Council."

"Have you decided on the successor of Col. Griffith?"

"I have; but do not wish to give his name, as the gentleman has not signified his willingness to serve as yet."

SOME UNIQUE "ADS."

[Washington Star:] An odd collection of advertisements and announcements has been gathered by an old printer and newspaper man, covering a period of more than three-quarters of a century. In this collection almost every phase of advertising may be found, and many of them make interesting reading.

Here follows an extract from the advertisement of a cabinet maker of Canenovia, N. Y.:

"Coffins—A full assortment of sizes of coffins already on hand. Particular attention paid to repairing old work. Prices for all to suit the times."

The proprietor of a New York barber shop employing female barbers had this advertisement on the wall:

"In order to avoid misunderstanding I note to all my customers that the lady in this barber shop is my wife.

"JOHN B. DELLOYORIO."

A hotel keeper in Vermont did not believe in loafers around his place and posted the following sign over the office clock:

"This clock is for the use of guests of the hotel only."

"Zion's Fishermen's Resterrant. Pigs' Feet, Snow Balls, Ice Cream and Shoes Half Souled," is the sign over the window of a South Washington negro shack.

Read this patent-medicine certificate and put on it the meaning which is most natural:

"I continued on using it, and by the time I had taken five bottles I found myself completely cured, after having been brought so near to the gates of death by means of your invaluable medicine."

This was thoughtful on the part of the advertiser:

"Wanted—A respectable gentleman, widower preferred, to marry the housekeeper of an aged gentleman, who has been an invalid for years, and who respects her as a good and true servant, whom he would like to see in the happy state of matrimony before he dies. She has had three husbands, but is willing for a fourth."

Massachusetts, the mother of schoolmasters and grammars, enacted the following in 1852:

"Commissioners to take the deposition of any person without this State engaged in the regular or volunteer land service of the United States, may be executed by the colonel, lieutenant-colonel or major of the regiment in which such person shall at the time serve, or with which he may be connected," etc.

"Resolved, That the poundmaster be instructed not to receive into the public pound any cows that any person may drive to the same pound under the age of twenty-one years."

The following was found on the door of a small dwelling near Bladensburg, the famous dueling ground in Maryland:

"Notiesta—A Houes and lots for rente or saile kan b Baugtn or Rnted loe if Enney on wishes to Rente or Buy kall and see me."

The sentencing of Capt. O. M. Carter, U.S.A., to imprisonment recalls the fact that in 1872 Lieut. Campbell of the Middlesex (England) militia was found guilty of forgery and coudemned to die for the offense. On the eve of the execution he sent the following to his brother officers:

"Lieut. Campbell's compliments to ——: He requests the pleasure of his company tomorrow morning to take a cup of chocolate, and to do him the honor to accompany him to Tyburn, to be present at his execution."

This was a peculiarly marked dog:

"Five dollars reward—Strayed from the premises of the subscriber, in Centreville, on the 2nd of October, a small dog near the color of an opossum, with yellow legs and head and tail cut off. Any person returning him will receive the above reward.

"DANIEL KILROT."

"Your presents is required to a swell weddin' at the home of the bride. Come one, come all! Gentlemens, twenty-five cents; ladies, fifteen cents."

"I am reliably informed that some of our local clergy are cutting prices and thereby demoralizing business. I will not reduce prices to perform the marriage ceremony, but will give time, if necessary, or will take meat, potatoes, grain—in fact, any kind of produce, and will agree not to kiss the bride unless perfectly satisfactory—to her."

Even the government gets tangled up occasionally in advertisements. This appeared in the Washington Republican in 1842:

"A Card.—The attention of the public is invited to the sale which will take place on Friday morning, the 10th instant, at the U. S. Penitentiary, commencing precisely at 9 o'clock. Purchasers will have to settle as knocked down, if not, they will be put up and resold, as they will have to be removed as sold, on account of the government wanting it immediately. By order of H. I. King, warden."

This must have been one of the longest sermons ever preached in the State of Iowa:

"Advent Meetings.—Eld. D. M. Canright of Boston, and Elder E. W. Farnesworth, president of the Iowa Conference, will preach in the Baptist Church from Friday evening, April 5, till Monday evening."

But if the males grew whiskers while listening to the sermon they could step into a barber shop where the sign "Whiskers Died Here" hung in the window.

A Philadelphia paper recently printed the following:

This is from an old copy of an English provincial journal:

"Wanted—For a sober family, a man of light weight, who fears the Lord and can drive a pair of horses. He must occasionally wait at table, join the household prayer, look after the horses and read a chapter of the Bible. He must, God willing, arise at 7 o'clock in the morning and obey his master and mistress in all lawful commands. If he can dress hair, sing psalms and play at cribbage the more agreeable."

"N. B. take pur tickler Notis that thar is now in the Jale of boyd county Ky 1 negroe man bearing the name of Jackson Marloe from mazuray as he says Delivered to me buey A pur mitamus from the Justis of the peas of said county on the 5 of June 1862."

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS.

Young Man from Indiana Captured in Hotel Argyle After Having Looted the Room of a Guest.

A well-dressed young man, who gave the name of Thomas Smith, was arrested at 10 o'clock last night in Hotel Argyle, just after he had burglarized the room of Mrs. Carrie West. He was seen going through a hallway, and one of the male guests of the house stopped him. He appeared to be drunk and a policeman was sent for, who arrested him on a charge of drunkenness. When searched at the Police Station, among the articles found in his possession were a lady's purse containing $10, several bottles of toilet water, medicine bottles, a small doll and numerous women's toilet articles.

The unusual assortment caused the police to become suspicious and they telephoned to the hotel. An investigation showed that the room of Mrs. West had been looted. A charge of burglary was then placed against the prisoner.

The name given to the police by the young man is believed to be fictitious. He roomed at No. 329 South Hill street, and said he recently came here from Terre Haute, Ind. He refused to give any other information about himself.

Roadside Trees.

The effort to promote the beautifying of the highways by planting of shade trees has not received the recognition and attention that it deserves. There is need of creating a public sentiment which will lead to a general observation of the duties of Arbor Day by the owners of property upon streets and roads. There is no better investment for inhabitants of a town than well-shaded avenues for travel. Roadside trees are no inconsiderable element in the preservation of a roadway. It is true that they somewhat delay the settling of country roads in the spring, but when the towns learn better methods of constructing roads this objection will be obviated. A well-shaded road makes the work of the heavily-laden team easier, and greatly enhances the delight of the man who is traveling for pleasure. A town whose streets are to an exceptional extent lined with shade trees well tended and cared for is sure to secure many summer visitors and some permanent residents, who are attracted by this very inexpensive but beautiful feature of country life. If every land owner in any town of this commonwealth could be induced to set out and maintain trees along his whole frontage, that town in fifteen years would be a place of exceptional interest, and would find such tree culture the very best investment it could possibly make. Why cannot our village improvement societies zealously take up this subject?—[Good Roads Magazine.

Chartering Special Trains.

"Special trains are becoming so frequent now that they attract little attention except they make record runs for long distances or unles there is some trouble collecting payment for them" said a veteran railroad man. "Ten years ago when I was a division superintendent on one of the big trunk lines running out of New York a special train was an event that never failed to get mention in the newspapers. Station masters required ample notice to get one in readiness, and there was a great deal of fuss making arrangements all along the line. At any of the big railroad terminals in any city now a man can get a special engine and car to chase a flier almost as easy as he can check a trunk. Only a few minutes' notice is required, and right of way is obtained for 100 or 200 miles along the line without noticeably disturbing schedule runs. A man who has to keep an important business engagement, or a woman hurrying to a sick husband, pays $100 or double that sum for a special with as little concern as paying a supper check in a swell hotel. We live in a rapid and extravagant age, and grow accustomed to such things."—[New York Times.

AUSTRALIA'S LABOR WAR.

Repeated on Larger Scale in the United States.

Industrial Freedom and Peace Won in Two Years.

Edmund Mitchell Tells of Great Conflict—Union Despotism Thrown Off.

Among recent home-seekers in Southern California is Edmund Mitchell, the English novelist and journalist, for a special correspondent for the London Mail. Mitchell has traveled round the world, and visited many countries. He was for several years associate editor on The Times of India, Bombay, and later an editorial writer on the staff of the Melbourne Age. During recent years Mr. Mitchell has resided in Paris, and devoted himself chiefly to the writing of fiction. "The Temple of Death," "Toward the Eternal Snows," "Chickabiddy Stories," "Plotters of Paris," "The Lone Star Rush," "Only a Nigger," and "The Belforts of Culben" are the titles of the volumes that have come from his pen. Several of the tales are already known on this side of the Atlantic, having been published serially in the United States prior to their appearance in book form.

As a wide traveler and a trained observer, Mr. Mitchell has interesting views on many subjects. But on the great problem of the day, the onward march of militant trade unionism, he speaks with special authority, for, as organizing secretary during three years of the Employers' Defense Association in Australia, he played an active part in breaking the tyrannical power of the labor organizations in that union-cursed continent. In an interview with a Times representative yesterday, Mr. Mitchell threw interesting light on the Australian trouble from personal experience.

"The industrial struggle in Australia is somewhat ancient history," said Mr. Mitchell, "for the issue there was fought to a finish ten years ago.

"But the lesson remains. Indeed, I have been much struck with the fact that the condition of things in the United States is now approaching that which ruled in Australia during the days of trade-union despotism, when no workers in certain trades dared to seek a job without the union ticket for membership and the union receipt for dues paid, or extorted, in his wage-envelope. Here the labor organizers have had larger armies to marshal and to drill—heterogeneous bodies of recruits to impress into their service—obedience to blind military obedience—obedience that may shock the conscience, but must be rendered by the individual, but has to be yielded through fear of the merciless power with which revolt is visited. Therefore in the United States, as it was, but in a much longer in coming, but it will be on an immensely vaster scale than Australia, and will involve a more costly and disastrous struggle than that which a dec-

AUSTRALIA'S LABOR WAR.

"The Temple of Truth," "Toward the Eternal Gates," "Chickabiddy Stories," "Plotters of Paris," "The Lone Star Rush," "Only a Nigger," and "The Belforts of Rome" are the titles of the volumes that have come from his pen. Several of the tales are already known on this side of the Atlantic, having been published serially in the United States prior to their appearance in book form.

As a wide traveler and a trained observer, Mr. Mitchell has interesting views on many subjects. But on the great problem of the day, the onward march of militant trade unionism, he speaks with special authority, for, as corresponding secretary during three years of the Employers' Defense Association in Australia, he played an active part in breaking the tyrannical power of the labor organizations in that wide-awake continent. In an interview with a Times representative yesterday, Mr. Mitchell threw interesting light on the Australian trouble from personal experience.

Indeed, I was much struck with the fact that the condition of things in the United States is now approaching that which ruled in Australia during the days of trade-union despotism, when no one in certain trades dared to work without the union ticket of membership and the union receipt duly paid, or extorted, in his waistcoat pocket. Here the labor organizations had larger armies to marshal and to impress into their service heterogeneous bodies of recruits; they were able to blind military obedience to orders that may shock the conscience of the individual, but has to be obeyed through fear of the merciless penalties with which revolt is visited. The fight in the United States, which has been longer in coming, is on an immensely vaster scale than in Australia, and will involve a more costly and disastrous struggle than that which a decade ago brought the industries of the island-continent to the verge of ruin.

TITLE TO FREEDOM.

"The quarrel in Australia came to a head over the freedom contract, which in the final surrender of the trade unions was officially defined at a joint conference as follows: That employers shall be free to employ workmen whether belonging to a trade union or not, and workmen shall be free to accept employment whether belonging to a trade union or not, without favor, molestation, or intimidation on either side.' On this vexed question of union labor refusing to work side by side with non-union labor, there had been sporadic strikes in the cities and on the coal fields of New South Wales. But at last the Trades Hall leaders—clever men, if quite unscrupulous—saw that the most vulnerable point of attack was the wool industry, on which the stable and permanent prosperity of Australia is founded. The product of wool of the Australian grade is virtually a world monopoly, and from a country with only 4,000,000 population the export of the raw product amounts to $150,000,000 annually. Therefore, the industry to be assailed was a rich and vital one. It was also, on the employers' side, a totally unorganized one. Wool growers in all countries are a placid race of people, who follow their avocation without consulting even their immediate neighbors. But when the fight came, they had to be organized over a country as large in area as the United States itself, and in the end they were so organized, in the strongest association of employers that has ever been formed in any land. And every class of employer in Australia stood shoulder to shoulder with these wool producers, while the battle, which they recognized to be the battle of all, was fought to a determined end.

MONSTROUS THREAT.

"The struggle lasted two full years. The wool shearers, the wool carriers, the dock laborers, the sailors engaged in the coasting trade had all for a long time before been closely organizing, under the leadership of the Trades Hall professional agitators in Melbourne and Sydney. At last the gage of battle was thrown down, in the following official declaration of the Council of the Shearers' Union—I remember the ipsissima verba, for the message rang from end to end of Australia: 'We intend to teach the squatter the folly of resistance to our combination. He shall not be allowed to shear his wool except by union labor. But if he should succeed in getting the wool off the sheep's back, it may rot in his sheds, for we shall prevent the carriers taking it to the railway; and should he succeed in getting it to the railway, we shall prevent its being stowed on board ship, for we shall call out the wharf laborers; and, if stowed, we shall prevent its going to sea, for we shall call out the sailors and the officers; and if it sails, we shall prevent its discharge in London, for we shall call out the London dock laborers.' The threat was such a monstrous one, that all Australia was instantly aroused. Even the powerful newspapers that had hitherto encouraged the Trades Halls, and had been largely instrumental in gaining for them the powers they were now abusing by the attempt to spread wholesale disaster over an entire continent, turned round at last and took the employers' side. I see evidences of the same process going on in America now. Journals here that have been feeding industrial trouble by playing for the political support of the trade unions, are beginning to realize that these have been assisting to create a Frankenstein monster that may, if unchecked, destroy the nation.

HOW EMPLOYERS FOUGHT.

"The employers' fight was carried on with the very weapons the trade unions had used, and abused—combination, organization, loyalty to the common cause even at individual loss. Money had to be poured out like water, but it was ready in unstinted amount. The labor organizations were struck back at wherever they had assaulted. The small farmers in the closely-settled districts rallied to the support of the big 'squatters,' as the pastoralists of Australia are called. Men with a 100 sheep went forth to help shear for men with a 100,000. Special steamers were chartered in Melbourne, and this class of splendid labor was shipped in their thousands to the far north of Queensland. These bodies of organized men, often under armed guard at the woolsheds and on the roads, gradually traveled south and home again, shearing continuously flock after flock for eight or ten months, and earning a rich harvest for many a struggling homestead. Then the squatters themselves and their sons saw to the carting of the wool bales, often across hundreds of miles of country. In the cities the business magnates of the export houses, with the assistance of their clerks, drove the wagons to the wharfs, and loaded the steamers. This was done in the presence of dumfounded crowds of unionists, idle under the orders of the leaders, who had boasted so loudly of their power and only succeeded in losing for their dupes homes and the savings of years. It was the proud boast of the Employers' Association at the end of the first year's struggle that every sheep in Australia had been clipped, and every bale of wool shipped. The labor unions made a fight again the next season, but with broken ranks and an impoverished exchequer. That ended the business. Freedom of contract was established for the whole of industrial Australia, and the charter of liberty for every workingman there was won—namely, the right to join a trade-union, or to refrain from joining at will, without jeopardizing the chances of employment in either alternative.

"NEVER AGAIN."

"The result is industrial peace. There has been no big fight since, except in Victoria this year, when an attempt was made to coerce the railway men—all government employés—into the Trades Hall organization. But the government intervened, and by prompt and drastic legislation, making it a criminal offense to set up over State servants any rival authority to that of the State, crushed the conspiracy almost at the outset. 'Never again' is now the motto of Australia. By the campaign of ten years ago the labor leaders were broken and discredited, scoffed at and cursed by their own deluded followers; and should there ever be any real danger of their lost powers of exercising despotism being recovered, the common sense of the entire community would rise against it, as the action of the Victorian Legislature shows.

"To my thinking freedom of contract provides the industrial world with its one safety valve. If the leaders of organized labor become unreasonable or resort to dishonorable practices, then reasonable and honorable men among their followers quit the union, without endangering their right to earn their families' bread. The rule acts efficaciously on both sides, for the employers are just as keen to preserve their own ranks from the charge of oppressive or unfair dealing as are the best section of the workingmen—the real workers, the men who live by the sweat of their brow, and not by the glib use of their tongues."

"As for the discredited union leaders, the recent fiasco in Victoria shows some of them are still struggling to justify their continued existence. But the huge accumulated funds of the Trades Halls have been dissipated, at least one of their palatial buildings, that in Melbourne, has been sold—as a barracks for the Salvation Army, the agitators are without a solid following, and they have no longer a powerful press at their back. So their position is now quite different from that held by them ten years ago. In the first chagrin of defeat a colony of the disturbers of industrial peace shipped off to Paraguay to found a modern Utopia there. But they succeeded in establishing no permanent industry, suffered poverty and hardship, quarreled among themselves and finally disbanded. Most of them, I believe, are now back in Australia."

DR. O. C. JOSLEN, The Leading Specialist.

I have no need to argue my ability as a specialist in men's diseases. The straightforward and definite proposition above is proof of exceptional skill, and is certainly as liberal as any reasonable man could ask.

Men's Diseases Only

I treat no diseases other than those peculiar to men, and it has always been my policy to attempt to cure only such cases as I know will yield to my original and unquestionably superior methods of treatment. Therefore, neither my patients nor myself assume any risk under the above offer.

Weakness

I cure so-called weakness by restoring the prostrate gland to its normal condition. I know that "weakness" are but symptoms resulting from an inflammatory process in this vital center of the nervous system, and I know that this inflamed condition always yields promptly to the gentle and harmless local treatment that I employ.

I also cure Varicocele, Contracted Disorders, Spermatorrhœa, Organic Weakness, Lost Vigor, Stricture, etc. My home treatment cures in every instance. Write me about it and ask for my pamphlet—"Live All Your Years a Man."

Lagerwood, the well known general contractor who lives at 1077 West Twenty-first street, in the Fifth ward, says: "While suffering from kidney complaint I have walked around with my hands on my back, pressed closely and tightly against the kidneys, thankful for the slight assistance afforded by that makeshift. At night my back has felt as if breaking in two. Do not think I did not attempt to stop it. I used plasters of every description and I cannot enumerate the different medicines which I tried. It struck me that if Doan's Kidney Pills did half what was promised they might stop the very serious attack of backache which had been clinging to me for months and, as I was busy exercising and could not leave my work I went to Doan's drug store one evening and got a box. The treatment absolutely stopped the attack."

SIXTH STREET HAS TROLLEY.

Work Begun Yesterday on Stretch of Track.

Second-street Cars Will Run to Western City Limits.

Mr. Huntington's Stay With us Will be Short—Meddlers at Work Again.

Work began yesterday on Sixth street, west from Alvarado street, whereby the Los Angeles Railway Company will extend its West Second-street line to the city limits, under the provisions of the far-famed $110,000 franchise that begins at the corner of Figueroa and Sixth street. A large number of laborers is at work and the job will be hastened as rapidly as possible. This is doubtless the only portion of the franchise that will be utilized for the present. Ties were laid yesterday from Alvarado street to Grand View avenue.

A new portion of the city will thus be opened up with more convenient car service, and there is general rejoicing in the lucky section. With the extension of the West Seventh-street line and the Westlake line of the Los Angeles Traction Company to the Pleasant baths, it looks as if property owners in those parts ought to feel joyful. This move discloses the present ownership of the celebrated $110,000 franchise. If the Huntington folks did not own it they would not be building over the route without opposition.

The little West Second-street cars will soon be running out Sixth street instead of down that steep grade to Seventh, as the Seventh-street line serves the territory now covered by the last block of the Second-street service.

HIS VISIT TO BE BRIEF.

Mr. Huntington was a very busy man yesterday, and rested from his long journey across the continent, began inspecting his vast properties here, but did not get far before nightfall. He is pleased with the little he has thus far been able to see, Mr. Huntington says this visit is without special significance. He will be here at this time about two weeks only, according to present plans.

SALT LAKE GOSSIP.

Rumor is the basis of some interesting gossip about alleged plans of the Salt Lake Railroad, looking toward the extension of its lines in Southern California. Vice-President Clark says there is nothing in the report, which is to the effect that a line is considered from Pomona in a southeasterly direction to Fullerton and thence in the same general direction to Long Beach. From Long Beach another line is suggested to Santa Ana, thence northerly to Orange, thence northeasterly to Corona, and thence to Pedley, on the nigh bank of the Santa Ana River, a new station on the Salt Lake road now building into Riverside. Such plans would involve about a hundred miles of track, and in many sections would invade territory now "eyed" by Mr. Huntington, who wants to network all of Southern California with electric roads.

MEDDLERS BUSY AGAIN.

Another attempt has been discovered to unionize the trainmen of the Los Angeles Railway Company, but the grand fiasco of last spring is not forgotten and the men are paying little heed o the organizers. A man named Trulock and an ex-conductor named Flick are working among both motormen and conductors trying to induce them to form some kind of a union.

These meddlers, however, are closely watched, and they are having a hard time of it.

In this connection local street railway headquarters have been advised that Mahan and Cornelius (the former president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employés of America) intend to visit Los Angeles some time in October. While here they will supplement any efforts now making to whip into union lines all street railway employés now doing well as independent workmen.

Mahan will reach the Coast the latter part of the month, his present plans bringing him West to participate in a controversy between the employés and the management of the United Railroads of San Francisco.

MORE COLONIST RATES.

Eastern people have been awaiting with interest an announcement fraught with equal interest to the citizens of California—the fall colonist rates. The railroads are now advertising them. These rates will go into effect on September 15 and continue available until November 30—two months and a half. A ticket from Chicago will cost $33, and $25 from Missouri River points.

Immigration authorities variously estimate the passenger traffic movement on account of these cheap rates, but the most optimistic do not hesitate to say that 100,000 people will come to California during September, October and November. The farmers have harvested their crops and bitter winter is ahead of them, say the estimators; then, why should they not flee to the genial land of sunshine and flowers. During the period from February 15 to June 30, when similar rates were offered this year to induce colonists to the West, it is estimated that 50,000 people came. Now it is thought that twice that number may be expected in about half the time.

HO! FOR TAHOE.

C. H. Mitchell, district passenger agent for the Southern Pacific, left last night with a party of seventy-five excursionists in three Pullman cars bound for Lake Tahoe. The trip is being made by the Coast line, and the coaches run through to Truckee.

"We have never had better traffic to all of our California resorts than this season," said G. A. Parkyns of the Southern Pacific yesterday, and he made the remark in proof of the prosperity of the people of this section of the country.

MINES AND MINING ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

KEED OF WATER FOR THE MOJAVE DESERT.

The Real Issue in the Cripple Creek Labor Strike—More Converters for Douglas, Arizona — Camp Bird's Profits.

Some two weeks ago The Times had an article on the subject of the completion of the water-pipe line to the Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie mining districts in Western Australia. In that article attention was drawn to the greatness of the undertaking—it being 308 miles in length—its cost, and the great good it would be the means of accomplishing in furnishing a sufficient supply of water for the development on a large scale of the gold-bearing ore deposits of those Australian districts. The Times also noted the great possibilities for good of a similar pipe line which would convey water from available sources for mining purposes to the great Mojave Desert of Southern California. The Chronicle of San Francisco has an editorial on the same subject, prompted by what The Times published, in which it says:

"California, Nevada and Arizona contain richly-mineralized sections which are suffering as much as Coolgardie formerly did for the want of water. The mines of the Mojave Desert are dependent chiefly upon the drainage water of their lower levels for the successful conduct of mining and milling operations. The same may be said of Tonopah in Nevada, and of several rich mining camps in Arizona. In all of these the water drawn from underground sources has to be carefully husbanded for all purposes, domestic and industrial. And yet all of these mining districts are located much nearer to sources of an abundant water supply than the Coolgardie district is to the St. Helena River. The Colorado River contains water enough to supply all the wants of the Territory of Arizona and the desert mining districts of Southern California if utilized after the example set by the West Australians, and there are streams flowing in Nevada which can supply all of Tonopah's wants if similarly handled. The difficulties to be overcome in all of these cases are by no means as formidable as those which the West Australians have successfully mastered."

REAL ISSUE OF THE STRIKE.

The labor-union strike in the Cripple Creek mining district of Colorado has developed some features that mining men in other districts should note, and note all the more carefully because of the intolerable conditions of affairs the union has created in that district, and which has compelled the Governor of Colorado to send the State military forces to Cripple Creek to preserve order. In an editorial on what it terms "the real issue of the strike," the Mining Reporter of Denver says: "The features of the Cripple Creek strike have brought out the real purpose of the Western Federation of Miners, and that is to assume and enforce an absolute monopoly of the labor supply. It is to deny any man the right to earn a livelihood who declines to submit to the domination of this federation. The pretension at first was that the issue was a question of wages and hours at certain mills and smelters, and that the Cripple Creek strike was to cut off the ore supply from such mills and smelters by closing the mines that shipped to them. But the Portland, which milled its own ore and which long ago acceded to the demands of its employés as to wages and hours, was closed up solely because the manager of that property refused to discriminate against the few non-union men who were in his employ. The Dorcas mill, which paid the union scale and observed the eight-hour day, was also placed under the ban and closed up because its manager refused to drive out his non-union men. This is the issue, and it is the one that citizens of this State must face and fight to a finish. The non-union man has done nothing to forfeit his right to employment and the right to protection of law, and it remains to be seen whether an oath-bound, tyrannical organization shall be permitted to defy the law and override those rights. The non-union man usually is one who stands on his own merits and depends for advancement on his industry, skill and integrity. In carrying out his inclination to be an independent citizen, unawed by agitators, he has ever been pursued by bulldozers from the ranks of unionism. While it is true that the majority of union men are inclined to let the non-union man alone in his rights, there is a hot-headed minority that is ever ready to defy the law in this respect and this anarchistic minority, we regret to say, often controls the union. The question is squarely before the good citizen, viz.: Has the non-union man a right to live?"

ARIZONA MINES.

Four more converters have arrived at Douglas for the Calumet and Arizona smelter. When they are installed that company will be in a position to produce copper at the rate of 3,000,000 pounds a month.

Ex-Senator S. W. Dorsey of Los Angeles has bonded two mining properties in Union Pass, Mojave county, Ariz. The properties are known as the White Spar and Tyro, and are situated about thirty miles from Kingman.

The Florence Blade says the El Paso Smelting Company, through its agent, Douglas Gray, made an offer for the purchase of the Gladstone lead group. These are the Haley-Souffrien lead properties, situate in the northwest end of the Dripping Springs range,—about half way between Ray and Troy.

The Black Hills Copper Company in the Jerome district, is letting contracts for the reconstruction of its power-house, lately destroyed by fire.

A rich gold discovery is reported as having been made in the Castle Dome range of mountains, Yuma county, about ten days ago. The find is located about one and one-half miles northwest of the Oregonian mine, on a mesa at the summit of a pass through the range.

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA.

The Julian Miner states that it has been decided to begin work at once on Oro Blanco tunnel, to tap the ore bodies in the Cincinnati Belle and the Kentuck S. claims, which belong to the Oro Blanco Mining Company.

A tramway has been built from the tailings dump of the Stonewall mine, Julian district, to the mill. It is estimated that there are 15,000 tons on the dump.

The San Diego Union states that contracts have been closed with the National Smelting and Refining Company of that city, for the delivery of 100 tons of copper ore from Cedros Island, Mexico. Other contracts are also said to have been entered into. The plant of the National Smelting and Refining Company is now in course of construction.

MEXICO.

It is stated in a report from the City of Mexico that the great dredging project set to work on the Guanajuato River for the amalgam and slimes that have passed into it for several hundred years from the greatest mines in Mexico, is now an assured fact. Machinery is on the way from the United States, and will be ready to use as soon as the rainy season closes.

The Mexican Herald says: "The contract for the building of the railroad that is to traverse the rich El Oro and Tlalpujahua districts, has been let to Byers and King. The surveys have been made, and active work upon the grading will be commenced at once."

SEARCHLIGHT, NEVADA.

The Searchlight newspaper says: "Interest in the placer fields of Sacramento Wash has been revived by the report of a clean-up made by the W. H. Orr company. It is reliably reported that a half barrel of gravel taken from bedrock at a depth of twenty feet panned six ounces of gold."

The Searchlight Mining and Milling Company has been organized to develop the Peerless group of claims. George F. Meyers of Leadville, Colo., is president of the company.

CAMP BIRD'S PROFITS.

The annual report of the Camp Bird Company, limited, of Colorado, for the first fiscal year since its operation of the famous Camp Bird mine, formerly owned by Thomas F. Walsh, shows a gross production during the past twelve months of $1,969,620, additional revenues of $55,740, bringing the total to $2,025,360. Mining, milling, shipping, tramway, labor and general expenses of the company aggregated $730,360, leaving a gross profit for the year of $1,294,000.

MINING NOTES.

The Pioneer of Phoenix, British Columbia, says: "There is a likelihood that before the Dominion session closes Hon. Mr. Sifton will introduce legislation for the creation of a department of mines."

The Thomson & Boyle Company, of Los Angeles, owner of the Queen Esther mines at Mojave, Kern county, Cal., has its dry crushing plant at work at the mines, and is putting through an average of eighty tons of ore a day. The new pipe line is furnishing plenty of water to the mines in that district.

BEAT BABY'S HEAD AGAINST BRICK WALL.

THE appalling murder of a little baby came to light yesterday in a death reported at the Ransom Home, on South Main street, this city.

It had been born in a stable. Some fiend to whom it had been unwelcome, had grabbed it by its tiny feet and beat it like a club against a wall or post.

After he had left it for dead, the mother had evidently crept out in her weak condition, and tried to rescue it. Evidently in deadly fear of the murderer herself, she had to sneak it away never knowing if it lived or died. She had only time to tie it up in a hurried bundle, and have some one take it to the rescue home in the pitiful hope that some one would give it the care she longed to give.

Although the murder has just been made public, the little thing was left there June 26, or early on the morning of June 27.

About 1 o'clock on the morning of the 27th, one of the matrons of the home thought she heard the faint plaintive sobbing a little child.

The others whom she wakened, at first, could not hear anything, and it was thought that it must be a mistake. At length the sobbing came again, and this time they all heard it quite distinctly.

They got up and lighted a light and opened the door to the chill blast of the night.

They hastily opened the box and there found a baby wrapped in a bath towel. Except for that it was absolutely nude.

It was one of those cold nights which came along toward the end of June. The baby's tender flesh was simply blue with cold. It seemed to be making its last gasps of life.

They carried it into the house and brought all the restoratives possible to bear. At length the infant revived somewhat.

When they had time to examine the baby, they were frozen with horror.

It was four days old and had not been washed. A terrible odor it gave forth. It had to be kept separate from the other babies in the nursery.

When one of the nurses turned it over in the process of giving it the first bath, the marks of a frightful wound were found. The whole back was black as though it had rotted, and the head was crushed in.

The marks could be seen where some one had grabbed the baby up by both feet and whirled it against some hard substance, the way one would kill a field mouse.

This tragedy must have taken place in a stable. In the baby's hair were found pieces of straw.

Filth about the little body indicated that after the supposed killing, it had been brutally tossed out on a dung heap. It is thought to have been Japanese.

They fought hard for the baby's life at the Ransom Home, and kept it alive day after day by all the care that medical science knows.

At length they saw that the fight was lost. The baby slipped away, and yesterday it died.

The case has just come to public notice in some reports made by the managers of the home.

Although the officers of the home confess to having suspicions as to the guilty parties, there is no chance of bringing the culprits to justice.

DR. BOVARD FOR BISHOP.

Friends Will Boom Him for the Episcopacy.

Resolutions Adopted by First M. E. Church Last Night.

Dr. Robert McIntyre is Invited to Come Back for Another Year.

"The work of Dr. Bovard as presiding elder of the Los Angeles district has been marked with skill and devotion and cool judgment that deserve our most unqualified commendation, and I hope to see Dr. Bovard still more highly honored by the church."

These were the words spoken last night by Dr. Robert McIntyre, the pastor of the First Methodist Church, at the close of a reference made to the work of Dr. George F. Bovard. They are in a manner prophetic and indicate a sentiment that has for some time been taking form in the minds of all Methodists of Southern California. It is no new idea among Methodists that Dr. Bovard should be chosen as one of the bishops of the church, and the remark quoted from Dr. McIntyre will have no small part in crystallizing sentiment upon the subject.

Dr. Bovard is one of a family of stalwart Methodist preachers, a man of gigantic stature, recognized executive ability, good judgment, tact and strong common-sense in addition to the invaluable experience gained in the hardest of fields, as well as that coming from success in one of the best and most flourishing fields in all Methodism.

At the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Church, held last night, the following resolutions were adopted:

Your committee appointed to formulate resolutions of the feeling of Rev. G. F. Bovard, D.D., our beloved presiding elder, who has been called to higher fields for the very highest promotion toward our Los Angeles district during the term of his administration, and

Whereas, Dr. Bovard has stood firmly for Methodism and Methodist doctrine, and has been a strong defender of the faith once delivered to the saints; and

Whereas, Dr. Bovard has been a friend to the poor, and has been a champion of the rights of the weak and oppressed, and has been a friend to the temperance cause, and has been a friend to the temperance cause, and has been a friend to the temperance cause

At the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Church, held last night, the following resolutions were adopted:

Your committee appointed to formulate a letter of appreciation of the work of Rev. G. F. Bovard, D.D., our beloved presiding elder, report with thanksgiving in our hearts for the very marked blessings of God toward our Los Angeles district during the term of his administration.

We leave upon our Methodism stood third among Protestant denominations—she now stands fifth. It is manifest that remarkable wisdom was shown in selecting pastors for the charges of the district. It is further attested by the fact that ten parsonages have been built and eighteen churches erected during this quadrennium, many of these splendid churches, among which is our own place of worship, First Methodist Episcopal Church, have been of costliest, University, Boyle Heights and Pasadena. Besides many improvements on churches and parsonages, as shown in the minutes of our conference.

The people are benevolent. The Missionary Society have advanced from about $500 to over $1,750 per annum. The endowment for the benefit of superannuated preachers has received many gifts from our district, amounting to $44,000. The success of the movement to raise the twentieth century thanksgiving fund of $20,000 for our church, was largely made possible by the generous contributions of the benevolently of our district. We have gained 19 per member, but we gave far more, in fact, we have raised $40,000 above our apportionment. All other departments have been increased from year to year. Pastors' salaries have been advanced in many cases this year.

We rejoice in many cases this year, on account of the wise direction of the presiding elder. Certainly, the official board of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city heartily expresses its satisfaction in the very pleasant relations sustained during the six years of fellowship with Dr. Bovard, in the providence of God, been elected president of Southern California University, be it

Resolved, that we pledge him our support in the institution, which is dear to all of our hearts, and express to him our desire that he succeed as pre-eminently in his position at the head of the university as he has succeeded during the six years of his eldership.

AN ENERGETIC CAREER.

Dr. Bovard is a native of Indiana and is about 45 years of age. He is one of five brothers now in the ministry, and at least four out of the five have been sought out and have had offers thrust upon them. He is at present presiding elder of the Los Angeles district and president of the University of Southern California. His brother, F. D. Bovard, was formerly presiding elder of the San Francisco district, and another brother, M. M. Bovard, was formerly president of the University of Southern California. His brother, Charles Bovard, is superintendent of the Methodist English Mission of New Mexico.

Dr. Bovard began his career as a school teacher, having taken a special course in the State Normal School at Valparaiso, Ind., took a partial college course at Greencastle, Ind.; and then completed his studies in the University of Southern California of this city, graduating as a member of the first class in 1884.

The great executive ability of Dr. Bovard and his wonderful facility for labor have won a most marked recognition in his career since the day of graduation. Following that event he was immediately appointed to a church at Orange, Cal., where he served three years, prior to his being ordained an elder. He was ordained Sunday following the close of his third year and on the following Monday he was appointed Presiding Elder of the Pasadena District, which was made up of a number of churches, lying between San Diego and Los Angeles Districts. At the end of his first year as Presiding Elder, his district was sacrificed to the demands of economy, and the churches divided between the other two districts, and they remain so today.

Dr. Bovard was then appointed to the Boyle Heights congregation, in this city, but he was too good material to be lost to the church at large, his merits having become more particularly known during his management of the affairs of the Pasadena District, and at the close of his first year at Boyle Heights, at the session of the annual conference at Santa Barbara, Bishop Goodsell appointed him Missionary Superintendent of Arizona, which is the same as a Presiding Elder, the functions of the superintendent being identical.

Seven years was the crucial test to which the skill and devotion of the stalwart young preacher was subjected, in the most difficult field that could be imagined. His success was such as to indicate that no obstacle was too great for him to surmount, and in 1897 Bishop John P. Newman, recognizing the true grit of the man, determined to put him where his tact and energy could be exercised to greater advantage to the church.

In that year Dr. Bovard was given the flower of Southern California Methodism as his heritage, and he was appointed by Bishop Newman as Presiding Elder of the Los Angeles District, and still holds the position at the close of his sixth year. At the same time, having been elected president of the University of Southern California, the functions of that office he has performed for several months in addition to his other duties.

As will be seen, Dr. Bovard graduated from the university over whose destiny he now presides as chief executive, just nineteen years ago, and fifteen of these years have been spent in trying executive positions, while but four have been devoted to pastoral work. He ends the period of less than two-score years by being elected president of his alma mater, which has now an endowment of $2,000,000.

There is no odubt that the annual conference of Southern California, which meets in this city on September 16, will send a memorial to the General Conference, which will meet here in May 1904, presenting the claims of Dr. Bovard for choice to the bishopric. All Southern California, both in and out of the Methodist Church, will feel a deep interest in the outcome, and Dr. Bovard will have the moral support of the people at large, as a man eminently qualified for the place.

REV. GEORGE F. BOVARD, D.D.

METHODISTS ASK HIS RETURN.

At the quarterly meeting of the First Methodist Church last night resolutions were also adopted commending the work of Dr. Robert McIntyre, and asking the bishop to return him to them for another year. The action of the meeting was as follows:

In early life, our pastor was a mason. He formed many brick and stone columns of strength and beauty, but we feel that he himself has become a pillar of strength and beauty which has adornments of lilies and pomegranates—purity and fruitfulness. Certainly his strong stand for Christ and the church, his beautiful word pictures of Christian privileges, his wonderful insight into our deficiences of Christian purity, has borne such fruit in attracting multitudes to our church, in building them up in the most holy faith, that as an official board we desire to say that,

Whereas, the conference year is drawing to a close and our last quarterly conference is at hand, we express to our pastor, Rev. Robert McIntyre, D.D., our sincere love for himself, and earnestly assure him of our continued and earnestly assure him of our continued hearty support in the future. We believe that in him we have a peerless pulpit orator, a genuine Christian minister, therefore, be it

Resolved, that we request Bishop Cranston to return our pastor for the coming year.

Resolved, that we request our presiding elder, Dr. G. F. Bovard, to inform the bishop of our action and also request him to advise his return.

Resolutions were also adopted commending the work of Dr. H. W. Brodbeck, as superintendent of the "biggest Sunday-school on the Pacific Coast." The school now has 1600 members, and last year gave over $800 to missions. The resolutions were ordered engrossed and presented to Dr. Brodbeck.

The total membership of the church is 1341, having made a net increase of 161 under Dr. McIntyre during his first year as pastor. Another of the big things in connection with this church is John Freeman's Sunday-noon class of old people with an enrollment of 248 and an average attendance of 165. Said Dr. McIntyre last night in acknowledging the compliment tendered him in the resolutions adopted:

"At other places I have preached I have had such congregations, but never such a Sunday-school, never such a prayer meeting and never such a league. This has been the happiest first year I ever spent during my life as a minister."

The Doctor's Advice.

At a dinner party one night Sir Andrew Clark noticed that the lady sitting next to him at table passed a dish to which he helped himself plentifully.

He asked if she did not like it, as it was excellent.

"Oh, yes, I like it, but my physician forbids me to eat it," she explained.

"Stuff and nonsense," said Sir Andrew; "it could not hurt anyone. Who is your physician?"

To which the lady, whom the medical magnate had forgotten, answered, with a demure twinkle in her eye:

"Sir Andrew Clark!"—[London Spare Moments.

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES.
Los Angeles, Sept. 7, 1903.

FINANCIAL.

LEGAL HOLIDAY. Today (Monday) was Labor Day and the banks of the city were closed all day. No exchanges were sent to the clearing-house.

BANKERS' RESPONSIBILITY. As it was at the beginning of the year, is now, and is likely to continue to be during all of 1903, the money question is the one of most vital importance. There is nothing in the business situation, as it presents itself at this time, to prevent a continuance of our national prosperity, except the congestion of the money market, due to its inability to expand as rapidly as the trade and industries of the country.

There is nothing alarming in the fact that the loans of the banks are very large. The money in the banks would serve no useful purpose unless it was loaned out. The legitimate business of a bank is to loan money. Large loans are an indication of activity, a proof of prosperity. When the banks are unable to use their credit profitably, there is a condition of stagnation. It is only when the output of credit is too large proportionately to the reserves of cash held, that the situation may appear doubtful. How much cash a banking concern should carry in its vaults in excess of its legal requirements is open to question. No one has ever yet been able to settle the problem as to the size of danger in cash reserves. Two things are certain. There should not be a dollar of cash kept in the vaults more than is necessary to safeguard the deposits. Every dollar so reserved in excess is a dollar unnecessarily kept from the channels of business. More than that, there are occasions when a bank may, and should, draw on its reserves, which, as the name implies, are for use in emergencies. Certainly no bank should be a hoarder of money.

Banks are not always as broad as they might be in their policy. As a rule, lenders of money are timid, and their timidity often has a most injurious effect. Schumacher & Co. in one of their market letters, a month ago, voiced a very common opinion when they said: "Our European banker friends evidently follow the same unreasonable policy as our own in being most liberal in boom times, and over strict when things look blue. Instead of doing exactly the reverse. By their present policy panics are precipitated. By following the opposite policy they could be averted every time. It is the old mistake of believing the people are here for the banks instead of the banks for the people."

There is no small measure of truth in this observation. Some bankers who may display undue caution and consideration now, were altogether too liberal in the flush times, and by their eagerness to make profits then inflamed the very speculation which they now condemn.

The future of business depends, for the most part, upon the courage of our bankers, and by this is meant the private bankers as well as the presidents of the banking corporations. They have the destinies of the country largely in their own hands. If they are too timid to face the situation, there is danger that we may lose some of the ground we have gained in the past few years. What is wanted is courage to meet every emergency manfully. Merely to defend what has been already achieved is enough at present. We believe the bankers will prove equal to their responsibilities. There is certainly nothing in the situation to cause any one to lock up his money. This is the very time to put forth new energy and courage in every line of business.—[Wall Street Journal.

COMMERCIAL.

CITRUS FRUITS. The Commercial Bulletin reports the orange market is rather drazzy, there having been very little interest displayed by the trade for the last week or ten days, except for the small quantity of good fruit offered. The medium and lower grades have been sold at prices which are very low as compared with results obtained at this time last year. Growers who have held their fruit late expecting to get prices similar to those obtained for late shipments last season, have been badly disappointed. Many cars of Valencias of ordinary quality have been sold during the past two weeks at scarcely enough to pay the cost of freight and packing. It is two hundred cars of oranges to be sent forward.

The lemon market is still very disappointing to shippers, there being no demand to speak of even in the West. Sales for foreign lemons in the auctions contiue to show heavy losses to importers. Shipments from Sicily are now about over, and the first movement in the new crop will not start until about the middle of October.

The weather has so far been favorable to the coming crop of oranges. In some districts there are indications of an increase over last year's crop, but in other localities the setting is very light. The total output will depend altogether upon the size to which the fruit generally grows. It is to be hoped that the sizes will be much smaller than last year, as the fruit can then be more readily sold, and will be of better quality.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

CITRUS-FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of citrus fruits from Southern California on Saturday and Sunday were 18 carloads of oranges and 10 of lemons. The total shipments for the season, from November 1, 1902, to date, are 21,851 carloads, of which number 2580 carloads are lemons.

NEW KIND OF STORE. Company stores have been one of the grievances which unions have brought up against employers during the past few years. Aside from the contention which the unions make, men who would enter business say that it is unjust because the ordinary business man cannot successfully compete with a company store. They hold that it has larger capital. Its patrons are virtually forced to go to it and its business is almost entirely of an unnatural character. As showing to what extent this idea may be carried, it is interesting to note that beginning with May 1, the profits, if any are made, of the three stores of the Vermont Marble Company, located at Proctor, West and Center Rutland, Vt., will be divided at the end of each year in cash among the employés of the company in proportion to the amount each employé has traded at the store during the year, and a committee from each plant has been authorized to represent the employés in the management of the store and the distribution of profits. This kind of a company store will meet with no opposition from the workingmen, it is assumed. Such competition as that will destroy any possible chance other dealers may have of doing business and, from their standpoint, appears more unfair than the ordinary method of conducting the company store.—[New York Commercial.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

While today (Monday) was a holiday and celebrated as Labor Day, there was plenty of work at local produce headquarters during the forenoon, although no session of the Produce Exchange of Los Angeles was held, and all produce, jobbing and commission firms closed at 12 o'clock. No goods were delivered in the afternoon. On Wednesday the same closing hour will obtain in celebration of Admission Day. All retail firms are requested to place their orders early.

Conditions and prices in the local produce markets remain unchanged from the close of last week.

"When the Ghost Walks."

"'When the ghost walks,' as synonymous with 'salary day' is a familiar term, but I never yet saw in print an explanation of its origin," said a veteran actor.

"Like most of the 'technical' expressions of the stage land, this phrase comes from England. In the days of Macready, a provincial company was playing 'Hamlet' at Lavenham, in Suffolk.

"Salaries were constantly in arrears, and the suspicion began to grow among the members of the company that the manager intended to defraud them.

"On the last night of the engagement the performance went along smoothly enough up to that passage of the tragedy in which the ghost disappears, and Hamlet says: 'Perchance 'twill walk again.' Then from behind the scenes came the ghost's voice in a tone distinctly audible to everyone: 'No, this ghost will walk no more until his salary is paid.'"—[New York Mail and Express.

PALMED OFF WORMS THAT WEREN'T HIS.

WALKER MAKES COMPLAINT AGAINST FIRM OF DOCTORS.

Alleges that They Performed Sleight of Hand Trick on Him and Got His Ten Dollars—Vows He Will Prosecute the "Artists."

Owing to the fact that George S. Walker of this city knows his own worms, criminal proceedings will be instituted against a firm of worm doctors who practice their art here.

If the facts are as Mr. Walker represents them to be, the worm experts attempted to palm off on him worms that he detected as not his.

He has complained to the District Attorney and has been advised to prosecute the doctors for practicing without a license.

Some little time ago, Mr. Walker became ailing in health and resolved to consult these worm men.

They guaranteeed him success. The conditions were that he should pay $5 down and the balance of $5 when a cure had been accomplished. He paid down the first installment and submitted himself to their operations.

Mr. Walker is a firm believer in the doctrine "know thyself." It was due to this life-long practice that he detected the fraud.

When the first operation had been accomplished, Mr. Walker at once desired a personal and ocular assurance of its success. Other patients have been content to take the smiling word of the doctors at the conclusion of the operation. Not so Mr. Walker. The doctors were much agitated at his demands. Quite an unpleasant scene occurred.

Finally, after what Mr. Walker stoutly claims was an act of sleight of hand, the result of the operation was exhibited to him.

He at once denounced it as a fake to their faces. The worms were not his, he said.

They insisted and he insisted and warm scenes ensued.

Mr. Walker at length demanded his $5 back, but they would not agree to this, claiming that it was a "square" transaction.

The trouble really began to brew when he told them that he was going to quit the treatment. They saw other $5 he was to pay at the end fading away. They made a fuss right row. They frightened Walker at length into paying the remaining $5. It made him furious, but they were two to one and had him at their mercy, he says, so they got the whole $10 out of him.

Mr. Walker went to the District Attorney and made complaint. The District Attorney after considering the cases, decided that it would not be right to cause the arrest of the doctors for obtaining money under false pretenses. If the case should come to court, it would be difficult to identify the worms.

Mr. Walker says he will take the advice given him and prosecute the doctors for practicing without a license.

A Cablegram of Condolence.

When the news of the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga reached the State Department at Washington there was some discussion about the propriety of sending a cablegram of condolence.

"No, no," said Third Assistant Secretary Adee, "nothing is to be done in case of this kind. Besides, there's nobody to send it to. The King and Queen are dead and the government has no head."

"Why not send it addressed to 'Whom it May Concern'?" asked a humorous young stenographer.—[Saturday Evening Post.

San Bernardino, Riverside and Ventura Counties.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

"WOMEN IN VENTURA HAVE LONG TONGUES."

STATEMENT FROM THE PULPIT BY REV. WADE HAMILTON.

Rash Methodist Parson Says They're Also "Back-biters," in a Sermon on "Boycotting." — Heat Reduces Lima Bean Crop's Value One-fourth.

VENTURA, Sept. 7.—"Women in Ventura have long tongues. Quoting Sam Jones I would say some of them have tongues so long while they sit in their parlors their tongues can reach the skillets in the kitchens. They are backbiters, too." The foregoing was the language of the Rev. Wade Hamilton of the Ventura Methodist Church, South, in his sermon yesterday morning, the subject of which was "boycotting." Mr. Hamilton had on the previous Sunday said that the taking off of President McKinley was in direct answer to the prayers of the women of the W.C.T.U. The women of Ventura W.C.T.U. resented these remarks so far as the union of this section was concerned, and they spoke rather sharply of the Rev. Hamilton, characterizing his assertion as ill-advised and wholly out of place.

Mr. Hamilton published an invitation to the ladies of the W.C.T.U. to be present today and hear his sermon, but few responded. On the broad principle of doing as you would be done by Mr. Hamilton said boycotts were all wrong, and made special mention of the boycott of the Southern Pacific by the people of Ventura. He then turned his attention to the women of Ventura, or those of them who had taken exception to his remarks on President McKinley. Beyond the one remark about long tongues, the sermon of Mr. Hamilton was mild enough and general enough to suit the most conservative of church goers.

DAMAGE TO LIMAS.

The damage done to the Lima bean crop of the county is said to be on the best authority about 25 per cent. The heat hurt the beans more in some sections than others. In some places the damage is placed as high as 50 per cent., while it ranges in other places at from 15 to 33 1-3 per cent. The sections suffering most are Springville and the Las Posas, while on the lowlands and on lands near the coast Limas have not felt the hot wave so severely. In some places the fields have not suffered more than 10 per cent., and others show no damage whatever. Taken as a whole, however, the damage will reach perhaps 25 per cent. throughout the county. All estimates of a Lima bean crop have been based upon the output of last year, when 500,000 sacks were raised. The output this year will fall short of this over 100,000 sacks. The "Lady Washington" beans promise a fair yield, as do the black-eyes. Growers expect a good figure for all beans raised, and will likely get it. Bean-cutting will begin throughout the county in about ten days.

MRS. GERBERDING'S BEQUESTS.

The will of the late Mrs. Mary J. Gerberding, the mother of Mrs. Senator T. R. Bard, has been filed for probate in San Francisco. Mrs. Gerberding was well known in Ventura. The will was written by herself, and is dated June 4, 1892. Senator Bard and son of deceased, Frederick W. Gerberding, are named as executors. To Senator Bard's wife, Mrs. Mary R. Bard, who had paid off a mortgage of $5000 on the home of the testatrix, Mrs. Gerberding bequeaths this home, which is situated on Clay street, near Jones, stating that it was her desire that the property should not pass out of the possession of the family, and that it should not be used for hospital or business purposes. It is valued at about $10,000. To her other daughter, Clara W. Bard of Livermore, Mrs. Gerberding bequeathed her piano and other articles of furniture, and to her son, Frederick, she gave articles of furniture. One of the witnesse of the will is Miss Frances Dawson, the authoress.

SAN BERNARDINO.

YOUNG LABORER INJURED.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 7.—John Fritz, a laborer, aged 23, was badly injured this morning while at work on the laundry building in course of construction on Court street. Among his duties was that of filling the tar buckets which were being hauled to the roof to spread over the roofing. He had just sent up a bucket, and was waiting for its return, when in some manner it got free from the hook and fell. It struck him squarely on the top of the head, crushing his skull and rendering him insensible. Fritz was removed to the County Hospital, where Superintendent Meyer performed an operation, removing the pressure of the fragments of the skull on the brain. Although seriously injured, it is believed Fritz will recover.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath," and a judicious advertisement in The Times inviteth business. Telephone your wants to Red 414 and our San Bernardino agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

REDLANDS.

NEEDED HOTEL SOLD.

REDLANDS, Sept. 7.—A deal was closed Saturday afternoon transferring the Windsor Hotel from the Casa Loma Hotel Company to W. M. Campbell and J. B. McGee. The hotel was closed some time ago by the former owners on the plea of "improvements being made." It was hoped the place would be opened as a first-class commercial house, something this town is sadly in need of at present. The Casa Loma, a tourist hotel removed from the business center, is now the only hotel open in Redlands. The new owners will overhall the Windsor building and put in stores on the ground floor. The price paid was $16,000.

The local labor unionists paraded the streets between 8 and 9 this morning and then took cars for a picnic at Urbita Springs.

Many of the deer hunters who went from here to the mountains for a deer have returned. Deer are very scarce and almost all the hunters came back empty handed.

Judge H. B. Ely started from New York for Redlands Saturday to spend the summer season here.

SANTA ANA.

BIG NIGHT BARN FIRE.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 7.—A big barn fire called out the department at 11 o'clock last night, but too late to do any good. A barn on East Third street, was totally destroyed before the department arrived. It contained a large quantity of packing paper, boxes and fruit. The loss was about $450, partially covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is a complete mystery, since the place had not been in use for several days and no one was living on the premises. The neighboring house, No. 711 East Third, was only saved from the flames by the energetic use of a garden hose.

PADDED THE PAY ROLL.

Former Employee of Santa Fe Railroad Who is Alleged to Have Betrayed His Trust, Catured Here.

H. R. Butz, until recently a trusted employé of the Santa Fé Railroad with headquarters at Needles, was arrested yesterday morning at Fourth and Spring streets by Patrolman O. T. Walker, to whom he was pointed out by another Santa Fé official, who stated to the officer that Butz was a fugitive from justice. When the prisoner was taken to the Police Station the authorities at San Bernardino were notified, and they replied that the man is wanted there, and asked that he be held at all hazards until an officer could be sent for him. A San Bernardino officer arrived in Los Angeles last night, and will take the prisoner back for trial upon charges of forgery.

Butz is charged with having padded the pay rolls of the Santa Fé Railroad at Needles by certifying to the employment of fictitious men. It is alleged that he forged the indorsement of the proper officials to the time checks of the men whose names he had prepared, and collected the money they were supposed to have earned. The amount of his alleged peculations is not exactly known, but it is supposed to be between $1500 and $2000. Butz has positively refused to make any statement, although he has acknowledged his identity.

BROUGHT BACK FOR TRIAL.

Alleged Embezzler Returned from San Diego to Answer to Complaint Filed by Former Employer.

M. S. Walton, formerly an employé of the City Directory Company, was brought back from San Diego yesterday by Detective Kelly, and will be arraigned in court today on a charge of embezzlement. He was captured in that city Saturday, after the detectives had been searching for him for more than a month.

The prisoner was until the middle of July employed by the City Directory Company and was sent out to make collections for that concern. It is charged that instead of returning the money to the office of the company, he retained all of one day's collections, amounting to about $200. Then he disappeared, and all trace of him was lost until he was seen in San Diego and recognized. The police were informed of his identity and his arrest followed.

BRIGHTON BEACH.

COMINGS AND GOINGS.

BRIGHTON BEACH, Sept. 7.—Mrs. A. A. Talmage of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. A. A Talmage and Miss Virginia Talmage of Los Angeles were dinner guests at the Brighton Beach Hotel Tuesday.

A fishing party composed of Gail Borden, L. B. Valk and the Misses Helen Borden and Helen Lawson went out in the pretty launch Clarilla this morning and captured a good bunch of yellowtail, barracda and bonita.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Clark of Los Angeles were over here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Holeman of Los Angeles spent Sunday at the beach.

C. C. Able of Chicago registered at the hotel yesterday.

DAY OF MANY PICNICS AT LONG BEACH.

Y.M.C.A. AND THE MACCABEES OUT IN FORCE.

Exciting Athletic Sports and Baseball Game on the Sands—Drill and Dinner at Pavilion—G.A.R. Camp-fire—Lucky Child.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 7.—Long Beach made no attempt at celebrating Labor Day beyond closing her stores and giving the working people a chance. No home programme was necessary, as there were an unusually large number of organizations present from outside points who furnished amusement for the full day.

First among these was the Y.M.C.A. of Los Angeles, which came down over the Salt Lake Road in special cars about 200 strong, and put in a busy day with their athletic sports and general enjoyment.

Their principal event was the ball game between the "Sea Lions" and the "Whales," two rival organizations made up from the association membership. The rivalry between the teams was great, and the contest was spirited, though it resulted in an overwhelming victory for the "Whales" by a score of 13 to 6. The line-up for this event was as follows:

Sea Lions.		Whales.
Castle	pitcher	Faithful
Brown	catcher	Howe
Conlett	first base	Beal, H.
Faithful	second base	Bleakley
Simpson	third base	Wilson
Stiles	shortstop	Brockton
Capt.	right field	Beal F.
Clifford	center field	Jones

C. H. Price, physical director, umpire.

In the other events the "Reds" won both the relay race and the tug of war. H. C. Bailey came out first in the 100-yard dash; Littlepage took first and Simpson second in the broad jump; Fleming beat all the other juniors in the jump and Householder was close behind him; the three-legged race went to Wilson and Bloomer, while Le Mond and Alderson were declared second. Simpson was first at fifty yards and O. V. Smith second; and H. Holmes took first in the boy's event at the same distance.

The knights and ladies of the Maccabees, from Pasadena made up another of the visiting parties. There were about 300 in the party and they came down over the Pacific Electric. The day was spent in enjoying the pleasures of the beach and in excursions over the bay in the boats. A picnic dinner was served on the pavilion at noon. This evening a joint team from the hive and tent gave a drill on the pavilion, and this was followed by a similar exhibition on the part of the uniform rank, both being heartily applauded by large crowds of spectators. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

SALVATIONISTS OUT.

About 100 members of the Salvation Army from Los Angeles, spent the day at the beach and seemed to have a good time. Their band was along and favored the veterans in encampment with a short afternoon concert. There was also a well-attended meeting on the sand.

G.A.R. CAMP QUIET.

On the camp ground this has been the quietest day of the session. There was no formal programme; but the ladies of the local W.R.C. filled in the afternoon with a most enjoyable reception in the big tent. This evening there was an informal camp fire made up of patriotic songs and impromptu speeches, such as the old soldiers most enjoy. Registration today came near the 1200 mark, breaking all previous records for these gatherings.

POMONA PICNIC.

A delegation from the Pomona Board of Trade was here today and arranged for a picnic on the 17th inst. The members of the board will be entertained with an ocean ride and the freedom of the bath-house, by the local organization. It is expected that half the town will join in this outing.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Contrary to the expectations of her physician, Edith Smith, the little girl who was run over Saturday by a wagon carrying 4500 pounds of hay, is recovering. It was regarded as little short of a miracle that the life was not crushed out of her on the pot, and no one at the time thought recovery would be possible.

PERSONAL.

J. W. Jameson, a Tehachepi mining operator, has apartments at the Hollenbeck.

L. W. Mix of Nogales, Ariz., interested in the mining development of the great Southwest, is stopping at the Van Nuys.

Roland Morgan and wife of San Francisco are registered at the Van Nuys. Mr. Morgan is here in the interests of the Redonde Railway Company, in which he is an influential factor.

Gage E. Tarbell, second vice-president of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of New York City, is a guest at the Westminster. Mr. Tarbell is accompanied by his family, and A. M. Shields and son. The party is en route East after a delightful season at Catalina Island.

NEW COMPANY TAKES SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND.

WOOL COMPANY SELLS OUT COMPLETE TO NEWCOMERS.

Lease of Land from Government and Over Ten Thousand Head of Sheep Transferred—Catalinans Catch Plenty of Yellowtail.

AVALON, Sept. 7.—The San Clemente Wool Company, of which Judge S. C. Hubbell was president and general manager, has been transferred by purchase to a company composed of Charles T. Howland, an attorney of Los Angeles, and Frank, Henry and Oscar Werner. Frank Werner is not related to the two others, who are brothers, and have recently arrived from Germany. The parties making the purchase have just returned from San Clemente, where they spent a week inspecting the island and the company's affairs. There are supposedly from 12,000 to 15,000 sheep on the island, with a large ranch house, barns and corrals, and several auxiliary stations about the island.

San Clemente Island is about the size of Santa Catalina, but is comparatively level, its greatest drawback being its deficiency of water, requiring wells and windmills to furnish water for the sheep. The island is leased from the government for a term of years at a nominal figure, and the industry of sheep-raising should be one of profit.

ISLAND ITEMS.

The Cleopatra yesterday broke all her previous records, carrying more people than on any day in the height of the season.

Former Dist.-Atty. J. C. Rives is here with his family.

F. M. Ward, L. P. Schilling, F. W. Tracy and wife and J. L. Stanton of Los Angeles are at the Glenmore.

Miss Sarah J. Russell, formerly a resident of Avalon, but now of Los Angeles, revisited the island over Sunday.

Miss Inez Reaves of San Francisco, Mrs. Charles B. Ballard and Mrs. Ella B. Hanna and H. S. Tubbs of Santa Ana were among the lucky fishermen this morning, getting four yellowtail and a whitefish.

Miss Ethel Ayers of Pasadena made the highest record of the season at the Avalon bowling alleys, and drew down the cash prize offered by the management for the best score of the week.

The launch Lydia entertains this week under the chaperonage of Mrs. Blanche Trask, a party for deep-sea dredging at the west end of the island. As sheila and many rare things of exceptional interest have been obtained through the dredging made by John Paine during the summer about Avalon, even better results are expected from this expedition to the rocky coast at the west end. Young Mr. Paine has devoted himself to the work most assiduously, and has thereby enriched his cabinet. He returns to his home in Cleveland next week, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. C. S. Paine.

D. G. Stephens, a Los Angeles pioneer, and two of his old G.A.R. friends, S. G. and G. Withern, were visitors here yesterday.

Rev. C. H. Ellis of Los Angeles is at the Glenmore.

Capt. and Mrs. George Cornell, gave a barbecue dinner at Camp Whittier yesterday in honor of Miss Daisy Luck and Miss Josephine Moll, whose birthday was commemorated. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Beck of Whittier; Miss Poor, Los Angeles; Mrs. Col. Moore of Tropica and Frederick Moll, Sr.

Everybody caught yellowtail today again. Every launch in the bay was out, and the scene about Seal Rocks resembled a regatta on the Hudson. Among the fishers were E. E. Chapman and Mrs. Bricker, Miss Maude E. Richards and Miss Grace E. Mathes, with the Rival. The young ladies each had five yellowtail to their credit and numerous rock bass, while the young men had six more yellowtail between them, a total of sixteen.

F. B. Straukamp of New York and Charles Burgess of Colorado Springs, with Mexican Joe, had eight yellowtail, four rock bass and a whitefish.

F. Edis of Chicago and Dr. G. W. Compton of Ophir, Colo., with the Mascot, had seven yellowtail.

Gen. Barrett, Gage E. Tarbell, wife, son and daughter, Miss Armendt, and A. M. Shields, in three parties, with Harry Elms, Chris Ringsin and George farnsworth, corralled thirty-two yellowtail.

E. A. Meserve, F. C. Paulin and H. C. Oakley, with the Ohio, took ten yellowtail, one whitefish and two rock bass.

J. B. Heydt of St. Louis, J. J. Greeley, Assistant District Attorney of San Francisco, and George Middleman, mannery of the Patrick Tannery, also of San Francisco, are here.

Mrs. H. P. Loew and Miss Irma Loew, Baron Von Lowenstein, and A. Munchemeyer, with the Eva, had nine yellowtail.

Britten Davis and wife, with the Juanita, had twelve yellowtail and five rock bass.

Yesterday and Saturday were busy days, and all the three steamers came in crowded with passengers.

POMONA.

MASONS TO LAY STONE.

POMONA, Sept. 7.—At the regular meeting of Pomona Lodge, F. and A.M., held on Saturday night, it was voted to accept the invitation of Supervising Principal P. W. Kauffman and the Board of Education to lay the cornerstone of the new High School building on Pearl street on Monday afternoon, September 21. Foshay of Los Angeles will probably officiate, in the absence of Grand Master Orrin Henderson, who will not be able to be present. Mrs. S. N. Androus and son have gone to Avalon for an extended stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Lee of Fitzgerald, Iowa, who have been visiting the former's brother-in-law, D. S. Myers, have gone to Catalina for a brief visit. Mr. Lee is department commander of the G.A.R. in Georgia and South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson left this morning for Catalina, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Poston here. They will soon return to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

SAWTELLE.

GENERAL REVIVAL ON.

SAWTELLE, Sept. 7.—A general revival is on in this community. Large congregations assembled at Baptist, Christian and Methodist churches yesterday, morning, afternoon and evening. The Christian Church took active steps toward organizing and appointed a committee to canvass for members and also to secure a good location for holding meetings. Revival services are also being held at the Holiness Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wagener of Detroit, Mich., are visiting Mrs. Van Wagener's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Thomas, and are considering locating here.

Frank Stokes and wife of San Francisco, are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Stokes.

John A. Martin, Relief Corps will visit Long Beach in a body tomorrow to participate in the exercises of Woman's Day at the G.A.R. encampment.

The Odd Fellows held another meeting at Laird's Hall this evening, at which $ was reported that the necessary consent from two-thirds of the lodges of Los Angeles county, had been secured to the organization here. The lodge starts with at least six charter members and over thirty applications have been received. Initiation will take place next Monday evening under a team from Los Angeles.

SIEGE OF WORRYING FOR SANTA MONICA.

OCEAN PARK TO ORGANIZE FOR WAR OF SECESSION.

"Better Government League" Planned to Keep Holding Elections for Division Until City is Split—Baptist Council of Recognition—Burdette's Advice.

OCEAN PARK, Sept. 7.—The petition for the municipal division of Santa Monica and Ocean Park will not be presented at tomorrow night's meeting of the Board of City Trustees. Instead, plans are on foot for the organization among residents south of Strand street of a "Better Government League," whose purpose shall be the ultimate division of Santa Monica and Ocean Park "by strathegy," as Mr. Dooley would say. In other words, it is proposed to "defeat the enemy" by the wearing-and-tiring process, seeing that victory at one fell swoop now seems to be impracticable.

When the idea of the secession of Ocean Park reached the proportions of a public agitation recently, and the obtaining of signatures to a petition was begun in earnest, it was known that division could not carry at the polls unless a majority vote were cast in its favor by people of the North Side, and it was equally evident that such a majority could not be obtained without the sanction of the leaders of a certain political faction which, for many years, has played politics in Santa Monica.

These leaders frankly said they would assist division, provided Santa Monica could obtain a new Board of City Trustees thereby, and it was conceded on both sides that if division entailed the election of a new board the measure would carry by a large margin of votes.

Upon discovering, subsequently, that as long as Santa Monica remained a city of the fifth class the exclusion of Ocean Park would remove from office only one of the five Trustees, and that even this one (whose scalp they particularly desired) could not be disqualified if he removed his residence from Ocean Park to Santa Monica, the faction leaders lost interest.

Therefore, it has been decided by the South Side to withhold for the present the petition calling for a special election, and to adopt a new plan of campaign. A careful investigation is now being made to determine how many of the electors of Ocean Park will join themselves together in a "Better Government League" to further the cause of division and stand by that cause until the end has been accomplished and Ocean Park holds in her own hands the reins of her own city government. If the league is organized, the plan is to among other things, at once present to the Board of Trustees the division petition with the 180 signatures necessary to compel the calling of a special election; this election resulting in the defeat of the measure, a second petition to be presented and a fresh election called; second defeat resulting, another petition and another election, and so on till the "enemy" throws up its hands in weariness and disgust and cries, "Ah, let 'em have it!"

This game has been played, with varying success, in political conventions, but it is probably what historians would call "a new departure" in American municipal procedure.

Meantime the desirability of incorporating a new Ocean Park to take in the territory between Marine avenue and the southern limits of Short Line Beach, is being considered.

BAPTISTS AND BURDETTE.

The Baptist Church of Ocean Park, Rev. Louis Agassis Gould, pastor, was received into the Baptist body of Los Angeles county at formal services of recognition held at 11 o'clock this morning in the little church of that denomination, on South Second street. The recognition services were preceded by the first autumn session of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Los Angeles and vicinity, at 10 o'clock. Thirty-five delegates were in attendance, and more than 110 others, the former being entertained at luncheon at noon at Shoup's Tavern by the church officers.

The ministers' conference was followed by a review of the history of the church, the treatment of its doctrines and its doctrinal views. The committee appointed to examine the credentials of the church knocking for entrance reported favorably, and admission into the association was granted. A half hour of reminiscences ended the morning session, when short talks were made by E. G. O. Groat, Mrs. J. O. Matthewson, Deacon Burdoe, H. A. Mills and Mrs. Drane.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock, the council concurring, public recognition services were held, the church being filled to the doors. Rev. C. T. Dougiass, district secretary for the American Baptist Publication Society, presided. He announced the following programme: Invocation, Rev. S. C. Ohrun, East Los Angeles; hymn; scripture reading, Rev. M. Banks of Azusa; prayer, Rev. Joseph Smale, First Church, Los Angeles; hymn; sermon, "Good Council," Rev. C. C. Willett, Orchard Avenue Church, Los Angeles; charge to the church, Rev. George Taylor, First Church, Sawtelle; hand of fellowship from Los Angeles County Baptist Association, Rev. C. C. Pierce, Memorial Church, Los Angeles; charge to the pastor, Rev. Robert J. Burdette, Temple Church, Los Angeles.

In giving the charge Mr. Burdette injected many merry bits of humor into his remarks. "I am glad to say," declared he, as he stepped upon the platform and took the hand of the pastor, "that Brother Gould was a man before he became a preacher. So long as he remains a man he'll be a good preacher; when he ceases to be a preacher he'll become 'an eminent divine.' Now, preach Christianity, but hold fast to humanity. Don't expect perfection of your children. They're not angels. Why, if you should come in here some morning and find a flock of bright-winged angels filling your pews you'd fly out quicker than you came in.

"We don't want to preach to a congregation of angels, neither you nor I. We're human and we prefer to preach to our kind. We don't expect to find people perfect and we don't want them to be. But, on the other hand, we must not always be looking for their faults. When you come to realise your own limitations, recall the fact that God never called a perfect man to do his work. He calls men like you and me and others of our brethren here before us.

"Now, I want to say that your church is a trap—a trap for souls. But you must be careful how you place your bait. It should not be a bit of apple displayed before the door, but some tempting morsel that will draw them in; and when you get them there, spring the trap and make it harder to get outside again than breaking out of jail.

"Don't scold; don't nag. If you have to correct, why, correct, but don't scold. All the scolding in the world will do no good. If you'll coax me a bit I'll do anything in the world for you; but the best man in the world couldn't scold me into doing things. You can coax a man five miles, but you couldn't drive him across the street."

A few closing remarks and a hand clasp, followed by a short talk from pastor Gould, and the meeting adjourned.

Among delegates in attendance from Los Angeles city and county were Rev. Cornish of Pomona; A. P. Anamale, Rev. Taylor of Sawtelle; W. B. Scarborough, Mr. McMillan of Alhambra, A. M. Petty, D. P. Ward, Rev. Joseph Smale, R. H. Tripp, Leonard Merrill, Prof. Melville Dozier, Rev. A. F. Randall, Rev. Ohrun, C. E. York, Rev. Sweet of Fullerton, Mr. Anders, Rev. Whitlock, Rev. A. P. Brown of Monrovia, Rev. Ostrum, Rev. Frank White, Rev. T. W. Bradshaw of Whittier, W. L. Crawford, Rev. Willett, Rev. C. H. Hobart, Pasadena; Rev. Banks of Covina, Rev. Walker of Boyle Heights, Rev. D. E. Whiting of Compton, Mr. Merchan, Long Beach, and A. F. Friend of Ontario.

HOW THE WIND BLOWS.

Ocean Park real estate dealers are rubbing their chins and smiling in a satisfied way over an odd series of transactions that has occurred here. Some time ago two members of the Board of City Trustees, Steele and Vawter, obtained from the Ocean Park Improvement Company an option on twenty-eight lots on Marine avenue, and subsequently bought the property at $25 a front foot. A. F. Fraser and G. M. Jones then bought back from them a number of the lots at $33 a front foot. Then Fraser and Jones sold ten of these lots to Lydall B. Winston of Los Angeles at $50 a front foot, and a week or so later Jones bought back from Winston seven of the ten lots at $55 a front foot. All of which happened within ninety days.

MOTHER MEETS DEATH AT FAMILY PICNIC.

TRAGEDY STOPS A CELEBRATION AT SANTA MONICA.

Mrs. Celia Dupes Falls Dead from Heart Failure in the Presence of Her Little Daughter—Affecting Scene at Tent Home.

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Celia Dupes, aged 27 years, wife of James M. Dupes, planned to spend today on a picnic with her three children up the beach. Instead, she is a corpse tonight and lies on a marble slab in Guidinger's undertaking establishment.

Mrs. Dupes came to Santa Monica last October with her husband and three small children, the youngest of whom is little more than a year old. The husband entered the business of contractor, and established his family in a tent on Nineteenth street, where they have been living ever since. As his business partner Mr. Dupes had a Mr. Griffith. The Dupes and the Griffiths planned for a beach picnic this afternoon.

Her household duties finished, Mrs. Dupes put on her street clothes and started for town to buy provisions for the picnic meal. She had not gone more than a few steps from the tent when she staggered and fell face down on the ground. With her at the time was her little daughter, aged 6. Frightened by the mother's fall and her silence, the childe cried out and caught the attention of William Schofield, who was passing.

Mr. Schofield, after a brief examination which showed him the seriousness of the occasion, went to find and notify Mrs. Dupes's husband. In the meantime neighbors, attracted by the commotion, came and cared for the stricken woman, who, though they did not know it, was even then a corpse.

The scene when the husband came hurrying to the tent was very affecting. The body of Mrs. Dupes was removed to Guidinger's, and the Coroner was notified by telephone. An inquest will be held tomorrow. Mr. Dupes stated that for some years his wife had been afflicted with symptoms of heart disease, but that since their coming to Santa Monica she had felt unusually well.

THE NEW POPE.

Stories that Show the Kind of Man Pius X is—He Has a Sweet Temper and a Sence of Humor.

Two or three little stories will serve to illustrate the manner of man the new Pope is. The following shows his humor: Don Giuseppe Sarto (such was his title then) having received from the Pope his nomination to the Episcopal see of Mantua, decided, just before leaving Treviso that he would go and pay his respects to his former bishop, Monsignor Callegari. But as his train took him to Mantua at an hour too early for pastoral calls, he betook himself to the Church of Santa Giustina, and there informed the rector of his desire to celebrate mass, without, however, stating his new episcopal dignity. His clothes happened to be, or rather were as always, quite modest, and the rector thought it well to inquire further into the conditions of the unknown priest.

"Where do you come from?"

"From Treviso."

"What is your business in Treviso?"

"None."

"Why, do you mean to say that you are no curate, no chaplain; not even assistant to the chapel; in short, nothing?"

"Just so, Your Reverence."

"Well, Treviso needs priests badly enough, and you claim that you do nothing. I will speak to your bishop in regard to that; meanwhile, you may celebrate mass."

"Yes, Your Reverence."

And Don Giuseppe Sarto went and celebrated mass with great devotion and a humility of behavior quite exemplary, under the suspicious eye of a sacristan whom the unestimated rector had ordered to watch the unknown priest. The celebration ended, very humbly, the priest was asked to sign the register of foreign officiators, according to the custom, and he signed thus: "Giuseppe Sarto, bishop-elect of Mantua." It is not stated what the rector had to say when he saw the ominous line.

That happened many years ago; the following is quite recent: Just before he left Venice for the conclave a lady of the aristocracy, taking leave of him, expressed her heartfelt wishes that the Holy Ghost should "descend on the person" of His Eminence Sarto, thereby designing him to the pontificate. "Madame," replied His Eminence, "allow me to remark that you have a very poor opinion of the Holy Ghost."

To his resolute disposition the following may bear witness: While he was still a poor priest, the curate's house in which he lived having a little garden, he used to spend his spare hours in the open air, reading his breviary. A wall separated the garden from the public road, and in this, once, several young men stopped to talk excitedly, and one of them resorted to profane words. No sooner had he spoken than Don Giuseppe, leaping over the wall, bestowed upon the irreverent fellow such a tremendous blow that it stung him for some time and inspired the others with a wholesome consideration for Don Giuseppe's persuasive powers. He was already a cardinal when he boasted still with a well known monsignore of being able "to frighten, alone, a gang of thieves or robbers at night, and proved it, by confronting once in a lonely country road, a handful of ruffians who attempted to disturb him, and by often going out in the night, all alone, with a latch key in his pocket, to render assistance to the sick and dying.

Once, among others, he was informed that a man who had long been a friend of his, although a free thinker, was on his deathbed. The hour was quite late. He sent to inquire whether the dying man would like to see once more "his friend Sarto." The answer was affirmative, and the Bishop Sarto went as a friend, not as a Roman Catholic priest, to comfort with pure human sympathy the death of the atheist. That speaks well for him. So does the fact that he has been known to maintain personal friendly relations with Jews and other individuals of various political opinions, and that his courtesy and charity are unfailing toward every human being, without distinction of party or religion.

He has often pawned his pastoral ring to get ready money for the poor, and deprived himself and his family alike of every luxury, claiming that he is only the trustee, not the master, of the money which comes through his hands. It is stated that upon his election to Cardinal, he bought the garments of state from the waiter of his predecessor, to whom they had been given, and had his own bishop's sash dyed purple, rejoicing over the economy which enabled him to do a little more good, be it even so little, than he could otherwise have done. He may be, if his antecedents keep good, such a Pope as the church has not seen for a long time.

His appearance, his character, the story of his family, his way of living, his good natured simplicity, his career, all recall the early times of the church. This man is a true son of the soil, and having kept so near to the poor and humble till now, maybe he will not look down upon them from the ineffable heights of the pontifical throne. In fact, it is said that he does not like to see people kneeling before him, and on receiving some Venetians who bowed to kiss his foot, he pleasantly commanded: "Get up, get up, my children: I am still your patriarch of Venice."

Not long before his election he declared his readiness to kiss the foot of all the eminentissimi, while he hated the thought of their kissing his own; and that is exactly what he cannot prevent now. For the rules of the church are the proudest and most unswerving in the world. And when, as the writer had the chance to do, one has seen the triumphal procession of the Pope in St. Peter's, and the heard the poor villagers of Reise talk of him and of the times in which he was slain "Den Bepi," the contrast is tremendously impressive.

We had been accustomed to hear history talk of the swineherd who was Sixtus V, and of many others like him, but to see the very same thing hap-

"I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day while visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change."—Miss Alice M. How Eagles Fight.

On a recent evening a small party of gentlemen, most all of whom had tinges of sporting proclivities in their blood, were discussing the subject of chicken fighting and generally regretting its decadence as a bright feature in the realm of sport. An old farmer from Rappahannock county, Va., broke into the conversation.

"Gentlemen," said he, "in my time I have seen some bang-up chicken fights, some be-yu-ti-ful ones, but the greatest fight I ever saw between birds in all my born days was a combat between a bald eagle and a gray eagle near my old place in Rappahannock.

"This fight took place on the bank of the river. I couldn't forget it if I lived to be as old as Methuselah. I was the only spectator, and saw the struggle from start to finish. The bald eagle had caught a muskrat and was about to eat it for breakfast, when the gray eagle soared down and attempted to rob the other one of its prey. Then commenced the combat, and, Lord, how the feathers flew! They fought with wings, beaks and talons, and I could hear the talons crack when they struck and tore each other. The sounds made by their wings as they buffeted one another were like the explosions of musketry, while their screams and yells sounded demoniacal. The battle lasted fully fifteen minutes, and wound up with a victory for old baldy, who drove the gray eagle away and then resumed his interrupted breakfast.

"Oh, yes, there are a great many eagles up in my part of the State," said the old agriculturist, in reply to a question. "There are plenty of high rocks and lofty trees wherein they build their nests, and farmers do not give them any latitude, however. Whenever one of these big birds is seen soaring about the poultry yard, or, in fact, anywhere on the farm, it's 'Johnny get your gun,' because it not infrequently happens that good-sized chickens, young lambs or little pigs are carried away by them, so they're very unwelcome visitors. I know a gentleman whose little son, a boy about 8 years of age, was carried off by an eagle, and but for the promptness of some of the farmhands in coming to his rescue, the child would have been carried away beyond a doubt."—[Washington Star.

William Hooper of the firm of Hooper Bros., manufacturers of Pittsburgh, Penn., was shot, and perhaps mortally wounded by an Italian employed this afternoon. It is reported that the Italian was led to the deed because he imagined that Hooper had done him an injury. The Italian was arrested.

Horse Sense.

"Any fool can take a horse to water, but it takes a wise man to make him drink," says the proverb. And he knows eats when hungry and drinks when thirsty. A man eats and drinks by the clock, without regard to the needs of nature. Because of careless eating and drinking "stomach" trouble is one of the commonest of afflictions. Sour food, bitter risings, indigestion, unnatural fulness after eating, dizziness, headaches, and many other symptoms mark the beginning and progress of disease of the stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases of other organs which have their origin in a disordered condition of the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, cures obstinate cough and heals weak lungs.

"I was taken with Grippe, which resulted in heart and stomach trouble," writes Mr. T. B. Caudill, Montland, Allegheny Co., N. C. "I was unable to do anything a good part of the time. I wrote to Dr. Pierce about my condition, having full confidence in his medicine. He advised me to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did. Before I had finished the second bottle I began to feel better. I have used seventy-six bottles. I feel thankful to God for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I can highly recommend it to all persons as a good and safe medicine."

PERJURY IS RESORTED TO.

Randsburg Strikers Circulate False Affidavit.

Contract Gives the Lie to Miners' Statement.

Laborers Engaged in Joplin, Mo., Made the Fool of Boycotters.

In support of the striking Randsburg miners, former employés of the Yellow Aster Mining and Milling Company have not hesitated to resort to perjury. And the Randsburg Miners' Union, No. 44, W.F.M., is making use of these perjurers by scattering broadcast their falsified statements as to the conditions of their employment.

The men in question are J. S. Fugate, Frank Joslin, Frank L. Paxton and Jack Wand. At Joplin, Mo., they entered into a contract with the Yellow Aster Mining and Milling Company, the distinct understanding being that they were to displace striking union miners. Since arriving at Randsburg these men have come under the hypnotic influence of union pickets and walking delegates, an experience resulting in the rankest perjury.

The "dodgers" sent out by the union miners, warning against signing with the Yellow Aster Mining and Milling Company, contains the following affidavit:

THE FOOLISH FAKE.

RANDSBURG (Cal.) Aug. 29, 1903.

To All Whom it May Concern:

We the undersigned having been induced to come to Randsburg by gross misrepresentations, wish to give to the public a true statement of the case. We were told at Joplin, Mo., that there were no labor troubles existing here and that there had not been for eight months. We were also told that the reason for importing men was that the camp was depopulated and the mines worked by an undesirable class of foreigners which the company wished to replace with Americans. On arriving here we found that there was a strike on, and that the mines were law-abiding American citizens and worthy of our support, consequently we refused to go to work.

J. S. FUGATE,
FRANK JOSLIN,
FRANK L. PAXTON,
JACK WAND.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 29th day of August, A.D. 1903.

J. R. MANNING,
Notary Public.

[Union Label] Miner Print, Randsburg.

Compared with the following contract which was entered into and signed by all four of the above affiants before leaving Joplin, Mo., the barefaced perjury alleged becomes apparent.

CONTRACT.

This agreement is made and entered into by and between the Yellow Aster Mining and Milling Co. of Randsburg, Cal., party of the first part, and J. Fugate, party of the second part, and witnesseth:

Whereas: The party of the first part is desirous of obtaining the services of sober, industrious and competent miners, to be employed at their mines at Randsburg, Cal., and,

Whereas: J. Fugate, party of the second part, represents himself to be a sober, industrious and competent miner of the first class.

Now therefore: For and in consideration of the representations made by the party of the second part, the party of the first part agrees to employ the party of the second part as a first-class miner for the period of one year from date of arrival at Randsburg, Cal., and for each and every day so worked will pay the sum of three ($3.00) dollars per day for a day of nine hours, it being understood that the party of the second part will at all times, both by word and deed, use his best endeavors to promote the interests of the party of the first part.

It is further agreed that at the end of one calendar months of faithful service, the party of the first part will repay to the party of the second part all legitimate expenses incurred in traveling from —— to Randsburg, Cal.

It is further understood by the party of the second part that labor troubles exist among the employees of the party of the first part, and knowing such, party of the second part accepts position and agrees to take the place of employees of party of the first part now on strike.

Drunkenness, disorderly or malicious conduct on the part of the party of the second part, shall make this contract null and void, and release the party of the first part from all obligations herein contained.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands this 25th day of August, 1903.

J. FUGATE.

And it is the sworn statement of these men, who regard the truth so lightly, that is handed out to the public with a desire to handicap a company presenting a contract that is unmistakable in its terms for the acceptance of men desirous of laboring where union intolerance is resisted.

The mining company has sixty men at work now. Many of the union miners are applying for jobs and leaving the union. C. A. Burcham will go up from Los Angeles today to start additional machinery.

THE BULLDOZER BULLDOZED.

ATTEMPTED INTIMIDATION.

The walking delegate walked up against the wrong man a few days ago in his search for trouble. E. J. Salsberry, a resident of Long Beach, owns a lot on Boyle Heights, and purposes building for himself a house. In making his plans he neglected to consult the labor unions. Consequently when making arrangements for the commencement of operations Mr. Salsberry was approached by a delegate who asked if he was a union man. Being told he was not, the fellow insolently replied: "Well, you will not be permitted to build the house." Mr. S., who intends to do the work himself, very emphatically replied: "Well, I will build it, even if I have to work with a shotgun and revolver in reach, and it won't be healthy for you or any one to interfere with me."

Mr. Salsberry is 70 years old, small of stature, is nevertheless a very able and industrious man, and will doubtless do his own carpentering, without assistance from such anarchistic meddlers.

WHEELER'S SCHEME.

BIG RAKE-OFF IN IT.

Several days ago, at a meeting of the Building Trades' Council in San Francisco, F. C. Wheeler, organizer of the California State Federation of Labor, announced that within the past four weeks twenty-six different unions had affiliated with the State Federation.

Such is the gist of a clipping from a San Francisco paper, commenting upon which a northern man says:

"I understand this man Wheeler is from Los Angeles, and states there is a movement on foot to organize every occupation in every town and village in the State, and the reason he is visiting the largest cities in the State and affiliating all of the unions with the State Federation of Labor is that by enrolling the already organized bodies it placed them in a position to be able or at least to attempt to make a union man of every worker in the State, and by so doing lessen the probability of the capitalist drawing men from the country and small towns of the interior in case of strikes. They receive $25 initiation fee for every union, and collect 1 cent per month on each member of all unions affiliated, and with this money they propose to push the work of organization. They intend to send organizers throughout the State to form and charter new unions, and the occupation cannot be too lowly or too remote to be looked up and organized, so that when the big towns need non-union men they cannot look anywhere in the State of California and find them; if they are unionized they will not 'scab.'

"I understand the better class of union men of San Francisco comment very unfavorably on his anarchistic and socialistic utterances, and pronounce him a very dangerous character to the best interests of good citizenship."

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

An interesting event in Jewish circles will be the wedding of Miss Cecilia Norton and Saul Morris, Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Norton is a beautiful girl, a graduate of the Los Angeles Normal School, taking a leading part in Sorority work. She is a daughter of S. Norton of No. 851 South Flower street, who is one of the pioneers of Los Angeles. Mr. Morris is a prominent young business man of San Francisco.

It is to be a home wedding, with only the members of the family present.

Green and white will be the prevailing tones in the decorations, and the bridal couple will pay their vows in a bower of green under a dainty bridal bell of white roses.

Rabbi Hecht will perform the ceremony, and there will be no attendants, except the maid of honor, Miss Golda Norton, sister of the bride, and the best man, Mark Norton.

MISS CECILIA NORTON

The bride's gown is a dainty creation of white mousseline de soie and old rose point, the bridal veil of illusion being caught up with natural orange blossoms, and she will carry a shower bouquet of orchids and white tulle.

Miss Golda Norton will be gowned in white point de esprit and carry a shower bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Charlotte Morris, sister of the bridegroom, has come from San Francisco to sing the bridal hymn from "Lohengrin."

After an extended tour of the Coast, including Del Monte, Monterey and other places, the young couple will be at home to their friends after October 15 at Lithrow Apartment Flats, No. 2653 Sutter street, San Francisco, where an elegantly furnished apartment awaits them.

SAUL MORRIS

A Boyle Heights Wedding.

A wedding of the near future which is creating a ripple of excitement in social circles is that of Miss Minnie Evelyn Reese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reese of Boyle Heights, and Frank Calvin Elliott.

Though reared in America, Miss Reese is a typical fair-haired English girl, and Mr. Elliott is a popular young business man, connected with the Broadway Department Store.

The marriage will be solemnized at the Boyle Heights Methodist Church at 8:30 o'clock on September 15, the ceremony being performed by Rev. D. H. Gillan of the Asbury Methodist Church, assisted by Rev. E. J. Inwood.

The wedding is to be quite a family affair, Miss Ethel Reese, the younger sister of the bride, acting as maid of honor, and Walter N. Reese serving as best man.

Miss Edith Reeves and Miss Lelia Gillan, two young cousins of Miss Reese, are to be bridesmaids, as well as Miss Maud Elliott, sister of the prospective bridegroom.

The ushers are Clarence Reese, Fred Ross, George Pfaffenberger, Albert Glass and Ed. Avila. The two tiny girls who are to strew the pathway of the bride with fragrant rose petals are Frances Gillan and Margaret Thomas.

After the ceremony an informal reception to the relatives and the bridal party will be held at the family residence, No. 632 Britannia street. After a brief journey to parts unknown, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will be at home to their friends at Second and Chicago streets, where their new home is in course of construction.

A Quiet Wedding.

On last Wednesday afternoon, September 2, at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Edna Corinne Taylor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Taylor of No. 449 Grand View street, was united in marriage to Harry R. Cowan of New York City.

Owing to a recent death in the family it was a very quiet affair, with only the immediate family present, the bride being gowned in a handsome gray tailored costume, with white silk waist.

Dr. Hugh K. Walker of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony.

The young couple left on the evening train for the north, and will take an extended tour through the North and Middle West, stopping in Chicago (the bride's former home.) After November 1 they will be at home in New York City.

Barton's Flats Barbecue.

A number of Los Angeles people and others who are spending the summer at Seven Oaks recently indulged in that rather novel entertainment, a barbecue.

This was held at Barton's Flats, an ideal camping spot three miles up the cañon from Seven Oaks, the picnickers going up in wagons and on horseback. The party included Miss Frances Holmes, Katherine T. Dodge, Miss Emily T. Dodge, Miss Sarah W. Reeves, Miss Susan H. Reeves, Miss M. A. Diven, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Simpson, Miss Helen Simpson, Mrs. Leslie Hewitt, Dr. C. W. Fish, Dixey Fish, E. S. Fish and James M. Riley.

Birthday Anniversary.

A wine supper and card party was given last Saturday evening in honor of the nineteenth birthday anniversary of Lawrence B. Roberts at the residence of his parents, No. 238 East Twenty-ninth street. The guests were: Miss Lena Laughlin, Miss Clara Scott, Miss Mollie Dunham, Miss Mamie Laughlin, Miss Leona Garvin, Miss Mamie Cesto, Miss Maud Anderson, Miss Julian Dunlap and Miss Schlader, and Messrs. For Mr. Pinchot.

A handsome spread was given at the California Club yesterday noon in honor of Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester of the United States. The hostesses were Mrs. J. B. Lippincott and Mrs. Edward T. Perkins, and the guests were a number of professional men and gentlemen especially interested in Mr. Pinchot's work.

Colorado Society.

The regular monthly session of the Colorado Society was held last evening at the Blue Room of the Angelus, with an attendance of about sixty members. The first part of the evening was devoted to the address by President C. W. Guyer, after which Mrs. Elliott, head of the Entertainment Committee of the organization, took charge.

Progressive whist was the amusement and the various tables were named after familiar cities and towns in Colorado. The first prize was won by Mrs. Nichols of Denver, while the consolation went to Mrs. Nance, also of Denver. A musical programme was then given, the feature being a number of piano selections by Miss Ruth Aubrey.

HAVE been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all his different methods and can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his method of treatment. MILO M. POTTER, Prop. Van Nuys Hotel and Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara.

Ten years ago a reputable D. D. S. of Va. told me that a certain molar tooth could not be satisfactorily saved and that it would probably not be of service for one year. It has not only served me for ten years, as Dr. Schiffman saved and crowned it, and comparatively speaking without pain. I sing his praise. I. M. ANDREWS, Pastor M. E. Church, South, Cor. 6th and Mateo Streets.

On account of some unfortunate experience I had in the extraction of my teeth I became a great coward in this respect. Today Dr. Schiffman extracted one of my very refractory teeth without causing me one particle of pain. D. K. TRASK, Judge Superior Court, Los Angeles.

EVERAL years ago Dr. Schiffman did some crown and bridge work for me which has proved entirely satisfactory. The work was done painlessly and with great skill. It gives me great pleasure to recommend him. IRVING R. SMITH, L. A. Times.

Dr. Schiffman has put in almost an entire upper bridge for me. The bridge is perfect in every respect, and I can use it as well as my natural teeth. The work was promptly and painlessly done. J. P. WILL, 926 West Twelfth.

Dr. Schiffman pulled two of my wisdom teeth, and it didn't hurt a bit; on the contrary, the sensation was pleasant. GUY L. HARDISON, Vice-Pres. Southwest Nat. Bk.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he filled and extracted the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth and put on a porcelain crown, which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON R. RUSH, Of Davis & Rush, Attorneys, 2 Rogers Blk.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to anyone wishing dental work done without pain. MRS. C. T. F. SCHRAMM, Mother of Paloma Schramm, Cor. Austin and Wadsworth.

Dr. Schiffman has put in a very satisfactory piece of bridge work for me and I cheerfully recommend him to anyone in need of dentistry. P. FLORENTINE, 1839 North Main St. County and City Criminal Photographer.

About a year ago I had a solid gold bridge put in by Dr. Schiffman. The work was absolutely painless, and has proved entirely satisfactory, and I cannot say too much in praise of the doctor. GUS BASLER, 315 W. First St.

Dr. Schiffman extracted my teeth and replaced same by bridge work. He also treated and filled two teeth, which I thought were too far gone to save. The above work was all done painlessly and is perfectly satisfactory. E. A. FOLLARD, 727 Central Ave.

This is to certify that Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me seven years ago and the work is as good today as it was when he finished the job. S. J. McKENZIE, Police Officer, 1402 Essex St.

Have just had a large back tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman; had been hesitating, but it was only a trifle and gave no pain. FRED A. DAY, Deputy City Assessor.

JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO., Philadelphia.

FOR MOVING UNIVERSITY.

Movement Still in Motion for Change of Location.

Attempt to Swing Institution to San Rafael Ranch.

Suggestion to Utilize Former Design for Methodist College on New Site.

In these piping days which forerun the gathering of the world's Methodists in the City of the Angels, church enterprises are springing up that attract much attention. It is expected that all local Methodistic interests will receive a decided impetus from the great gathering at the General Conference; and chief among these will be the educational concerns of the church.

As The Times readers are aware, there has been for some time a quiet movement on foot for the removal of the University of Southern California to a more favorable location. A few months ago it was reported in these columns that such was the case, and this was vigorously denied by some of those in close touch with that institution. Developments since then have proved that the report was based on fact, and that the sentiment for a removal to a more commodious site has constantly grown, and that active steps are to be taken to accomplish this end.

The Campbell-Johnstons, who own the beautiful San Rafael ranch and the San Rafael Heights, adjoining Pasadena, have been approached by Methodists who are on the lookout for a new location for the University, and these gentlemen are deeply interested in plans for securing the institution for their lands. Mr. Campbell-Johnston, in discussing the matter yesterday, made the statement: "If the Methodist people want any extra assurance to induce them to bring their school to the San Rafael ranch, we are in a position to give them bonds that the new electric road over our franchise will be in operation through the San Rafael ranch to Pasadena by the first of January."

Pasadena and South Pasadena people are hopeful that either this location or one on the Huntington tract may be chosen; they will take active steps to get some definite proposition in shape to place before the board of trustees of the university.

DR. BOVARD'S STATEMENT.

Dr. George F. Bovard, the newly-elected president of the University of Southern California, when interviewed last night, said he looked for no immediate change in the school's location, although he would be in favor of anything that would be for the general advancement of the institution.

"It is true," said he, "that the location in the San Rafael ranch has been suggested to me, but so far no official action has been taken by the board of trustees.

"We have just gone ahead and cleaned up the university grounds, and have made numerous improvements there, so that the school will be in very good condition this year. We expect a large enrollment this fall, and there will be many new students."

"But is the present location satisfactory; and would a proposition to relocate be considered by the board?" was asked.

"Oh, we would consider anything that would be of advantage to the university," said Dr. Bovard, "and, of course, if some one has a desirable proposition to present to us we would give it a hearing. The San Rafael ranch location has been suggested, but the Huntington tract site is a new idea to me."

"IN THE CITY," SAYS COCHRAN.

George I. Cochran, secretary of the board of trustees of the university, was seen last evening at his offices in the Conservative Life building, and was asked about the removal proposition.

"Personally, I am opposed to removing the university from Los Angeles," said Mr. Cochran. "I believe it receives certain important advantages in being connected with a large city that it could not have if located at some outside point. Santa Monica wanted to make us a proposition to remove the institution to that point, but it was turned down.

"Of course, I am only one of a board of twenty-one members, but I certainly would oppose the removal of the school from the city. As to a removal from the present location, that is a different matter, and if something within the city that appears attractive turns up I would be in favor of considering it.

"No, there is no prospect of it going out to the Rindge tract; it is too small a tract, and would not be desirable. So far as the Huntington location is concerned, I have heard nothing of it, and if the Pasadena people spring it upon us it will come as a surprise."

HUNTINGTON MAY HELP.

A pastor of one of the Pasadena churches said yesterday that it was among the probabilities that H. E. Huntington may make a handsome proposition to the Methodists to locate the university on the magnificent tract he has laid out at South Pasadena or "Alhambra Junction," as it is officially known. Mr. Huntington is now in the city, and those who are anxious to get the Methodistic school located on the highlands will try to bring about a crystallization of affairs, so that a tangible proposition can be placed before the university trustees.

PLANS DISCUSSED.

Despite the general statement of Dr. Bovard, in which, by the way, it will be noticed he is careful to say that no "official" action has been taken, it is known that the matter has gone so far that even plans for a new building are suggested.

It is possible that one of the old-time boom projects that at one time figured prominently in the plans of Methodists of Southern California may have a reincarnation.

About sixteen years ago, during the liveliest days of the "boom," there were ambitious plans on the tapis for the University of Southern California. The projects for its affiliated colleges reached out as far as San Diego, where plans were made for a magnificent subeducational institution. Down at Inglewood, which was laid out on an extensive scale by the Freemans, plans were made for the establishment of a Methodist institution, to be affiliated with the University of Southern California, and to be known as the Freeman College of Applied Sciences. The project was to have received a gift of many lots and a large sum of money from A. C. Freeman. The corner-stone was laid with due ceremony, and prospects for the new institution were bright; but the boom burst, and with the thousand and one other schemes that had the life squeezed out of them, the Freeman College project went to the ground, and was heard of no more.

The plans for this beautiful structure remained in the hands of the Methodists; and it is among the possibilities that what was at one time to have been a part of the university may yet become a property of the institution, located at a different site. The propriety of utilising these plans, if the university is removed from its present site, is discussed, and prominent Methodists have declared themselves as favoring this idea.

CHEESE WEIGHING TON.

Feature of California Display at World's Fair that Will Make People's Eyes Stick Out.

Frank Wiggins of the California-St. Louis World's Fair Commission returned yesterday from a meeting of the commission in San Francisco. While north he also acted as one of the judges of the State Fair at Sacramento.

"We find," said Mr. Wiggins yesterday, "that the forestry exhibit of this State is two-thirds complete.

"The shipments of supplies for the continuous fresh citrus-fruit exhibit at the fair has been arranged with various fruit agencies, and three carloads of apples are already in sight to be put in cold storage in St. Louis until the opening of the exposition. The dried fruits and canned goods exhibits are coming on in fine shape, and a fine fish display is assured.

"John Furiong of San Rafael, well known among the State's educators, has been appointed chief of the department of education, and will at once begin to arrange the educational exhibit, under the direction of a committee of five prominent California educators.

"Our dairy department at the fair will startle the world with a cheese weighing a ton, the product of 400 cows for two days. At Sacramento we received a promise of a live-stock exhibit for St. Louis of five carloads of sheep and cattle. This is the first thing of the kind ever attempted by California at an international fair.

"Just as soon as the revised plans for the California State buildings are accepted by the fair authorities, the erection of the structure will begin."

PIPE LINE FROM THE MOUNTAINS TO SEA.

BIG PROJECT FOR NORTHERN SANTA BARBARA COUNTY.

Union Company Has Arranged for Almost All Rights-of-Way from Santa Maria Valley to Casmalia—To Pass Near Pinal Properties.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.)

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 8.—W. W. Orcutt of the geology department of the Union Oil Company of California, which has acquired over 100,000 acres of what is believed to be oil-bearing lands, and upon which three successful wells have been dug, is in the Santa Maria Valley arranging for rights of way for a pipe line from the different wells to the ocean. Orcutt reports that privileges have been secured for the entire distance, with the exception of one strip near Casmalia. It is the intention of the company to run a 4-inch pipe line from the gusher which recently came in at the company's property on the Purissima ranch, from the mountain to the narrow-gauge road, following this road until it reaches Blake station, and from there make a direct line to the ocean, near Casmalia. There will also be another fork running from the wells on the Fox ranch, which is near the Pinal company's property, and joining the main line at Blake station. There will be two pumping stations, located at either field, which will force the oil to the summit of the mountains, from whence it will easily gravitate to the ocean. There will be about thirty miles of pipe.

NOT SO VERY WARM.

What Weather Observer Franklin Says—Origin of This "Desiccating Wave"—Other Septembers.

Weather Observer Franklin says he was not responsible for the heat yesterday, but was ready to explain how it happened. After consulting his oracle, the weather chart, he attributed the sweaty condition to the fact that just at present a low atmospheric pressure exists in the Southwest and through the Colorado River valley, contrasted with a high pressure in the Northwest, producing warm, desiccating winds hereabouts. This, he says, is not an unusual occurrence for September in these parts—in fact, yesterday's temperature of 90 degs., the highest for September this year, is below the maximum September average, which is 97 degs. The highest temperature for any September day since 1877 occurred on September 21, 1885, when the top notch was 108 5-10. Since that year there have been just eight Septembers when the temperature exceeded 100 degs. Since then the average maximum has ranged from 90 to 99 degs., except in 1901, when it was only 84 degs.

Today may be hotter than yesterday—Mr. Franklin says the only sure way to know is to wait and feel of it. Monday the maximum temperature was 80 degs. But it was a whole lot hotter—and will be today—down where you live than where Mr. Franklin's thermometer passes the time.

ADMISSION DAY.

Members of Ramona, Los Angeles and Corona parlors, Native Sons of the Golden West, and the local Native Daughters have planned to hold a grand jollification at San Bernardino today as guests of their country brethren in the celebration of Admission Day. The hosts will be members of Arrowhead parlor, No. 110, San Bernardino, and the general programme will consist of literary exercises, sports, concerts, dancing, a barbecue, baseball and a watermelon feast. Native "boys and girls" from surrounding communities will be there, too, and Hon. R. F. Del Valle of this city will be orator of the day. The local parlors will be represented by committees as follows: Ramona Parlor, H. J. Leland, A. C. Sittel, H. C. Lichtenberger; Los Angeles Parlor, J. T. Newell, Dr. E. M. Lazard, J. L. Bannister; Corona Parlor, L. S. Nordlinger, W. J. Craig, A. M. Norton. The special train leaves the Arcade Depot at 8 o'clock a. m.

GOSPEL "BIRD" IS DIVORCED.

Singing Evangelist Parted from Her Husband.

Besieged With Love Letters from Ministers and Others.

Fair Los Angeles Songstress Who Has Turned Many a Man's Head.

Carried away by the admiration of men whose souls she had sung into an uncontrollable love, according to a report from Seattle, Mrs. Emma Moffatt, a singing evangelist, has secured a divorce from her husband, Joseph Moffatt of this city.

Mrs. Moffat enjoys the reputation of being one of the sweetest gospel singers in the country, and in connection with Florence Crittenton Homes has sung all over the continent. Three years ago she went to London with Mrs. Barrett, the national superintendent of the movement, and there met a reception that was as marked as her success had been in America.

Possessed of a charming personality, a voice that would melt a stone, and a pair of eyes that would almost cause the Sphinx to fall before her, wherever Mrs. Moffatt went she became the target for the most amazing love epistles from men who heard her, and such was the adulation showered upon her that the head of a stronger woman might have been affected.

Fifteen months ago she went away to fill a vocal engagement at Bakersfield, and that is the last time her husband ever saw her. This part of the story is best told in his own words:

"Yes, I have learned from my wife's sister that Mrs. Moffatt has secured a divorce, but I cannot understand how it can be for I have never had any notice concerning it. She is with her father in Island county, Washington, and my attorney tells me that the only way it could be done would be for my wife to make affidavit that she did not know where to find me, in order to give me the legal notice, and I hardly think she would do that. I am just writing to her and to the county clerk to learn something about it. If she has secured a divorce she has done me the greatest possible wrong, for I love her better than life, and have done everything in the world to save her, and I can do no more.

"From Bakersfield she wrote me a most affectionate letter," continued Mr. Moffatt, "and said she wished to go to Seattle to visit her mother, and I interposed no objection. Later I sent her a handsome dress which she acknowledged in the usual loving way. I next received a letter from her mother telling me that Emma would spend the winter with her, and after that my wife never wrote to me again. My next letter was returned unopened and I never wrote again; that is about a year ago.

"Just to show you what my wife has to contend with, I want you to read this letter," said Mr. Moffatt to the reporter, handing him a letter. "That letter was written to my wife by Rev. James Cool of New York, in whose church my wife was singing prior to her trip to London, and is only one of the many similar ones she received from other men."

The letter referred to is one of the most effusive love epistles imaginable. It repeatedly declares the most undying affection for the angelic singer and begs that by but a look, as she stood by his pulpit, she should indicate that the preacher's love was requited. He said that he well understood the difficulties that confronted them in thus declaring their mutual love, but he believed it to be the will of God.

Simultaneously, as shown by the date of the letter, Mrs. Moffatt filed a suit for divorce in the courts of Seattle, through an attorney in New York, and then departed for London. Upon her return she was unexpectedly met at the Port of New York by her husband, who confronted her with the evidence in his possession, and he last night exhibited the legal notice published in Seattle, also a telegram withdrawing the suit and a receipt for the money sent by himself to pay the expenses in order to have it withdrawn.

That was three years ago, and while Mr. Moffatt would not have been surprised to receive notice that a new complaint had been filed by his wife, he was shocked to learn that a divorce had actually been granted.

The earlier chapters in the life of Mrs. Moffatt date back a dozen years or more, when, as Emma Priest, she was married to Frank Dyer, the two at the time living with their respective parents upon adjoining farms at South Riverside. They came to this city and Dyer conducted a small printing establishment on North Spring street. One night there was a little shooting affair on Spring street, in which Dyer wounded a Riverside banker, claiming that he had been interfering in his family affairs. No legal proceedings ever grew out of the circumstance.

Some time later Mrs. Dyer left her husband and went to San Francisco and began singing in a variety theater, where she was found by Charles N. Crittenton, founder of the Florence Crittenton Homes. Through his persuasion she left the stage and began to use her beautiful voice as a gospel singer, traveling with Mr. Crittenton. She came with him to Los Angeles, and later on, her former husband having secured a divorce, she was married to Joseph Moffatt, and then both husband and wife traveled throughout the entire country with Crittenton, having made the last trip two years ago.

Mr. Moffatt is a man of considerable property, owning a number of pieces of real estate in this city, and is one of Southern California's greatest honey producers. His crop this year will reach fifty tons, from his 650 stands of bees, and among his benevolences is the shipping of tons of honey as gifts to the Crittenton Homes. Twenty-nine shipments were made yesterday, and as the railroads refused to give him free transportation for his gifts, he is paying all the freight himself, amounting to from $10 to $15 per shipment.

HUMANE SOCIETY.

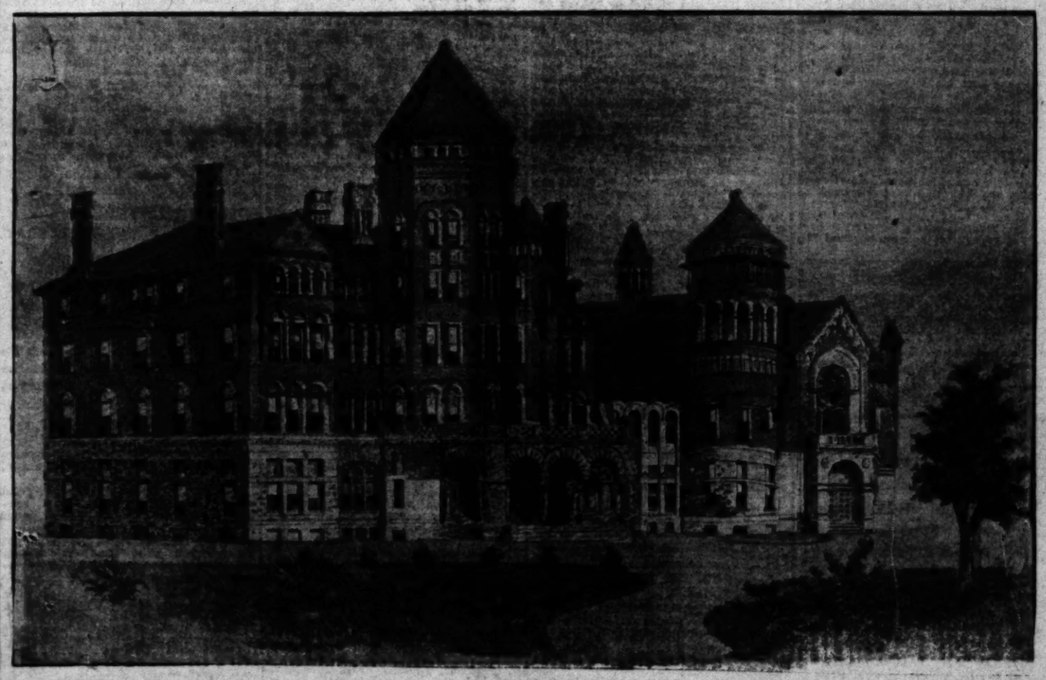
Reports at Yesterday's Meetings Indicate Much Activity—Special Campaign Against Glanders in Horses.

The Los Angeles Humane Society and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had an interesting meeting yesterday afternoon in their new quarters in the O. T. Johnson Building, corner of Fourth and Broadway.

The reports of officers showed that there is much activity, and that eight deputies are at work in various sections of the city. Reports showed that there had been thirty-four complaints of cruelty to animals; these had been investigated, and eight had been relieved. A special campaign had been carried on against the spread of glanders among horses. Fifty cases of this disease had been discovered and the animals had been killed. There had been one arrest, and the party was prosecuted and fined $15. Maj. Oliver, who is the special officer for the societies, is also probation officer for the Juvenile Court, and at the present time has forty-five youngsters under his supervision.

CLARK BACK FROM EUROPE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Senator Clark of Montana arrived from Europe on the Campania today.



DESIGN FOR METHODIST COLLEGE, ONCE ABANDONED, AGAIN PROPOSED AS BUILDING FOR UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Mayor Snyder yesterday removed Griffith J. Griffith from the Park Commission, and the Council confirmed his action.

Police Commissioner Lang inaugurated a movement to secure the construction of a stockade in one of the parks for the confinement of petty criminals.

Col. G. J. Griffith was arraigned yesterday in the City Justice Court. He will have a preliminary examination October 2.

The Hollywood incorporation was discussed by the Supervisors yesterday.

AT THE CITY HALL.

POLICE BOARD FINDS REESE WAS HIT.

EVIDENCE TOO CONFLICTING TO PLACE THE BLAME.

Charges Against Officer Sherman Baker Are Dropped—Officer Heilman Ordered Reprimanded for Using Violence.

"In the case of Eugene Reese vs. Officer Sherman Baker we find that the complaining witness was injured, but the board is unable from the evidence offered to determine how the injury was inflicted, or by whom.

"In connection with this case the Chief is hereby instructed to reprimand Officer D. V. Heliman for using unnecessary violence in ejecting the complainant from a certain portion of the crib district on the evening mentioned in the charges filed herein.

"The Chief is further instructed to notify all officers of the department that in making arrests no unnecessary force is to be used, and that in dealing with citizens in general no abuse or use of undue violence on the part of officers will be tolerated by this board."

The foregoing verdict was rendered shortly after 6 o'clock last night by the Police Commission, which had been in session all day. The case was called at the morning session, but so many witnesses were summoned by both sides that a large part of the morning and all the afternoon were consumed in the hearing.

It was the evident disposition of the Police Commission to censure or more severely punish any officer guilty of using unnecessary force in the arrest of Reese, which occurred about midnight on August 29 in that part of the tenderloin known as the "Ballerino cribs." The evidence was so conflicting, however, that the board was unable to determine the guilt or innocence of Officer Baker, and he escaped without even a reprimand.

During the trial Officer Heilman testified that he had ejected Reese from the crib district on the night in question, and that he had punched Reese once or twice with his knee in assisting him along. This admission earned for the officer a reprimand.

Mayor Snyder took occasion several times during the trial to score the officers for lack of memory and inattention to minor matters that had a bearing on the case. Neither Officer Heilman nor Desk Clerk McClure could remember the name of the driver of the patrol wagon that brought Reese to the station, and the Mayor declared that the officers were sadly remiss in their duty in not keeping better informed.

At the opening of the trial Reese produced some blood-soaked garments which he says were worn by him on the night of the alleged assault. The drawers and pants were simply soaked with blood, and the commissioners had them removed from view with expedition. Attorney M. J. McGarry represented Reese, and informed the board that two important witnesses who saw the assault could not be located. He asked for a postponement. This the board refused to grant, and a further effort was made to find the two men, without success.

NEW SPECIFICATIONS.

SESSION OF THE COUNCIL.

The Council session yesterday was only a side show, as nearly all the spectators attended the hearing before the Police Commission. There were no interesting debates, and the legislators had a very quiet time of it.

An action of considerable importance was taken regarding oiled streets. On motion of Skilling all oiling of streets was suspended until specifications can be adopted. President Bowen appointed Skilling, Farish and Kern a committee of three to act in conjunction with the Street Superintendent in preparing suitable specifications.

Heretofore there have been no specifications for sprinkling streets with oil, and the work has been done in a slipshod, haphazard manner. Proper precautions were not observed for accounting for the amount of oil used, and the system of inspection has been lax. Those facts have caused considerable protest from citizens and the Council has determined to prepare regular specifications for oiling streets.

"It is a branch of public work of growing importance," declared Councilman Kern yesterday. "I believe that some regular system of applying the oil should be outlined before more work is done."

Eleven new specifications for street improvement were adopted. Curbing, guttering, sidewalking, graveling and paving of streets are covered in detail. These specifications are expected to raise the standard of street work.

Councilman Davenport was appointed a committee of one to see that the garbage contractors are compelled to distribute cards to householders notifying them of the days of collection. The Sixth Warder declared that in his district the garbage wagons now call twice a week, but that few people know when to expect them.

Members of the Sunset Boulevard Improvement Association appeared before the Council to protest against the dilatory work of Contractor Charles Stansbury, who holds the contract for improving the boulevard from Douglas street to Maltman avenue, at a cost of over $101,000. They asked the Council to give Stansbury official notice that no extension of time beyond the year allowed in the contract would be granted. No action was taken. Skilling declared his desire to enforce the terms of the contract and Contractor Stansbury assured the protestants that the work would be completed by January 1 next. Stansbury has until February 21, 1904, to complete the work. Six months have elapsed, and it is said only 15 per cent. of the grading has been done.

It was voted to advertise for bids to construct steps at the west end of the Third-street tunnel, over she nays of Kern and President Bowen.

Bids were received for constructing schoolhouses, the low bidders being the following-named: Twenty-fourth-street school, Alex Grant, $15,300, appropriation $21,000; Seventh street school, Martin Madden, $6635, appropriation, $16,100; Prospect Park school, Robert A. Brown, $16,689, apropriation, $21,400; Ninth-street school, Dawson & Eldridge, $21,880, appropriation, $17,600.

FAVORS STOCKADE.

LANG'S SOLUTION OF PROBLEM.

Police Commissioner Gustav Lang caused a little flurry at the Police Commission session yesterday morning by advocating the construction of a stockade in one of the parks in which tramps, hobos and petty criminals could be confined. Lang declared that in this way the congestion at the City Jail could be effectually relieved and the chain gang employed on work that was of benefit to the whole city instead of to favored sections, as is the case under the present system. A discussion was precipitated when Lang introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas, the present City Jail building is entirely inadequate for the present needs of the police department, and the overcrowded condition of the jail is largely due to the number of petty criminals detained therein: therefore, be it

"Resolved, that we recommend to the City Council that it provide for the erection and maintenance of a stockade in one of the city parks for such petty criminals as have been convicted. The use of such stockade would relieve the congestion prevailing at the City Jail, and make that building available for the needs of the department for many years to come."

Lang thought that a bunkhouse with ample sleeping accommodations should be constructed and surrounded by a stockade, this in turn to be protected by a "burglar-alarm" wire.

Commissioner Keeney said the plan might be worth considering, but that men were not like dogs just because they "bobbed" over once in a while, and he thought they should not be put in a pound or herded about like cattle. Keeney thought that such a plan harked back to the days of the Civil War.

After further discussion action on Lang's resolution was postponed one week.

GRIFFITH DROPPED.

REMOVED FROM PARK BOARD.

Col. Griffith J. Griffith is no longer a member of the Park Commission.

He was removed from the board yesterday afternoon by action of Mayor Snyder and the Council. In pursuance of his expressed intention the Mayor sent the following communication to the Council:

"I have this day retired Griffith J. Griffith as a member of the Board of Park Commissioners and beg to request the confirmation of my action at your hands."

On motion of Councilman Farish the action of the Mayor was unanimously approved by the Council.

The Mayor has decided upon a successor to Col. Griffith, but is not yet ready to make the name public.

This action by the city officials will undoubtedly wound Col. Griffith to the quick, as he was especially proud of his official position, which was given him in recognition of his gift to the city of Griffith Park, a tract of 4015 acres just outside the city boundaries on the San Fernando road.

Before sending his message to the Council Mayor Snyder requested Col. Griffith's resignation. This action resulted in instant protest from the attorneys of the accused man, and therefore warded the following spicy letter to the Mayor:

Hon. M. P. Snyder, Mayor—Dear Sir: We received by telephone this morning a request to us, as the attorneys for Col. G. J. Griffith, that he tender you his resignation as one of the Park Commissioners, and you wished a reply before the meeting of the Council this afternoon. We consider your request as a gross official impropriety, and an attempt in this hasty and semi-official way, to pre-judge Col. Griffith's case before there has been even a preliminary hearing. We have advised Col. Griffith not to comply with your request, and he will act on our advice.

Respectfully,
[Signed] CHARLES SILENT,
JOHN D. WORKS.
Attorneys for Col. G. J. Griffith.

Mayor Snyder plainly indicated in discussing the removal of Col. Griffith from the Park Commission that he considers the former commissioner insane and incapacitated for holding public office.

CONSOLIDATION.

PROPERTY QUESTIONS.

A meeting of the Consolidation Commission took place in the Council chamber at the City Hall last night, the entire evening being devoted to the consideration of the report of the Legislative Committee. Thomas C. Thornton and F. W. Houser had been appointed as a sub-committee to consolidate the Works bill and the Camp bill, this measure to be the one which will be presented at the meeting of the Legislature a year from next December. This "merged" bill was read and each section discussed in full. Many amendments were made and finally the bill was referred back to the Legislative Committee for redrafting. The committee on city charter revision was instructed to prepare a report to be submitted at the earliest possible date.

Some objection to the consolidation of the offices of City and County Treasurer were raised, and it is still undecided whether these offices will be included in the bill.

Under the present provisions of this bill, in the event of the sale of county property by the State after full title to land has been acquired by the lapse of five years of delinquency in taxes, the city would not get its share of the proceeds, and this point brought out the strongest debate of the evening. Walter F. Haas stood for the provision of the separate sale of city and county property, raising the point that whereas this city only provides that delinquent property shall be bought by the city, delinquent property in Pasadena, San Pedro, Monrovia and other towns may be bought by individuals. Judge Works contended that even though the provision of the charter did eliminate the city's share of the proceeds of delinquent sale, the city would save time and trouble which would be worth more than the money. Haas asserted that in one year over two thousand pieces of city property were decided to the city through delinquency. The measure was finally referred to Mr. Haas for amendment.

The Commission decided to change its meeting time back to Thursday evenings, and adjourned to meet a week from tomorrow. The following members were present: Chairman J. D. Works, E. V. Camp, F. G. Finlayson, H. W. Frank, W. F. Haas, F. W. Houser, H. G. Hubbard, T. C. Thornton and Secretary Clarence Thompson.

Fight in Engineer's Office.

E. D. Severance, a civil engineer with offices on Broadway, and Horace Taylor, chief draughtsman in the City Engineer's office, had an altercation yesterday over some profile maps and Taylor struck Severance a stinging blow over the left eye which gashed the scalp, causing a considerable flow of blood. The blood from the wound was spattered over the flagstones in the Engineer's outer office, in the corridor and down the first flight of stairs leading to the ground floor of the City Hall.

Severance entered the Engineer's office about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Robert Hale to see about some maps. Severance avers that he had reached an agreement with City Engineer Stafford regarding profiles and that Taylor refused to abide by the decision of his chief. Taylor declared that Severance would have to folow the strict letter of the law when dealing with the office and Severance informed Taylor that the latter was no czar. Some further words passed and Taylor jumped on the counter and hit the civil engineer a hard blow.

Severance swore to a warrant last night charging Taylor with assault and battery and the differences between the men will be threshed out in the Police Court.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

MRS. LUDINGTON TALKS OF MILLIONS.

WOMAN MINE PROMOTER MAKES ANSWER TO COMPLAINANT.

Declares She Will Prosecute Mrs. Bennett for Perjury and Has Valuable Mining Properties in Her Control, Ready for Development.

Two women are about to have an interesting scrap in court over a mining deal. As published in Sunday's Times Mrs. E. E. Bennett filed in the Superior Court, through her attorneys, Bowen & Miller, a complaint against Mrs. M. L. Ludington, a mining operator, alleging that Mrs. Ludington defrauded her out of $200 by selling her 5600 shares of stock in the Ludington Gold Mining and Milling Company at 10 cents a share, the balance of $200 to be paid at some future date not specified. Mrs. Bennett alleges that no such corporation existed when she paid the $360, on May 27 of this year; and she sues to recover this amount and the rescinding of the contract given by Mrs. Ludington in lieu of the shares which were to be delivered at a future date. Mrs. Bennett also says that she begged Mrs. Ludington to return the money and cancel the contract or produce the mining stock, and that she got a refusal.

Now comes Mrs. Ludington.

Mrs. Ludington has recently rented office rooms in the Johnson Building and talks as easily about million-dollar mining property as most women do about a new dress. She says that Mrs. Esther E. Bennett has been very particular to avoid the truth in all her statements, and that if the said Mrs. Bennett ever swears to them on the witness stand she will prosecute her for perjury. So there!

She says that she gave Mrs. Bennett a contract for the delivery of the stock when the company should be organized, the complaining woman being perfectly aware that no incorporation had yet been effected. She says that Mrs. Bennett never asked for the $360, for the shares or the rescinding of the contract.

Mrs. Ludington further claims that the mining company is in process of organization and that there are valuable properties in Sinaloa, Mex., controlled by her to back up any statement she may make.

Mrs. Bennett is a wealthy young woman who has been in Los Angeles nearly a year. Her husband is an automobile manufacturer of Minneapolis.

ANOTHER LAWYER.

MAD AT MRS. DRIGGS.

Mrs. Driggs has fallen out with another lawyer. Attorney Horace Appel, her firmest hope, is said to have abandoned her defense as a result of a quarrel which occurred at the Courthouse yesterday.

Mrs. Driggs was just coming out of Judge Wilbur's court with Appel when they began discussing something excitedly. The end of it was that Mrs. Driggs was requested to go chase herself.

All she said was, "Ain't he got a hasty temper, though?"

She has had trouble with every lawyer she had hired. No sooner does she employ one than she begins to suspect his good faith. During the Hill will case she accused each of her attorneys in turn of having sold out to the other side.

DIVORCE FOR GRIFFITHS

The next move in the Griffith case will be the filing of a suit for divorce by Mrs. Griffith, as was expected. Her attorneys have drawn the papers and expect to file them today. She will charge extreme cruelty.

WALTON "FESSED."

TOO NEAR MEXICO.

M. S. Walton was arraigned before Justice Young yesterday morning on the charge of embezzlement sworn to by Dana Burks of the Los Angeles City Directory Company, and his hearing was set for September 12. Walton was employed by the directory people as a collector and allowed "booze" to get the better of himself and his pocketbook on the night of July 9. He awoke the following morning to find that about $75 of the directory company's money was missing.

Walton "fessed up" to his stumble, and made the repentance plea. He was given a little amount of time in which to make good the shortage in accounts, but failed to come up with the coin. On his going to San Diego it was decided that the location was too near the border line, and he was arrested and brought back from that place Saturday.

ARTLESS JAP WAY.

MEAN HEATHEN.

Justice Young thought he was holding coast in "an isle of the eastern sea" yesterday afternoon. His sanctum sanctorum was filled to the doors with strange brown men from Japan, and the process of procuring testimony from the witnesses was like endeavoring to detect the tenor in a Dutch chorus. One little Jap has sworn to a complaint charging four other little Japs with brutal assault and extortion, having taken from him by force $12. The defendants claim that the Jap was compelled to dig up the $12, but that no force was used, merely verbal persuasion, and that the money was duly forthcoming, as the Jap had stolen a watch, and when threatened with arrest had consented to pay $12 as part payment for the same. Not parting with his hard earned $12 sooner enough, he was compelled to yield up by the four respondents, who went to his tent, pulled him out, and, as he claims, punched him and kicked him. Whereupon he turned the tables on the quartette by having them all arrested.

When one of the little brown men was called to the witness stand and a question was asked by the court, they all tried to answer it at once, and altogether the judge had a lovely time. The case was continued for further hearing tomorrow.

HOLLYWOOD INCORPORATION.

WAS ONLY DISCUSSED.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, the matter of boundary lines in connection with the incorporation of Hollywood as a city of the sixth class, for which application has been made, was taken up. Representatives from the Laurel and Pass school districts were present with objections against splitting up those districts. The facts were brought out that parts of Assembly Districts 74 and 75 are included by the proposed boundary lines, and some residents of the mountainous districts which have been included objected to coming in. The Colegrove contingent objected to the boundary going south of Sunset boulevard.

All of these objections were taken under advisement, and the board will arrange to make a visit to Hollywood in the near future.

The contention over the eligibility of the Journal as a paper of general circulation for the printing of county advertising was referred to the District Attorney's office.

The board was advised by a statement from the District Attorney not to order the issuance of the proposed $6000 San Pedro school bonds, because of insufficiency of notice.

The meeting adjourned to meet tomorrow, at which time the tax rate will be fully discussed and probably decided upon.

COURT NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

INCORPORATED. Articles of incorporation were filed by the Monrovia Telephone and Telegraph Company, with a capital stock of $50,000, of which $5000 has been subscribed. Monrovia is stated as its place of business, and the incorporators and directors are as follows, holding equal amount of stock: D. E. Juvinall, H. H. Juvinall, M. Juvinall, C. O. Monroe and George McLaughlin.

CRAZY CORDELL. George Cordell, the dairyman of Long Beach who tried to shoot that town full of holes not long ago, and who was arrested on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon was yesterday committed to Highland Insane Asylum by Judge Wilbur.

IN THE INFERIOR COURTS.

GRIFFITH WAS DULY ARRAIGNED YESTERDAY.

HAD TWO ATTORNEYS TO REPRESENT HIM IN COURT.

Charge Against Him is Read and His Preliminary Examination is Set for October Second—Little Son Comes to Court With Him.

At the end of a long list of petty offenders at the Police Court appears this item: "G. J. Griffith, ass. to murd., Oct. 2."

He was arraigned yesterday, and what will probably be the most sensational prosecution in Los Angeles courts began in a very tame fashion.

An arraignment for a felony is not an exciting proceeding. It merely consisted yesterday of the police justice informing two of the best known lawyers in California that Col. Griffith has the constitutional right to a defense against the accusation.

Griffith came to Justice Chambers' court yesterday morning a little before the time set for arraignment. With him were his young son and a boy friend of the latter.

Col. Griffith was cordial to some one of whom he casually inquired the way to court. Once there, he sat for perhaps five minutes until Justice Chambers and his own lawyers, John D. Works, Esq., and Charles Silent, Esq., came in. Each took a seat at his side.

When Justice Chambers called up the case, and informed Griffith of his right to counsel, the latter said that his lawyers were with him and introduced the two. They courteously acknowledged the presence of the Court by a wave of the hand, and that was about all there was to it.

Chief Deputy District Attorney James, who represented the State, asked to have the revolver with which the shooting was done taken from the custody of the proprietor of the Arcadia Hotel and given into the hands of the District Attorney or some other public officer. This was at once consented to.

"When do you want the examination?" asked the Court.

Attorney Silent said Col. Griffith was ready for examination as soon as the State was. Mr. James said the State would like to have about three weeks' time. This was also consented to. October 2 is the date set.

The charge having been read and the bond deposited, Col. Griffith left the court room.

BANK CLEARINGS. The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearing house today were $1,111,809.32, as compared with (holiday) for the corresponding period of last year, and $611,-643 for the same date, 1901.

BANKING CHANGES. Attention has recently directed to the changes which have taken place in the banking business as a result of the industrial consolidations of the past few years. Before these consolidations took place, it was customary for the manufacturing interests in the different cities and towns of the United States to secure their credit requirements from the banks of the localities in which they were situated. But with the combination of industry into a comparatively few large companies, there has been brought about this condition of affairs, viz., that these companies obtain their credit requirements in lump sums from banking institutions in the central reserve cities, these institutions in many cases being those with which these companies are, to some measure, affiliated by ties of common financial interests. The country banks deprived of much of the business which they otherwise enjoyed, have been compelled to send their money to New York for profitable employment in loans on stock collateral and mercantile paper. In many cases they have invested largely in bonds. This explains two or three of the phenomena of the past few years, the heavy loaning in New York and interior institutions, the exception of big banks and chains of banks to provide for the large loans required by the organizations and consolidation of trusts, and the increase in security investments by the banks all over the country.

But all this is working out another change that has not been so apparent to the others. It appears that many of the banking institutions in the interior cities, deprived as they have been, of former customers, by the growth of the great combinations, are now loaning money to new companies that are being organized in opposition to the trusts. In this way they are fostering new concerns which may in time grow to be powerful competitors of the trusts. A subscriber of the Wall Street Journal recently supplied us with the names of six companies organized in a single city, a thriving western town, whose banks are fostering these new concerns in their competition with several of the leading trusts of the country.

If the interior banks are engaged in fostering substantial encouragement to new industrial companies, the effect of this movement cannot fail to be of the utmost importance. The new companies thus organized will, no doubt, be largely employed in supplying the constantly increasing consumption of the country, but they will also inevitably make inroads upon the business of the trusts. In this way the problem of the trusts is likely to be solved, naturally, even without legislative and executive action. The chief peril of the trusts has been the danger of a monopoly in restraint of trade, but if the interior banks are thus giving aid and encouragement to the organization of all competitors, this danger will be practically removed. It may be said that at least one of the great trusts has recognized the significance of this movement, and so far as concerns its own endeavoring, in some measure, to head it off by borrowing from the banks in the city where most of its mills are situated, several millions of dollars, although there is no need of maintaining any such floating indebtedness. But it prefers to give employment to the funds of the banks in the city, rather than have them used for the benefit of any competing concerns that might be organized.—[Wall Street Journal.

COMMERCIAL.

BROOMS GO UP. Broom manufacturers have just announced an advance of 25 cents a dozen to the wholesaler. The scarcity of broom corn is offered as a reason, but nothing is said regarding the proposed broom combine and its method of cornering the broom corn market. This was tried several years ago, and some of the broom corn is still on sale. As to the new combine, the time is rather optimistic regarding its success.—[New York Commercial.

NUTS IN NEW YORK. The demand for nuts is more active. The price of Brazil nuts at producing points has been cleared, and with heavier demand here prices have advanced. Almonds are steady and in good demand. There has been a most unusual demand for walnuts owing to the short supply. Prices are firm and mixed nuts are moving freely. One firm says: "The price of walnuts here is much reduced as compared in France. We will not have any crop until certain of quality at time of shipment. The demand for soft shelled almonds is active. New Tarragonas and Ivics. also will not be shipped from abroad until the end of September, and arrive the end of October." Pecans are firm and a firm was offered a round lot at 7½ cents, but do not. Now they are negotiating for same lot at 8 cents. Pecans are firm and under unfavorable crop reports from all the producing sections a better market is looked for. The price of pecans increases, and each year more and more are used. Meanwhile one or three years of unfavorable crops have reduced available supplies materially.

ABOUT APPLES. A. S. Greenway, general manager of E. A. O'Kelly & Co., just returned to New York from a two weeks' trip in the Coast, says: "The apple crop is good out there. Ripening will be of good size. Packing will be of good size. Packers are paying attention to grading and are better packing. This season will see a great improvement over the past three or four years in these respects. Oregon fruit in vicinity of Portland and Central Point is fine. Yellow Newtown Pippins not so full, but show well. Pears, Bartlett, Clairgeaus, etc., in fine condition. Prices ruled by growers are high."

APRICOT PRICES. Says the New York Commercial: Interesting information comes in mail advices from the coast. It is reported that apricot prices have advanced from 1 cents to 2 cents, and that prune prices have been cleared, and that while the 3-cent four-size basis, and 3 cents for 3½ cents, with no premium for large sizes. Some effective work has been done in getting growers to ask for higher prices. Moreover, the California Fruit Exchange has made arrangements to handle either fresh or dried fruits in any of the cities where it has an agency. Orders for fruit are being taken for delivery at a usual time at prices to be made later, but the writer of the letter does not say that the price will be higher than has yet been offered. Growers are complaining about the speculators who are attempting to depress prices through the East. There are but few who say they have not felt the effect of this influence at this time. A strong effort is being made to overcome this objectionable feature of the fruit business. Accordingly, considerably more independent action may be expected among apricot and prune growers than ever before.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

CITRUS-FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of citrus fruits from Southern California on Saturday, Sunday and Monday were 21 carloads of oranges

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, Los Angeles, Sept. 8, 1903.

FINANCIAL.

BANK CLEARINGS. The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearing house today were $1,111,806.35, as compared with (holiday) for the corresponding period of last year, and $611,-946 for the same date, 1901.

BANKING CHANGES. Attention was recently directed to the changes which have taken place in the banking business as a result of the industrial consolidations of the past few years. When these consolidations took place, it was customary for the manufacturers in the different cities and towns of the United States to secure their credit requirements from the banks of the localities in which they were situated. But with the combination of industry and a comparatively few large combinations, there has been brought about this condition of affairs, viz., that these companies obtain their credit requirements in lump sums from banking institutions in the central reserve cities, these institutions in many cases being identified with these companies are, to a large measure, affiliated by ties of common financial interests. The country banks deprived of much of the business which they otherwise enjoyed, have been compelled to send their money to New York for profitable employment in loans on stock collateral and mercantile paper. In many cases the funds have invested largely in stocks. This explains two or three of the phenomena of the past few years, the heavy loaning in New York by interior institutions, the creation of big banks and chains of banks to provide for the large loans required by the organizations and operation of trusts, and the increase in security investments by the banks all over the country.

But all this is working out another change that has not been so apparent to the others. It appears that many of the banking institutions in the interior are deprived as they have been, of their customers, by the growth of the large combinations, are now loaning money to new companies that are being organized in opposition to the trusts. In this way they are fostering the very forces which may in time grow into powerful competitors of the trusts. A subscriber of the Wall Street Journal recently supplied us with the names of six companies organized in one city, a thriving western town, where banks are fostering these new concerns in their competition with several of the leading trusts of the country.

If the interior banks are engaged in receiving substantial encouragement from industrial companies, the effect of this movement cannot fail to be of great economic importance. The new companies organized will, no doubt, be largely employed in supplying the constantly increasing consumption of the country, but they will also inevitably have a reflex action upon the business of the trusts, and in this way the problem of trust control is likely to be solved, naturally, and even without legislative and executive action. The chief peril of the trusts has been the danger of a monopoly or restraint of trade, but if the interior banks are thus giving aid and encouragement to the organization of rival competitors, thus danger will be largely removed. It may be said that one of the great trusts has realized the significance of this movement, and so far as concerns its interior endeavoring, in some measure, to head it off by borrowing from banks in the city where most of its plants are situated, several millions of dollars, although there is no need of it in obtaining any such floating indebtedness. But it prefers to give encouragement to the funds of the banks in the city, rather than have them used for the benefit of any competing combination that might be organized.—[Wall Street Journal.

BROOMS GO UP. Broom manufacturers have just announced an advance of 25 cents a dozen to the wholesaler. The scarcity of broom corn is offered as the reason, but nothing is said regarding the new patented broom combine and its method of cornering the broom corn crop. This was tried several years ago, and some of the broom corn is still on hand. As to the new combine, the trade is rather optimistic regarding its success.—[New York Commercial.

NUTS IN NEW YORK. The demand for nuts is more active. The stocks of small nuts at producing points are cleared, and with heavier demand prices have advanced. Almonds are steady and in good demand. There has been a most unusual demand for walnuts owing to the short supply. Prices are firm and mixed nuts are scarce and dearer. One firm says: "The stock of walnuts here is much reduced as compared to a year ago. Stocks in France. We will not be able to say until certain of quality at time of shipment. The demand for Brazil and shelled almonds is active. Tarragona and Ivica almonds will not be shipped from abroad until the end of September, and arrive about the end of October." Pecans are also firm. The firm was offered a round lot of mixed nuts a year ago at 7½ cents, but declined it, as they are negotiating for them at 8 cents. Pecans are also held under unfavorable crop reports from all producing sections a year ago. The market is predicted. The popularity of pecans increases, and each year more are used. Meanwhile two or three years of unfavorable crops have reduced available supplies materially.

COAST APPLES. A. S. Greenway, manager of E. A. O'Kelly & Co., has returned to New York from a visit under trip on the Coast, says: "The apple crop is good out there. Pippins will be of good size. Packers are paying attention to grading and packing. This season will be a great improvement over the last. One or four years in these regions. Oregon fruit in vicinity of Hood and Central Point, is fine. The Pippins not so full, but show fine. Bartletts, Clairgeaus, etc., in fine condition. Prices ruled by growers are high."

APRICOT PRICES. Says the New York Commercial: Interesting information in mail advices from the Coast. It is reported that apricot prices advanced from 3 cents to 4 cents, and that prune prices have risen to the 1-cent four-size basis, and to 3½ cents, with no premium for large sizes. Some effective work has been done in getting growers to stand for higher prices. Moreover, the Fresh Fruit Exchange has made arrangements to handle either fresh or dried fruits in any of the cities where it has an agency. Orders for Eastern delivery at 1 cent per pound have been taken for delivery at the rate of 1 cent per pound. The writer of the letter declares that the price will be higher than has been offered. Growers are complaining about the speculators who are attempting to depress prices through the East. There are but few of them, they have not felt the effect of this influence at this time. A strong effort is being made to overcome objectionable feature of the dried fruit business. Accordingly, considerably more independent action may be taken about apricot and prune prices than ever before.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

DRIED FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of dried fruits from Southern California on Saturday, Sunday and Monday were 35 carloads of oranges and 3 of lemons. The total shipments for the season, from November 1, 1902, to date, are 21,356 carloads, of which number 3533 carloads are lemons.

FLORIDA ORANGES. Florida orange growers are protesting to the Packer against the estimate recently made by J. S. Arnold, the Jacksonville broker, putting the Florida crop for 1903-04 at 2,165,000 boxes. Many claim this is fully 500,000 boxes too high, while others say 1,500,000 is the outside figure.

NEW NAME ANNOUNCED. It is now officially announced that the West Coast Produce Company has succeeded to the business of the W. C. Patterson Company. The change of name does not involve a different ownership from that which has prevailed for some months. It has been thought, however, that the present owners, having made a settlement with Mr. Patterson, should decide upon a change of name.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

Business was reported good in local produce circles today (Tuesday,) and many orders were handled in anticipation of the legal holiday tomorrow (Admission Day,) when all produce jobbers and dealers will close at 12 o'clock noon. Considering the season of the year, there is not a man to be found in the produce business who is finding fault with trade. Conditions are reported excellent, although the usual early September disturbances have caused some alarm in the line of ranch and dairy products. The situation now, however, has been thoroughly studied by the majority of dealers in unison, and it is thoroughly understood.

Ranch eggs for several days past have been exhibiting a marked tendency to advance, and at the morning call of the Produce Exchange prices were marked up. The trend is still upward. The official quotations now stand 24@29 cents for candied stock, with receipts light and subject to severe candling. Eastern eggs have also advanced, standing now for fancy at 26@27 cents, and for choice at 24@25 cents. Among themselves dealers ask 27 cents, case-count, for ranch, 25 cents for candied, 25 cents for eastern candled, and 22 cents for case count.

Cheese is firm; eastern steadily held.

Potatoes in excellent demand for fancy stock, which continues scarce; other grades plentiful at wide range of prices.

Onions slow; yellow Danvers supply most of the demand.

Vegetables in good supply and demand.

Dealers paying little attention to fresh fruit just now; the country is being scoured by brokers for carload lots.

Comb honey rather freely offered.

Watermelons and cantaloupes bring good prices for firm stock; considerable complaint about over-ripeness. Fresh fruits are selling well.

Flour firm. Northern advices state that supplies are lighter than for a long time past, with further reduction probably at hand.

Poultry of all kinds in good demand, with young stock a favorite and supplies none too plentiful.

Demand for fish fair; halibut scarce; barracuda in light supply; small fish fair. The salmon season will close for a month beginning Thursday. Tomorrow, therefore, is the last day for this kind of fresh fish.

Hay and grain firm.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Unusual dullness, even for this period of the year, characterized today's stock market. Business was entirely lacking, and the volume of business was disappointingly small in view of the triple holiday and the apparent intimation of the Secretary of the Treasury to relieve any strain on the movement of currency. Last week's buying of Atchison shares was resumed, and some activity was shown by Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Rock Island and Wabash preferred. The early afternoon brought a movement in several of the specialties, North American advancing 2¼; Colorado Fuel, 2¼; Consolidated Gas, 1¼. No significance attached to the advance in these shares. Some of the early selling of Amalgamated Copper was traced to houses with Boston connections. The stock closed at the lowest figure for the day, in spite of an advance in the price of the metal at home and abroad. In the final hour, there was some short selling of such stocks as St. Paul, Atchison, Rock Island, the western group generally and Brooklyn Transit. The market closed dull and heavy. The feature of the foreign exchange market was the appearance, for the first time this year, of bills covering shares of specie. These did not appear, however, in quantities sufficient to weaken the market, which held firm. But the fact that such bills were released was taken to mark the beginning of a larger export movement for that staple. Exchange brokers for weeks past have been looking forward to the inauguration of this movement, as affording the best basis for depressing the sterling market to a level where gold could be used as a form of remittance. Locally, the monetary situation was unchanged. Additional gold imports from Europe are expected and further payments, for account of gold deposited at San Francisco were made by the subtreasury. The bond market was narrow and showed some irregularity in the early dealings. Total sales, $1,825,000. United States new 4s declined ½ per cent, and the 2s ¾ per cent on the last call.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Wheat was strong at the opening today, affected by bad weather in the Northwest, December being 1 to ¼ lower, at 67½@67¾. There was but little rallying power, and the close was but a shade above the bottom at 67¼@67⅜, a loss of ½ to ¾ from Friday's final figures. News from the corn belt today was extremely bearish. The December option sold off from 52 at the opening to 50¾, steadying a trifle at the close, at 51¼. Oats were influenced to some extent by the weakness in corn. December closed ¼ lower, at 27@27¼. Near deliveries in provisions were strong. The demand was sufficient to hold prices, with the exception of pork, which, due to the weakness in corn, showed a loss. The close was 5c lower for October pork. Lard was up 12½@15, and ribs 22½@25 cents higher.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

BIG FAMILY SWINDLE CHARGED AT COLTON.

L. F. MOREHOUSE AND WIFE CAUGHT WITH LOADS OF GOODS.

Arrested on Eve of Departure, After Securing Much Merchandise on Credit. Charge Against Boxall Not Changed. Native Sons' Celebration Today.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 8.—L. F. Morehouse and wife were arrested last night at Colton and lodged in jail charged with obtaining merchandise under false pretenses. The couple, with a family of children, came to Colton several months ago and indicated their intention to settle there and build a handsome house. An option was taken on a choice corner lot, which fact being noised abroad, it became easy for the couple to secure large quantities of goods on credit.

The money from the East that was longed for never came, and the merchants' suspicions were aroused. Constable Bagley discovered that the Morehouses had shipped boxes and trunks East, and had purchased tickets for Iowa. Their arrest followed. Their trunks were attached and were found to be packed with dress goods and other merchandise of value, which had been obtained on credit from local merchants.

BOXALL TRIAL NOT SET.

Today was the date set for the case of William Boxall, charged with an attempt to murder his uncle, Charles R. Lloyd, to be set for trial. As Judge Oster and the attorneys were out of town nothing was done. Unless the District Attorney receives more definite information that Lloyd died in China as the result of the wounds inflicted by Boxall, he will not change the present charge against Boxall. According to the advices which the District Attorney has received, from Attorney Goodfellow of San Francisco, Lloyd died of an acute attack of heart trouble, to which he was subject.

In speaking of the case today Dist.-Atty. Sprecher said:

"According to the advices from Mr. Goodfellow, Mr. Lloyd's death did not result from the wounds, although they might have weakened the nervous system. The direct cause of the death, it seems, was an attack of heart trouble, and unless expert tstimony provs otherwise I shall not change the charge against Boxall."

BERDOO BIEFS.

J. H. Whitfield, a miner from the desert, has appealed to the police for assistance in locating George Curry, who, he believes has met with foul play. Whitfield and Curry came in from the desert on Sunday and engaged rooms at the same hotel. Since Sunday evening Whitfield has seen nothing of Curry, who was ill and came here principally to receive medical attention. He had about $50 in his possession. He was not a drinking man, and had no bad habits.

"Old Jed" Hilburns, the oldest patient at the County Hospital—he has been there ten years—is on the verge of death. He has been a chronic sufferer and is dying from rheumatism, age and general debility.

Everything is inreadiness for the Native Sons' celebration at Urbita Springs tomorrow. A balloon ascension and double parachute jump will be one of the evening's attractions. Most of the stores will be closed at noon.

DAGGETT.

SALT LAKERS START BOOM.

DAGGETT, Sept. 7.—This usually quiet little desert town is now enjoying an unprecedented boom. Restaurants and lodging-houses are taxed to their utmost capacity, and some people are sleeping out of doors. The cause of this activity is the arrival here of the construction outfits of the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad. The latest to arrive is the camp of the John H. Norton Construction Company of Los Angeles, which came in yesterday, consisting of 150 men, six carloads of implements and supplies, and four carloads of horses. It is in charge of General Manager John T. Long. On Wednesday morning a larger number of men will arrive. Then active work on the first 150 miles of roadbed to the north will commence.

The town is rapidly filling up with strangers, including the usual complement of gamblers, confidence men and bunmers. The three saloons are keeping open all night, and the pool and billiard tables nightly serve as beds for many of the new arrivals.

UPLAND.

SATISFACTORY CITRUS SEASON.

UPLAND, Sept. 8.—At a meeting of the Ontario-Cucamonga Fruit Exchange, Saturday, Manager B. A. Woodford reported shipments for the year ending August 31 amounting to 1400 cars, or 413,568 1-2 boxes. There were 1142 cars of oranges and 258 of lemons. The net receipts in cash were over $665,000. This makes an average per car of $475, and per box of $1.35, f.o.b., for every box shipped of all grades, sizes and varieties of oranges, lemons and grape fruit.

Considering that 46 per cent. of the navel oranges, of which 960 cars were shipped, were off-largo sizes and also owing to exceptional climatic conditions of the past year the quality was unusually poor, the results to the growers are very satisfactory.

The directors considering various improvements in the method of preparing the fruit for market the coming season, when the very large crop now on the trees, estimated at 2500 cars, will tax present packing facilities to their utmost capacity. The California Fruit Agency has the unqualified indorsement of the Exchange.

The Mountain View Orange and Lemon Growers' Association held its annual meeting Saturday and elected the following directors: B. K. Brant, John N. Huehn, Daniel Gibler, Chas. B. Ford, G. A. Hauson, W. S. Palmer, Secretary and manager. The board organized by reelecting B. K. Brant president and John N. Huehn vice-president. A resolution was passed at the stockholder's meeting indorsing the methods of the California Fruit Agency.

SANTA ANA.

ELECTRIC ROAD VERY SOON.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 8.—The first definite announcement as to the time of building the Pacific Electric Company's road between Santa Ana and Los Angeles was made at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this evening, when Mr. Branch of the corps of engineers stated that his company stood ready to strat active construction within thirty days after the right-of-way had been secured, and also that the entire double-track road would be completed within a year later. In accordance with a recent offer of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Branch appeared before them tonight to ask their aid in securing right-of-way concessions through the Garden Grove and adjacent districts, where the road has been announced to run. The chamber, in conjunction with the city trustees, will hold a mass meeting at Garden Grove Saturday evening to further the project. Circular letters to property-owners will be sent out tomorrow, and it is anticipated that little difficulty will be experienced in gaining the right-of-way for the early building of the Santa Ana-Los Angeles Electric air line.

FOURTH GAS WORKS FIRE.

A fire alarm was turned in at 2:45 this afternoon from the Santa Ana gas works on Sycamore street, a vigorous blaze, which started in some waste oil on the engine-room floor, was soon extinguished by the fire company. The operation of the plant was not interrupted, and the lass was light. Engineer George Lowry was severely burned about the arms in an effort to exstinguish the flames with a hand grenade before the fire company arrived. This same building has suffered by fire four times within a few years.

FIGHTING SOCIAL CLUB.

The Santa Ana Social Club is meeting trouble in its infancy. Two kegs of beer were shipped to it from Maier & Zobelein's Brewery in Los Angeles. R. S. Dickinson, a truckman, brought one keg addressed to J. Gerkin, on his truck to the clubrooms back of the Rossmore Hotel this morning. Marshal Maxwell arrested Dickinson, who was merely employed to carry the goods for the club, on a charge of illegally transporting liquor, and seized the booze. Dickinson gave bond to appear for trial at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning.

ORANGETTES.

Fred Opp was playing around the freight cars at the Santa Fé depot this morning, and accidentally caught his right army on the side of the car so that he broke it below the elbow. Bystanders were attracted by his cries, and secured medical attendance. Fred lost an arm and an eye three years ago in a Fourth of July explosion.

Edwardo Acosta today filed an application with the County Clerk for a divorce from Antonia B. Acosta.

Robert Moffitt and Will McGreavey engaged in a scrap on September 1, and Moffitt pleaded guilty to a battery charge, and was fined $5. McGreavey was brought before Justice Smithwick this morning, and paid but $1 for his share in the affair.

Long and short-felt wants, or any old wants promptly filled by putting a "Liner" in The Times. Rate 1 cent a word each insertion. Telephone your wants to Main 28, and our Santa Ana Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

ANAHEIM.

CANNERY KEPT BUSY.

ANAHEIM, Sept. 8.—The cannery has been running the past week on grapes, pears, tomatoes and late peaches. Peaches are about finished. Pears are being put up in considerable quantity, the factory taking all it can get at one cent a pound. Grapes may be put up in considerable quantity, the experiment made with them last season here having proved very satisfactory. So far about 1000 cans have been put up. Tomatoes will begin to come in heavy next week. Delivery to date has been light, though a run of 3000 cans was made in three hours during the past week.

The Presbyterian congregation has decided to spend $2000 remodeling their church. One of the changes will be to make the entrance on Cypress instead of Los Angeles street.

Fred Conrad has gone to San Francisco to begin taking a three years' course in electrical engineering.

Mrs. O. Berman of San Francisco and daughter, Irma, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartung.

Frank Dyer has returned from a six week's outing at Anaheim Landing.

Prof. Little, who was principal of the school here for seven years, is here from Los Angeles on a visit.

S. O. Stevens, a Los Angeles traveling man, has purchased the John Kayander property at West Anaheim.

Arrangements have been made to organize a Masonic lodge at Buena Park.

Mrs. J. W. Spielman is seriously ill.

Mrs. Vicente Yorba has commenced a new eight-room residence at Peralta.

LONG OVERDUE POWER WORRIES RIVERSIDE.

ELECTRIC COMPANY INDIFFERENT ABOUT CONTRACT WITH CITY.

Rumor that Agreement May Not be Fulfilled is Strenuously Denied, However—Some Property Owners' Complaints on Assessments Likely to be Costly.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 8.—A persistent rumor is afloat to the effect that the Riverside Power Company, which is establishing an extensive plant in the "Narrows" of the Santa Ana River southwest of the city, is not so eager as might be expected to hang onto its once earnestly-solicited contract to supply the city of Riverside with a stipulated amount of electrical power. The City Trustees entered into a contract at once with the company to purchase the "juice," the same to be developed and delivered within a specified time—already elapsed by several months. Mr. Pedley, representing the power company, has asked for and been granted several extensions of time for the completion of the work. His last request was for an additional fifteen days. He was granted five days. He said the work couldn't possibly be completed in that space of time. The Trustees drove to the scene of action, to see what had been done and what was doing. The next day they told Mr. Pedley to go ahead with the work, and when he was ready to deliver the electricity to the city, then they would talk business with him. The city holds a $5000 bond as a guarantee of the faithful fulfillment of the contract on the part of the company. Whether the company desires to fulfill the contract, and whether, if it deos not, the bond will hold good, are the questions at issue. It was a long time before the power company succeeded in placing its bonds. Eventually, the bonds were placed with the Edison Electric Company, it is said. This corporation, it is further stated, has contracted to furnish H. E. Huntington power for his new double-track electric road to Corona, and southward, at a figure considerably in advance of the terms embodied in the contract with the city. Hence the possible willingness of the power company to sever said contract.

C. W. Rogers and W. E. Pedley of the Power Company deny emphatically the truth of the rumor. Rogers says the story is "all rot." Secretary Pedley says, "No negotiations have ever been entered into between our company and the Pacific Electric Company or the Edison Electric Company, nor is there any chance or probability of such negotiations. Equally false is the statement that work on the company's ditch has been purposely delayed, and that power could not be delivered for some months to come. As a matter of fact, one of our machines is connected up and we could, if required, deliver power tomorrow. The last bit of cementing was done on our canal yesterday, and our equipment is in readiness for immediate operation."

SAN FELIPES TRANSFERED.

The transfer of the San Felipe Ranch Indians to their new home was completed yesterday. The San Felipe tribe has been in the same situation as were the Warner's Ranch Indians, the claims of certain ranchers to their lands having been sustained by the courts and the department at Washington. It was stipulated that the same judgment be entered in their case as in the case of the Warner's Ranch Indians. When the latter tribe was forced to move a demand was made by the ranchers for the lands occupied by the San Felipe tribe. The transfer was made under direction of Indian Agent L. A. Wright, and was without incident. The transfer occupied three and a half days.

A BOOMERANG.

County Assessor Montague's trip to Sacramento last week may prove a boomerang to some of the Riverside property-owners who sent him there. The Supervisors named Dist.-Atty. Evans and Auditor Clancy to appear before the State Board of Equalization to show cause why the county assessment should not be raised. The old, but now defunct, political push, headed by George Ford, wasn't satisfied, so it sent Assessor Montague north, armed with a typewritten document, setting forth that the signers: to-wit, George Frost, and officers and stockholders of the Riverside Water Company and the Riverside Trust Company, in large part, desired that Montague, and Montague only, should represent their interests. When Mr. Montague got before the State Board the weight of his argument was to the effect that Mr. Frost and most of the other signers to the typewritten document, own lage property interests in San Bernardino, Tulare and other counties, which are assessed much lower than their like interests in Riverside county. This "butting in" business caused the members of the Board of Equalization and the assessors present from the other counties referred to, to prick up their ears, and it is likely that the outside holdings of Mr. Frost et al. will receive due attention when the next assessment is made.

BAD MAN MEAD HERE.

William Mead, one of the advance guard of the fall and winter supply of bad men, is locked in the city jail and will probably be "vagged." He has been "macking" recently, but his past record justifies expectations of burglaries and hold-ups. Mead has a unique alias. He is called "The Christ Kid," because he used to frequent prayer meetings and revivals and take such an active part that a person might have thought he was on the high road to being a parson. He achieved notoriety several years ago by breaking away handcuffed from Capt. Bradish and Detective Steele and outrunning them. He was captured later. After a few months he was arrested in San Diego on a burglary charge, convicted and sent to San Quentin for a five spot. Before the Sheriff got him there Mead broke away and was captured after several days in the northern part of the State. He is just back from serving his sentence.

TWO LEADERS.

We have two comparatively new styles of Furniture which are in reality a century old.

A horseman would call them a "cross match." They travel about alike, but look entirely different. They make a good team. Old Hickory Furniture, made of hickory poles in Indiana, where they grow in profusion, and "Arts and Crafts" Furniture, which suggests barrel staves joined with iron hoops.

Ugly as these two descriptions may sound, yet there is refined art in each style. They are designed especially for use in summer homes, beach cottages, lawns, hotels and all public places. They are durable and comparatively inexpensive.

CAUGHT IN PASSING.

The Pasadena Medical Society met last evening at the Board of Trade room to consider the city's milk supply. Drs. Rowland and McBride reported their investigation. While they found no unclean dairies and no gross cases of adulteration of milk, they recommended that the city pass an ordinance of a precautionary nature, similar to that of New York, demanding that milk delivered here be of certain quality and stability.

Health Officer Buchanan and Meat Inspector Rowland have returned from Catalina, where they inspected the incineration plant to get ideas for the one this city is to have. It cost for the island cost $4000 and consumes 125 gallons of oil a day. A man

PASADENA PRODUCES HILL WILL CLAIMANT.

WASHINGTON WOMAN WRITES THAT HIS NAME WAS BATH.

He Stabbed a Man and Ran Away. Gwynedyke-Morehous Engagement Announced—Suction Causes Nearly-Fatal Accident—City Hall Troubles.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, 36 South Raymond avenue, Sept. 8. Charles Hill, the old miser who died in Los Angeles leaving $142,000 and a lot of people to fight over it, seems to have had an unlimited acquaintance with people who knew him for some-[illegible] day else.

Mrs. W. R. Clark of North Los Robles avenue, wife of the former secretary of the Board of Trade, has received a letter from Mrs. K. S. Turpin of Washington, D. C., which reveals strange incidents in the life of Hill, whether the same Hill or not. Mrs. Turpin insists that he is the same, and with Mr. and Mrs. Clark declare that she is not a woman to misrepresent or jump at vague conclusions. The Clarks are well with her in Washington for a year and became well acquainted. Mrs. Turpin owns a large establishment in the national capital city. In her letter Mrs. Clark Mrs. Turpin says:

"I have just received your papers from an account of the will left by Charles Hill. It is another piece of work. Charles Hill is my own mother's only brother. When he left my mother's home he left under very serious trouble for he had stabbed a man, and had to keep in hiding until he could leave. If he had been caught it would have gone hard with him. When he left here was not allowed to call him by his own name.

"When he left he told my mother he never would be known by the name of Bath. He went away under the name of Charles Hill. He was heard from the last time at San Francisco. He still used the name of Charles Hill. He signed his name to all letters, Charles Hill. The lawyers know all about it. My uncle was Samuel S. Bath. I would like to go to California if I were able, but I am so tired I can hardly write it. I have no grit left.

"I wish Mr. Clark would tell some of the lawyers about this case. We had a lawyer by the name of Freeman, but I heard he was doing nothing for our case. They own that we have a good case. Our lawyer went to California and they gave him hope that we were all right. The reason we took the case was that we knew our uncle was dead, and that name, but his right name is Samuel S. Bath. He carried a lot of money away with him. He always had money. The woman in New York is a fraud."

SOCIETY ENGAGEMENT.

An engagement of considerable interest in Pasadent society has just been announced. It is that of Miss Vera Morehous, daughter of Col. and Mrs. L. P. Morehous of South Orange Grove, boulevard, to Edward H. Groendyke, secretary of the Los Angeles Trust company, who resides at Hotel Maryland. Miss Morehous is one of Pasadena's most popular society girls and a lady of accomplishments and beauty. Mr. Groendyke is a long-time resident, having lived here more than a year with his uncle, E. Groendyke, the real estate dealer. Rumor has connected the name of Mr. Groendyke with that of Miss Morehouse's some time past, but the announcement of the engagement has been withheld. The date of the wedding has not been given out.

UNIQUE ACCIDENT.

The first accident of its kind ever witnessed in the streets of Pasadena occurred yesterday afternoon near Maple street, on the electric railway. A Greek, George Zaras, a Greek who has a broken jaw, a badly bruised face and a bruised chest. He will recover, but his injuries are severe.

Zaras was seated on the brake of a car which was going at a rapid rate. There was nothing else on the car save two loose 1¼-inch planks that were lying innocently nearby. A passenger car traveling at a high rate of speed, approached and passed the westbound train, and the suction caused the two fast trains lifted up one of the planks and hurled it into the face and against his chest. He was knocked off the brake wheel and to the floor of the car, unconscious. He bled profusely, he was picked up by Dr. Rowland, the company's physician, was summoned and had him taken to the Sisters' Hospital in Los Angeles.

CITY HALL TROUBLES.

Officials thought when they accepted the City Hall and moved their offices into it that the troubles of the city were over, but it looks as though the end is not yet. At yesterday's meeting of the Council Contractors Myers & Kildredge presented a bill for $1444.78, for extra work not provided for in the plans and specifications. The Council decided to allow a portion of the claim as Architect Brown approved, and the architect refuses to approve the whole bill. So it's up to the claimants to appeal to the Council, as the contract provides, or leave the city. Maybe there will be a fight on the new City Hall.

The biggest item in the contractors' bill is for rebuilding a portion of the wall on the Union-street side that is not regarded as substantial. It amounts to $695. Brown vetoes this and several minor ons, to the total amount of $1,000.65.

It was the last meeting that the Council will hold in the old hall, and all said they were glad of it. In the new one may be fit to sit in, they appointed T. C. Beal as janitor at $20 per month. There were several other bidders who had too extravagant ideas of the honors and remuneration of the office.

A resolution was read for the first time calling for the paving with concrete and asphaltum of Raymond avenue, between Holly and Chestnut streets.

PRETTY ENGAGEMENT.

The announcement of considerable interest in student society has just been made. It is that of Miss Vera Bedford, daughter of Col. and Mrs. C. F. Holmes of South Orange Grove avenue, to Edward H. Groendyke, son of the Los Angeles Trust Company, who resides at the Hotel Maryland. Miss Morehouse is one of Pasadena's most popular society girls and a girl of accomplishment and beauty. Groendyke is a long-time resident, having lived here more than a year with his uncle, E. Groendyke, the real estate dealer. CITY HALL TROUBLES.

Officials thought when they accepted the City Hall and moved their offices in it that the troubles of the building were over, but it looks as though they are not yet. At yesterday's meeting of the Council Contractors Eldredge & Eldredge presented a bill for $1,000 for extra work not provided for in the plans and specifications. The Council decided to allow $500 on account of the claim as Architect Curlett approved, and the architect refuses to approve the whole bill. It's up to the claimants to show that the contract provides, or not, as the city. Maybe there will be a suit on the new City Hall.

Another item in the contractors' bill is for rebuilding a portion of the wall on the Union-street side that was regarded as substantial. It is said to have cost $600. Brown vetoes this item and several minor ones, to the total amount of $800.98.

It was the last meeting that the Council will hold in the old hall, and while they were glad of it. In order that the new one may be fit to use they appointed T. C. Beal as janitor at $60 per month. There were several other bidders who had too exalted ideas of the honors and remuneration of the office.

A petition was read for the first time for the paving with concrete of Asphaltum of Raymond avenue between Holly and Chestnut streets.

Similar to that of New York, demanding that the milk delivered here be of high quality and stability.

Milk Inspector Buchanan and Health Officer Rowland have returned from Chino, where they inspected the sugar beet refrigeration plant to get ideas for the one this city is to have. The plant at Chino cost $40000 and consumes 120 gallons of oil a day. A man is employed at $60 per month to dump garbage, dead animals and other refuse into the vat to be burned. Two teams are kept busy hauling. The inspectors will report that the plant Pasadena should have should be larger and perhaps of a different material. The one visited was of metal, but it is believed that a brick one would answer the purpose here better.

At the meeting of the City Commissioners yesterday Chief of Police Freeman reported eighty-one arrests for the past month. Oscar F. Kunsman was made a regular police officer, whose duties will be night patrolling.

In the Police Court yesterday morning Dave Coyle pleaded not guilty to the charge of battering a conductor, and his trial was set for September 17. Edward Seagraves said he didn't assault John Bedney, and will be tried on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Merriam have purchased, through the Staats company, a ten-room house and lot, the latter 90x400 feet, at No. 75 South Grand avenue. The buyers will live there.

FRUIT ASSOCIATION MEETING.

WHITTIER, Sept. 8.—The annual meeting of the Whittier Citrus Association was held this afternoon at the big new packing house built this season. About two hundred persons were present and enjoyed a picnic lunch. Speeches were made by prominent citizens, after which the regular annual business meeting of the association was held. The rapid growth of the membership and consequent increase in volume of fruit handled has crowded the new quarters, and an addition to the main building 75 feet long is under consideration. The new packing house is one of the most complete of its kind in the county, and is built especially for curing lemons. J. A. Reid, secretary of the Semi-Tropic Fruit Exchange, was present at the meeting and spoke in a very interesting manner on the conditions existing and plans for the future.

C. H. BUTTERFIELD DEAD.

Charles H. Butterfield, a well-known and respected citizen of Whittier, died at his home on Bright avenue last night. Mr. Butterfield was born in Topsham, Vt., in 1842, and has been a resident of California for a number of years. He was a member and Past Master of Whittier lodge F. and A. M., and held membership in the chapter and commandery in Dover, N. H., and past chancellor of Olive Branch lodge, Knights of Pythias, also of Dover, N. H. Mr. Butterfield has been suffering for several months from an abscess, but the immediate cause of his death was congestion of the brain. He was unconscious for several days and remained so to the end. He leaves a widow and one son, Edward C., a niece, Mrs. Horatio Lundgrett, two cousins, W. S. George of this place and Mrs. Corliss of Pasadena, and three sisters in Vermont.

Among other sporting notables here is Billy Madden of New York, the noted manager of pugilists, who is at the Grand View.

SAN PEDRO.

WALL BUILT ON FRONTAGE.

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 8.—Judging from the continued outbreaks of the two concerns interested the dispute between the Crescent Wharf and Warehouse Company and the Pacific Coast Dredging and Reclamation Company, relative to certain portions of the water front on the East Side, is far from ended. The latest move was made by the latter company, which started a force of twenty-five men to work about 9 o'clock last evening and succeeded in building a large wall on either side of the disputed property.

When, on Saturday last, the Crescent people attempted to drive piles over the tide lands in question, J. M. Adams, agent for the Pacific Coast Dredging and Reclamation Company, got out an injunction and stopped further operations. Consequently, the work of last evening was for the purpose of tearing down the Crescent Company's newly-driven piles and providing defenses in case that concern makes another attempt to build. It was also Adams's intention to remove the large piledriver last evening, as he had secured the launch Fashion from Long Beach to act as towboat. This scheme was not carried out, the reports being circulated that Adams got "cold feet" at the last moment.

The new walls built by Adams and his force of workmen stand about eight feet above the low-tide mark, and are fully forty-five feet in length. In order to extend their wharf over the disputed possession, it would be necessary for the Crescent people to tear these walls down.

Keen interest is felt here over the result of the contest, which will, in all probability, have to be decided finally in the courts. The residents of the East Side are particularly worked up over the case, and are watching the movements of both corporations with interest.

WHARF CAVES.

A portion of the ballast wharf, in front of the Ferry Lumber Company's yards, caved in this afternoon, and caused considerable damage. The dredger was at work removing earth from the harbor bottom, and in so doing loosened the huge piles upon which the wharf rests.

If you ever broiled once with gas, you'll never be willing to broil again over coal.

One is easy; the other is difficult. One can be done to perfection; the other—well, it's quite an art. The result is a great deal better with gas than with coal.

We call gas economical; coal extravagant. Both are true, quite apart from such differences as these.

NOVEL CREED OF A CLERIC.

"I Believe," Not in "God," but in "Fitzsimmons."

Dying Gasps of "Federation" and Editor Brooks.

Misled Ministers Withdraw Their Mistaken Support and Brooks Denounces Them.

Leaf by leaf the roses fall. One by one the get rich-quicksters are dropping out. Rev. E. H. Brooks, the clerical floater and persistent beggar, who started a campaign for Fitzsimmons and the Cumulative Credit Company, holding "Fitz" up as a second Christ—this ministerial curio now announces that he will stop the publication of his "Federation Herald," which he has run as an advertising game for Brooks and Fitzsimmons.

In the last issue of this moribund and ridiculous sheet, in which appears a large picture of the most brazen get-rich-quickster in Los Angeles, Brooks perpetrates the most idiotic blasphemy yet—something more insanely funny than calling "Fitz" the second Christ. Brooks publishes what he calls his "creed." Instead of beginning "I believe in God," Brooks starts his mock "Credo" in these terms:

"I believe in Orlando K. Fitzsimmons."

As it appeared to The Times in the first place, Brooks evidently makes the worship of Fitzsimmons his principal aim in life—and no doubt "Fitz" reciprocates. Probably Brooks has a hundred or two reasons for beginning his creed "I believe in Orlando Fitzsimmons," instead of "I believe in God."

Brooks has had to throw up his scheme for a "Federation of Denominations" in Los Angeles. The other ministers whom he misled into his advertising graft for the benefit of Brooks and Fitzsimmons withdrew their support after the trick was exposed. Their "indorsements" do not appear in red ink and otherwise on the publication announcing its own demise. Because they ordered him to stop printing their names as co-editors of his "Get-Rich-Quick" Herald, Brooks turns around and savagely denounces them. In a long and fulsome eulogy of Brooks and biographical sketch of Brooks's wonderful achievements Brooks makes himself out a second Spurgeon and declares that the clergy of Los Angeles are un-Christian, while Brooks is "it."

By the way, have you noticed how few flies are going into the parlor of the spider lately? A Times reporter watched for two days at the office door of one of the most glittering get-rich-quick concerns on the Coast, and in that time not a man paid in a dollar, whereas two months ago people were standing in line to get a chance to give up their coin. The maturing "contracts" are not being renewed and the end is in sight.

SCHOOL BOARD NOT GUNNING FOR TROUBLE.

AVOIDS AN ALTERCATION WITH THE CITY COUNCIL.

Resolution Passing up Blame Laid on the Table—Assignments of Teachers and Other Routine Work—Plans for Opening of Term.

Director Page of the Board of Education aroused considerable discussion at a special meeting of the board last night by introducing a resolution framed for the purpose of explaining to the public that the Board of Education is not responsible for the delay in the completion of additional school quarters so much needed to meet the increase of pupils this year. Inasmuch, he said, as there had been criticism of the board of late, he thought it a proper measure to inform the dear public that it is "up to" the City Council, and not to the board, to see that the new buildings are provided in time. Some of the members didn't want to allow him even to read the resolution in open meeting, and tried to head him off. Horgan thought it looked pretty small to shove the responsibility onto the Council just because some outsider had been heard to offer criticism; and although the objectors could not shut off the reading of the document, they succeeded in getting it laid on the table.

Principal Housh of the High School reported that his school is in urgent need of two additional rooms this year, and the matter of supplying them was referred to the High School Committee and Superintendent Foshay.

A communication was received from the pastor and trustees of the Friends Church on Fremont avenue saying that they were willing to put their Sunday-school room at the disposal of the board for the accommodation of the overflow of the Fremont-avenue school. The board expressed its thanks and referred the matter to the Building Committee and the school superintendent with power to act.

Principals and teachers are to meet at their respective buildings September 12 at 2 p.m., to arrange for the opening of schools September 14. All pupils, including those who were not in local schools at the close of last term, are expected to report at their school buildings September 14 at 9 o'clock in the morning.

A Method of Treatment
Not in Common Use
The Most Effective Known

I am convinced that treatment I employ is the most thorough, reasonable, rational and effective known from the good results it brings every day. Many people have been treated for conditions without receiving a cure as yet—but, for this reason, I never break by mail or any such unreliable methods of guessing. I accomplish more in one week than can ever be accomplished by guessing through the mail. By personal attention I am enabled to treat the "EXACT CAUSE" with a certainty of good results.

Function Decline Termed Weakness by Some

I am positive the treatment I employ is the cure of this disease. Treatment is the most rational, direct and absolutely certain, whereby functional activity of the parts can be restored to normal. Men suffering from this condition will find the cause directly traceable to the reproductive system.

Varicocele

Many have treated for this trouble and few have been permanently cured; there's a difference between a partial cure and one that is complete. I cure Varicocele in 4 to 6 days, and there is no return of the old "weakness" that has accompanied the disease. The treatment I offer you is unequaled, and the results are absolutely permanent.

Stricture

Cured in 10 to 15 days. I have devised a new method of treatment. The dilation and complete eradication of urethral obstructions. I restore health and tone to the genitals and my "exact cause" treatment removes the necessity of any surgery. Experience with the rigid treatment will always bring the results.

Contracted Diseases

I cure these ailments more quickly, with less pain and inconvenience than any one else. Statistics show that 50% of these conditions are constantly those conditions. Be sure your cure is thorough and that you have no excuse for the formation of stricture. My "exact cause" treatment prevents the formation of strictures and no recurrences will follow.

Hamburger's

Truth About Schoolbook Selling.

The dawdle of some cheap imitators to impress upon the public that they are the ones that have made school book prices in this city is base fabrication, as is well known in Los Angeles. Year after year Hamburger's have led and maintained low prices on school books, and these same imitators have sent their clerks to buy school books here, and have retailed them over their own counters with the "Hamburger" Store stamp on them — as our prices were less than such small fry could buy these books at wholesale. Only last year, when one weak effort was made to quote prices by "Little Knee Breeches," we cut such quoted figures in half. We make and substantiate the claim that outside of regular book stores, we sell seven-eighths of the school books in Los Angeles.

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

THE home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Littooy, No. 643 Crocker street, was last evening the scene of an artistic little wedding, when their daughter, Miss Alice Florence Littooy, was united in marriage of Mr. Abbott Leroy Moro of Seattle, Wash.

The house was tastefully decorated, each room having a distinct olor scheme. In the parlor where the ceremony was performed, green and white were the prevailing tones. Palms and ferns filled every nook and corner, and the ceiling was gracefully festooned orith white satin ribbons drawn to a center above the chandelier. Sprays of old English ivy outlined the picture moulding, the mantel was banked with white dahlias, while in the right hand corner was a bower of green from which depended a true lover's knot of white gillflowers under which the young couple stood during the ceremony.

The library decorations were in green and gold, with gold ribbons festooning the ceiling and curtaining the windows. Crimson and green prevailed in the dining-room, with bright scarlet geraniums and other brilliant flowers, while the hall was done in simple green with portieres of green ribbons and ferns.

At 8:30 o'clock the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. H. Bodkin, editor of the California Independent, who was formerly Miss Littooy's pastor in Tacoma, Wash. The dark-haired, girlish bride was simply gowned in a white wool dress of Paris novelty goods, made with lace yoke and bertha edged with white silk guimpe. The skirt was shaped in graceful flowing plaits with demi-train, the bride carrying a shower bouquet of white carnations. There were no attendants and the bride's father gave her away.

Mrs. J. Littooy was handsomely gowned in gray silk with garniture of Houston lace.

Miss Littooy's family is well known in Tacoma and Seattle and many of the bride's handsomest gifts await her arrival in Seattle. Mr. Moro is a resident of the latter city, holding a responsible position in the postoffice there.

After a delightful little wedding feast the newly married pair went to the Van Nuys Hotel and leave this morning for an extended tour of the Coast cities and will be at home after October 1 at No. 4037 Woodland Park avenue, Fremont Station, Seattle, Wash.

The guests present were: Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Bodkin and Miss Florence Bodkin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin, Mrs. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Chittenden, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tetarch, Mrs. H. Harrod, Miss Ada Harrod, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrod, Mr. Joseph Hanna, Mr. Charles Plattner, Mr. G. P. Lott, Miss Edna Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Will McGrath, Mr. and Mrs. George Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McGeorge, Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Young, Miss R. Smith and Miss Clark.

Heart Hunt and Linen Shower.

Not the human affairs, but dainty little paper hearts were hidden away in every nook and cranny of the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Smith of Boyle Heights, when the members of the G.A.C. Girl's Club met last evening in honor of Miss Minnie Rees who is to be married next Tuesday evening.

The affair was a complete surprise to Miss Rees and contained all the unique features that the ingenuity of many girls could invent.

First came the heart hunt which was attended with peals of laughter, each girl striving to seek out the greatest number of hearts, the most successful hunter being looked upon as the next bride.

A furious ring of the door bell announced an expressman who deposited before the much surprised Miss Rees a huge goods box of battered appearance, conspicuously marked from Ireland, and surmounted by a smaller box of rice and further adorned with divers and sundry old shoes. The box was opened and found to contain a goodly supply of table linen, a gift to Miss Rees from the members of the club.

After a brief interval the guests were blindfolded and commanded to shoot tiny arrows at a heart-shaped target. A number of small hearts drawn upon this target were inscribed with these original sentiments: "Engaged this year" upon the bullseye heart, "Will marry twice," "Bridesmaid a year from date, will fall in love with best man," "Will break many hearts before you give away your own," "Will become engaged on your next camping trip," etc. All space on the target outside the small hearts indicating an old maid's fate.

The place cards at the delightful luncheon which followed, were pictures of Stanislaus girls upon white cards tied with narrow violet ribbon, violet and white being the club colors. At the close of the luncheon many toasts were drunk, Miss Carrie Pfaffenberger responding to the toast of "The Bride Elect," Miss Edna Herbst proposing "The Bridegroom," Mr. Frank Elliott, "The G.A.C. Club" was responded to by Miss Carrie Adams. The club president, Miss Ella Stearns, made a graceful toastmistress. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Smith, Mr. Frank Elliott and the members of the club, Misses Carrie Adams, Ruth Adams, Della Besley, Florence Bruner, Edna Bruner, Edna Herbst, Minnie Rees, Edith Rees, Emma King, Allie Godlie, Alta Earl, Ethel Shriver, Harriet Stearns, Ella Stearns, June Nutting, Jessie Nutting, Daisy Willey, Annette Richardson, Lelia Richardson, Flory Stafford, Nellie Leach, Selma Pfaffenberger, Carrie Pfaffenberger, Ella Pfaffenberger, Ella Brayton, Ethel Rees, Beesie Corbin, Mrs. Lehman Louder and Mrs. Leon Francis.

To Live in Azusa.

A dainty home wedding in which only the nearest relatives participated was that of Miss Helena Fleishman and Mr. Adolph Katz of Azusa, which occurred at 10:30 Sunday morning at the residence of Mrs. H. Fleishman. Rabbi Hecht performed the marriage service.

The bride, who is a great favorite, having lived in Los Angeles all her life, was charmingly gowned in white chiffon trimmed with real lace. She wore a bridal veil of illusion and carried a bouquet of white carnations, her brother, Mr. Isidor Fleishman of San Francisco, giving her away.

After congratulations were received a wedding breakfast was served and many toasts were drunk to the young couple. The presents were numerous and handsome and many telegrams of congratulations were received. They left for their home in Azusa amid a shower of rice and old shoes, all guests wishing them "Godspeed."

A College Romance.

The many Los Angeles friends of Miss Irene Hazard will be interested in the announcement of her engagement to George Gerlinger. Miss Hazard is one of the popular society girls of San Diego and is a senior at the University of California where she is very prominent in fraternity and college activities. Mr. Gerlinger is the oldest son of Louis Gerlinger, a Portland capitalist, and is engaged in the lumber business. He is also president of the Salem, Falls City and Western Railroad Company and is very popular socially in Portland.

The formal announcement of the engagement was made at a dinner given at the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity house of which fraternity Miss Hazard is a member. The wedding will take place some time this fall.

Japanese Entertainment.

The teachers of the Japanese Mission of the Broadway Christian Church were tendered a reception by their scholars last evening in the church parlors. Forty Japanese were present and over a hundred guests attended. The decorations were entirely Japanese and the refreshments were characteristic of the native land of the mission boys. Speeches were made by several of them, and Miss Harrison, who was a missionary in Japan for seventeen years, addressed the scholars in their native tongue. The teachers honored were Mrs. Lloid, Miss Lattin and Miss Harrison, and Mr. Swindle, superintendent of the mission.

A Poverty Party.

Los Angeles Lodge, No. 1, of the Ladies of the Maccabees, will give a social dance and progressive whist party at Burbank Hall on Wednesday evening. A short musical and literary programme will be followed by a poverty party in which the guests will compete for the most poverty-stricken appearance.

I HAVE been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all his different methods and can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his method of treatment. MILO M. POTTER, Prop. Van Nuys Hotel and Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara.

Ten years ago a reputable D. D. S. of Va, told me that a certain molar tooth could not be satisfactorily saved and that it would probably not be of service for one year. It has not only served me for ten years, as Dr. Schiffman saved and crowned it, and comparatively speaking without pain, I sing his praise. L. M. ANDREWS, Pastor M. E. Church, South, Cor. 6th and Mateo Streets.

On account of some unfortunate experience I had in the extraction of my teeth I became a great coward in this respect. Today Dr. Schiffman extracted one of my very refractory teeth without causing me one particle of pain. D. K. TRASK, Judge Superior Court, Los Angeles.

EVERAL years ago Dr. Schiffman did some crown and bridge work for me which has proved entirely satisfactory. The work was done painlessly and with great skill. It gives me great pleasure to recommend him. IRVING R. SMITH, L. A. Times.

Dr. Schiffman has put in almost an entire upper bridge for me. The bridge is perfect in every respect, and I can use it as well as my natural teeth. The work was promptly and painlessly done. J. F. WILL, 301 West 7th St.

Dr. Schiffman pulled two of my wisdom teeth, and it didn't hurt a bit; on the contrary, the sensation was pleasant. GUY L. HARDISON, Vice-Pres. Herald Pub. Co.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he filled and extracted the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth and put on a porcelain crown, which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON R. RUSH, Of Davis & Rush, Attorneys, 9 Rogers Blk.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to anyone wishing dental work done without pain. MRS. C. T. W. SUHRAMM, Mother of Paloma Schramm, Cor. Austin and Wadsworth.

Dr. Schiffman has put in a very satisfactory piece of bridge work for me and I cheerfully recommend him to anyone in need of dentistry. F. FLORENTINE, 1532 North Main St. County and City Criminal Photographer.

About a year ago I had a solid gold bridge put in by Dr. Schiffman. The work was absolutely painless, and has proved entirely satisfactory, and I cannot say too much in praise of the doctor. GUS BASLER, 215 W. First St.

Dr. Schiffman extracted my teeth and replaced same by bridge work. He also treated and filled two teeth, which I thought were too far gone to save. The above work was all done painlessly and is perfectly satisfactory. R. A. FOLLARD, 727 Central Ave.

This is to certify that Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me seven years ago and the work is as good today as it was when he finished the job. S. J. McKENZIE, Police Officer, 1602 Manet St.

Have just had a large back tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman; had been bothering, but it was only a trifle and gave no pain. FRED A. DAY, Deputy City Assessor.

AMERICAN MARINES PREPARED TO LAND.

Serious Rioting and Several Christians Slaughtered at Beirut.

Turks Allege That the Arrival of the United States War Vessels Encourages the Natives to Hostile Acts. Secretary Hay Instructs Minister Leishman to Require of the Porte That It Protect Our Interests.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The State Department has received a message from Rear-Admiral Cotton at Beirut, saying that he is prepared to land a force of marines to protect American interests. This supplemented an earlier dispatch which was transmitted by Minister Leishman from Constantinople, and which told of serious rioting at Beirut with loss of life. Houses occupied by Christians were pillaged, and the situation promises to grow more serious.

There are varying accounts as to the origin of the rioting, Turkish officials claiming that the presence of American warships encourages native Christians to acts of hostility, and the other side charging that Turkish soldiers began the disorder.

As soon as possible after the receipt of dispatches from Minister Leishman and Admiral Cotton, Secretary Hay sent instructions to the Minister telling him to renew his representations to the Sublime Porte upon its duty to afford absolute protection to all Americans and American interests. At the same time, he was instructed to place in the hands of foreign ministers a list of all American institutions in the Ottoman Empire, so as to afford Turkish officers no excuse for failing in their duties toward any of them.

There are about three hundred institutions of learning and charity in the empire that claim to be American. The claims of a good many of them are of doubtful value. The ones in the doubtful class are schools of natives that receive assistance from American missionaries. Late in the day, the Turkish minister, Chekib Bey, called at the State Department with a message from the Foreign Minister, claiming that the riot was started by Christians. The Sublime Porte, this message claimed, announced that quiet had been restored at Beirut, and that there are enough Turkish soldiers in the Syrian port to maintain perfect order and tranquility. It also contained a promise that this would be done.

According tot various cable dispatches, the rioting at Beirut took place in the Mezroa quarter. In Arabic, Mezroa means "a place sown," "a garden," and that indicates the character of the district. The Mezroa is in the southern part of the city, and is distinctly a sparsely-settled district. It has long stretches of cactus lanes and many streets lined by pine groves, which are entirely unpatrolled by Turkish police at night or even in the daytime. For five years it has been unsafe for anybody, whether he were Moslem or Christian, native or foreign, to pass through the district at night.

A private letter received in New York last week, and dated shortly before the attempt on the life of the American Vice-Consul, said: "Murders are an every-day occurrence, and no one is brought to justice." At that time there had been no apprehension of the present outbreak, and foreign residents had nothing to fear except from the general unquiet which prevailed throughout the town.

This is the hot season in Syria, and most of the Americans and English are at resorts in Lebanon. At any rate, all their families are in the mountains, and only the physicians who are obliged to be on duty at the German hospital in the city, and a few merchants would be in town. It would take a great deal of provocation to cause even a Moslem to kill a foreigner in Beirut, and in years there has only been one case of the kind.

In 1879 an Englishman named Mogan was found strangled in the sea on the south side of the promontory on which the city is situated. His stepfather, a man named Riskallah ("the property of God") was arrested for the crime, but after he had been six months in jail, it practically, though not officially, developed that Mogan had attempted to make the acquaintance of a woman in the harem of one of th emost influential Moslems in the city. He was naturally killed, according to Moslem ethics, and the English government, when it learned the real facts, did not attempt any great remonstrance.

The dispatch states that during the fight an employé of the Syrian Protestant College, which is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, was wounded near the Greek Orthodox Church. There are several Greek churches in the city, and one of them is situated just opposite the college campus. The main church, however, is on the borders of Mezroa district, and might well have been the scene of the disturbance, for it is near the center of the outlying Moslem quarter.

Although the Christians in Beirut outnumber Moslems by about three to one, the latter are the dominant race, and are always the aggressors.

GERMANS BLAME AMERICANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The newspapers this morning in commenting on Sunday's outbreak at Beirut, throw the blame for the trouble on the United States. The Lokal Anzeiger says: "Now that the Americans have their dead, they will make inquiry whether they were responsible for the effervescence in Beirut. By the unprecedented action of their minister in Constantinople and the naval demonstration, the yearning of the United States to mix up in European politics has found some justification."

The National Zeitung says: "It can be seen how serious it is, in view of the excitement in the Near East, to spread incorrect or bad translations of cipher reports."

CHEKIB BEY'S NEWS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A cablegram from the Turkish Foreign Office to Chekib Bey, the Turkish Minister here, gives the following version of the trouble at Beirut Sunday, reported by Admiral Cotton in his dispatch to the Navy Department: "Some Christians of the city of Beirut attacked four Mussulmans, and during the melee which followed four persons were injured. Three of these were soldiers. Two persons are dead, one of whom is also a soldier."

The Minister called on Secretary Hay during the day, and gave him the contents of his dispatch.

Late tonight, the Minister received a dispatch from Constantinople, characterizing as "absolutley false" the published reports that there was no security in Constantinople, and of massacres and the setting fire to houses in Roumania.

Another dispatch says that thirty-one Bulgarian brigands were killed in the vicinity of, Resne, Monastir, and forty others on a farm at Florina.

LARGE BAND SURROUNDED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SALONICA, Sept. 8.—Twelve battalions of Turkish troops are reported to have surrounded a large revolutionary band near Ostrove, thirty miles from Monastir. The fighting is proceeding.

THE FIRST INTELLIGENCES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The State Department has received a cablegram from Minister Leishman at Constantinople, in which he says that a riot occurred yesterday at Beirut, in which seven Christians were killed and several wounded. Two houses occupied by Christians were pillaged by the soldiers. The panic was general. An officer and a signal man from Admiral Cotton's fleet are now in the consulate, and an investigation of conditions at Beirut is being made by a lieutenant, Consul-General Ravendal and others.

Minister Leishman says that the origin of the trouble is not distinctly stated by our Consul. He further says that it is claimed by the Sublime Porte that conditions at Beirut are again quiet, and that the force now there is sufficient to guarantee the safety of the city. Additional instructions have been sent to Minister Leishman along the lines of these already forwarded him, looking to the protection of American citizens. Lieut. Charles L. Hussey is Admiral Cotton's flag lieutenant, and it is presumed that he is the officer making the investigation.

OFFICIAL TURKISH VERSION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 8.—An official version of the Beirut affair, telegraphed to the Ottoman ambassadors abroad for communication to the powers, say that the Christians were the assailants, they having fired upon four Mussulmans. A fight ensued, during which Mussulmans and Christians came to the assistance of their respective compatriots. They, says the report, compelled the troops to intervene, and they succeeded in restoring order. Three soldiers were wounded and one was killed, while one Christian was killed and one wounded. These figures are evidently incorrect, as the rioters must have lost more heavily than the military.

The British Consul at Beirut, immediately after the riot, called upon the Vali and threatened to ask Rear-Admiral Cotton to land marines from the American squadron, and the belief is expressed that the Christians at Beirut are endeavoring to bring about the landing of marines from the warships.

REPORT FROM COTTON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Navy Department has received the following from Admiral Cotton, at Beirut, September 7:

"Violence and bloodshed between Mohammedans and native Christians occurred at Beirut Sunday. Six Greek Christians, two Mohammedans and one Turkish soldier killed; three Greek Christians, three Mohammedans and three Turkish soldiers wounded seriously. Other murders reported. Flag lieutenant and United States Consul were present Sunday and Monday in the disturbed quarter, and verify details statement. Turkish government willingly afforded facilities for their investigation and guard; promise 1000 more Turkish soldiers. Turkish soldiers present sufficient, if properly disposed of, to handle situation at Beirut. Well patroled and all quiet Sunday night and today (Monday.) Turkish government promises to do all in power to restore order. Business suspended. I have prepared to land force for protection of property of American citizens if situation demands. Will act with caution. Present trouble due to animosity between inimical and native Christians and failure to control crimes."

The last portion of Admiral Cotton's cablegram is unintelligible, and the cipher experts at the Navy Department worked all the morning to translate it. Copies of the report were sent at once to the President and to the State Department.

ADVICES AT PARIS.

BEIRUT INTENSELY AGITATED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Official advices received by the Foreign Office here give brief details of the outbreak at Beirut. The killed number five or six, and many persons were wounded. The city is in an intense state of agitation.

The outbreak occurred during the night of September 6, between Christians and Mussulmans. The fighting was furious, firearms and knives being used. The Italian Consul rescued one Christian, who had been stabbed, and who had fallen in front of the door of the consulate.

This was the first information received here showing the serious conditions ruling at Beirut. It caused much apprehension in official quarters, as being an indication of a spread of the disorders in the Turkish empire. The presence of the United States cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco at Beirut is regarded as a fortunate circumstance. It is expected that a number of other foreign warships will gather there. The official reports further show that Beirut is one of three places which are now centers of great animation. Smyrna, which hitherto had been comparatively quiet, is on the eve of an outbreak. Great excitement prevails there. The authorities are in constant fear of an outbreak, but fortunately they have been able thus far to prevent an encounter between the Christians and Mussulmans.

The Salonica advices are also again very disquieting. It is expected that a general revolt throughout the province of Salonica will occur next week. It is the understanding among the foreign officials at Salonica that a general insurrection will shortly be announced by the Macedonian committee. In view of this expectation, rigid police measures have been taken by the Vali, who is showing much energy. Reports from Monastir say the insurrection in that district has been practically crushed by the extreme measures taken by the Turkish troops.

The officials here attach significance to the report showing that a number of Zerbes have crossed the border and joined the Macedonian revolutionists.

Reports from various points throughout Bulgaria show there is a strong feeling against Prince Ferdinand, owing to the fact that he left the country during the crisis. It is not expected, however, that the agitators will succeed in carrying out their plans against his life.

AT THE FRENCH CAPITAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Constantinople says thirty Christians, among them being several Europeans, were killed during the rioting at Beirut.

Later in the day, the Foreign Office received a dispatch from Constantinople saying that two persons were killed during the recent disorders at Beirut, at about the time the United States warships arrived there, but the Foreign Office here finds no connection between the two events. Among the killed was an American.

ABDUL HAMID'S PRESS AGENT.

Sultan Recognizes the Vim of the Newspaper Men of America.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, is rapidly acquiring western notions. His latest move was made public today by Joseph E. Morecombe of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, now in Washington, who is soon to go to Constantinople in the capacity of official press agent of the Turkish Empire. Morecombe was picked up by Chekib Bey, the Turkish Minister, who was attracted by Morecombe's vigorous reports from Des Moines during the recent political conventions.

It is evident to the Sultan that he is getting the worst of it in international diplomacy, on account of the alert and complete methods of western nations in making their side of the story public. In view of the fact that American newspaper men are always at the front, Abdul Hamid sent instructions to Chekib Bey to select a good man and send him over. It will be Morecombe's duty to issue all official statements of affairs in the Turkish Empire, particularly troubles in which foreigners are involved. He will also censorise all press matter sent from Turkey. Morecombe declines to say what his salary will be. He demanded and received a year's salary in advance.

CONGRESS OF MINES.

Opening Session at Deadwood, S. D.

Secretary Shaw of the Treasury Department Speaks of the Mining Industry.

President Richards in Favor of a Government Department with Cabinet Connection.

Committee Appointed to Draft Resolutions Thanking the Chief Executive.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DEADWOOD (S. D.) Sept. 8.—The American Mining Congress today began its sixth annual session, interest centering in a talk by Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. The Secretary was given a warm welcome by the delegates, who frequently applauded his statements, and when he had finished speaking, gave him a rising vote of thanks and three cheers. The congress also unanimously elected him an honorary member and appointed a committee of three to draft resolutions thanking the President for his recognition of the congress in sending Secretary Shaw to represent him before it.

The Secretary was scheduled to address the congress on "The Mining Industry and Its Relation to American Finances." He said that he wished to correct the impression that he was to deliver an address, because he really did not know anything about mining.

"We make a mistake," he said, "if we estimate the importance of our different industries according to their relative products."

He referred to the necessity of increased markets for our products, saying he would rather have the market of the United States than all of the markets of the world; would rather have the productive capacity of the United States than the productive capacity of nearly all the rest of the world. He said we have to get some markets for our products. As to how many more markets are to be created, he pointed to the countries lying to the south of the United States and said, in his judgment the government could, without paternalism, encourage installations of greater steamship lines, as it had aided two great railroads to the Pacific Coast, which would be a certain measure for the increase of our markets.

Alluding to that portion of President Richards's annual address in which he urged the creation of a Department of Mines and Mining, Secretary Shaw said he was heartily in favor of the government doing everything it can, short of paternalism, in support of the mining industry of the country. He did not favor a mining department represented by a Cabinet officer, but a bureau connected with the Department of Commerce and Labor. He said, further:

"It is an error to rate the importance of our many industries according to their relative productiveness. Our factories and workshops produced $12,000,000,000 gross in 1900; agriculture, $4,000,000,000; forestry $2,000,000,000, and mines, $1,000,000,000, about equally divided between metallic and non-metallic products. Yet it must occur to all that manufactures, apparently our greatest wealth-producing industry is dependent on iron, copper, lead, zinc and other metals, and equally upon coal and other non-metallic minerals. Our manufacturing interests would dwindle into insignificance, but for our mines.

"Manufacture is equally dependent upon agriculture for cotton, flax, wool and other products of the field and herd. Our commercial, industrial and financial supremacy is, therefore, not dependent upon any one fact or interest or condition, but upon all combined.

"We produce practically 30,000,000 tons of iron ore—as much as any other two countries and one-third of the world's output.

"We produce 40 per cent. of the world's output of iron and steel. During the first half of 1903, we produced nearly 10,000,000 tons of pig iron.

"We produce more coal than Great Britain, more than twice as much as Germany, and nearly double that of all countries, except Great Britain and Germany.

"We grow three-fourths of the world's cotton fibers, and our ability to produce this staple is far above the present product.

"A people's prosperity is not measured by its capacity to produce more than by its capacity to consume, and this capacity to consume is, in turn, dependent upon the earning capacity of the individual, and the earning capacity of the individual is again dependent upon native and acquired ability. So if America be great it is because God in His wisdom stored the mountains with richest minerals, overlaid the valleys with a most fertile soil, and then gave it to people competent, in some slight degree at least to improve their opportunities."

At the afternoon session President Richards in his annual address made a convincing argument for asking that Congress pass a law creating a Department of Mines and Mining, with a Cabinet representative. He recommended action be taken by the Mining Congress looking to the establishment of a permanent home for the organization and a permanent working staff. In part, he said:

President J. P. Richards, in his annual, address said the ultimate aim of the organization must be to place the mining industry as a whole upon a plane commensurate with its importance. The congress must arouse so much interest throughout the whole country, must be the means of giving the public so much valuable information about mining that the people will realise the importance and dignity of everything connected with the proper development and utilization of this great source of raw material. It must be the means of finally opening the eyes of the lawmakers to the necessity of a department of mines and mining, coördinate in rank with the Department of Agriculture, and the recently created Department of Commerce and Labor. The logic of events, the irresistible force of a controlling tendency in human progress, must ultimately compel the proper recognition of the mining industry at the hands of the government, as one of the necessities of governmental organization.

"It is common knowledge what the Department of Agriculture has done for the farmer," said President Richards. "We say that the mining prospector has just as good a right to scientific information from the government concerning mineral formation, character of various ores and their proper treatment, for he, too, is a producer of the raw material that is a condition of all resultant production, and this coöperation on the part of the government may give him just the industrial chance that he needs.

"It is upon scientific authority that with all the improved processes lately invented and successfully applied not more than one-fourth of the known valuable gold-bearing material in this country can as yet be utilized. Many extensive districts are still undeveloped because the ore is too low grade or too refractory to be worked with profit. These problems will, of course, be solved, the necessary processes and treatment will be discovered and in all probability this will be done by scientific experts in the employ of private capitalists who will thereby be enabled to tax such mining districts at will for years to come. I do not decry the enterprise of private capital; it is worthy of its reward. But I simply ask why should not these researches and investigations in the field of mining as well as in agriculture and horticulture be prosecuted at the public expense by the people and for the people, and the results achieved made free to the people forever."

Wednesday forenoon the congress will move to Lead and hold morning, noon and evening sessions there.

SECRETARY SHAW LEAVES.

DEADWOOD (S. D.) Sept. 8.—Secretary Shaw left for the East at 6 o'clock tonight.

TRAIN ROBBERS FOILED BY VIGILANT CREW.

Pile of Ties Placed on Track, but Engineer Saw Them and Managed to Stop and Back Away from Pursuing Desperadoes.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Sept. 8.—A Stevensville (Mont.) dispatch to the Inter-Mountain says a bold attempt to hold up the Bitter Root express just east of there this morning was frustrated by the vigilance of the crew. A pile of ties had been placed on the track. The engineer slowed up, but backed away as soon as he could. Three men concealed in the bushes jumped out and ran for the train, but soon fell behind.

The crew procured arms and returned and threw the ties to one side, after which the express went through unmolested.

MURDERED BY TRAMPS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

DRUMMOND (Mont.) Sept. 8.—Three tramps, armed with revolvers, invaded a Northern Pacific freight train near here last night and held up two ranch hands who were stealing a ride. The hands, who were unarmed, showed fight, whereupon the tramps shot and killed one of them and seriously wounded the other. At Drummond the murderers jumped from the train and fled. The bodies of their victims were discovered by the crew.

KANSAS OIL FIELDS.

In the Smaller Outside Pools of Kansas Very Gratifying Results Are Rewarding the Prospectors.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEODESHA (Kan.) Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports are coming in daily of operations in the smaller outside pools of the Kansas producing region and taken as a whole they reveal some very gratifying results of the drills's search for oil fluid. While there are a number of dusters to be found, it is probable that when pipe line facilities are bettered, the amount of production will be such that dry holes will not cut such a figure as they do at present.

There are some first-class wells in Chautauqua county filed, in which are located Peru and Sedan pools with ramifications through several townships.

In the northern portion of Wilson county, in the neighborhood of Guilford and Buffalo, there has been considerable drilling, and the lines are rapidly being extended to the northward. In this end of the field wells average about 980 feet and the oil is from 26.7 deg. to 33.4 deg. in gravity. There is quite a little production already in that district, but many of the new wells are not being operated on account of lack of storage facilities.

EMPEROR CAMPS OUT.

Passes Night Under an Abestos Tent and Leads a Prussian Cavalry Corps Against the Saxons.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HALLE (Prussia) Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Emperor, who is attending the army maneuvers in this vicinity, passed last night under a huge asbestos tent. Today he led a cavalry corps, composed of sixteen regiments on the Prussian, or so-called red army side, against the Saxon army, otherwise the blue. The Empress and Princess Victoria followed the operations in a carriage.

Three men and two women have been arrested here charged with insulting the Emperor. The precise nature of their offense has not been disclosed.

WASHINGTON

POSTOFFICE INDICTMENTS.

Grand Jury Returns Seven Involving Six Men.

Beginning of the End of the Long Investigations.

Changes in the Diplomatic and Consular Service—Soper and Indian Land Deals.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The postal investigation is rapidly reaching an end. The indictment of seven persons today by the Federal grand jury here winds up that portion of the work, except an occasional indictment that may be brought against persons already under arrest in order to strengthen the government's position. The names of the persons indicted today will not be made public until all are under arrest. Some of them are not residents of Washington, and may not be arrested for a day or two.

Another indication of the early closing of the investigation was the arrest of George W. Beavers today in New York. Beavers could have been arrested at any time during the past three months, but it was feared that the arrest of Beavers on a charge of having accepted a check from the Brandt Dent Manufacturing Company of Middletown, Wis., might nullify the secret investigation then going on by the Federal grand jury here, and thus permit suspected parties to escape. The moment the grand jury was ready to return indictments, orders were sent to New York, and the prompt arrest of Beavers followed.

With this last batch of indictments returned, the major part of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow's work is over. He has made a pretty clean sweep, it is believed, of rascals in the Postoffice Department, and if any have escaped his dragnet, they are so terrorized that it is safe to predict there will be little grafting going on for some time. A Congressional inquiry into postal affairs is expected by the postal officials, and they are working hard to get all facts in shape to present to Congress.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—After deliberating several weeks over a mass of documents submitted by the postoffice inspectors, the Federal grand jury in this city today returned seven indictments in postal cases, involving six different persons. All the indictments were kept off the public record, and both the officials of the District Attorney's office and of the Postoffice Department refused to discuss the names or details of the indictments until the parties indicted are arrested. The identity of the indicted individuals was left a matter of conjecture.

It is expected that arrests will occur tomorrow morning and that the Postoffice Department will have some announcement to make during the forenoon.

The grand jury's action probably marks the beginning of the end of the investigations that have been made since the middle of last March. Voluminous evidence has been laid before the grand jury as a result of the inquiry, and while the present report of the jury disposes of most of the cases, there yet remains several cases to be passed upon. When the latter are disposed of, according to Postmaster-General Payne, the investigation, so far as the work at Washington is concerned, will be at an end for all practica' purposes. Several of the persons indicted today live outside of Washington. They will be arrested as soon as bench warrants can be served.

Postmaster-General Payne and Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow received word of the grand jury's action shortly after that body reported, and subsequently they had a long conference on the subject. Both of these refused to divulge details, pending official notification of arrests. Two other important events occurred today in the postal inquiry.

Leopold Stern, the Baltimore contractor, who left Baltimore before he could be arrested on an indictment returned July 31 last, was located at Toronto, and the long-delayed surrender of George W. Beavers, the former head of the Salary and Allowance Division, to the New York authorities took place. The postal authorities have been searching for Stern ever since he disappeared from Baltimore, and finally received word from the Canadian authorities that he is in Toronto.

STERN ABOUT IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TORONTO (Can.) Sept. 8.—Stern refused to be seen when a reporter called at his home today. He referred all callers to his attorneys. Stern's lawyers said that their client was ready to appear before an extradition judge and prove his innocence, which is interpreted as a declaration that extradition proceedings will be fought to the end. He will not leave the city, the attorneys said, and if an extradition warrant is secured, Stern will at once leave for Washington.

DIPLOMATS AND CONSULS.

CHANGES IN THE SERVICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The President has made the following promotions and appointments in the diplomatic service:

John W. Riddle of Minnesota, now first secretary of embassy, at St. Petersburg, to be Consul-General and diplomatic agent at Cairo, in place of John C. Long, deceased.

Peter A. Jay of Rhode Island, now second secretary of legation at Constantinople, to be first secretary.

Three men and two women have been arrested here charged with insulting the Emperor. The precise nature of their offense has not been disclosed.

The following changes in the consular service were announced at the State Department today:

U. J. Ladoux, transferred from Consul at Three Rivers, Quebec, to Consul at Prague.

Charles N. Daniels of Connecticut has been appointed to the vacancy at Sheffield, England.

SOPER'S INDIAN LANDS.

COMPANY'S OPERATIONS PROPER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Department of Justice has received from Pliny Soper, the United States attorney for the northern district of Indian Territory, an answer to the allegations which have been made against him that he has been interested in leasing and releasing Indian lands, etc. Soper admits that he is connected with one company, the Tribal Development Company of Tishomingo, but says it is not in his district, being in the southern district of the Territory. He denies that the company has done or is doing anything that is unlawful or in any way reprehensible.

The department has ordered still another special agent into that Territory, and will investigate Soper's statement. It also will make an investigation of each of the Federal officers in the four districts of the Territory against whom any derogatory statements have been made.

COAL STRIKE COMMISSION.

STILL HAS SOME LIFE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge Gray, chairman of the Anthracite Strike Commission, has been quoted by some of the labor leaders as saying that the commission could not again be called together. Carroll D. Wright has been reported as saying that it could. This apparent diversity of views disappears in the light of the common definition of the terms. Both men agree that the commission could not reassemble to rescind or modify any of the conclusions which were announced in its final report. It is, however, true that it might meet to interpret any of these conclusions, should boards of conciliation or umpires organized under its instructions find themselves at a loss to know how to act.

In anticipation of this possibility, the commission, when it adjourned sine die, did not dissolve. It still retains a technical existence, should its services be needed to interpret any of its former work.

SISTERS OF THE POPE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ROME, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The three sisters of Pope Pius X, who lived with him in Venice and who arrived yesterday, have not found in Rome quite what they expected. Not that they had any formulated desires, but the sisters thought they could not fail to be certain of resuming their intimate relations with the Pontiff, while to their unaccustomed eyes all is formality. They shrunk from the curious glances cast at them this morning, when they went all over Rome. The sisters have really seen no beauty in the ruins, having scarcely heard of them. What they like best were the electric street cars, and the new, wide streets, so different from the narrow lanes of Venice.

In the convent where the Pope's sisters are stopping they are treated with great respect, and ate their meals served in their own dining-room, and were even allowed to do anything for themselves.

Speaking of the Vatican, one of the sisters said: "How big it is. Beppi should not feel he is a prisoner. But how he can be bothered with all these soldiers and officials, we cannot see."

The permanent apartment near the San Angelo bridge will be ready very shortly.

FIRST OFFICIAL DOCUMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ROME, Sept. 8.—The Pontiff published today his first official document, consisting of a letter addressed to Cardinals Vannutelli, Rampolla, Ferriata and Vives Y. Tuto, confirming their appointment by Pope Leo as a commission to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception. The letter, which is very brief, is followed by a prayer to the Virgin Mary, which will acquire importance as being the first to bear the signature of Pius X.

KNOCKS CHAMBERLAIN.

English Trades Union Congress Takes Strong Stand Against Proposed Changes in the Fiscal Policy.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LEICESTER (Eng.) Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] At today's session of the Trades Union Congress, President Hornbridge declared Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's suggested changes in the British fiscal policy were likely to be most detrimental to the best interests of the nation.

"Dabbling with the principles of free trade," he asserted, "can do no good to the country at present. The land laws cause two-thirds of the national misery."

He advocated government old-age pensions.

The following resolution was carried with only two dissenting votes: "That this congress strongly condemns the suggested changes by Mr. Chamberlain in our present fiscal policy as most mischievous and dangerous to the best interests of the people of the country, and hereby pledges itself and urges all other labor bodies to make every effort to prevent such a change being brought about."

The announcement of the vote was greeted with loud cheers.

The resolution will be communicated to the Colonial Secretary.

After a heated discussion an important resolution on labor representation was passed. The resolution commits the labor party to supporting neither of the dominant political parties and has increased the strained relations with the Liberals.

RYAN'S GOLDEN JUBILEE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—The Golden Jubilee celebration in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of Archbishop Ryan's ordination began today at the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul—with the celebration of solemn pontifical mass by the archbishop. The ceremony was attended by eight archbishops, thirty-two bishops, five monsignors and about five hundred priests. Bishop Horstmann of Cleveland preached the sermon. Among the arbishop's guests are Mgr. Falconio, Archbishop Elder of Cincinnati, Archbishop Farley of New York, and Archbishop Harty of Manila. The jubilee fund presented by the Roman Catholics of the archdiocese amounts to $200,000. It was intended as a personal gift to Archbishop Ryan, but he has devoted it to the archdiocesan fund to pay for St. Vincent's orphanage.

PRESIDENT AT HOME.

Big Gathering at Richmond Hill Gives Him Greeting En Route and Hears From Him on the Worth of a Sermon.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The President arrived at the Hoboken station of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at 7:15 o'clock this morning on the special train which left Syracuse last night. When proceeding to board the tug Scranton, he was heartily cheered by a crowd on the ferryhouse and departing ferryboat. He was very much pleased with his reception, shouting, "Good luck! good luck! Thank you for your greeting."

The tug proceeded to Long Island City to place the President on the train for Oyster Bay.

When the special train reached Richmond Hill all the Sunday school children of the villages, each carrying an American flag; representatives of the Twentieth Century Club, and the Richmond Hill Republican Club and a big gathering of townspeople joined in a welcome to the President. Flags, hats, and handkerchiefs were waved, and the enthusiasm was tremendous.

The President and Jacob Riis appeared on the rear platform of the last car, where Riis bade good-by to the President and then alighted from the car. Dr. Kimball, president of the Twentieth Century Club, made a short speech of welcome to the President, to which the Chief Executive responded as follows:

"Dr. Kimball and you, men, women and children of Richmond Hill. I wish I could talk better to all of you, but I will ask you to have a little patience, for one moment, while I thank you for having come out to greet me. I am glad to see all of you, and allow me to say that I am most glad to see those who carry small folks in their arms. [Laughter and applause.]

"You know I am very fond of Mr. Riis, and the reason why is, when I preach about decent citizenship I can turn to him and think that he has practiced just what I have been preaching. [Applause.] The worth of any sermon lies in the way in which that sermon can be and is applied in practice. Of course I am glad to have the chance of being with a man who shows by his life that he knows how practically to apply the spirit of decency, unaccompanied by mournfulness or false pretenses of any kind, or any weakness. I want to see men decent; I want to see them act 'square;' I want to see them work. That does not mean I want them to have sour faces. I want to see every one enjoy themselves.

"Men, women and children, I believe in play; I believe in happiness and joy of living; but I do not believe in the life that is nothing but play. I believe that you have a thousandfold more enjoyment if work comes first, but make your time to play also. I believe in cheerfulness as well as in decency and honesty. And in the next place, I believe in a good man who can fight, if it is necessary—[applause]—as you fought in the Civil War.

"Now, Jake Riis could never have been of any use in the police department if he always carried on a Rose-water revolution. Unless a man has the stuff in him, the fact that he is a decent fellow does not count. If he is not decent, then the stronger he is the worse he is as a citizen.

"I want to say how deeply touched I am at your coming out to greet me, and I want you to understand that you give me strength of heart when you come in this way. I greet you all. I am glad to see the grown-up people of Richmond Hill, and I am even more glad to see the children." [Cheers and applause.]

PRESIDENT REACHES HOME.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OYSTER BAY (L. I.) Sept. 8.—The President arrived at 9:55 o'clock a.m. and was driven directly to Sagamore Hill. Arrangements have been made for the return of the President and family to Washington Monday, September 23. Prior to that time, the President will make one more trip, attending the dedication of the New Jersey monument on the battlefield of Antietam.

The President received several callers today, with some of whom he discussed the subject of financial legislation. His guests were Robert Dudley Winthrop, who resides in this vicinity; George R. Sheldon of New York and Alfred W. Cooley, a member of the Civil Service Commission.

John L. Shepard, president of the Commercial Travelers' Sound Money League, accompanied by a committee of that organization, paid his respects to the President, and on behalf of the league urged him to impress upon Congress what the organization regards as necessary remedial financial legislation.

FARMERS' COMBINE.

Representatives of Producers Meet in Chicago for Purpose of Forming an Association With Capital of One Hundred Million Dollars.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Coöperation, backed by $100,000,000, is the plan proposed by a joint meeting of farmers and their representatives by which the producers of the country are to protect their interests against the encroaching power of capital. An association having this for its basic principle is in process of organization at the Grand Pacific Hotel.

Farmers and representatives from producers' associations in nine States are in conference. Three societies are to be amalgamated as the foundation for a monster exchange, by which the producers of the country expect to control the markets, build elevators, establish packing-houses, organize banks, maintain schools, and improve the highways. These associations are the Producers' and Consumers' Union of Tennessee and of New York, with 400,000 members; the American Society of Equity of North America, with 60,000 members; and the Farmers' National Coöperative Exchange Company, with a membership of 20,000.

The day was devoted to the discussion of plans and a committee was appointed to draft the principles which should form the basis of the new organization. It was proposed that the new association should be incorporated for $100,000,000.

T. H. B. Chamblin of Riverside, Cal., said the experience of the orange men in California had been the same as that of the Michigan grape growers. "We organized," said Mr. Chamblin, "We believe that every man is entitled to his share of the day's consumption, that the man who grows first-class fruit is entitled to what it brings, that fruit should be packed at cost and marketed at cost. We employed our own agents, and today we are shipping our own products and getting the best results from their sale. Our association has been a success, and we are profiting from its organization."

Summed up, the spirit of the day's session was as follows:

"Every other important industry in the country but the farmers has taken necessary steps to protect its interests. The business of farming is in a bad way, and conditions will grow worse unless something is done along the line of organization and coöperation. The bigger the crop the smaller the price. The only reason every farmer is not bankrupt today is that the Almighty sends a dry season now and then, which makes a short crop and good prices. In this way the average is maintained. The farmer holds the destiny of the industrial world in his hand, and he should take advantage of his position. We must form a national organization, fix a minimum price for our products, and hold back our crops until we get our price."

ATCHISON'S ACTIVITY IN DULL MARKET.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Atchison was a strong feature of the dull market on the Stock Exchange today. London began buying stocks before the opening here on bullish news as to the corn crop, and following the example of the London market, traders here began bidding up the stock at the opening, with the result that at one time it showed an advance of nearly two points over the low price of the day. The transactions were more than one hundred thousand shares in this stock alone, or more than a third of the entire transactions of the day.

Buying by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. attracted much attention. By some it was attributed to the desire of the Union Pacific interests to acquire a holding in Atchison property. In investment circles, however, it was stated that the purchase had been made for European clients, who consider the stock attractive at these prices. The increase in earnings shown by the last statement created some surprise in view of the bear attack of the summer, and the investment element is being convinced that the stories circulated by the bears were unfounded. The bulls set the story afloat today that if the Atchison's earnings continued at the present rate, the dividend would be increased instead of decreased.

SATISFACTORY ANNUAL REPORT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The directors of the Santa Fé road have approved a rough draft of the annual report, shortly to be issued. It will show a surplus equal to 8 per cent. earned on the stock for the year, before the deduction of the sinking fund for the serial debentures. The company has reported earnings for twelve months, and they show a decrease in the net of $1,312,580. The gross increase was $3,215,342, but the expenses increased $4,527,843. There will be a slight increase in the fixed charges for the year, so that the surplus over preferred dividends, after the deduction of $2,500,000 for the sinking fund on serial debentures, will be from $5,500,000 to $6,000,000, or 5 1-2 to 6 per cent. on the common stock.

On the most liberal estimate, the cost of conducting transportation for the year and general expenses did not exceed 34 per cent. of the gross earnings. When, in addition to this, there is allowed $1,000,000 for flood expenses, it will be found that the expenditures for maintenance and improvements increased about $3,000,000 for the year. By far the larger portion of this will represent betterments, the result of which will be to permanently reduce the ratio of operating expenses.

If these estimates are correct, the real earning capacity of the road for its last fiscal year was not less than 8 per cent. on stock, after all deductions for sinking the fund on the serial debentures. Thus the Santa Fé has been able to follow the policy of a dollar for dividends and a dollar for improvements, besides providing an amount equal to 2 1-2 per cent. additional on the stock for repayment of capital. The result cannot be regarded as anything but very satisfactory.

NEW MILEAGE BUREAU.

SECRET MEETING FAVORS IT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After a secret meeting, held by the passenger representatives of western lines today, it was asserted that the new mileage bureau would certainly be organized. A complete set of rules and regulations for the government of the bureau and the regulation of the use of the new mileage book was presented by the special committee and passed upon favorably in the main. That portion of the report giving instructions to agents was not satisfactory to all the lines, and the committee was called upon to revise it. A report upon this work will be made at a meeting tomorrow.

The attitude of the lines which have not signed the agreement remains the same, but it is claimed that they will enter the bureau when it is organized. The book will be good on trains, and interchangable amnog the roads using it, and will be accepted by conductors without question. If used, however, by any one save the original purchaser, no rebate will be given, and the rate paid in such cases will really be 2 cents a mile.

The holder of the book presents it to the conductor, who is required to carry a pad of identification slips. The conductor pastes the identification slip on the mileage torn from the book, and they are sent to the bureau. When the mileage is consumed, the identification slips are compared, and if the signatures are all the same the rebate of 1 cent. per mile is paid.

LESSAR AGAIN PROMISES.

Russian Minister This Time Says New Chang and Mukden Province Will be Evacuated in October.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A dispatch from Peking to the Times says that in a note sent to the Wai Pu Sunda, M. Lessar, the Russian Minister, gave an engagement that New Chang and Mukden province be evacuated before October 8, and confirmed the Chinese agreement to open Mukden and Tatungkao to foreign trade.

The Tokio correspondent of the Times says that the twenty-eight officers of the fish buying vessels which were aised by the Russian cruisers recently in Kamschathan waters on the charge of illegal trading have been tried at Vladivostock, and owing to the direct influence of Admiral Alexieff, all were acquitted.

BATTLE OF LAKE GEORGE.

Governors of Four States Unveil Monument.

Famous Indian Chieftain Henderick Lives in Bronze.

Inscriptions Recalling Significance of Engagement to Subsequent Events.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LAKE GEORGE, (N. Y.) Sept. 8.—In the presence of thousands of excursionists from New York, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut representatives of patriotic societies of New York and New England and the regulars life of these States, the Governors of New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, and Massachusetts stationed at the four corners of the monument, pulled the strings which unveiled the monument of the Battle of Lake George. The canvas which had hidden the figures dropped, and the guns of the old Battery belched forth a national salute.

The bronze figures of the monument, designed by Albert W. Elnert, sculpter, and represented the Indian chieftain, King Hendrick, demonstrating to Gen. Johnson the futility of dividing his forces. The figures, which stand on a granite pedestal, are 20 feet high.

The monument stands in the center of Battle Park, overlooking the lake, the east face is the following inscription: "1903. The Society of Colonial Wars erected this monument to commemorate the victory of the colonial forces under Gen. Johnson and the Mohawk allies, under Chief Hendrick, over the French regulars commanded by Baron Dieskau, with the Canadian and Indian allies."

On the south face it reads: "Defeat of the French and Indians, which have opened the road to Albany and Canada."

On the north: "Confidence inspired by victory of inestimable value to the cause of liberty in the War of the Revolution."

On the west face are the words "Battle of Lake George, Sept. 8, 1755."

The oration of the day was delivered by United States Senator Depew.

Frederick De Peyster, president of the Society of Colonial Wars, in turning over the monument to the New York Society, referred to the fact that the work of the society is to restore 150 years to American history, the years intervening between the founding of Jamestown and the Battle of Lexington.

Governor William Beekman, governor of the New York Society, in accepting the monument in behalf of the society spoke of the endeavors of the society to perpetuate the memory of the national heroes. Addresses were also delivered by Gov. Odell, Chamberlain and Higgins and Lieut.-Gov. Guild of Massachusetts.

The following letter from President Roosevelt was then read:

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 29, 1903.

My Dear Mr. Ferris: It is with regret that I find myself unable to be present at the dedication of the monument to commemorate the battle of Lake George. I very earnestly believe in the new wisdom in this new century of ours of keeping alive a sense of continuity with the historic past. It is a good thing from every point of view to commemorate in striking fashion the deeds that made Lakes Champlain and George famous in Colonial and Revolutionary days, and in the War of 1812. There is a peculiar appropriateness in placing a monument on the line of these two waterways which formed a highway of warfare followed by the parties of Colonial troops, of French and Indian, and finally American soldiers.

I am sorry that you will have a thoroughly successful celebration, I am, very sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Hon. Samuel P. Ferris, Secretary of the Society of Colonial Wars, New York City.

CRIES FROM THE WIRES.

Nicholas Karnis is in jail in Trenton, N. J., accused by his brother of having attempted to cause his death. The brothers had quarreled over property matters. While out walking Stephen dealt him a blow on the head from the rear, with a club, and threw him into the river. The cold plunge revived the unconscious victim.

Tuesday Monday night, by rushing to the aid of her husband to protect him from an attack by an armed neighbor, young wife received a bullet wound in the right side, and physicians say she will die. Mrs. Ida Eckstein, 22 years of age, is the victim, and after the shooting, Rudolph Hoppe, a saloonkeeper, was set upon by a crowd of indignant workmen, who knocked him down and were beating him on the head when the police appeared. Hoppe and Eckstein had quarreled.

The question of an estate involving a fortune depends upon the date of the death of Arthur Beckwith, an heir, who belonged to a prominent family of New York. He disappeared from the Sanford Hall Asylum at Flushing, L. I., in 1894, and never has been heard of since.

Mrs. Helen Worthington Purington, wife of Col. Holman Green Purington, prominent in Masonic and National fraternal circles, committed suicide at her home in Chicago Monday night by shooting herself in the mouth. Despondency over continued ill-health was the cause.

President Harper of Chicago University has secured the consent of the Sultan of Turkey to an exploration of the ruins in the vicinity of ancient Nineveh, according to advices just received. This marks the successful issue of an attempt begun in July, 1900.

One with an endless chain scheme to stop cigarette smoking is responsible for the flood of mail.

BATTLE OF LAKE GEORGE.

Governors of Four States Unveil Monument.

Famous Indian Chieftain Henrick Lives in Bronze.

Inscriptions Recalling Significance of Engagement to Subsequent Events.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LAKE GEORGE, (N. Y.) Sept. 8.—In the presence of thousands of excursionists from New York, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut representatives of patriotic societies of New York and New England and the remaining life of these States, the Governors of New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, and Massachusetts stationed at the four corners of the monument, pulled the strings which unveiled the monument of the Battle of Lake George. The canvas which had hidden the bronze dropped, and the guns of the Battery belched forth a national salute.

The bronze figures of the monument were designed by Albert W. Einert, the sculptor, and represented the Indian chieftain, King Hendrick, demonstrating to Gen. Johnson the futility of dividing his forces. The figures, which stand on a granite pedestal, are ten feet high.

The monument stands in the center of Battle Park, overlooking the lake. On the east face is the following inscription: "1903. The Society of Colonial Wars erected this monument to commemorate the victory of the colonial forces under Gen. Johnson and their Mohawk allies, under Chief Hendrick, over the French regulars commanded by Baron Dieskau, with the Canadian and Indian allies."

On the south face it reads: "Defeat of Dieskau, which opened the road to Albany and Montreal."

On the north: "Confidence inspired by the event of inestimable value to the cause of the War of the Revolution."

Following the dedicatory ceremonies began with a review of the troops by the quartette of governors.

Following the review, Gov. Odell made an impromptu reception.

The portion of the day was delivered by United States Senator Depew. Gen. De Fiedter, president of the Society of Colonial Wars, in turning over the monument to the New York State, referred to the fact that the object of the society is to restore 150 years in American history, the years existing between the founding of Albany and the Battle of Lexington.

Gen. William Beekman, governor of the New York Society, in accepting the trust in behalf of the society spoke of the endeavors of the society to keep alive the memory of the nation. Addresses were also delivered by Gov. Odell, Chamberlain and Lieut.-Gov. Guild of Massachusetts.

The following letter from President Roosevelt was then read:

"OYSTER BAY, Aug. 29, 1903.

"Dear Mr. Ferris: It is with sincere regret that I find myself unable to be present at the dedication of the monument to commemorate the battle of Lake George. I very earnestly believe in the new wisdom in this new century of ours of keeping alive a sense of continuity with the historic past. It is a good thing from every standpoint to commemorate in striking fashion the deeds that made Lakes Champlain and George famous in Colonial and Revolutionary days, and in the War of 1812. There is a peculiar appropriateness in placing the monument on the line of these two great waterways which formed a highway of war followed by the war parties of the Indians, of Colonial troops, of French troops, and finally American soldiers.

"I trust you will have a thoroughly successful celebration, I am,

"Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"Hon. Isaac P. Ferris, Secretary of the Society of Colonial Wars, New York City."

police sought to stop the encounter between the Mussulmans and Christians, the fighting became general, and resulted in thirty persons being killed or wounded. The soldiers lost one man, and had three wounded.

AS VIEWED BY BRITISH.

HOSTILE FEELING GROWING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Official diplomatic circles here regard the conflict between Mussulmans and Christians at Beirut as evidence of the development of hostile feeling throughout Turkey, as a result of the Macedonian revolt. This is borne out by the threatening uprising in Smyrna.

The Turkish embassy today received a dispatch from Constantinople in relation to the Beirut affair as follows: "Some of the orthodox inhabitants of Beirut attacked four Mussulmans, who were passing through the Mesrabumesra quarter, fired upon them, and rioting ensued."

The imperial authorities immediately sent troops to the scene of the disturbance, which put an end to the strife. One soldier was killed and three wounded. One civilian was killed and one wounded. Order and tranquility are perfectly maintained in all parts of the vilayet.

A high Turkish official pointed out that the Christians were the aggressors, but he said it would not have been even surprising had the Mussulmans precipitated the row, "for throughout Turkey, indignation is felt at the conduct of the revolutionsits in Macedonia."

The official added: "The Christians at Beirut have been greatly encouraged by the appearance of the American squadron, the presence of which could not be regarded sympathetically by the Mohammedan population because it had come, not to pay a friendly call, but to enforce demands."

It is understood here that Turkey is anxious to induce the United States to withdraw the American warships from Turkish waters, believing that such action should discourage the Christians, who hope for American intervention, and the Porte is now expected to make concessions in compliance with the American representations.

All the reports received here continue to record Turkish successes in Macedonia. No confirmation has been received of the report of the death of Boris Sarafoff, the revolutionary leader, but should it be true, the Macedonians will admit that a great blow has been struck at their cause.

Great Britain's refusal to assent to the Russian and Austrian proposal, outlined in the Associated Press dispatch from Berlin yesterday, that the powers take coercive diplomatic action at Sofia with the aim of severing the relations now existing between Bulgaria and the Macedonian insurgents, is traced to her unwillingness to take a step which might have unforeseen consequences.

At the same time the Associated Press learns that rGeat Britain's refusal is not definite, and if all the powers can see their way clear to adopt the Russo-Austrian proposal, she will participate in the coercion of Bulgaria. It is semi-officially stated here that Italy is willing to agree to the proposal mentioned in the dispatches from Berlin, but that the consent of France is doubtful.

The Foreign Office informs the Associated Press that the British military attaché at Constantinople has not gone to Monastir, as announced in a news agency dispatch yesterday. The British government is not aware that any military attachés are there, or that they intend soing to Monastir.

The Foreign Office has received official information of the Beirut affair, but has heard nothing of the British Consul there threatening to ask Admiral Cotton to land United States marines.

BULGARIANS DIE BY TENS OF THOUSANDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Macedonian interior organization estimates that 15,000 women, children and old men are hiding in the mountains and forests of Macedonia. The Turks are burning the forests in the districts of Leron and Kosbre and killing fugitives who attempt to escape to the plains. The Vlach village of Gopess, three hours distant from Monastir, has been burned by the Turks, who are reported to have thrown several of the inhabitants into the fire. The Bashi-Bazouks have destroyed the village of Stoilova.

Thirteen thousand Turkish soldiers are assembled on the frontier near Pelanka, Kratovo, and Gobchani, and are plundering the surrounding villages. The people have not complained, fearing that they may be murdered. In the district of Debritzi, vilayet of Monastir, the soldiers are reported to be naked and starving, and to be robbing all around.

The general staff of the insurgents has issued a circular ordering the bands not to molest the peaceful Turks and Albanian villagers. The order concludes: "There will always be plenty of time to take such measures."

Famine prevails in the district of Krushevo, and the population is going into the adjacent districts. All reports from the vilayet of Monastir agree in describing the situation as appalling. Between thirty thousand and fifty thousand Bulgarian inhabitants are believed to have been massacred by the Turks, and every Bulgarian village in the vilayet has been destroyed.

The refugees in the mountains and forests are dying of starvation by thousands. At present it is impossible to obtain precise figures. The revolutionary headquarters estimate that 30,000 Bulgarian men, women and children have been killed, while at least the same number of refugees have slowly perished of hunger. In official circles these figures are regarded as an under estimate, and officials incline to the belief that the number of massacred exceeds 50,000. The Turks are apparently determined to exterminate the entire Bulgarian population of the vilayet. The actual details of the happenings outside of the town are not available.

The foreign representatives at Monastir are dependent on information furnished them from Turkish official sources. In government circles here, the situation is viewed with increasing alarm. It is reliably reported that the Turkish forces in Macedonia number 35,000. It is considered impossible that such a force could have assembled merely to crush the rebellion. It is feared that the Sultan is meditating an attack on Bulgaria.

According to a telegram from Constantinople, the Porte has issued an unconditional order that all European correspondents must leave Macedonia because they are circulating false news. The ambassadors have been notified of this decision. The latest report regarding Boris Sarafoff, the Macedonian leader, says he was wounded in the leg near Dairene.

NEW AND TERRIBLE DEVELOPMENTS NEXT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Everything seems to point to new and terrible developments in Macedonia. On top of the appalling accounts of the results of the Turkish methods of restoring order in the vilayet of Monastir comes the threat by the insurgents to resort to reprisals on the same scale.

The Porte's anxiety to suppress news by expelling newspaper correspondents from the area of operations is held to have but one meaning. This morning's papers comment upon the significance of the news, first published by the Associated Press, that Russia and Austria are seeking to persuade the powers to coerce Bulgaria, as showing a belief that war is inevitable.

No further news regarding the outbreak at Beirut has been received here. A dispatch to the Standard from Constantinople, dated Sunday, says: "The Turks are much disturbed by the presence of the American warships at Beirut, and are making every effort to have them recalled. In spite of all assertions that the United States only intends to be represented there for the purpose of protecting the interests of her citizens, it is quite possible that the dispatch of the warships may initiate action leading much further."

The same correspondent, telegraphing under Monday's date, on receipt of the news of the Beirut outbreak, says: "With the slightest encouragement disorders might result in the whole of Lebanon rising in revolt. Today has been foretold as the date of a rising against the foreigners, and many residents of Constantinople are keeping to their houses. Personally, I doubt whether there will be anything more than dynamite outrages, which are pretty sure to be attempted before long."

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Petersburg says he is assured on excellent authority that Russia, when she admits proposals to the Porte for the pacification of Macedonia, contemplates the dispatch of her Black Sea squadron to Turkish waters, where it will make a much longer stay than recently, in order to overcome the Sultan's objections to her recommendations.

The Sofia correspondent of the Morning Leader says that by the end of the week the insurgents will have received a large accession of weapons. Thirty thousand rifles are being smuggled into them from all sides, and when they have been received the real fighting will begin.

A Monastir dispatch to the Daily Mail, dated September 6, says the great military drive in the mountains to the southwest of Monastir toward Lake Prespa by a force of 3000 Turkish infantry, with twelve guns, resulted in the escape of all the revolutionary bands. Though the latter were practically surrounded, not one was captured.

The correspondent continues: "Vice-Consul McGregor tells me that the Porte has informed Hilmi Pasha that it has received a threat from the Macedonian Committe that the insurgents intend to murder a British Consul or journalist, or an American missionary. Vice-Consul McGregor notified the Turkish authorities that he will hold them responsible for any murder by either the Turks or the Bulgarians. In my opinion, this is nothing but a gentle hint to the British journalists who are exposing the massacres.

A Sofia dispatch to the Daily Mail, dated September 8, says the Revolutionary Committee tomorrow will issue to the representatives of the powers a circular note forewarning them of coming events. The note is intended to justify the future actions of the insurgents, and will point to the probable total extermination of the Christians as necessitating the employment of the same atrocious measure by the revolutionaries against the Turks, and will contend that the responsibility for such desperate acts will rest with the powers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—If there ever was a death chain it is that of the National Anti-Cigarette League which is dropping out of sight, says a dispatch from Philadelphia. At the league's headquarters there is a stack of letters several feet high addressed to the league, and they are continuing to come. The postal authorities have tried to stop the stream of correspondence for which there is no claimant, but one with an endless chain letter to stop cigarette smoking is not responsible for the flood of mail.

ATTACK ON MAGELSSEN.

FULL DETAILS FROM EGYPT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Egyptian Gazette published at Alexandria, Egypt, has published details regarding the recent attack upon United States Vice-Consul Magelssen. It says Magelssen was riding home in a hired carriage in the evening when, on passing a street near the Bas Beirut, a headland about three miles from Beirut, on which stand the buildings of the American mission, he heard sounds of pistol firing. He turned around to see whence the shots came, and a bullet whizzed past his face. The Vice-Consul had the carriage stopped and jumped out to discover his assailant, but could see no one.

The following day he went to the government office, where he met the Italian Consul and the Austrian Consul, who had come to complain about burglaries of their houses.

The Governor ordered an investigation of the attack on Magelssen, but the only result was the arrest of a young Christian, who had attended a marriage on the previous night and in whose possession was found a toy pistol. The American Vice-Consul indignantly refused to accept the arrest of this man, and decided to visit his brother-in-law, the American Consul-General, who was staying in the mountains to the north of Beirut.

The Egyptian Gazette mentions that three months before Magelssen was attacked by men in Turkish uniforms, whom, by his strength, he put to flight. The paper adds that it is very dangerous for Europeans to appear on the streets of Beirut at night. Murder and pillage are daily occurrences and many families have moved to Egypt.

HARROWING DETAILS.

CRUELTY ALMOST INCREDIBLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 8.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Private letters received from European residents of Monastir give harrowing details of the situation in that vilayet. Destitute Bulgarian refugees, who are arriving daily, relate almost incredible tales of Turkish cruelty. Sixty families recently arrived there from Smilro, which place was totally destroyed. The refugees saw a husband and wife sitting in the ruins of their home, when a Turkish soldier slashed off the man's head and threw it in the woman's lap. The soldiers found a servant girl and six children hidden in a ditch. They outraged the girl and slaughtered all the children.

Numerous Bulgarian prisoners have been brought to Monastir. Twenty Bulgarians who had been exiled were marched off connected by heavy chains about their necks and ankles.

The elections from the Sobranje (national Assembly) have been fixed for October 18. The ministerial organ here, replying to the criticisms of the opposition of the government's action in dissolving the Sobranje during the present critical times, says: "By holding elections now, we show Europe that we regard the Macedonian trouble as an international affair of Turkey, while we look after our own business."

WILL CHASE BULGARIANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A dispatch to a news agency from Constantinople says the Turkish government is preparing a circular to the powers, calling attention to the attitude of Bulgaria, and declaring the intention of the government to pursue armed Bulgarian bandits in Macedonia and even into Bulgarian territory.

PITTSBURGH FIRE LOSSES.

PITTSBURGH, Sep 8.—A revised estimate of the losses by the early morning fire on Liberty avenue today, places the total loss at $262,000. The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company estimate their loss at $160,000, that of the Comstock Brass Manufacturing Company is $100,000. The Tueuler Manufacturing Company's loss is about $90,000, besides an estimated loss of $12,000 on their building. The greater part of the loss is covered by insurance. At least sixty horses were burned to death.

LOUISE SAFE IN PORT.

SANDUSKY (O.) Sept. 8.—The fishing tug Louise, which it was feared had gone down with more than 100 passengers in the big storm on Lake Erie yesterday, arrived here today from Leamington, Ontario. Everybody on board was safe, but sick. Very rough weather was encountered after a terrible struggle with the waves, and the Louise then got into the lee of Pelee Island, where she lay several hours, until the storm had subsided. Scores of friends and relatives of those on board the vessel remained on the docks all night in the greatest anxiety.

BRYAN RETURNS TO PROPHECY.

GRAND STAND FALLS AT A SHAM BATTLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.) Sept. 8.—The grand stand erected on a knoll on the Fort Leavenworth reservation, close to the city limits, gave way this afternoon, injuring twenty-five persons. None were killed. Many of those injured received broken limbs. The stand was put up this morning. Fully 1500 people crowded onto it. Just about the time the sham battle was concluded, the grand stand broke down.

There was a heavy artillery duel with siege guns. Three battalions of infantry were using black powder. Some one announced that the cavalry were emerging from a ravine to charge. People on the grand stand stood up to see them through the smoke. The entire stand went down with a crash. The utmost confusion followed, accompanied by shrieks of victims. It was found that many were pinned down under the débris. Hundreds who were walking on the ground rushed to the grand stand, looking for relatives. The confusion was great until the regular soldiers formed a line and kept all back.

The battle, which was on the other side of the road, was called off, and the soldiers began taking care of the injured. Ambulances were used to convey the people to the city hospitals, and within an hour after the accident the injured had all been removed.

All those injured are alive, but it is feared that three will die. The fatally injured are:

MRS. JOHN MOURDAUNT, Leavenworth, left hip broken, and back injured.

MRS. CHARLES NORBY, Leavenworth, back hurt and left leg fractured.

MRS. C. H. NOBLE, Leavenworth, injured internally.

PACIFIC SLOPE.

HUNTINGTON'S POWER PLANS.

Twenty Miles of Tunnels and Pipe Lines.

Natural Reservoir Facilities With Tremendous Fall.

Alleged Poisoners Arraigned. Assessor's Tale of Woe—Marriott Damage Suit.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The announcement that H. E. Huntington is looking to the San Joaquin River as the source of power for his immense electrical projects in Southern and Central California, calls attention to the work he has already done in this connection. Not only is Huntington looking to the San Joaquin for power, but he has been working for over a year, being represented by J. S. Eastwood, engineer, who has been making surveys and filing upon claims. The plans are prodigious, involving the expenditure of millions, the long-distance transmission being in itself a tremendous undertaking.

It is proposed to take the water out of the main river twenty miles north of Shaver, and by a series of tunnels and pipe lines carry it through the mountains to the South Fork. The largest tunnel will be one mile in length. From this point the waters of the South Fork and those of Big Creek will be carried on to a place affording natural reservoir facilities, giving a fall of over 2000 feet. Then the water will be carried along by conduits and tunnels a distance of four and a half miles, gaining another drop of 1700 feet.

With the normal low water of river and conserved flood waters there will be a flow of nearly 1000 miner's inches.

BOLLINGER ESTATE.

COURT SCORES TRUSTEE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 8.—Judge Hyland filed his decision in the suit of Mary A. L. Bollinger vs. George Y. Bollinger et al, for the recovery of property valued at $100,000, of the late Christian Bollinger, who died January 26, 1898, and upon whose death, George Y. Bollinger, a son, was appointed executor of the estate.

The plaintiff, who is the widow, was married to Christian Bollinger November 7, 1889, and both had seperate property, which they retained separately, and there was no community property accumulated after their marriage.

October 15, 1898, the widow filed a petition contesting the will, the heirs being the widow and the children, George Y., David, Elizabeth C., and Emma Bare, and Mary C. Pullen, who died in 1898, leaving two children, William and George.

The evidence, according to the court, sustains the conclusion that George urged his father to transfer to him a large amount of property, in trust, to defeat any claim plaintiff might make thereto, to manage and invest the property prudently, and to hold it in trust, paying his father such sums as he might require for his comfort; and in case of the plaintiff's death to transfer all the property to the father, or in case of the mother's death to transfer it all, share and share alike, to the children.

The court scores the defendant for his disregard of business principles in managing this property, and declares that he does not own the property, but simply holds it in trust; on the other hand, the plaintiff has no interest whatever, there having been separate property of the husband, and she is not entitled to judgment.

The defendants, William and George Pullen, are entitled to one-fifth of the property transferred to George.

FATAL SMALLPOX.

EXTERMINATING ESQUIMAUX.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Smallpox has so decimated the tribes of Esquimaux in the MacKenzie Bay region that in many instances, whole bands have been swept away, and few are left in the others. Steamboat Inspector Phillips has just returned from an official trip to all points on the MacKenzie River and tributaries, where steamboats are in commission going as far north as Peel River, 300 miles within the Arctic Circle. He states that the disease has been ravaging the tribes for some years. At Fort Resolution on the Peel River, where an usually large number of Esquimaux usually meet the Hudson Bay boats, there was not one this year. The disease was contracted by these people through a visit to Dawson City, and as they had absolutely no care, the disease spread and they left the dead along the trail on the way home. Among one tribe at the north end of Great Slave Lake, eighty died this summer from the disease.

HEALTH OFFICERS MEET.

FORM STATE ORGANIZATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—A number of health officers from various parts of California met today with the State Board of Health. Addresses were delivered on the pure-food question, the management of epidemics and the necessity of the regulation of the public health by means of the power conferred on the police by general laws. A permanent organization was then formed and named the State, County and Municipal Sanitary Conference of California.

It is the intention of the organization to meet once a year to attempt to revise the sanitary laws of the State, and by mutual exchange of ideas work in more perfect harmony in the future. Dr. Martin Regensburger, chairman of the State Board of Health, was elected president of the new association, and Dr. N. K. Foster, secretary.

FRESNO'S LABOR SUPPLY.

MOST PLENTIFUL IN YEARS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The vineyardists and orchardists of Fresno county have had no trouble this year in finding all the help needed to begin the work of picking, which in the vineyards is in full swing. While there is the usual large quota of oriental labor available, it being estimated that 5000 Japanese and 3500 Chinese have come to work during the busy season, there is a large excess of white labor over former years. Several of the largest growers say they have had less trouble to get sufficient help this year than for five years.

R. E. Hutchinson, who was East for the Promotion Committe, and who is himself a large orchardist, says this sufficiency of white labor is largely due to the efforts of the Promotion Committee. According to railroad figures, he says, 3600 persons of those who came to California during the low excursion rates have remained. Of this number a considerable portion constitutes an elastic labor supply, gravitating to places where there is work, and moving on to other places when the rush season is over.

SHOT BY A LUNATIC.

FORMER OREGON SHERIFF.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 8.—A. J. McKinnon, a former sheriff of Washington county, Oregon, was shot and killed today at Guernville, twenty miles northwest of here, by an escaped lunatic from the Ukiah Asylum named Jerraud. McKinnon came here several years ago after having resigned his office in Oregon, and purchased a ranch not far from town. When sheriff, he was once compelled to take Jerraud to an asylum in Oregon, and for that the latter cherished resentment. As McKinnon and Jacob Joost were sitting together on Joost's porch, Jerraud came along, pulled a pistol, and without warning fired. His aim was perfect and McKinnon toppled over dead. Jerraud escaped but officers are now on his trail. Jerraud eluded his attendants at Ukiah two months ago.

STRANGE MARRIAGE.

FREAK OF YOUNG MAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 8.—A story has just leaked out here to the effect that Bert Hohenshell of this city, under the assumed name of Herbert Hoen, secured a license last Wednesday to wed Maude Paden, whose home is near Hanford, giving her name as Maud Pay. The couple were married Thursday at Lodi by the Justice of the Peace, after which Hohenshell told her to get out of the country. A letter from the young woman to George A. Ritchie, a local bicycle dealer, her brother-in-law, is to the effect that Hohenshell forced her to marry him under pain of death. It is believed that she has gone to her home near Hanford. The authorities have been apprised of the affair and a criminal prosecution will probably result.

EQUALIZATION BOARD.

SHASTA COUNTY'S HEARING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 8.—Shasta was the first county to be heard this morning before the State Board of Equalization. It was represented by Assessor R. E. Collins and other county officials. Collins said there would have been a large increase in the county's assessed valuation were it not for labor troubles. The Bully Hill mine was closed down to avoid a a strike on account of its employés. The Mountain Copper Company's plant at Keswick was shut down in November last on account of the strike. The men are now at work again. None of the stores at Keswick laid in any stock on account of the fear of a recurrence of the strike.

In 1902, the assessed valuation of the county was $8,516,695. The assessment this year was fixed at $9,227,130.

Assessor Collins said the reduction in personal property in both the Mountain Copper Company and the Bully Hill Company was caused by the closing down of both smelters last fall. The companies had little or no ore or bullion out at the time of the present assessment, compared with last year. The assessment on the real estate of these companies has increased.

Town lots and surrounding real estate in the towns of Keswick, Bully Hill and Salles were reduced 33 per cent. on account of the closing down of the smelters, caused by labor troubles. Lots that previously sold for $100 could be purchased for $50. The outlook for this county on the first of March, said Mr. Collins, was not very promising, compared with the same time the previous year. Farming and agricultural land was assessed this year for more than it has ever been and with the exception of the above described property, there was a general increase in all portions of the county in the assessment. Farming and agricultural land was assessed for $15 per acre. With all reductions that had to be made, Shasta county's assessment was increased over $400,000.

The assessed valuation of Siskyou county in 1902 was $7,865,853. For this year it was fixed at $8,876,765. Assessor J. S. Nally said the mines in Siskiyou county have gone backward. Lumber is increasing. Timber land was assessed from $3.25 to $5 an acre.

The members of the board were unanimous in the expression that an assessment of $5 an acre for land with growing timber on it was a ridiculously low assessment. Chairman Brown said he would be in favor of raising every county in the northern part of the State in another year, if they did not make a better assesement of their timber lands.

Supervisor Abned Weed said that 20,000 acres of timber land were destroyed by fire this year.

Lassen county was represented by Assessor C. E. Ellerson. The assessment in 1902 was $3,542,650. This year it is $4,367,125. No timber is being taken out. It is held in large bodies at the present time. Government reserves cover about all the timber that is left in the county. There is but one good mine in the county. The principal industry is stock raising.

An automobile was sent from here to the scene of the wreck for the delayed mail, and the San Francisco papers.

SUSPICIOUS BAT MURPHY.

THINKS HE SAW CONVICTS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEVADA, Sept. 8.—Two strange men called at the residence of Bat Murphy at Big Tunnel last Saturday afternoon and acted in a very suspicious manner. It was about 2 o'clock, and no one was at the Murphy home except James Murphy. The men sat down on the porch, and asked the way to Nevada City. When told what roads to take they asked if there was much travel over the roads mentioned. They also asked for something to eat, but refused to come in the house. Later on they were observed at the old Skillman place, near Nevada City. One of the same men called at the cabin of Mike Norton on the same day. The other man remained in the brush. They came by way of the tunnel from Emigrant Gap, on the Southern Pacific. Murphy believes the men are escaped convicts.

Mystery Added to Tragedy.

TUOLUMNE, Sept. 8.—The sensational tragedy here last night has now had a mystery added. Walter J. Brown lies in the morgue and a post mortem showed that the bullet which caused death was fired from the rear, striking in the back. Eugene Godat, the other principal, is in the hospital with a bullet in his head and may die. At the coroner's inquest, Charles Connolly, an eye witness, testified that the shot which killed Brown was not fired by Godat, but by a person in the crowd behind the deceased. The fatal bullet was from a 41-caliber pistol. It is learned that the District Attorney has in his possession a letter given him by Godat in which Brown said he would kill Godat at sight. Mrs. Brown testified that her husband fired first.

Credit Belongs to California.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Sept. 8.—The entomological problem of Smyrna fig culture in America is solved, says the latest year book issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, and the honor of being the original home of the industry in this country belongs to California. Thousands of figs containing the fig fertilising insect were introduced into California last year, and successfully withstood th ewinter climate so that an unlimited amount of fig insects was available at the proper time for caprification this spring. The results have been gratifying from a commercial point of view. Since it has been demonstrated that the fig insect successfully hibernated at Niles, there is no longer any danger of its dying out.

LABOR.

UMPIRE WRIGHT FINDS FOR EMPLOYERS.

HAVE AN UNDOUBTED RIGHT TO DISMISS MEN.

Under Award of Commission the Umpire Declares that This Right is Reserved to Operators and They Needn't Give Cause of Dismissal.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SCRANTON (Pa.) Sept. 8.—Carroll D. Wright, the umpire to whom was referred five disputes between the operators and miners' representatives on the board of conciliation appointed under the provisions of the Anthracite Mine Strike Commission, filed his findings today with T. D. Nicholls, secretary of the board.

In dealing with the question of the employers' right to discharge men for any cause, other than of connection with a labor union, Umpire Wright agrees wholly with the contention of the operators' representatives, and declares that the right of an employer to discharge without giving the cause of the discharge is sustained by the award of the commission. He says that the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company and Coxe Bros. & Co. should take back old men instead of putting on new men in all cases where the old men are competent, and have not been convicted, or not awaiting trial for crime committed during the strike.

The umpire says: "There can be no doubt that a man has a right to quit the service of his employer whenever he sees fit, with or without giving any cause provided he gives proper notice, and that the employer has a perfect right to employ and discharge men in accord with the conditions of his industry; that he is not obliged to give any cause for discharge, but that he should, as in the reverse case, give proper notice.

"This right to discharge must, therefore, be sustained. Any other view of the case would result in compelling men to work for an employer when they did not wish to, and thus enslave them, when on the other hand it would compel employers to employ men whether they had work for them or not, and whether the men were incompetent or not, and would thus stagnate business, and work to the injury of all other employés.

"All discharges, as all quittals, should be made on a reasonable basis. The employer and employé should treat each other with justice and with a desire to preserve peace."

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] September's warm wave continued today, but the weather man holds out hope that relief is in sight. The mercury climbed to 82 deg. in the middle of the afternoon, and for a low point touched 71 at 6 a.m. A brisk south wind served to add to the discomfiture. This brand is unusual in Chicago at this season of the year, and is explained by the fact that July and August were so cool. Thunderstorms are predicted, and are expected to be followed by cooling breezes from the north.

SCHOOL BEGINS AGAIN.

This morning, 348,000 boys and girls left home for school, vaguely wondering why holidays should ever come to an end. The usual difficulties were encountered by the 5500 teachers in getting order in the rooms, as many pupils have very nearly lost all trace of discipline during the long vacation. The Ghetto district suffered most from lack of proper school accommodations, and for the present a large number will have to be content with half-day sessions. From now until the close of September, the attendance will increase, as many children are not yet back from the summer resorts. Seven new schools were opened.

MANLEY OF MAINE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Roosevelt Presidential campaign may be said to have opened today with a strong boom for Joseph Manley of Maine for Vice-President. The first gun was fired by the Sound Money League of the National League of Commercial Travelers.

The President, somewhat wearied by his trip to Syracuse, arrived at his Oyster Bay home at 10 o'clock this morning, but not to rest. Visitors invaded Sagamore Hill in steady streams, and to cap the climax of the day's activity a committee of the Commercial Travelers' Sound Money League called upon the President with assurances of support for the campaign of 1904. This committee numbered fourteen, and each man wore upon his breast a Roosevelt badge of red silk, bearing a medallion picture of the President and the name of the association in letters of gold.

Col. John L. Shepard headed the committee, which included E. C. Mathewson of Boston, Oscar H. Honstadt of Philadelphia, E. B. Wilkins of Rochester, George W. Dyche of Boston and Col. John H. Blockall of New York. Col. Shepard in a few sentences explained the object of the visit, to emphasize the fidelity of the league to sound-money principles, to assure the President of the league's support, and to invite the President to the league banquet.

The President, holding in his hand a new 1904 Roosevelt badge, a present from the delegation, returned thanks, assuring the traveling men that their organization had exerted powerful sound-money influence. He suggested that the proposed banquet be given in Washington, in which event he certainly would attend. The suggestion was adopted.

NEW YORK MAY GET IT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is rumored in political circles that the next Republican National Convention may be held in this city, and it is believed that the President may himself request it. A hint from the President to the powers that be in the Republican National Committee undoubtedly would settle the matter, and some of the President's New York friends have been endeavoring to persuade him that his personal interests demand that he say the word.

The plan, as rumored, is not solely on account of the President, however. It is hoped, so the report goes, that by holding the national convention here to unify the party in the State and remove the friction now so apparent. It is now an open secret in political circles that the Republican leaders also fear that "Wall street influences are not overfriendly to Roosevelt's re-election." It is thought that these influences may be more than counteracted by the popular enthusiasm for the President in the city and State, if the big convention is held here.

SENATOR CLARK'S VIEWS.

NEW DEMOCRAT NEEDED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Returning from a two months' ramble abroad today, Senator William A. Clark expressed his views on the political situation.

"The next Democratic national convention will be one of the most interesting in the history of the party," said the Senator. "The battle of the aspirants will be fought on the floor of the convention. There will be no slate. Cleveland could not get the nomination. Bryan's influence may be a factor, but I don't believe he can be nominated, either. Neither can Hill.

"What is needed is an entirely new man, one who has not been too closely identified with national politics hitherto; who is aggressive, energetic, and upon whom all elements of the party can be united. Such a man can easily be found, and with such a candidate I believe the party could enter upon a campaign with bright hopes of success."

As to a platform, Clark said, in a general way, that revision of the tariff is necessary, and that there is urgent need of legislation that will give more elasticity to currency.

BYRNE RESIGNS OFFICE.

GOING TO NEW YORK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OYSTER BAY, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The President today received the resignation of William Michael Byrne, United States District Attorney of Delaware. Byrne gave as his reason for resigning that he contemplated forming a law partnership in New York City and cannot attend to the duties of United States District Attorney. Byrne is known as an Addicks man. Originally, he was a staunch regular Republican, having been appointed District Attorney through the influence of Col. Dupont. When the national leaders began to clamor for the election of two Senators in Delaware, even though Addicks be one of them, Byrne began slowly to change his views.

He was nominated for Representative on the Addicks ticket, and resigned as District Attorney to make the campaign. He was defeated, but the President, against the protests of the regular faction, reappointed him. Attempts to have the appointment confirmed in the Senate failed.

SETH LOW'S THIRD TERM.

GOTHAM'S REFORM CANDIDATE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Seth Low, for a third time in seven years, will be named tomorrow night as reform candidate for Mayor of Greater New York. When the Fusion conferees meet tomorrow evening at Citizens' Union headquarters, it will be known to all that the Mayor is willing to run again, and nothing is likely to prevent his informal nomination.

The Mayor today confided to some of the Fusion leaders his decision to accept a renomination, if the conference should see fit to offer it to him. As soon as the Mayor's decision became known, all serious talk of any other candidate ceased in Fusion camps.

M. Linn Bruce, president of the Republican County Committee, today joined City Chamberlain E. R. L. Gould, one of the principal men in the Citizens' Union, in declaring that Low would be chosen.

"Mayor Low will be renominated at the conference tomorrow night," Bruce said, "and I am confident that he will accept, and that he will be reelected in November."

In making this statement, Bruce reflects the view of Republican leaders generally. His expression was quite similar to that of the Mayor's intimate friend, Dr. Gould, who said: "Mr. Low will be renominated without doubt. I see no reason for changing my belief that he will accept, and I am convinced that he will be reelected, with Comptroller Grout and Mr. Fornes, president of the Board of Aldermen."

DOCTOR'S ADVICE

"Quit Wrong Food and Use Grape-Nuts."

An Illinoisan who has been in the mill says: "Last spring I had with digestion I could not even soft cooked eggs and toast. I must eat predigested food. I subscribed Grape-Nuts. I changed to better before I had used one box, eating it three times a day.

"My improvement on this food was so wonderful that I concluded to use your food exclusively in place of tea and to make a full meal. In short I have not been without Grape-Nuts and Postum since and my entire health proves my doctor's wisdom in prescribing Grape-Nuts. I am now as strong as a horse and well as I ever was. I tell all to use Grape-Nuts and Postum and give it all to your delicious food instead of tea. Name given by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

In the making of Grape-Nuts all the indigestible starchy elements of the grain are transformed into grape sugar. Every particle of Grape-Nuts is therefore easily digestible in the weakest stomach. Physicians have never before had such a food ready cooked, which was also ready to digest when eaten. Grape-Nuts contains the two principal elements of nature's rebuilders of the human body, as found in the grains of wheat and barley, and is the only food which will successfully rebuild the brain and nerve centers. There's a reason.

"HELL" AT ASYLUM.

Rev. J. S. Matthews' Characterization of B Ward at Highland—Mrs. Plannette Charges Horrible Abuse and Insult—Official Investigation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HIGHLAND HOSPITAL, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The opening of the investigation into conditions and practices at the State Hospital for the Insane yesterday was attended by sensational features.

Mrs. Plannette, wife of the unfortunate clergyman committed some days since, repudiated her former statements and produced witnesses whose testimony, if creditable, reveals conditions of affairs at the hospital almost beyond belief.

With a full knowledge of the facts as they came out in today's investigation, it is difficult to understand how Mrs. Plannette could have been induced to express the satisfaction she did in regard to the treatment her husband was receiving. She at that time even went so far as to voluntarily send a written statement to the press declaring all charges to be unfounded. Together with them by courtesy, Mrs. Plannette gave a recital of inhuman treatment, abuse and insult to which she, in some particulars, for publication.

Testifying under oath, Mrs. Pfannette not only had witnesses by whom she expected to show that Rev. Mr. Plannette was subjected to indignities which greatly aggravated his malady, but at times he was choked and struck, and that on one occasion, after severe beating, his body was covered with discolorations and bruises.

The point upon which her testimony was most definite was an alleged interview had by Mr. and Mrs. Plannette, which, as represented by the former, resulted in the transfer of B ward, and later a close confinement. This, it is alleged, was done at the action of Dr. Dolan, who, it is charged with offering the inducement of ordering the punishment, responded to the queries of the board, Plannette said:

DOCTOR CHARGES INSULT.

"I was taken during July, I was encouraged because of the improvement in Mr. Plannette's condition, and in particular I recall one visit in particular I recall one occasion. I came to the hospital with my children and found Mr. Plannette in his former self. He had just played with the children and had a devotional hour in a little nook in the grounds, Mr. Plannette was thanking his thanks for the improvement in his condition and for the hope of ultimate recovery. You can imagine my consternation when I found, in making an inquiry why he did not write, I that he was in a precarious condition and had been transferred to the abode of the violent. I at once took steps to secure his removal to another institution, as I believed there was small hope for him where he was.

"The correspondence that passed between Dr. Dolan and myself, and between with Dr. Campbell, I am willing to submit. My visits would have to be, as after I left each time Mr. Plannette was always in a much worse state. Dr. Campbell also made a most insulting question as to why, when I called, I insisted on being alone with my husband, saying an improper association under the circumstances. Then it was that the cause of Mr. Plannette's illness. This recital I submit to another."

HORRIBLY BRUISED.

Not entrusted with this statement of causes relative to Mr. Plannette's relapse was Rev. J. S. Matthews, at one time also a patient, whom Dr. Matthews the board found to be a tartar. The doctor denies this. He possesses a keen and an interest in Plannette clergyman, he was, after a time, given the privilege of calling upon the stricken man, which he then learned is in his own language:

"Mr. Plannette under the influence of drugs, said Dr. Matthews, "he became suspicious and not right. It is a rule that I must always be in a room and had to wait for two hours left alone with my patient. I wanted to examine him, as I had been told, both by nurses and patients, that he had been abused. My opportunity came and I found the right man lying in a horrible condition, black and blue, and there was evidence of his having received terrible beating. Two patients, one of George and Gettis, said they had been witnesses to the beating, and that Attendants Gentheart and Moysen had been parties.

"There can be but one conclusion as to who Plannette was punished: I went to tell Dr. Dolan what he had done, and in consequence was sent to B ward and later mal-treated.

'HELL' IS PURGATORY.

"Such a sentence to B ward was regarded as punishment, Dr. Matthews said:

"I refused but to visit the ward to me. The foul smells, the hideous sounds, the constant fear of being attacked by some infuriated demon, all this would be enough to make any convalescent ill. I tell you, gentlemen, B ward is hell; no, I'll modify that. B ward is purgatory, for there is no redemption from hell, but from purgatory there may be some hope.

TO IMPROVE OR DIE.

"As to the causes for the punishment of Dr. Plannette," continued Dr. Matthews, "I saw Dr. Dolan call Mr. Plannette to a side room, and there was excited conversation. Mr. Plannette was still talking and abusive when I left them, as they emerged. I went to Mr. Plannette offered the services of Dr. Campbell to me, and I found that Dr. Campbell was sedative to their spending a week alone when together. Mr. Plannette refused it, and in consequence was removed to B ward, and later treated in a most inhuman manner. Because of this treatment, Mr. Plannette's case was aggravated and his recovery made doubtful."

Dr. Campbell asked the witness how it was, if B ward was such an awful place, that patients became better and were sent to other wards. Dr. Matthews's answer was characteristic. He said: "A man in B ward has but one alternative. He either has to get worse and go to the morgue, or mend a bit and secure a transfer to another ward."

SCARS SHOW INJURIES.

Recalled, Mrs. Plannette stated that Mr. Plannette is now at the San Gabriel Institute, and that as evidenced by scarred and palsied arms and a husky voice, the choking received at the Highland Asylum and the rigid use of bed straps had permanently injured her husband.

Mr. Gettis, a patient in the same ward with Dr. Plannette, in a measure corroborated Dr. Matthews's testimony, although it was shown that he was hardly in a responsible position. The Rev. Dr. Landis and Rev. Dr. Young, a committee from the Los Angeles Presbyterian Ministers' Association, were also present and offered corroborative testimony of matters that had been brought to their attention concerning the ill treatment of their brother minister, Plannette.

"YOU VILLAIN! YOU VILLAIN!"

The climax to the investigation came in the rebuttal evidence, Dr. Dolan being under examination. The witness reviewed Mrs. Plannette's testimony relative to alleged indelicate questions asked and inferences drawn; insisted that all dealings with Mrs. Plannette had been upon a professional basis and that sentiment or mock delicacy should have no place in the inquiry.

"These questions asked Mrs. Plannette and the statement made to her husband were based upon a desire to intelligently handle the case under treatment," said Dr. Dolan in explanation. "Now, I would like to ask Mrs. Plannette did the act alleged or intimated really take place?"

To the afflicted wife this query was the last straw. With a scream she cried out: "You villain! you villain!" and in hysterical language heaped anathemas upon the doctor, her condition making it necessary for friends to remove her from the room. Dr. Dolan admitted he had asked the questions and had engaged Plannette in the reported conversation. However, he positively declared that Plannette had made no offensive response.

Supervisor Alberts, who was present at the time of the interview with Mr. Plannette, fully corroborated Dr. Dolan.

FEARED TO TESTIFY.

But little was gained in the examination of H. F. Spielman, a patient. He had never seen Plannette choked or in any way abused, as had been alleged. In the control of patients, he had only witnessed the use of ordinary restraint. At the conclusion of Spielman's testimony, Dr. Matthews was permitted to make a statement, which was in direct contradiction of Spielman's testimony. Dr. Matthews said:

"I heard Mr. Spielman say all that I have previously stated. Furthermore, he also stated that if called before the board he would deny ever having had such a conversation with me. Do you want to see me punished for talking? Wait until I am discharged and then I'll tell all I know, was the way he put it in explanation."

Nor could the witness be drawn into an admission that would in any way indicate that he had knowledge of the inhuman treatment of patients.

CHOKED AND MAULED.

Another patient-witness was Thomas George, under treatment for alcoholism, but who seemed in full possession of his mental faculties. He said:

"I was in the same dormitory with Dr. Plannette and have seen him choked down several times, both day and night. The trouble with Mr. Plannetet was he would not stay in bed. The only way he could be subdued was to choke him. I have been through the same treatment, and know what I am talking about. At the time I did not think such harsh treatment was necessary, and presume Mr. Plannette had similar thoughts when in the grasp of an attendant.

"I have seen Mr. Plannette roughly overcome when sitting up in bed by being struck a stinging blow upon the shoulder and ofentimes attendants would use their knees upon the patient. Those resorting to this inhuman mode of punishment were Attendants Gentheart and Stewart. This gouging of the knees into the short ribs I regarded as worse than knocking a man down."

"I fully agree with you in regard to the use of the knees," commented Dr. Hatch, one of the commissioners. Continuing, Mr. George said: "The use of the knees was resorted to when there was but one attendant upon the ward. When there were others present to help, several would grab Mr. Plannette and throw him back in bed."

This was denied by Supervisor Alberts, Ttendants Gentheart and Moysen and P. J. Collins, general night watchman.

CONFESSES TO CRUELTY.

Night Nurse Stewart, when called to the stand, proved a most sullen and unsatisfactory witness for himself and Plannette had been a most unruly patie the institution. He testified that Rev. tient and persistent in his disturbances. "On one occasion," said Stewart, "he became extremely violent, pulling mattresses from under other patients and overturning beds. I was forced to restrain him and in so doing, gave him the 'strong arm.'"

"Have you ever seen patients subjected to knee pressure when in a scuffle with attendants?" was the next question asked.

To this query, Stewart doggedly refused to answer. Pressed by Dr. Campbell and the State commissioners, the witness admitted that he had in cases of "self-defense." He further stated, though reluctantly, that there might have been occasions when the knee had been used that the plea of self-defense was hardly justifiable. Asked to cite at least one instance, Stewart again resorted to dogged silence.

"On what ground do you refuse to answer?" asked Dr. Hatch.

"Well, I have no ground," replied the witness.

Coerced by his inquisitors, Stewart finally admitted that he had seen attendants throw patients to the floor and subject them to knee pressure until subdued. Asked for the names of the attendants, the witness stubbornly refused to commit himself or others. And no amount of urging or threatening could make him change his attitude.

Dr. Dolan, returning to the stand, stated that in Plannette's case hyoscine had been used to quiet the patient and when this failed, restraint had been resorted to.

PROBE "GRAFT" TODAY.

Dr. Campbell, in a closing statement, said that the first that he had heard of Dr. Plannette being abused was through the newspapers. "The query I put to Mrs. Plannette relative to her relations with her husband on the occasion of her visits was of a purely professional nature," said the doctor. "I regard her change of attitude as due to the influence of others and lay nothing to her charge. Dr. Plannette is troubled with a progressive brain malady, to which is due all the peculiar phases of his case. The loss of voice and the apparent paralysis of limbs can be traced to the same general cause."

This closed the Plannette case, the inquiry having been of a most searching nature. The findings of the board will be incorporated in the general findings after all charges of cruelty have been fully investigated.

The alleged inhuman use of apomorphia and the charges of "graft" will be taken up tomorrow at the morning session of the board. The sifting of the latter charge will be difficult, as witnesses have refused to put in an appearance, a fact that will in a measure have the authorities in the air. The State Commissioners will prosecute the matter to the finish, however, and make a later report to the State Commission in Lunacy.

A Contented Prisoner.

The Prussian prison authorities are perplexed what to do with a man named Michael Keller, whose sentence to death, passed upon him in 1853, was commuted to penal servitude for life. The prisoner is now an old man of 80, and, although he has been offered his liberty on more than one occasion, refuses to leave the prison. He declares that, after being in jail all these years for a crime of which he is innocent, he does not wish to be released in his old age to be miserable. The man's relatives have been traced, and are willing to look after him, but he will have nothing to do with them. —[London Daily News.

RUSSIA MODIFIES TERMS IN CHINA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Times' Peking correspondent says that when, August 15, Prince Ching wrote Minister Conger officially that the American treaty would be signed October 8, and would contain a clause permitting the opening of Mukden City and Tatung-Kao, it was understood generally that this was done with the consent of Russia.

M. Lessar, Russian Minister to China, indorses the opening of two ports and undertakes that the three provinces of Manchuria will be restored to the autonomy of China, provided China undertakes that no portion of the territory shall be ceded to any other power; that no concession shall be granted to England, unless equally granted to Russia; that there shall be no increase of the present import tariff on goods entering Manchuria by railway; that in the event of an epidemic at Niu-Chwang, a Russian health officer shall be appointed to superintend sanitary work; that Russia shall retain her own military telegraph line along the railway and that Russo-Chinese bank agencies in Manchuria shall be guarded by Chinese soldiers.

If the foregoing conditions are agreed to, M. Lessar promises that Niu Chwang and Mukden province shall be evacuated October 8, and the remaining provinces in due course of time.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOGOTA (Saturday) Sept. 5.—[By South American Cable.] The bill which Congress is now discussing, authorising President Marroquin to negotiate a new Panama Canal treaty with the United States, contains the following stipulation:

"The mixed tribunals in the canal zone shall try suits between foreigners or between Colombians and foreigners. The police and sanitary measures shall be practically in charge of the United States.

"Twenty million dollars is fixed as the price of the concession, besides the rental sum of $10,000,000, payable by the canal company in consideration of Colombia's approval of the transfer of shares.

"The railroad shall in sixty-four years revert to Colombia, but the United States may buy it under a valuation.

"A term shall be fixed within which the canal must be begun and finished.

"The contract shall provide for a means to settle differences which may arise between the governments during the construction and execution of the contract."

BUSINESS.

Business activity of a satisfactory nature is reflected in the local bank clearings yesterday, when more than a million dollars showed up in the total. The corresponding day last year was a holiday. As compared with the clearings for the same day in 1901, an increase of almost 100 per cent. is found.

Chicago figures were lower at the close, while unusual dullness characterized the stock market at New York. The monetary situation was unchanged.

THE PRESIDENT'S STRONG WORDS

After the subsidence of the applause which greeted the President's address at Syracuse, on Monday, Senator Chauncey M. Depew was called for by the audience, and in his brief response he pronounced the President's address the best that he had ever heard him deliver.

Those who listened to the President's address, and those who have read it through with care, will probably agree that it is one of the strongest and best—in some respects the strongest and best—of his public utterances. In it he proclaims, with fearlessness and forcefulness, with candor, and with the impressive eloquence born of his own earnest convictions, the simple, the fundamental gospel of true Americanism—"All for each, and each for all"—which is a reaffirmation of the old but sound aphorism, "United we stand, divided we fall."

The President makes the strongest possible plea for the rights of the individual man, declaring that "we can keep our government on a sane and healthy basis, we can make and keep our social system what it should be, only on condition of judging each man, not as a member of a class, but on his worth as a man. It is an infamous thing in our American life," the President continues, "and fundamentally treacherous to our institutions, to apply to any man any test save that of his personal worth, or to draw between two sets of men any distinction save the distinction of conduct—the distinction that marks off those who do well and wisely from those who do ill and foolishly. There are good citizens and bad citizens in every class, as in every locality, and the attitude of decent people toward great public and social questions should be determined, not by the accidental questions of employment or locality, but by those deep-set principles which represent the innermost souls of men."

Continuing, more specifically, to decry the creation of class distinctions and class antagonisms, the President said:

"The failure in public and private life thus to treat each man on his own merits, the recognition of this government as being either for the poor as such or for the rich as such, would prove fatal to our republic, as such failure and such recognition have always proved fatal in the past to other republics. A healthy republican government must rest upon individuals, not upon classes or sections. As soon as it becomes government by a class or by a section, it departs from the old American ideal.

"It is, of course, the merest truism to say that free institutions are of avail only to people who possess the high and peculiar characteristics needed to take advantage of such institutions. The century that has just closed has witnessed many and lamentable instances in which people have seized a government free in form, or have had it bestowed upon them, and yet have permitted it under the forms of liberty to become some species of despotism or anarchy, because they did not have in them the power to make this seeming liberty one of deed instead of one merely of word. Under such circumstances, the seeming liberty may be supplanted by a tyranny or despotism in the first place, or it may reach the road of despotism by the path of license and anarchy. It matters but little which road is taken. In either case, the same goal is reached. People show themselves just as unfit for liberty, whether they submit to anarchy or to tyranny; and class government, whether it be the government of a plutocracy or the government of a mob, is equally incompatible with the principles established in the days of Washington and perpetuated in the days of Lincoln."

These patriotic and sensible words will be echoed deep down in the heart of every true American citizen. They express truths which are fundamental, and which are too often disregarded or forgotten in the fierce warfare of greed and violence which is waging in the industrial world. The President's appeal is to no one class of citizens, but to all classes, and to all individual citizens. His reproofs fall impartially, upon those who would oppress labor; upon those in the industrial world who would rob their fellow-workers of fundamental rights and set up a despotism of arrogance and ignorance; upon those who instigate class hatreds; upon those who preach the despicable gospel of envy and unrest; upon all individuals and organizations, in brief, who disregard the golden creed, "All for each and each for all."

"There must be ever present in our minds," said the President, in closing, "the fundamental truth that in a republic such as ours the only safety is to stand neither for nor against any man because he is rich or because he is poor, because he is engaged in one occupation or another, because he works with his brains or because he works with his hands. We must treat each man on his worth and merits as a man. We must see that each is given a square deal, because he is entitled to no more and should receive no less. Finally, we must keep ever in mind that a republic such as ours can exist only in virtue of the orderly liberty which comes through the equal domination of the law over all men alike, and through its administration in such resolute and fearless fashion as shall teach all that no man is above it and no man below it."

This is the essence of true Americanism and of genuine patriotism. It is diametrically opposed to the spirit, the creeds, and the practices of the would-be dictators and monopolists of trade-unionism, who are seeking to trample upon individual rights, to subvert the guaranties of constitutional law, and to substitute for "the equal domination of the law over all men alike," the domination of terrorism and violence.

COUNTY ADVERTISING — THE POINT.

In awarding the county advertising the Board of Supervisors should ask themselves what medium they would employ as private individuals, were they desirous of reaching the people of the whole county. Would they choose the Santa Monica Outlook? Would they select the Evening Express? No! They would take the newspaper of largest circulation. The taxpayers of the county are entitled to the most for their money; they should have as much consideration as any Supervisor would give himself; they should see the county advertising in the first place; and then they should pay for it at the lowest rate on the basis of circulation. The bid of The Times is the lowest of all bids before the board, on this basis; and for the reason that it will furnish the most publicity at the lowest price per inch per thousand of circulation. The Times should receive the contract.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

One hundred years ago on the first of May next—the day on which the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is to open—there left St. Louis an expedition which proceeded up the Missouri River by boats, stopping on the way to confer with the Indians and make notes of the adjacent country. These explorers, Lewis and Clark, were the first white men to penetrate the vast unknown country comprising what we now know as the "Great Northwest." Congress having appropriated $2500 for an expedition to trace the Missouri River to its source across the Rocky Mountains, and proceed to the Pacific Ocean. During that year was completed the Louisiana purchase, which gave to the United States all the territory in the northwest east of the main divide of the Rocky Mountains.

What wonderful changes have taken place in this territory during the past century. One is vividly reminded of this by a handsome volume, just issued from the great publishing house of Rand, McNally & Co., of Chicago, entitled "A Guide to the Great Northwest." It is a comprehensive volume, designed for the dual purpose of furnishing information to home seekers as well as tourists. It is written by S. H. Soule, formerly of Los Angeles, and fully half of the 350 pages is devoted to handsome photo-engravings. Here where Lewis and Clark painfully made their way a hundred years ago, up streams and across mountain trails, we now see depicted the fine Courthouse of Minneapolis, much resembling our own county Courthouse, the magnificent State Capitol of Minnesota, at St. Paul, the big business blocks of Duluth, the great smelting furnaces of Montana, and other evidence of American energy and intelligence.

What has been accomplished throughout this section in the past century is, however, a small thing in comparison with what those are likely to see who are alive 100 years hence. This is, indeed, a vast empire that we have between the Mississippi and the Pacific. He would be a bold prophet who should attempt to predict what this great territory will be like at the close of the twentieth century.

CALIFORNIA OLIVE OIL.

A few years ago it looked as if the olive industry of California was to be numbered among the rare failures attending our varied horticultural enterprises. For some reason or other the trees refused to bear, or bore very sparingly, so that many growers became discouraged, and some went so far as to grub up their trees. Since then, however, we have had two good harvests, and another is promised, so that it looks as if olive culture would rank high among the various branches of California horticulture.

The discussion that has taken place in The Times regarding the reason for discrimination in certain quarters against the native product, in favor of imported oil, has aroused much interest among growers, manufacturers and dealers. The fact has clearly been brought out that much pure oil of the olive is made in California, also that some of this oil, although containing nothing but the juice of the olive, lacks something of being a first-class article.

It is now in order for the manufacturers of California olive oil to start an active campaign for the purpose of educating the eastern public in regard to the virtues of the oil, and of the California ripe olive. An excellent opportunity to accomplish this purpose will be furnished at the St. Louis World's Fair, where our oil men should have a thoroughly first-class and representative display of their product, with literature telling of the value of the olive, from a hygienic standpoint. Such an exhibit would pay for itself ten times over within a year.

If Tom Edison wants to oblige his countrymen, he will drop wireless telegraphy long enough to give us that $150 automobile which will run 100 miles without charging the batteries or turning a hair. We can get along with the old Postal and Western Union outfits for our wiregrams, but are getting mighty tired of currying horses or else having to operate automobiles that have a breath like a gas works in distress.

If the scientist in our midst can turn the garbage question into water of surpassing purity and briquettes that will make a dandy fire for the kitchen stove, he will not only settle a great disturbance, but should acquire money enough to buy out the town. We trust that his performances will commence soon, and proceed without interruption.

Students of the University of California are now being given a special equipment of information regarding cows, their milk, habits and other informative details. Let them also be taught how to keep formaldehyde from pervading the lacteal fluid after it has been dragged from the streaming udders, or while on the way to town in the milk wagon.

When a bicyclist escapes to the sidewalk in order to preserve his life from the effects of being run down by an automobile that is proceeding at the rate of twenty miles an hour, he is the chap who gets arrested, and not the scorcher who is running the larger machine. This is one of the curiosities of our life and times.

When trains can be run one mile per minute for 288 consecutive minutes, there doesn't seem to be much sense in Prof. Langley trying to make his old flying machine work. A locomotive hiking across the country at that rate is near enough a flying machine to suit the most fastidious speed maniac.

If the powers desire to tackle something warm they might lay hold of the Bulgarian-Turkish question. It would appear to have a stinger in it as hot as the business end of the little busy bee who improves each shining hour by gathering honey every day from every blooming flower.

The President made a masterful speech at Syracuse on Monday, which is just like him. It is to be hoped that all the men in this nation who attempt to arouse class hatred and to segregate our countrymen into classes will both read it and profit by its sterling good sense and power.

Santos Dumont has just arrived in Rio Janeiro, but it is to be observed that he made the trip across in one of those good old reliable steamships that neither bump up against chimneys nor go slamming around among telegraph, telephone, electric light and district messenger wires.

Los Angeles has clearly demonstrated that a city can be truly great without any shade trees to speak of; and yet just think how much greater it would be if they were flourishing along the thoroughfares and giving the populace that cool and restful feeling?

The laborites not only shot the chutes on Monday last, but they came mighty near knocking the daylights out of a group of policemen. Although a holiday, it seems, in some respects, to have been their busiest day of all the glad new year.

Chess is now being played on separate ocean steamships while hundreds of miles apart, through the medium of wireless telegraphy. How in the world were we ever able to get along without this new-fangled contrivance, anyway?

We hasten to say that that Kentucky camp meeting at which three men were killed and the rest of the congregation thrown into fits was not held in Breathitt county. Score one for the good order of old Breathitt.

One of our wandering Folsom escapes has been seen at San José, but as the man who saw him was also carrying a jag of tremendous proportions, maybe the w. F. e. is still up in Nevada hunting a barber shop, after all.

The Agricultural Department at Washington is advertising for "experienced grafters." A supply can doubtless be secured by making application to the Postoffice Department, which is growing a great stock in that line.

Kansas had now been fallen down on by a circus tent. If there is anything that hasn't happened to Kansas this year we wish it would speak up.

Los Angeles is about to pump electric current from a point 250 miles distant, and is willing to go even farther than that, if necessary, to keep things moving in this, the liveliest part of the American Union.

Those Colorado militiamen are said to shoot mighty low; not too low, of course, but just low enough. It would be well were the friends of those striking Cripple Creekers to inform them of this interesting fact.

The shortening of the days compels attention to the fact that it will soon be time to begin to worry one's life out to know what in the name of common sense he shall buy for Christmas presents.

The only snowstorm that threatens this part of the country is that fragrant one which falls from our tens of thousands of orange trees in the form of blossoms, and which will soon be due.

Cripple Creek probably gets its name from the number of people thereabouts who are annually maimed by the strikers, known to break out with great severity.

It is all right to plant trees on our denuded mountain slopes, but there are some spots in the valleys we love where it is 'steen degrees in the shade, and no shade.

War between Turkey and Bulgaria is said to be inevitable. In this instance we concur with Patrick Henry; let it come. We repeat it, sir—let it come.

It looks as if Colombia wanted to sell us her canal cake and still keep it. But Uncle Sam refuses to play the game. Too mean, isn't he?

Sir Thomas Lipton bet his binnacle on the yacht race, and, of course, lost it. Why not get up a purse and buy Tom another binnacle?

Butte, Mont., has had a snowfall, and unless we err in opinion, it will shortly have a pugilist fall in the person of one Munroe.

A lady is now proposing to try for the America's cup. Now we shall see if the Americans are so ungentlemanly as to beat a lady.

It is a cold day in Colorado when she hasn't on a strike or a snowstorm.

As to the speech of the President at Syracuse—"them's our sentiments."

POLITICAL POSSIBILITIES.

"WELL," said the Prominent Citizen, buttonhiling the strenuous officeholder at the corner of Second and Spring streets, "what's doing in politics?"

"Ask me!" retorted the office-holder. "I'm paid for serving the people —"

"Which you sometimes do very rudely —"

—"And not to give opinions on politics. But honestly, outside of the Highland investigation and the talk about Oxnard for Senator, there seems to be nothing doing. Wait till Herrin gets back from Europe, and then go talk to Walter Parker. Just now it's too early in the game for anything startling. Hold on! I have heard one bloodcurdling thing. Over in Pasadena the Johnny Wood push are actually grooming Walter S. Melick for United States Senator to succeed Bard. Think of that!"

But political aspirants never doze. Savage of San Pedro, "Barber" Pendleton of Los Angeles and Hahn of Pasadena are the hold-over Senators. The county elects a successor to Senator Smith and a Senator from the new Senatorial district that extends from Pomona to and through the Antelope valley.

On the Assembly chess board must be noted Camp, who desires to be elected Senator from the new district mentioned; Carter, whose dream is to displace Fred Smith in the upper house; Gourich of Pasadena, who thinks he is the best man to succeed himself; Houser of East Los Angeles, who would like to drink deeper at the legislative pool; Johnstone of Pomona, who is for Johnstone once more; H. H. McCartney, who believes that the Fourth ward fears for his constituents if they do not send him again to Sacramento; Phil Stanton, who hopes the Fifth ward will love him as faithfully next year as he loves it; and J. P. Transue, who would not peremptorily refuse to participate in the deliberations of the next Legislature if the Seventh ward should go down on its knees and beg.

Howard A. Broughton will oppose Camp in the candidacy for Senator from the new district. This fight and the fight between Smith and Carter will occupy chief attention in the coming primaries. Of some interest in this regard is the item that "the gang" has it in for Smith because he refused to support Perkins, the programme candidate for United States Senator in the last campaign.

In the field of congressional aspiration four "possibilities" have thus far floated to the surface: McLachlan, John G. Mott, L. C. Gates and Former District Attorney Rives.

In the Democratic puddle nothing of real importance has yet developed. Snyder thinks it would be entirely appropriate if he were selected as delegate-at-large to the national convention, the time and place for which have not yet been fixed. Four delegates-at-large are apportioned from California to that convention, and Southern California will select at least one. Snyder cannot imagine why this one should be other than himself.

Each congressional district is entitled to two district delegates in the national convention. Isidore B. Dockweiler, who last year disagreed with the majority in the matter of his selection as Lieutenant-Governor, would be willing, if urged, to be one of these delegates.

Gen. Black, the newly-elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is due to arrive in Los Angeles this morning. The Iroquois Club, a small but belligerent organization which meets once in a while in a hall on South Spring street, has conceived the idea that it should assemble and be addressed by Gen. Black on the theme "How Shall We Induce Party Harmony?" The Iroquois are still smarting under the sting of the refusal of Delegate Mark Smith (of Arizona, please,) to quit the magic sands of Avalon for the smoky atmosphere of the South Spring-street hall on thirty minutes' notice. They hope for better luck with Gen. Black.

GUESS NACHT, SIR TUMM'S.

Sir Thomas built a lovely yacht,
It cost they say, an awful lot.
Said he: "Ain't she an apricacht?
She'll lift the cup and rake the pacht."

But Iselin had a counter-placht,
He also built a costly yacht,
And though at times the race gacht
hacht,
The cup stays still in the same old

METHODISTS VIE FOR CONFERENCE SEATS.

CAMPAIGN STEADILY GROWS WARMER IN THE CHURCHES.

Messrs. Cleveland and Taggart of Boyle Heights Start Controversy Over Credit Due for Bringing the Great Gathering to Los Angeles.

The battle continues at a fervent heat among the Methodist brethren and sisters for the honor of representing the churches of Southern California in the General Conference next spring.

New blood was spattered on the moon by the story told in The Times last Sunday of a collar that H. S. Taggart of the Boyle Heights Methodist Church demanded must be worn by the candidate for whom he voted. Taggart is the delegate of his congregation to the lay conference, whose duty it is to elect the delegates to the General Conference. The official board of his church notified Taggart that it was their desire to have him vote for W. L. Cleveland, but Cleveland declined to put on Taggart's collar, and suggested that the alternate delegate be given a chance to represent the congregation in the lay conference. This made Tagart "warm under the collar," and he said he proposed to be there himself.

This state of affairs caused Cleveland to start a campaign in the churches throughout the conference, and in sending abroad his circular letter, he metaphorically stuck some other candidates with a pin. In his argument to induce votes, Cleveland at some length claims the credit for bringing the General Conference to Los Angeles in 1904, by bringing the matter to the attention of the Pomona conference last year.

Now, it so happens that the General Conference of 1904 will be the first in the history of Methodism in which ladies will be entitled to sit as delegates, and of course the progressive women of America will be well in evidence upon this, their first opportunity. Among those ambitious for the honor is Mrs. P. H. Bodkin of this city, and yesterday her husband said, referring to the Cleveland letter:

"We feel that we are being treated unfairly by Mr. Cleveland or any other of the candidates who claim that they are entitled to the credit for starting the movement to secure the General Conference for this city. The fact is that I and Rev. S. A. Thompson started the movement in April, 1900, by bringing it to the attention of the preachers' meeting, on the first Monday in April of that year, and a committee consisting of myself, Dr. G. F. Bovard, Rev. S. A. Thompson and Rev. S. L. Hamilton was appointed to further the object.

"Brother Hamilton secured transportation through the Southern Pacific Railroad to Chicago and through the Santa Fé, and we went there and spent an entire month, paying our own expenses, and put our scheme afloat to bring the conference to Los Angeles. Its coming here in 1904 is simply the reflex of our action at that time, and if it counts for anything in the election of a delegate, and I do not think it does, we certainly are entitled to our share of the credit.

"In the Pomona conference last year Mrs. Bodkin was a member of the committee from the lay association which presented the question to the conference along with Mr. Cleveland, and consequently she stands upon an equal footing in that case also."

By reference to the file of The Times of April 4, 1900, it will be seen that Mr. Bodkin speaks by the book. The statement is there made that "the General Conference will in all likelihood meet in Los Angeles in 1904," and the committee as given by Mr. Bodkin is named. A statement is also made in the same article giving the magnitude of the gathering and referring to the committee as "hustlers."

Honors would seem to be "easy" in that direction, at all events.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

(The Times freely publishes the views of correspondents, without holding itself responsible for the writers' opinions. In every instance, however, it requires that the letter shall state clearly and briefly, in a few words, on the average, its sufficient for the expression of an idea.)

A Very Poor "Prospect."

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The vindictive opposition and perish bigotry which was aroused by the proposition to name one or the avenues of Hollywood after one of the world's most famous artists seem very strange to one who asks "why?" Paul de Longpré, as his name implies, is a son of France, but has been an honored, loyal and enthusiastic American citizen for more than ten years. In New York, Philadelphia, Paris, London, Boston and Chicago his name is honored as one of the great masters.

One would naturally suppose that a proposition put forth by his friends to change the name of "Prospect avenue" to "De Longpré boulevard" would have been hailed with delight by all; but it seems that Mr. de Longpré had not forgotten the land of his birth and all its splendid history—had not forgotten Lafayette, the compatriot and supporter of Washington—had not forgotten the brave French legions with their heroic French officers, who made American independence possible; and on public occasions has displayed the tri-color of France beside the Stars and Stripes; and on account of this broad, pure and manly patriotism, the small, mean souls, who cannot appreciate the character of De Longpré, nor the honor it would have given Hollywood, began howling on his track and charging him with lack of patriotism and loyalty. The New York Yacht Club could dress its yachts with a thousand flags bearing the "Cross of St. George" in honor of Mr. Lipton, and the "Union Jack" has been carried in many a Fourth of July parade side-by-side with "Old Glory," here in Los Angeles, by loyal Englishmen who were not ashamed of their mother land, and none but narrow bigots would ever object.

Paul de Longpré is not only a world-renowned artist, but a gentleman in everything that the word implies. He is simple, confiding, and artless as a child, and next to his intense and passionate love for his art, is his love and loyalty for this land of his adoption. To use his own words, "France is my mother, but America is my wife."

His manhood and character were shown in his manly letter to The Times suggesting to those friends who had proposed the naming of the avenue De Longpré boulevard, that they withdraw their request. The result will be that thousands will go to see De Longpré and his studio, at Hollywood, but whose attention will not be called to the beauties of the place as they would have been had the people recognized the fact that by naming the boulevard after him they would have honored and advertised themselves far more than they would the unassuming gentleman whose beautiful home in its gorgeous setting of flowers is without an equal in California.

Sincerely yours, H. A. PIERCE.

SAN DIEGO.

BURKE'S SLAYER ON TRIAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P. M.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 8.—The trial of Sebastian Velarde for the killing of Constable Peter Burke during an uprising of miners near Yuma several months ago, was begun in the Superior Court today. A jury has not yet been secured. Six witnesses who had been summoned failed to appear. Bench warrants were issued for their arrest and given to the Sheriff, who has gone to Picacho to serve them. Attorney Capps for the defense has the gun of Burke, and will endeavor to show that six notches on its handle indicate that many lives taken by its owner.

IMPERIAL AT ST. LOUIS.

At this morning's meeting of the supervisors the Imperial Land Company filed a request for $1500 to aid in the enterprise of installing a miniature plant of the Imperial country at the St. Louis Exposition. It was stated that the system was to be shown on three acres of ground and at large expense, and that it was to be advertised as a Southern California proposition, with especial emphasis on San Diego county. The matter was referred to L. S. McClure, the county's representative on the State commission for the World's Fair, to whom has been given the assurance of all the money that can be used for advertising purposes.

ROAD BOND PROPOSAL.

A communication was also received from the Chamber of Commerce asking that the board arrange for an issue of bonds for $200,000 for the construction of a system of county roads. This was taken under advisement.

NEW TOWNSITE ACCEPTED.

A plat and a map of the proposed new town of Holton, in the Imperial country, was filed with the board, and the same was accepted. The map and plat of the Alamo tract was also filed and accepted, and the request that this be annexed to the townsite of Holton, granted. October 6 was appointed as the date of the hearing of the petition of the Imperial Land Company for changing the name of Paringa to Heber.

A Story of Hypnotism.

An amusing episode, in which the chief figure was a hypnotized policeman, is reported from Bloemfontein. A professor of hypnotism had taken a vacant shop in which to give ocular demonstration of his mysterious art, and his stock in trade included a bed, upon which reposed a man who was represented to be in a trance. The crowd that assembled on the opening day to view the recumbent figure included a member of the South African constabulary. This person went with a skeptical mind, and seeing the figure move he at once denounced the whole business as a fraud. The professor, not a bit disconcerted, engaged him in conversation, and the skeptic was soon keenly interested in the wondrous tales the man of science was relating.

Suddenly the policeman fell into the arms of the professor and went through some very strange antics, one of which was to arrest the professor as a dangerous criminal. When it dawned upon the crowd that the man of law was really hypnotized the joke was greatly relished. After putting him through a few more "tricks" for the enjoyment of the other visitors the professor restored him to his senses as quickly as he had hypnotized him. When he realized what had happened the policeman, looking white and frightened, made a hasty exit and has not been seen near the shop since. —[London Globe.

Mexico's Gold Output.

It looks as if we had underestimated the annual yield of gold in this country. The official statistics for the last quarter of 1902 show that the total value of the new gold mined was $3,250,000, or at the rate of $15,000,000 per year, and to this should be added 33 per cent. to cover the gold illicitly exported to avoid the payment of the export tax. Practical miners and people familiar with the gold exportation confirm this estimate. Here, then, is the point we wish to make, that the gold mined here, is now, approximately, $20,000,000 yearly. As we said the other day, in a few years the total annual yield will reach $25,000,000. We believe it will go higher inside of eight years. Mexico will lose its distinctive renown as a great silver producing country and enter the list of the countries contributing heavily to the world's stock of the yellow metal. This means that the work of stabilizing the peso is going to be more easily accomplished than many people think. Not only will Mexico have gold enough for her currency needs, to back her silver money, but also to give strength to her banks, and so make it possible to drive the interest rate down still further. Good money in abundance will push this country ahead in marvelous fashion, and we fully agree with the intelligent Japanese consul-general here that Mexico is going to rapidly eclipse her present great prosperity.—[Mexican Herald.

Diplomacy.

The seat facing forward was filled, containing six women and one man.

So the newcomer had to sit on the other seat, facing the entire carload of passengers.

As the conductor's bell rang its starting "ding-ding," and the motorman turned on the current, the plump woman said severely to the solitary man occupying a place on the other seat:

"I think you might have been at least enough of a gentleman to offer to change places with me."

"I had carefully considered that matter, madam, before you spoke," rejoined the man, earnestly, "and had decided that for the good of all, we had better remain as we are. It would be an insult to the passengers back of us for me to sit facing them and showing my homely features after they had caught even a glimpse of yours. announced comeliness. sent this substitution violence to both of stand?"

"Perfectly, my dear she, with a smile, "and I plore your pardon for derrated your gallantry. American.

IN MEMORIAM OF LABOR DAY.

Bunged Noses and Shirts All Soaked With Gore.

Punishment Meted Out to Rioters of the Biddie Gang.

Two Laborites Fined for Insulting Negro Wenches—Wife Kicked by Iconoclast.

Labor Day lawlessness had a bitter reckoning in Justice Chambers' court yesterday.

The souvenirs were black eyes puffed out like rancid beefsteak, noses scratched and torn, and shirt fronts soaked with fly-specked gore. The Labor Day heroes were not a pretty sight. The courtroom was packed.

When the name of Tom Kennedy was called, a little fellow who looked like a scared bull terrier shuffled up to his feet. He was out at the Chutes in a scrap.

"Your Honor," expalined one of the policemen, "this fellow was trying to lick the whole park between 8:10 o'clock and supper time. He had his hat and coat off and he was going through the whole bunch."

Kennedy was still minus hat and coat.

"What were you so anxious to fight about," asked the court.

"I dunno," said Kennedy, with a shiver; "I went out there and got to drinking. I don't know nothin' about no fightin'."

The court fined him $10.

KICKED HIS SICK WIFE.

The result of one Labor Day jag was that one of the ironworkers went home from the Chutes to where his wife lay sick in a hammock on the porch, kicked her out and drove her away. This jag belonged to Louis Schick. He begged like a dog when he was brought before the court.

Justice Chambers roasted him. "What did you do it for?" he asked.

"Just got a little excited, Judge," he said, smirking.

As fining him heavily would be to punish his wife, too, the court let him off with a fine of $10.

One of the first prisoners called out of the crowded dock was L. A. Smith, arrested for fighting at the Cautes. He is a lumber handler. Mr. Smith's face didn't match. One side of it was puffed out like a young balloon or a gopher with a mug full of dirt. One of Mr. Smith's eyes squinted out of an inflamed slit with a baleful and sinister gleam. Mr. Smith maintained a dignified air that was not altogether impressive under the circumstances.

One of the policemen testified that Smith was hanging around the Chutes on the afternoon of Labor Day, assiduously looking for trouble. His researches were amazingly successful; he was having a fight a minute when the police took him in charge and put him off the grounds. They hardly saw him outside the gate when he came back again. Smith made his presence felt by getting into another fight. They put him off again, and again he came back.

There began to be a sameness about this, and the police finally sent Mr. Smith in. He seemed to think it a very shame that any one should be arrested for merely punching people's faces on Labor Day, and almost cried. He begged Justice Chambers—who fined him $10—to let him go out and try to find some one to pay his fine; he said his delicate palate could not stand jail fare, and he was almost starved.

When the judge kindly granted his request Smith showed his gratitude by saying back over his shoulder, spitefully, "I don't think I should have been fined so heavily."

GIRL INSULTED AT CHUTES.

The only culprit brought up who excited sympathy was J. R. Beauchamp, who was fined for pulling a revolver on a miserable cur out at the Chutes who insulted his daughter. Beauchamp was fined $5 for carrying concealed weapons. He is night watchman at the Cudahy Packing-house and was really entitled to carry a weapon, as he was then on his way to work, but had failed to take out a license from the proper authority.

One of the happiest little celebrators of the day was when Lynch and Cook and O'Neal got together and "made time." That was Labor Day night, when it was all over and they were bidding it a sad farewell in sweet verse in the Mineral Saloon, at the corner of First and Main streets.

Cook and O'Neal got to fighting, but as Cook couldn't remember whom he was once more on the joys and sorrows of Labor Day.

By and by Lynch saw the police ambulance come down and pick up a limp form and carry it away. It was his old friend O'Neal.

"Dead!" said Lynch, trying decently to conceal his honest pride; "Dead! I didn't know I could hit like that."

Cook yesterday volunteered to give the court the true version of the affair.

"You see, Your Honor, it started in the saloon, where me and O'Neal was fighting, over what I don't know. The barkeep, he fired us out on the street and Lynch got mixed up. I was hitting somebody and I don't know who it was."

Cook glanced forlornly down the length of his gashed and wounded nose. "Somebody was hittin' me, too, I guess. It looks that way anyhow."

O'Neal was fined $5, Lynch $25, and Cook $5.

The riot call as it sounded at the Chutes and patrol wagons full of officers rushing to the scene inflated the memories in the breast of J. D. Todd, ex-police officer. Mr. Todd went into a beer station and took on a load, after which he marched with dignity down into the Tenderloin, and with an old deputy constable's star on his breast, undertook to run in the whole population south of Los Angeles street. He said please he didn't think they ought to do much to him cause he had heart disease. He was fined $5.

Lynch just shot out one blow at his old friend O'Neal, who was nearest, and then relapsed into absorbed musing.

KISSED NEGRO WENCHES.

Two fat negro wenches waddling along home were the sweetest things that ever chewed gum in the eyes of two mellow and romantic youths coming home from the festivities at the Chutes soaked to the skin in Labor Day booze. They rushed up to the negro women on the street and insisted on hugging and kissing them, and declaration of undying passion to the edification of a crowd. A young man named Eckman was one of them; Justice Chambers fined him $10. The other was a fellow named C. R. Hall, who was in a condition to come into court. Two of the moneyed aristocracy, the

Two fat negro wenches waddling along home were the sweetest things that ever chewed gum in the eyes of two mellow and romantic youths coming home from the festivities at the Chutes. They rushed up to the negro women on the street and insisted on hugging and kissing them, and declaring their undying passion to the edification of a crowd. A young man named Eckman was one of them; Justice Chambers fined him $10. The other was a fellow named C. R. Hall, who was too drunk to come into court. Two of the moneyed aristocracy, the hod-carriers, dropped a paltry $3 each yesterday in Justice Chambers's court. They drank confusion to The Times so many times after the parade that they were found paralyzed drunk, lying like hogs, in Center street. The names they gave in court were W. W. Crary and Frank Spaw.

An old man named C. Sweeny confessed to the court that Labor Day had been his undoing. He had been brought up in the court some time ago. What the court said to him on that occasion touched his heart. He resolved to reform, and by an effort of will broke off the habit, so he thought. Labor Day proved too much for him; he got drunk again and was up in court yesterday. "Why don't you take a lesson from this?" asked the court. He was fined $5.

ALMOST MURDER.

There came near being three murders to the credit of Labor Day. The first one was the earliest of the Labor Day jags. Three young men came rioting and fighting out of the saloon on the corner of Temple and Spring streets. One of them had a knife and was trying to stab some one. One of the young men, G. M. Laub, hit him a violent blow in the face and saved himself. He was arrested, however, and charged with battery in the Police Court. Justice Chambers fined him $5.

Three Mexicans, Santiago Gondara, Jesus Gondara and Antonio Montano, got crazy, fighting, blind drunk, and only the failure of a revolver to go off at the proper time saved one of them from being a murderer. They got in a row with Deputy Constable Redona and all jumped onto him at once. Santiago Gondara pointed his pistol at him and tried to shoot. The weapon was a miserable cheap old piece of tinware and would not explode the cartridge. He was fined $75 or seventy-five days, and the others sixty each.

The other attempted murder happened at the orphan asylum in East Los Angeles. One of the gardeners, named John Sweeney, took offense at a remark of John O. Shea, the coachman, and tried to kill him with a razor and a grubbing pick. One of the sisters rushed to rescue him, and managed to shut the door on Sweeney in time to prevent O'Shea getting him. O'Shea broke down the door, but Sweeney had had time to escape. Sweeney will be sentenced Thursday.

CRAZY WITH DRINK.

Labor Day debauchery nearly made a decent little tailor a convicted felon. He is a young chap named Tim Smith. The excesses of this day made him for the time being crazy. He went into a room in the Argyle Hotel and was found wandering around with rings and other property belonging to one of the boarders. He could not remember having taken the stuff, and of course had absolutely no object in having stolen it. For this reason a charge of burglary was not brought against him. He professed the greatest penitence. Justice Chambers fined him $20.

D. O. Vanderpool forgot to go home at all on the day of celebration. He went to sleep on a bench at the Santa Fé station, and tried to choke the station master who woke him up, evidently dreaming that he was back in the mob at the Chutes. He was fined.

Provisions from Trees.

There is a tree which grows in Sumatra, Algeria and China which is known as the vegetable tallow tree. From its fruit large quantities of oil and tallow are extracted, and the fruit is gathered in November or December, when all the leaves have fallen. Excellent candles are made from the berries of a tree which grows in some parts of South Africa and the Azores.

At Sierra Leone is found the cream fruit tree, the fruit of which is very agreeable in taste. In Ceylon there is the bread fruit tree, from which a food is made in the same way that we make bread. It is said to be equally good and nutritious. In South America we find the milk tree.—Philadelphia Ledger

One Opinion!

The many testimonials we receive every day prove—"that no lady or mother who has tried GROGAN'S PURITY OLIVE OIL SOAP, made from the finest grade of pure table Olive Oil, would use any other."

PURITY OLIVE SOAP

This is a genuine California product, is olive shape and contains no impurities or animal grease; it is made from Oil only, therefore does not lather too freely, lasts much longer and is good for the most delicate skin. Nearly all of the "so-called" Olive Oil Soaps on the market are made from tallow and a small percentage of cocoanut oil, some colored green containing little or no Olive Oil.

Our Olive Oil Soap is purely vegetable, and is pronounced by prominent experts to be ABSOLUTELY THE BEST SKIN SOAP

Now, we all know that some unscrupulous dealers will recommend an inferior article in order to make a larger profit. Olive Oil is expensive, consequently the profits in making and selling pure Olive Oil Soap must be small for all concerned, so as to give the public
THE BEST QUALITY FOR THE SAME MONEY
Therefore, Beware of any just as good!!!

The New Fall Suits For Women Are Revelations.

THERE is so much dash and charm about the new Fall Suits for women that the attention is irresistibly attracted. The window displays command eager notice, while throngs find great delight in visiting Coulter's splendidly stocked Women's Suit Department.

No season ever brought to light so many beautifully modelled garments. There is such refreshing individuality about the Suits, the materials and the workmanship, that the keen admiration of the discriminating woman is naturally evoked.

The long coat suit, of course—but a new long coat. It is a tight-fitting coat, single or double-breasted, very plain and dignified. The fitted coat of the Summer prepared the way for it.

But if you don't like anything so severely plain, there are long coats pleated, with tabs, and other touches dear to the feminine heart. Lots of style in all of them.

Tweeds are a favorite material, and albelines and camel's hair with stripes in them. The little up-and-down lines may be faint and indistinct but they are there. Bars and mixed effects are seen, but the stripes are new. Prices ranging from:—

LAST BATTLE FOR YANGER.

Will Fight But Once More and Give Weight.

He is Due in San Francisco from Chicago Today.

New Jersey Leads in the Shoot. Pick up Against Freeman. Horses and Baseball.

BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Hertz, manager for Benny Yanger, says Yanger will reach San Francisco tomorrow night on the Santa Fé Limited from Chicago. Yanger has been doing his preliminary training in Chicago, and is said to be in splendid condition for his fight with Freeman in this city September 29.

Immediately on arriving, Yanger will proceed to Sheehan's Beach tavern to begin his training. He has worked there before and likes the place. Hanley is working at Croll's Gardens, Alameda. Manager Hertz says this will be Yanger's last fight outside of the featherweight class, and win or lose, Yanger will never again enter the ring to fight an opponent to whom he will have to give any weight.

Those who saw the last fight between Hanlon and Yanger believe Hanlon will stand a good chance of winning. Yanger is very powerful, and as he sized up Yanger carefully in the last fight, he will now go in and fight without fear. He can take a heavy blow, and unless Yanger is in fine trim, the difference in weight will tell against Yanger.

MOTOR CYCLISTS.

PROTECTIVE ORGANIZATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Motor cyclists to the number of eighty-seven, representing almost every State in the Union, have met at Manhattan Beach and organized a national protective association under the name of the Federation of American Motor Cyclists, with officers as follows: President, R. H. Ross, New York Motor Cycle Club, New York; vice-president, for Pacific coast, Dan E. Campbell, San Francisco; secretary, E. L. Ferguson, New York; treasurer, Dr. G. B. Gilbert, Wadsworth, Mass.

A constitution was adopted which provides for territorial divisions and dealers, which has ultimately become a national organization. A general convention will be held annually between July 1 and September 1. The principal object of the association will be to secure legislation in favor of the motor cycle as a vehicle, and to free it from the restrictions placed on automobiles by laws which now exist in some States.

RAIN-WEATHER TENNIS.

RUNS UP AGAINST FREEMAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 8.—Notwithstanding the intense heat this afternoon the tennis enthusiasts were in full force at the Hotel Rafael courts. There were only four matches during the entire day. The morning and the greater part of the afternoon were devoted to gentlemen's consolation singles, which at 3:30 o'clock one of the most exciting matches of the tournament played. It was the final between Runan and MacGarvin of San Francisco and Bell of Southern California, by the doubles championship team. It was a brilliant game throughout, yet the outcome was never in doubt. Smith was not in good form, having recovered from the strain of a former match in the singles with Bell and the heat told on him.

Bell played by far the best game for his team. He will meet Freeman tomorrow for the singles championship of the State. Bell is the favorite tonight, and considerable money was wagered on him. In the finals in gentlemen's doubles this afternoon Bell and Freeman defeated Smith and Marvin, the score being 6-3, 6-4.

Marvin won the consolation gentlemen's singles by defeating A. Boyfuss by a score of 6-0, 6-4.

Tomorrow at 10 a.m. the ladies' singles match will be played. Miss May Sutton, winner of the all-comers' tourney, has challenged Miss Wyne, Mainplaquet, Miss Vera, and Dwighway also started.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE.

BATTLE OF PITCHERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 8.—A grand pitching battle between Thomas and Loucks was spoiled in the sixth inning by Loucks spraining his back. He continued in the box, however, but his offerings met with a warm reception, and the Senators batted out a victory. Gritty Loucks attempted to pitch the game out, but was obliged to give up in the eighth inning, and Butler pitched the game out. Thomas was unsolvable throughout, and had it not been for an error by Graham in the first inning, the Portlands, in all probability, would have been shut out. Score:

SEATTLE-OAKLAND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

OAKLAND, Sept. 8.—The opening game of the series of baseball contests between Seattle and Oakland was played today on the local grounds. The attendance was large and much enthusiasm was manifested. Up to the fifth inning, when Oakland scored three runs and seemed to have the game well in hand, the play was rather tame, but in the sixth Seattle more than evened up the score, and from that time to the finish, fast and snappy work was done by both sides. MUNROE MUM.

LOCAL PEOPLE GUESSING.

Jeffries and McCarey have heard nothing further from Jack Munroe, and they are guessing some as to his intentions. McCarey has sent Munroe and Tommy West, his trainer, railroad tickets to Los Angeles.

The next fistic event will be the meeting between the big negroes, "Denver Ed" Martin, and Sam McVey, next Tuesday night. Billy Roche states that McVey, who will hereafter be known as the "Oxnard Vagrant," will be tried in October, so he will have no difficulty in keeping his local date.

Tom McCarey is framing up a good match for young Joe Riley, who made such a good showing here last week. "Kid" Peck has been suggested, but is considered too easy for Riley. Clyde Burnham and "Pete-Peep" will be one preliminary to the next fight; Riley and some ambitious boy the other.

Billy Madden and Col. T. D. Black are now at Santa Catalina.

DUCK-PIN MATCH.

SAMUELSON'S TEAM WINS.

F. W. Samuelson and Alf MacKenzie played W. Tupper and J. Menard a three-game duck-pin match for a $20 purse on the Monarch alleys last week. Samuelson and Mackenzie won by 32 pins. Samuelson made the remarkably high average of 107 2-3 for the three games. Alf MacKenzie made the high score, 124. VENTURA.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

YOUNG REESE LOSES AN EYE.

VENTURA, Sept. 8.—Delbert Reese, a sixteen-year-old boy, met with an accident today by which he will lose his left eye. Young Reese is employed at the Shaw Soda Water Works, and this forenoon was passing ten feet from the bottling machine, when one of the bottles burst, which Earl Shaw was in the act of charging. The fragments of glass flew in every direction. A piece struck young Reese in the face immediately below the left eye, and so injured that organ that the physicians who were called declared it would have to be removed. This afternoon the boy's father, J. D. Reese, and his brother, D. J. Reese, editor of the Free Press, accompanied the boy to Los Angeles, where he will be put in the hands of a specialist to have the eye removed. The young man is well known and popular here.

HALL PROVES AN EASY ONE.

Harrisites Hand Rusty Hot Hammering Out.

Control Was Not Perfect, and a Clouting Resulted.

San Francisco, 10; Looloos, 1.

Batteries—Whalen and Zearfoss; Hall and Spies.

Before proceeding with the harrowing details of yesterday's game, we feel compelled to ask Henry Harris to get rid of one H. Krug, center fieldar. Krug is a pig. This is a strong statement, but Krug is a strong man. He is altogether too strong for the Looloos' best interests. As for the chief allegation regarding Krug's porcine qualities, let it be known that he made four hits in five tries, scored three runs, stole four bases, and got four hard flies, and any baseball playing jury in the country would convict him of grand larceny without getting out of their seats. If Krug does it again the writer will head a party to abduct him from his bed some night. He is good enough to play on the Los Angeles team; his record of yesterday certainly stands at the top of outfielders' performances this year.

Rusty Hall was made to order for the Harrisites yesterday, and that is nearly all there was to it. The absence of Smith and Dillon necessitated the playing of three pitchers in the infield, which may have had more or less to do with the result. Toman has been sick for three weeks and only awaits a chance to lay off for a rest; it is coming to him, for he has not missed a game in three years and more. In their crippled condition the Looloos were easy money; whether they would have done much better if the team had been intact is an idle controversy, for it wasn't. Whalen's changes of speed and his elusive drops made it hard for the Looloos to connect safely at critical times, and the game was never in doubt after chapter four. De Whale has been on the shelf himself, but did not seem any the worse for it, and obstinately refused to go up in the air long enough for the locals to win. The Looloo regular infield might have eaten up two or three of the Harrisite total of fifteen bingles, but most of the swats were of the kind that will not be denied, and Rusty himself was to blame for the game going by the board. He forgot to unpack his control when in the dressing-room, and that tells the tale.

In the third inning the Looloos got their measly one on a free transportation graft worked by Hoy, a swell sacrifice by Wheeler, which made the enemy go some in the vicinity of first base, and a lusty wallop into left by Corbett, that punch apparently lost in the sun. Joe stole second, and Newton took a good swipe at the ball, only to hit it into right center where that Dutchman Krug could get it. Neckties got a pass, but Rose murdered him at second, and the Looloo runs were all in. The Harrisites got mad, and in the fourth Hall pushed the button of his own undoing, and the visitors did the rest. Rusty walked Irwin after Meany. Leahy forced the captain at second, advancing Meany to third. Dave Zearfoss, the new catcher—and he is a good one—whirled his bat up under a low one and elevated it to deep right center. Hoy started in on the ball but discovered his mistake just too late to prevent the two-bagger from materializing, and Meany scored from third, as he would have done anyway after the catch. Krug's only failure to hit during the day was a sharp smash right at Wheeler, who held it a minute, and then lined it into Spies's hands ahead of Leahy. Krug stole second and Lynch lived up to his pinch reputation by tearing off a cannon shot through third, scoring both Zearfoss and Krug. Delmas forced Lynch at second.

The second bunch of triplets came to earth in canto 6, when Leahy hit a line fly to Toman's feet, and was safe on the error, took second on a passed ball by Spies, third on Zearfoss's fine sacrifice, and home when Krug bounded a single shot through the box. Heine again stole second Lynch whacked up a high fly, very much Texas, back of short; it was Toman's ball, but Ross thought not. Result, a hit, and Lynch got to second on it. Delmas biffed a nasty bounder toward Toman and Wheeler went out after it, but could not make the play, and Krug came in. De Whale hit der ball to Corbett, who got Delmas, and then threw past first base trying for a double. Lynch came in on the error. Shay retired, via Hall.

Three more bingles and some errors were good for another trio of tallies in the seventh. Meany led off with a liner into right, which Cravath failed to stop, and Irwin's liner into left second scored Don Patricio. Leahy lined a drive into Corbett's mits, but Newton failed to hold Joe's throw after Irwin returning, and everybody advanced a peg. Zearfoss went out by the Wheeler-Newton limited, a nice play by the fat boy. That Dutchman Krug then swiped another shot through the box and got a run, then stole second again as if he did it every morning before breakfast, like Tacks Parrott's batting practice. Lynch took a walk, but ought to have been a dead one at second a minute later when Toman gobbled Delmas's bounder and whipped it to second, only to have Josephine Corbett drop the ball. Krug scored and De Whale fanned.

A third trio of thumps only netted one for the insurgents in the eighth. With one down, Meany hit to center and Irwin slugged through Wheeler. Leahy hammed the ball over Toman's head, scoring Meany, but a 105 proof throw by Ross arrested Irwin at third, and the fat boy got very busy with Zearfoss's bounder back of third and put the kibosh sign on the new catcher at first with it. Krug must needs get his hit and steal his base in the ninth, but everybody else knew the game was done, and Heinie died a lingering death. Lynch whacked a fly to center, which Hoy wanted, and Delmas retired, via Ross. Whalen was easier still, and the locals hitched their breeks, spat upon their bats and prepared to do swat wonders. They died game at all events, for with one out, Hall singled through short and stole second. Hoy fanned. Wheeler hit to left, and Corbett followed suit. Newton forced Fatty at third and that was all.

Notes of the Game.

Zearfoss, the new catcher, is an old National League backstop, clever in his work behind the bat and a first-rate hitter. His throwing to second base yesterday was decidedly good.

Newton got away with the duties of first base pretty well for a man whose main duty lays in the box. Capt. Dillon did not show up in time, but is expected to play first today. Newton is slated to pitch this afternoon. Iburg will probably work for San Francisco.

One of Whalen's slow drops hit Hoy in the head yesterday, but McDonald called the dummy back. Hoy is an adept at getting hit, but is hardly likely to stick out such a valuable part of his anatomy as his head, since that member is rather useful for other purposes.

Lynch made a splendid catch of Newton's liner into left in the sixth, taking it with one bare hand on the run. The shot was a two-bagger, and catching it was highway robbery.

Shay did some dandy short fielding yesterday.

Who said Hall was usually hard picking for the Harrisites?

Pabst is still out of the game, and Tommy Leahy is covering first with considerable success.

"KID" WILLIAMS WHIPPED.

JIHNSON WINS AT DAGGETT.

At Daggett on the desert, which town is overflowing because of the presence of the Salt Lake Railroad's construction crews, there was a rattling prize fight before a large crowd in the operahouse. "Kid" Williams of Los Angeles was whipped in the seventh round of a rattling bout with "Kid" Johnson of New Mexico. The lightweights fought with six-ounce gloves for a purse of $50 and the gate receipts.

Williams showed his usual cleverness, but was clearly outclassed in strength and scienes by Johnson. In the first round Johnson drew blood and sent Williams to the floor with a terrific swing on the mouth. In the seventh and last round Johnson had Williams at his mercy, and knocked the Los Angeles boy down twice. The last time Williams lay on the floor and was counted out.

J. H. Flint of Daggett acted as referee and awarded the fight to Johnson. Johnson is looked upon as a "comer" by those who saw the contest.

BERT'S LETTER.

STAMP OUT ROWDYISM.

Vice-President Eugene F. Bert of the Pacific Coast League certainly has the warm sympathy of the entire base-ball-loving public in his efforts to stamp out rowdyism on the diamond.

Mr. Bert's recent letter to the umpires is a very emphatic epistle in its way, and now it remains for the umpires to enforce it to the letter. The full text of the missive follows:

SAN FRANCISCO (Cal.) Sept. 2, 1903.

To James McDonald, John O'Connell and Thomas Levy, Esq., Official Umpires of the Pacific Coast Baseball League—Gentlemen: In order to have all games played as speedily as possible, and thus add to the enjoyment, as well as the convenience of our patrons, you are hereby officially notified that the officers of the league are determined to stop unnecessary "kicking" and to stamp out rowdyism in every form.

You have previously been told, and we desire to reiterate, that you have absolute charge of the field during the progress of all games, and it is the intention of the officers of the league to give you full and absolute support. You are hereby given to understand that you are, by the rules, given full authority to order any player, captain or manager to do or omit to do any act which you may deem necessary to maintain your dignity and retain the respect of players and spectators.

No player (except the captain) is to be allowed to leave his position to question any decision of the umpire. The captain of each team is the only member of the team who is to present or urge a point, or take part in any argument with the umpires. You are hereby directed to notify each captain that the rules will be enforced exactly as they are printed, and that for each violation, the prescribed penalty will follow. Make all decisions promptly, and as you see them. Never attempt to "even up" after having made a mistake. Any player throwing down his bat on called strikes, or in any manner finding fault, or acting in a manner tending to hold the umpires up to contempt or ridicule, is to be fined, and if such conduct is persisted in, he should be put out of the game.

If the batsman offers to argue with you, or leave the batters' box to do so, it is your duty to instruct the pitcher to proceed with the game, and if he "puts them over" call strikes, whether the batsman is in batting position or not. Batters have frequently delayed games unnecessarily in this manner. No possible good ever comes of it. The only effect being to annoy and delay our patrons, whose pleasure and convenience it is our duty to consider at all times.

Many of the players have acquired the habit of trying to "bluff" you into calling the fourth ball—that is to say, when three balls have been called, immediately upon the delivery of the next ball by the pitcher, the batter, without waiting for your decision, will throw his bat aside and proceed to first base. If it happens that you call "strike," as is frequently the case, he will proceed to "kick," and his friends and partisans of his club in the audience "roast" you.

For every such offense fine the batter not less than five ($5) dollars. In every instance where you levy a fine report the same to me at once. If it happens that you are absent from San Francisco report by wire the name of the player and the amount of the fine. Every fine levied must be reported and collected by you from the player or his manager before the calling of the next game, and the player so fined not allowed to play in any event until the payment to you of the fine.

Positively, do not remit a fine. Once it is levied it is your duty to report the same. Your failure to do so will result in the infliction of a penalty upon you.

Players should not be permitted to curse or abuse an umpire, and any player using vulgar or profane language shall be fined, and in a flagrant case may be suspended.

The officers of this league will not retain in their employ an umpire who will tolerate such conduct on the part of any player. We desire to impress upon your minds the fact that we will not tolerate any kind of "rowdy baseball," and any player indulging in offensive or quarrelsome conduct during the game must be removed.

We desire our umpires to understand that they will be backed up, and supported by the league, and if they fail to enforce the rules or manifest weakness, we do not want them.

It is our desire to secure umpires with nerve, and we shall support them at all times.

You are hereby instructed to do everything possible to have the games played speedily, and to keep the players on the move at all times, particularly in changing innings, and to have the batsmen take their places promptly, and to be ready to take their turn at bat. A great deal of time has been lost in the past, and games have been delayed unnecessarily.

You should be strict in what may seem to be trivial matters, thereby "nipping in the bud" trouble before it fully develops.

Baseball can never be successful when players are allowed to do as they please, and the officers of the league are fully alive to this fact.

In conclusion we urge you to compel respect from all; by so doing your task will be an easy one.

[Signed] EUGENE F. BERT,
Vice-President.

There has been altogether too much "heeling" and senseless "kicking" this year. It is high time some of it was done away with.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

More Local Carriers.

The Postmaster-General yesterday authorized the appointment of seventeen additional mail carriers for the Los Angeles postoffice, the new members of the force to begin work the first of next month.

Burglar Had a Key.

A burglar admitted himself to George Kaufman's house, No. 618 Maher street, with a key Monday night, while the family was away, and stole a Security Savings Bank deposit book, a number of mortgages and other papers and $50 from a bureau drawer.

Guilty Grijalva.

Ricardo Grijalva, alias Ramon Figal, of San Diego, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court yesterday to the charge of giving liquor to Indians on the Mesa Grande reservation, and was sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail and a fine of $1.

Burglar's Handsome Haul.

J. A. Winans's house at No. 4026 Pasadena avenue was broken into Saturday night during the family's absence at the beach. Among the $2200 worth of articles taken were a gold watch and chain, a gold bracelet, a clock, a suit of clothes and an extra pair of trousers. Besides this a quantity of silverware was stolen.

Washburn Withdraws.

W. J. Washburn, formerly president of the Bank of Commerce, which was absorbed by the American National Bank, has resigned his position as first vice-president and director of the latter institution. Mr. Washburn says he wishes to devote more attention to the Equitable Savings Bank, of which he is president and a large stockholder.

Elks' Annual Outing.

The "grand fiesta de la Elks," as the official announcement of the order has it, will take place September 15 at "Elksville," wherever that may be. You are to find out where it is after you get there. Beside, there is to be a wholesale distribution of town lots thereabouts during the eventful day, which you must not miss. The celebration is in honor of the ladies of the Elk herd, who will be "the people" during the picnic. All that laymen are yet allowed to know about the "where" of it is that the train is to leave from the Arcade Depot "early."

Forging "Vet" Arrested.

James Murphy, an old soldier, was arrested by Detective Talamantes yesterday evening as he was in the act of cashing a bogus check for $45 on the proprietor of the Wedge saloon at Main and Alameda streets. He was booked on a charge of forgery. Murphy, it is alleged, has been handy with his signature in over a dozen instances in the last month, and the police have been thinking about him a good deal. It is claimed that he has defrauded lodging-house people and saloon keepers particularly. In one instance he cashed a check for $100 and another for $65, both of them said to be forged.

Celebration Promised.

The portion of the local Mexican population represented by El Club Cura Hidalgo is busy boosting for the programme which it is to carry out at Turner Hall on South Main street the night of September 16. Mrs. M. G. Gonsalez, wife of the president of the organization, is training a chorus of twenty-five children for the grand rendering of the Mexican national anthem. The attendance will be by invitation, and application for cards may be made to M. G. Gonsalez, No. 146 North Main street; Francisco Estudillo in the Larronde Block and R. J. Dominguez.

Gen. Black Today.

Gen. John C. Black, commander-in-chief of the G.A.R., is expected to arrive this morning on the Owl, and will be met at the depot by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce, co-operating with a committee from the local G.A.R. posts. From the depot he will be escorted to the Van Nuys Hotel, and from there will be taken on a tallyho drive about the city at 10 o'clock. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the commander will visit the Soldiers' Home, going by electric car. Tonight at 8 o'clock a public reception will be given in his honor at the Chamber of Commerce. Tomorrow the distinguished guest will be escorted over the Salt Lake route to Long Beach, where he will visit the annual encampment of the Southern California Veterans' Association, leaving at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to take the steamer at San Pedro for Santa Catalina. He will be accompanied here by his wife and daughter, and the party will leave for Chicago Saturday at 8 a. m.

BREVITIES.

Sunlight intensified by reflection from ocean beach and desert sand, unrelieved by foliage; winds and mineral laden poisonous alkali dust, all bring eye troubles in their wake; granulated eyelids, red, itching, burning, tired and watery eyes, impaired vision, eye pain. Prevention, relief and cure are found in Murine Eye Remedy, a mild and harmless "2-drop" cure. Murine aids those wearing glasses, doesn't smart, but soothes and quickly cures. Sold by opticians and druggists, 50c.

FREES MILLIONAIRE SHEVLIN.

RACINE, Sept. 9.—In the Circuit Court today Judge Belden rendered a decision in the case of Edward Charles Shevlin, a millionaire Minneapolis lumber man, who had been reported insane by Walworth county physicians, and who demanded a jury trial and was turned over to a deputy sheriff pending the trial on September 21 by stipulation. Judge Belden decided that Shevlin should be released for the reason that he is not a resident of Wisconsin. Shevlin went from the courtroom a free man.

CROP OF RUMORS FROM "NEAR EAST."

Bulgaria's Prince Threatened Because He Will Not Make War.

Assertion Put Forth at Sofia That it Has Been Decided to Mobilize the Forces in View of the Turks' Nearness to the Frontier—Germans Continue to Blame the Americans for "Butting In"—Macedonian Committee Organizing.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Except that the consuls in Salonica are again asking for the protection of warships, there is little direct news this morning from the seat of the Macedonian troubles, but there is a plentiful crop of sensational statements impossible to confirm or deny. Among the latter is the assertion made in a Sofia dispatch to the Secio of Milan to the effect that it has been decided to mobilize the Bulgarian army. This is contrary to the avowed policy of the Bulgarian government, but cannot be regarded as unlikely, as the Turkish troops are concentrated at Geoktepe, five miles from the Bulgarian frontier.

In Paris, there is a persistent rumor that M. Constans the French Ambassador at Constantinople, intends to resign as a protest against the apathy shown by his government. According to a Sofia dispatch to the Daily Express, the British agent there has already notified Bulgaria that Great Britain insists that she prevent the passage of bands into Macedonia.

Little credence is attached to a story published in the Vienna Zeitung that Turkish troops have been ordered to cross the Bulgarian frontier.

Count Goluchowski, the Austrian chancellor, had a long conference with Emperor Francis Joseph at Budapest yesterday, and common diplomatic action by the powers against Bulgaria is again said to be in preparation.

The Italian fleet is held in readiness at Sicily, so that it could reach Turkish waters within forty-eight hours, but Italy will not take any action except in accord with the powers.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Varna reiterates the determination on the part of the Bulgarian government to hinder every manifestation liable to lead to war. He adds that Prince Ferdinand is receiving many menacing letters, and as a result the palace is strongly guarded, the locks have been changed on the doors, and all persons desiring admission are strictly scrutinized.

The Associated Press learns from Philippopolis that the Macedonian Committee is actively organising new revolutionary bands, of which 170 have been formed in Eastern Roumelia and Macedonia since Boris Sarafoff assumed the direction of the Adrianople Committee. The leaders of the bands during the last six months have imported 190 kilogrammes of dynamite, mostly from Austria, together with large stores of rifles, which have all been warehoused in the suburbs of Philippopolis.

From Vienna, it is reported that Bulgaia is trying to contract in Hungary for 15,000,000 Mannlicher cartridges.

The Porte has appointed several commissioners in the vilayet of Monastir to restore plundered property to its owners.

MAY STAMPEDE SULTAN.

TURKS YEARN FOR WAR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The official and press reports from the Near East today emphasize the seriousness of the situation there and confirm the belief of the authorities here that the Sultan may be swept by the uncontrollable sentiments of his subjects into a war with Bulgaria, despite the unwillingness of the Porte to precipitate such a conflict. There is no question in official circles here but that the Porte will take energetic measures to suppress any trouble at Beirut. France may order warships to that point to protect her interests, but Germany has asserted that she will not do so.

A high diplomatic authority asserted today that when Russia submits to the Porte her proposals for the pacification of Macedonia she may order her Black Sa squadron to Turkish waters, and it may mak a much longer stay there than did the Russian squadron at Indiada Bay.

The St. James Gazette this afternoon says an arrangement has been arrived at between Great Britain and Austria which will come into operation under certain eventualities.

The Turkish embassy issued another statement today declaring that the reports of massacres emanate from the Bulgarian side, and are purposely exaggerated in the hope of securing European intervention. It reiterates disbelief in the seriousness of the Beirut situation and adds: "The Turkish government, therefore, hopes the American warships will depart as speedily as possible, as their presence only tends to incite the people. From Constantinople the embassy is informed that there is no reason for the assembling of the American ships at Beirut."

CAPT. ZEOYAN KILLED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SALONICA (European Turkey) Sept. 9.—The famous revolutionary leader, Capt. Zeoyan, was killed in the fight at Lake Aniatovo, in the vilayet of Constantinople. Three other Bulgarians were killed and many were wounded. A quantity of war munitions and a number of rebel proclamations were captured by the Turks on that occasion. One Turk was killed.

The large insurgent band which was reported September 7 as being surrounded near Ostrovo, thirty miles from Monastir, by twelve battalions of Turkish trtoops, escaped to the Kaimakchalan Mountains, where they are now again surrounded by the twelve battalions and six guns.

Reports of the recent fighting at Demir Kahu, sixty-two miles from Salonica, agree in saying that the Bulgarians lost heavily.

BEIRUT KEEPS QUIET.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Navy Department has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Cotton, dated Beirut yesterday, saying that there were no serious disturbances in Beirut Monday night. The situation there is improving, and public feeling is growing quieter.

CONSULAR REPORTS.

GERMANS AND AMERICANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A delayed dispatch from Constantinople to the Lokal Anzeiger (which sometimes prints official news,) says:

"Telegraphic consular reports received here today (Monday) say that the murder of Christians in different parts of Beirut continues. Disorder prevails and traffic is destroyed. The consuls also decided to call on Rear-Admiral Cotton for eventual protection for the foreign consulates, which he later agreed to furnish. It is considered that the Americans could land 500 men. Some Americans, it is believed, have already landed. The The American ships are cleared for action. Other warships are expected."

The German Foreign Office approves of Admiral Cotton's intention to land a guard to protect the United States consulate at Beirut, if necessary, and of his holding a landing party in readiness to protect the Sultan, there ships off Beirut appears to be the complicates the Turkish situation, "because," it is asserted, "a new element has been brought in which acts independently of the powers, now that the pressure of the powers is more or less coördinated, and the Porte may know what to expect. But the American action is not easily calculated, and will tend to excite the Turkish government and add to the perplexities."

Several of the German newspapers, while rather restrained in their language, look with distrust upon the presence of the American warships at Beirut as likely to disturb the Mussulmans. Other papers, however, say it is not fair to ascribe the outbreak to the arrival of the Americans.

EXCITEMENT IN DESERT.

DRUSES ARE TAKING ARMS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The following telegram has been received from Cairo, Egypt: "Disquieting rumors are current in regard to the situation in Syria. Bedouins arriving here from the Arish Desert say the Druses are in arms, and fears are entertained of a massacre in Lebanon."

Official reports from Beirut show the growing gravity of the situation there. Another Christian was killed yesterday. The Turkish soldiers are making common cause with the Mussulmans during the attacks on Christians; a number of houses have been pillaged, one French shop was completely destroyed, and the French residents, becoming terrorised at these depredations, have deserted their homes and sought refuge at the French college, where between four hundred and five hundre refugees are now gathered. The American naval commander, it is asserted in the dispatches received here proposed to land marines at Beirut, but the foreign consuls believed the step inadvisable at this time, as it might lead to an increase of the excitement prevailing and cause a crisis.

The vali of Beirut proved himself to be weak and incompetent to deal with the situation, and therefore Nazim Pasha, the vali of Syria, was ordered to assume the direction of affairs in Beirut. Nazim Pasha, who has already arrived at his new post, is displaying great energy. The consuls express the hope that he will be able to stem the disorder. The nearest French warship is in the Gulf of Volga, Greece, but unless Nazim Pasha speedily restores order and completely safeguards French citizens, France will act decisively by the despatch of warships from Toulon.

CONSTANTINOPLE REPORTS.

MOSLEMS ATTACK CHRISTIANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Consular accounts received here from Beirut totally differ from the Turkish government's version of the recent outbreak there. The vali of Beirut was not on board the United States flagship Brooklyn when the first brawl occurred, but was in the country. Contrary to the official version, the dispatches say the Mussulmans first attacked the Christians, and the troops which intervened sided with the Mussulmans. One of the pillaged houses belonged to a French citizen. Though there has been no further disturbance at Beirut since Sunday, great uneasiness, amounting almost to a panic, prevails among the Christians, many of whom have left Beirut and sought refuge in Lebanon.

The foreign consuls at Beirut met Monday and decided to make serious representations to the local authorities looking to the preservation of order. They also decided to telegraph their respective ambassadors or ministers at Constantinople demanding the recall of the incompetent vali of Beirut and urging that warships be sent for the protection of the Europeans. Nazim Pasha, vali of Syria, was ordered from Damascus to Beirut, where he arrived yesterday.

The Porte reports that Nazim Pasha was sent to Beirut with two battalions of troops to take temporary charge of affairs there. The vali of Beirut, it is also announced, has not been deprived of his authority, but he will "probably remain inactive at his post during the stay of Nazim Pasha at Beirut."

While the rioting was in progress, the Beirut advices further state an appeal was made to Rear-Admiral Cotton to land marines, but he replied that he could not intervene in a quarrel among Ottoman subjects.

It is considered probable that France will send warships to Beirut, and her example is likely to be followed by other powers. Several of the diplomats here drew the serious attention of the Porte on Monday to the situation at Beirut, demanding that measures be taken to prevent a further outbreak and insisting on the recall of the vali who was in office when the outbreak occurred. No further consular dispatches have recently been received from the villayets of United Turkey. It is believed here that the rigorous repression exercised by the Turks in the villayet of Monastir will result in uniting all the Christians against the authorities. The Porte intends to concentrate 50,000 to 70,000 troops at Adrianople.

It is said that 2000 insurrents have been surrounded at Kirk Kilisseh, thirty-two miles from Adrianople, and official circles here momentarily expect news of their surrender or annihilation.

Notwithstanding the large number of troops concentrated at Adrianople, the regiment of Haminieh cavalry, to which the Sultan presented colors September 4, will leave here this afternoon for Adrianople. It is alleged that the dispatch of these troops can only have one meaning, namely, massacres in which the Kurds are destined to play the same part as the Circassians did during the Russo-Turkish war.

The only news from the interior to-lasted until eightfold. The Bulgarians who were arrested here on the eve of the anniversary of the Sultan's accession have been released.

THE PRESIDENT WATCHING.

LEISHMAN IS OPTIMISTIC.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) Sept. 9.—The President is watching the developments of the situation in Turkey carefully, but without serious apprehension. The reports made by Minister Leishman at Constantinople are not disquieting in tone. On the contrary, the Minister is inclined to take an optimistic view of the situation, as far as this country is concerned. The anti-Christian outbreak is serious, but it is not regarded as likely that, through it, American interests or American citizens will suffer.

Admiral Cotton at Beirut, in whom the administration has great confidence, is clothed with ample authority to afford such protection to Americans and American interests as he may deem wise. This fact, coupled with the assurance of the Porte that the United States property and people in Turkey are quite safe, has tended to relieve the minds of the President and Secretary Hay from apprehension of serious consequences. The vigilance of the United States authorities will not be relaxed, however, and every precaution will be taken to insure the safety and protection of American interests.

The President entertained at luncheon Paul Morton of Chicago, vice-president of the Santa Fé railroad system; Francis E. Leupp of Washington and Lieut. Gordon Johnston of the army, who was a member of the President's regiment of Rough Riders. Leupp, who is a Washington newspaper correspondent, was appointed by the President several months ago as a commissioner to make an investigation of alleged Indian frauds in the Oklahoma Territory. He has completed his work, and today made his report to the President.

Later in the afternoon, Archbishop Harty, who will sail very soon for Manila, paid his respects to the President and talked with him about the situation in the Philippine Islands.

SAVED FROM LYNCHERS.

Under a Fire of Bricks and Stones, Chicago Policemen Rescue Negro from Infuriated Mob.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Under a fire of bricks and stones, policemen last night rescued a negro murderer from a mob of would be lynchers.

Ten minutes before John Brinkley, a colored watchman, had shot and killed Charles McCarthy, a plasterer, almost in the presence of the latter's wife, who stood in the doorway holding her babe. Then the negro, backing into the doorway of his own quarters held a crowd of 500 men and boys at bay until Patrolman Robert Mooney walked up to him, disarmed him and took away his weapon.

Then came the second and exciting attempt of the mob to wreak vengeance on the murderer. It was only by a desparate rush that four policemen seized the negro and succeeded in dragging him to the patrol wagon.

At the Police Station Brinkley fainted from fear, and when revived begged to be put in a cell where no mob could get at him. McCarthy's family is left destitute by his death.

The killing grew out of a quarrel in which McCarthy had accused Brinkley of stealing chickens from his premises.

DEPARTED INTO LEAD.

Mining Congress's Change of Venue.

Delegates Arrive from Oregon and Three Business Sessions are Held During the Day.

E. W. Parker of the Geological Survey Talks on Something Else Than Gold.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LEAD (S. D.) Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Though the sessions of the American Mining Congress have only begun, the fight is on in earnest for the next convention. Seattle is the favorite, but the Washington delegation is not numerically as strong as the other sections. The delegates say that the mining development going on in Alaska, Oregon and Washington should receive the support of Congress.

Los Angeles is putting up a big fight, and lobbying is going on in its favor. The St. Louis faction has not given up the fight. None of the officers of Congress has as yet expressed himself.

LEAD (S. D.) Sept. 9.—Today the American Mining Congress moved over into Lead, and after receiving a cordial welcome from Mayor E. F. Irwin, on behalf of the city, proceeded to transact the business of its sixth annual session where it left off at Deadwood last night. Three sessions were held today. Tomorrow the delegates will inspect the mines and mining its work Saturday afternoon.

The attendance today was enhanced by the arrival of nearly one hundred delegates from Oregon, who were delayed by a railroad accident, and who will invite the Congress to Portland next year.

The principal speakers of today's three sessions were Hon. George E. Roberts, director of the mint; Hon. John L. Webster of Omaha, and E. W. Parker of the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C. Roberts referred to the recent increase in the value of silver, and said he believed silver had seen its worst days, and that it would before long reach and maintain a staple standard of value. This statement was received with a great burst of applause.

This reference by the director of the mint to silver led a Deadwood delegate to submit a resolution against "any further legislation by Congress tending to restrict the further coinage of silver as real money or to depress its value upon the market." The resolution was referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

ROBERTS' ADDRESS.

Hon. George Roberts spoke in part as follows:

"The output of gold, which received a temporary check by the war in the Transvaal, will amount this year to a new record, and next year, in all probability, to another new one, for the Transvaal will not fully recover its position until then, and all of the important gold-producing regions of the world are promising enlarged yields. The ore deposits in sight, the advance made in metallurgy, and the abundance of capital seeking investment in the industry, combine to give assurance that the yield will not decline for a long time to come. Down to twenty years ago the world's supply of gold came mainly from placers. Prof. Suess, the Austrian geologist, based his famous argument for bi-metalism upon the theory that placers were and always would be the chief source of supply, and that as the world had been nearly all explored the annua yield of gold in the future must be a diminishing one. The metallugical discoveries of the last twenty years, the new process of reduction, are to be credited with the new golden stream.

"The people who are counting on stagnation and liquidation to follow the present era of prosperity, may not be giving due importance to this annual addition to the monetary stock of the world. A period of enterprise and free investment exhausts the fund of liquid capital, and a halt is ordinarily necessary until the fund is replenished by savings. The process may be identified by a rise of interest rates and a fall in the value of investments that yield a fixed rate, and its influence, of course, is to put a stop to the latter. Every addition to the bank reserves at such a time has a direct bearing on the situation, and a flow of $250,000,000 of new gold every year into the financial centers of the world will be a factor not to be overlooked. Its accumulation in the banks will naturally force interest rates down, which in turn forces the value of fixed investments up, and the result is a stimulus to enterprise until the new supplies are absorbed, when the process is repeated."

The address of Parker, which had nothing to do with gold, seemed to be somewhat of a novelty to the majority of the members, but was followed with evident interest.

OUR MINERAL OUTPUT.

Mr. Parker spoke as follows:

"How many of you are aware that in 1901 the United States produced practically 40 per cent. of the entire world's supply of pig iron and 44 per cent. of the entire output of steel? In 1902 this country added nearly 2,000,000 tons to the pig iron product of 1901 and reached a total of nearly 18,000,000 long tons. How many of you are aware that in 1902 we produced almost double the amount of pig iron made in this country in 1892, ten years before, and about four times that made in 1882? How many of you are aware that in the first half of 1903 the furnaces of the United States turned out pig iron equal in amount to that produced in all the other countries of the world in a similar period for 1901? This great development is due in large part to coal. Our vast deposits of iron ore would lie unprospected and undeveloped but for the coal which reduces them to workable iron and steel. Without the coal the steel would not be made for our railroads, nor would there be locomotives to draw the trains. It is coal which moves the world today, not gold. Gold lubricates the wheels, and that is very important, I grant you, but coal makes the power.

"Now, what are we doing in the development of that power? We look at the statistics and we see that our coal mines produced in 1902 a total of 293,300,000 short tons of coal. We are accustomed to talking in millions now-a-days, and consequently these figures may not sound impressive, but let us see what sized mass this product represents. If this one year's product were gathered in one heap and measured it would make a mountain containing 7,350,000,000 cubic feet. If put into a column with a rectangular base 1000 feet on each edge (nearly a fifth of a mile) it would reach an altitude of 14 miles. The holes left in the ground by this excavating would contain a city two and three-tenths miles square, whose buildings averaged fifty feet in height.

ENORMOUS COAL PRODUCTION.

"How our coal mining industry has grown is shown in the record of the last thirty years. Those of us who remember as far back as 1871 thought we were doing some business at that time, notwithstanding the fact that we were just recovering from the effects of the Civil War. We produced in that year a little over 30,000,000 tons of coal. In 1881 we mined 64,000,000 tons, nearly half that of our industrial rival, Great Britain; in 1891 our product had increased to nearly 17,000,000 tons, almost double that of 1881, while in 1901 we came within 2 per cent. of reaching 200,000,000 tons, overstepping Great Britain by nearly 50,000,000 tons, and exceeding Great Britain and all her colonies by over 22,000,000 tons. The United States is now contributing more than one-third of the entire world's supply of coal.

"In order to show how our coal mining industry indicates the great strides that we have made in manufactures we may compare the statistics of coal production with those of population. If coal mined in the United States during the past thirty years had merely kept pace with our increasing population, the production in 1901 would have been considerably less than 100,000,000 tons, whereas, it nearly reached 300,000,000 tons. In 1870 we had a population of 38,558,371 persons, and our total coal production amounted to 34,946,000 tons, showing a per capita consumption of less than one ton. In 1880, with a population of a little over 50,000,000, we produced 71,481,562 tons of coal, or one ton and 900 pounds for each inhabitant. At the end of the next decade our population had increased to 62,622,250, and our coal production to nearly 138,000,000 tons, making two and a half tons of coal to each person, and in the last year of the last century, when our population was a little over 76,000,000, we mined nearly 270,000,000 tons of coal, or more than three and a half tons per capita. In other words, while our population in 1900 was not quite double that of 1870, the coal production was 7.4 times as large.

ST. LOUIS DISPLAY.

"It is but just that an industry upon which so many other industries, we might say the commercial life of the nation itself, depend, should have proper representation at the St. tLouis Exposition.

"A large space has been reserved in the Mines and Metallurgy Building for the display of the exhibits representing the coal mining industry. This will be divided among the States according to the extent of their exhibits, and as nearly as possible according to geographical location.

"Some of the interesting features of this coal display will consist of large relief maps of some of the principal coal fields of the country. These maps will show practically, in miniature, the country represented. They will shows the hills and the valleys, the plains and water courses, the roads and railroads, the towns and mining camps, and the location of each mine in the region represented. They will also show the surface and structural geology and the entire area underlaid by workable coal seams; and where possible the portions of the region available for farming purposes and the sections covered by forest growths of economic importance.

UNIQUE FEATURE.

"Another interesting feature will be maps of two or three typical mining towns or camps illustrating the character of such communities in the different States. These maps will also show the tipple and other buildings connected with the operations of the mines and miners' houses, etc. It is of course evident that the scale upon which such maps are constructed is very much larger than the scale upon which the relief maps can be constructed. It will mean, in reality, showing in detail certain features indicated on the relief maps.

"These, on a still larger scale, will be shown models of working mines in the different States, and illustrating, so far as possible, typical conditions existing in those States.

"The method of utilizing bituminous coal in the manufacture of coke will be shown by models of coking plants. In connection with this will be shown specimens of coal used in coke making and specimens of different grades of coke made from such coal. Also in connection with the models of coking plants will be shown working models of crushing and washing machinery illustrating the matter in which coal is prepared for coke manufacture, where such preparation is necessary.

The chief feature of the evening session was the address of John L. Webster of Omaha.

GOLD AND CIVILIZATION.

The Hon. J. L. Webster of Omaha spoke of "Gold and Civilization," saying in part:

"There is more in the civilization of the West than the mere search for gain or the conquest of wealth. There are in it ideals of life as characteristic of the people as is thetih progressive spirit.

"No class of people recognize better than we do, and none are more sensibly touched by the thought that we are all parts of our one common country, and that whatever shall add to the prosperity of the whole nation wakes the strongest appeal to our high sense of duty and strengthens in us the loyal bonds of patriotism and unity. We are lovers of education, broad in purpose, ennobling in character, sweetening and broadening the lives and work of men, which is the distinguishing feature of American national life.

"I wish I could have our Eastern friends understand how boundless are the opportunities, how measureless are the resources in that area of country between the Missouri River and the Pacific, and how enterprising and progressive the people that built up the empire of the West since the discovery of gold in California.

"Decades in the life of a nation are as nothing. This republic, grand and glorious as she is, has just started on her career. The future for her is vast, dim, and immeasurable. Nature is omnipotent. Nations must float with the tide. But whether she is passing through the darkness and storms of uncertain conflicts, or moving under all the splendor of the golden sunshine of peace and prosperity, the West and the East shall be forever one."

HARRIMAN DESIRES FASTER SERVICE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President E. H. Harriman of the Southern Pacific is seriously considering building a bridge over Carquines Straits, between Port Costa and Benicia, and doing away with the slow ferry system. It is the general belief of the Southern Pacific officials that Harriman will build a bridge at a cost of about $3,000,000 within the next three years, and save fully half an hour in the time running time for overland trains. The bridge will be about two miles long, including the approaches and about fifty feet above water.

The reconstruction of the Central Pacific for 500 miles between Truckee and Ogden is rapidly approaching completion. The western end of the line will be modernized by a 33,000 foot tunnel in Sierra Nevada at a cost of $7,000,000. When all this work is completed, Harriman says fast overland trains can easily run between San Francisco and Chicago in two and a half days.

WESTERN PACIFIC.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—George L. Dillman, chief engineer of the Western Pacific Railroad, has just returned from Salt Lake, which has been the base of his operations while in the field. According to his report of the progress of work on the new road, there are now thirteen engineering corps engaged in lining out the proposed route of the track, and construction has already commenced. It is now, it is said, a foregone conclusion, that the Western Pacific is to be a feeder of the Gould system, the forerunner of a new competing trans-continental line.

The committees representing the bodies affiliated with the fusion movement at the conference were: The Citizens' Union, Greater New York Democracy, New York Kings, Queens, Richmond counties Republican committees, Kings county Democracy, German-American Municipal League of Brooklyn, Austro-Hungarian Anti-Tammany Association, German-American Municipal League of Manhattan and the Italian-American League.

DENIES CHARGES AGAINST OIL TRUST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) Sept. 9.—[Exclusivve Dispatch.] That the Standard Oil Company has pumped salt water into wells of independent companies in the Beaumont field with the intention of securing possession for a pittance is branded as false by H. J. Buckley, treasurer of the Springfield Beaumont Oil Company.

Buckley, who was in receipt of telegraphic advices today, says that a number of wells belonging to independent companies at Beaumont are temporarily out of commission because of poor drilling and improper casings. Had the Standard Oil Company flooded the wells they would still be worth to the independent companies as much as the Standard people would presumably pay, Buckley said.

WASHINGTON.

CLOSE PORTS TO CHINESE.

Canadian Boundary Too Easy to Cross.

Case Which Will Determine the Matter at Montreal.

Beavers One of the Indicted Post-office Men—Sherman Statue Dedication.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] All ports along the Canadian border may be closed to Chinese if certain proceedings now pending at Montreal are adverse to the interests of the United States. The Canadian border having proved favorable to the unlawful entry of Chinese arriving from the Orient by way of Vancouver, Commissioner-General Sargent was directed by Secretary Cortelyou to restrict the number of ports of entry along that frontier. Sargent finally named Malone, N. Y., and Richford, Vt., as the only ports of entry for Chinese, and made an arrangement with the Canadian Pacific whereby all Chinese desiring entrance into the United States should be delivered at these ports. If refused entry, the Canadian Pacific agreed to return them to China.

Recently seventeen Chinese were delivered at Malone and Richford, and upon being refused admission, declared themselves to be native-born Americans, bringing witnesses to prove that they were born in San Francisco. They applied to Judge Wheeler of the United States District Court for writs of habeas corpus, but he refused to issue the writs on the ground that the decision of the immigration officials was final. The Chinese then applied in the courts at Montreal for the habeas corpus writs. Their cases will be heard tomorrow.

Special Attorney John L. Wolff has gone from this city to represent the Department of Justice, and Immigration Bureau in the hearings. It is alleged by the Chinese that the contract between this government and the Canadian Pacific is illegal. This contention is combated by this government and the railroad itself, which fears the loss of the Chinese traffic if the contract is canceled. If the Canadian authorities release the Chinese, it is probable that all ports along the Canadian border will be closed against them.

THRIFTY BANKS.

REDUCING CIRCULATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The action of Secretary Shaw in placing several millions of government money with national banks selected by him, followed by his announcement that he would give St. Louis banks $2,500,000 of government money as deposits, has caused a rush of national banks to retire circulation that they may get possession of their bonds held as security for circulation. Thus, while Secretary Shaw is increasing the amount of money in circulation one way it is being decreased in another. Applications received by the Comptroller of Currency today for retirement of circulation in the month of September amounted to near $3,000,000, which is the limit allowed for any one month.

In the case of the St. Louis banks Secretary Shaw permitted them to put up approved State and municipal bonds as security instead of government bonds. Ever since the statement that Secretary Shaw had accumulated $40,000,000 of internal revenue receipts and was prepared to place this sum, or part of it with banks as deposits, the bond market has been climbing, and 2 per cents. have risen over two points in less than three weeks. The banks are reducing circulation to get possession of bonds and Secretary Shaw may refuse deposits to the banks that reduce circulation. He will be in New York on Saturday to look over the financial world.

BEAVERS AND MACHEN.

AMONG THE INDICTED ONES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—One of the persons indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury in connection with the postal investigation is George W. Beavers, formerly chief of the Division of Salaries and Allowances. It is understood that the charge is conspiracy. Another of the indictments is against August W. Machen on a new set of facts, involving him with Beavers. The charge is conspiracy.

While the officials refuse to disclose the names of the four remaining persons who were indicted yesterday, it is said that none of them had been connected with the Postoffice Department, and that one is a man of some prominence. It was stated at the City Hall today that the climax of the investigation is to come shortly when a person not connected with the department, but equally as well-known as the Postmaster-General, will be indicted for complicity in the postoffice frauds. The grand jury began hearing the evidence in this particular case today, and it is expected that when a report is made it will in all probability conclude the investigation in Washington.

TRIALS OF INDICTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The trials of those persons indicted in the postoffice frauds case, it is expected, will begin at the October term of the District Superior Court. This was the opinion expressed tonight by Hon. Holmes Conrad, one of the special counsel engaged by the government in the prosecution of the cases. The government will consolidate the cases where this is practicable, so as to expedite matters, unless the accused persons shall demand private trials.

TULLOCH'S CHARGES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—By direction of the President, a thorough investigation has been made into the charges preferred by Seymour W. Tulloch against the management of affairs of the Washington (D. C.) postoffice. This investigation has been made by C. H. Bonaparte and Hon. James Conrad, special attorneys of the government in the prosecution of the postoffice fraud cases, and it is independent of and entirely supplementary to the report made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow on the charges preferred by Tulloch.

Mr. Bristow's report, Conrad says tonight, was simply a collection of the facts in the case, as reported by postoffice inspectors, and contained no opinions as to the merits of the charges. The investigation made by Messrs. Bonaparte and Conrad will go into the merits of the charges, and will express an opinion as to whether or not the accused persons are vindicated or are guilty of the offenses charged against them. The conclusions drawn from their inquiry will be embodied in a report which will be submitted to the Attorney-General the latter part of this week. Whether or not this report will be made public, Mr. Conrad would not say today, as that matter rested with the officials of the administration. No prosecutions will follow from any conclusions the report may draw as the offenses, if any have been committed, are barred by the statute of limitations.

Conrad said that he and Bonaparte had been engaged for five weeks in the inquiry. They had examined thoroughly the charges themselves, together with all evidence available on the subject, both in the Treasury and Postoffice departments.

The President, said Conrad, was very anxious that the whole matter should be gone over very carefully, so that if persons named in the charges by Tulloch were not guilty, they should be vindicated, and if they were that this fact should go on record. That their duty had been to act in the capacity of a master in chancery and report on the facts as they were found. It was not a party affair with the President, Mr. Conrad declared, but an honest desire to get at the facts in the case, both Democrats and Republicans being involved in the charges. The President was anxious to have the matter thoroughly sifted, and any criticism, credit or blame arising from the inquiry would be borne by him.

Conrad expressed the opinion that both he and Bonaparte would agree as to the recommendations to be made to the Attorney-General.

BONAPARTE'S CAMPAIGN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Seventeen additional indictments against persons said to be implicated in the postoffice frauds have been turned over to Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, who has been retained by the government to aid in the prosecution of nearly two score of its employés.

Bonaparte has just returned from his vacation at Stanfrews, N. F. He has received the formal drafts of indictments against George W. Beavers, August W. Machen, Congressman Edmund H. Driggs, Maurice Bunkie, George D. Lorenz, George F. Miller and Thomas W. MacGregor. He declared that the cases in which indictments are returned by the grand jury will be pushed as rapidly as the evidence will permit.

CALIFORNIAN IN TROUBLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A Californian is included in the number of those indicted by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday for postal frauds. His name is kept from the press pending his arrest. Officials here will not even indicate in what part of California he lives. Instructions were wired today to the United States Marshal in California to arrest this man, but whether Marshal Osborne or Marshal Shine is charged with the task is not made known here.

Chief Inspector Cochran said tonight: "We are not worrying about that California man; we'll get him. Then we'll tell you his name."

Besides Machen and Beavers, it is reported that two New Yorkers, one in Binghamton and one Californian are under indictment, but common rumor includes at least twenty others among the possibilities. Postmaster-General Payne and Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow maintain an attitude of strict reticence. Bristow remarked today that Machen's trial would be spectacular and sensational, eclipsing the Star Route trials in startling developments. Bristow is putting the finishing touches on his report, which will be sent to the President by Postmaster-General Payne with a report by Payne himself on some phases of the investigation.

STERN SURRENDERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

TORONTO (Ont.) Sept. 9.—Leopold J. Stern, the Baltimore manufacturer, indicted in Washington for postal frauds, surrendered to the authorities today here. Before Justice Winchester, T. C. Robinette, counsel for Stern arose and informed the judge that his client was prepared to proceed with an investigation into any charge the United States might prefer.

Crown Attorney Dewart, acting for the United States government, stated that a warrant for Stern's arrest was en route to Toronto, and asked that the accused be held pending its arrival.

Despite the protest of his counsel, Stern was remanded to jail without bail until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Arrangements are being made by the local committee of the Army of the Potomac for the annual meeting October 15 and 16 next, when the Sherman statue is to be dedicated. Gen. Nelson A. Miles is the chairman of the committee, which includes many other well-known army officers.

The exercises attending the unveiling of the Sherman statue are under the direction of the Society of the Army of Tennessee. These will be held October 15, when there will be an address by the President, an oration by former Speaker Henderson and remarks by members of the armies of the Potomac, the Cumberland and of Ohio, which also meet here during the week. On the evening of October 16, there is to be a joint banquet of all the army societies.

WAR CLOUD LIFTING IN THE FAR EAST.

RUSSIA SHOWING BETTER SPIRIT IN REGARD TO MANCHURIA.

Japanese Legation in London Sees in the Recent Concessions of the Czar's Governent a Removal of Danger of War Between the Two Nations.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Japanese Legation here sees in the Russian concessions regarding Manchuria the lifting of the war clouds in the Far East. No confirmation has been received of the London Times' Peking dispatch saying that the Russian Minister there in his note to the Chinese Foreign Office announcing that Newchwang and Moukden shall be evacuated by the Russians on October 8, undertook that China shall be permitted to resume administrative right in the three provinces of Manchuria under certain conditions, but the report is regarded as well founded.

The Japanese Legation says: "Three events, if the reports are correct, have occurred which are calculated to simplify the situation, namely, the Russian terms, which M. Tessan has apparently presented mark the abandonment of the proposals which the powers found objectionable; Russia has announced her withdrawal from Manchuria next month, and we believe she is sincere, and negotiations are proceeding between Japan and Russia for a definition of their respective rights in Manchuria and Korea. These are secret, and it is impossible to foretell the outcome, but we are hopeful that the results will be satisfactory to both sides."

WANTS POSTPONEMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 9.—A Peking telegram which is semi-officially confirmed at Tokio, says the Russian Minister has proposed the postponement of the evacuation of the Kirin and Amur districts of Manchuria, set for October 8.

MINISTER LESSAR'S NOTE.

RUSSIA'S EVACUATION TERMS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Peking correspondent of the Times telegraphs that M. Lessar, the Russian Minister, in his note to the Wai Wu Pu engaging the Newchwang and Mukden provinces should be evacuated by the Russians October 8, undertook that China shall be permitted to resume administrative rights in three provinces of Manchuria, provided that on her part China undertakes that no portion of the territory shall be conferred to any other power; that no concession shall be granted to Great Britain unless granted equally to Russia (this is obscure and requires confirmation;) that there shall be no increase in the present tariff on goods entering Manchuria by the railway; in the event of an epidemic at Newchwang, a Russian health officer shall be appointed to deal with it; that Russia shall retain her own military telegraph along the railroad, and that the agencies of the Russo-Chinese bank in Manchuria shall be guarded by Chinese soldiers. If the above conditions are agreed to, Newchwang and Mukden shall be evacuateed October 8, and the remaining provinces in due course.

The correspondent, commenting on the foregoing, says: "It will thus be seen that indifference to the objections of the other powers, the more objectionable features of the demands made by M. Pianchon (who was recently Russian Charge d'Affaires in Peking) have been omitted, and while Russia surrenders no material advantage, she has gained time and can rest content that China will never act in any way counter to M. Pianchon's demands. She also saves the face of China, which will accept the altered conditions with alacrity. Russia further hopes thereby to pacify Japan's resentment by apparently acceding to her wishes while retaining absolute military control of the country and hoping now to be able to push to completion undisturbed her military preparations."

TWO FRESH CONDITIONS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Times correspondent at Peking telegraphs two fresh conditions that M. Lessar, the Russian Minister, included in his note to the Chinese Foreign Board, promising to begin the evacuation of Manchuria October 8. The first condition is that Russia be allowed landing stages on the Sungari River, with the right to guard them with Russian troops, and the second is that Russia shall have the right to maintain Russian post sections along the main route from Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungking and Blagovoetschensk.

China objects strenuously to both conditions. Russia specifies that the Kirin province shall be evacuated four months after the Heilungking province, a year after the evacuation of Mukden. China protests against this also. The correspondent concludes that the attitude of the Chinese officials seems less hopeful of an early settlement than when they first received the Russian condition. They failed then to grasp their full significance.

The heroic work of neighbors saved two warehouses containing machinery and fruit valued at $100,000.

UNCLE SAM'S FOLKS BECOMING NUMEROUS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An interesting pamphlet has been issued by the Census Bureau telling somewhat of the significance of the gain in population made since the preceding census. It contains a comparison of the population of the United States with that of other countries, from which it appears that the only other countries that have either greater or more numerous population than the United States are the British Empire, the Chinese Empire, the Russian Empire, and possibly France.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century Russia, France, Germany, Austria, and even Spain and Turkey had larger populations than the United States. At the beginning of the twentieth century the United States had outstripped all but Russia and was increasing with somewhat greater rapidity than that power. Some rather surprising facts are brought out by an examination of the increases and decreases in the population in individual localities in the United States for the period covered in the last census. For instance, the areas of rapid growth are found in the thinly-settled regions of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, Southern Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia and much of Florida.

In these areas, as well as in the Northern Maine and New Hampshire, the growth of the lumbering industry has probably been an important factor in causing an increase of population. In the Southern States also the areas of rapid growth are more extensive than they are in the North. Certain States lost in population during the census periods, among them being South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado. In those four States, the counties losing population embraced more than one-third of the total areas of all such counties in the country.

The deficiency of the rainfall and available sources of water are doubtless the main reasons for the decrease. The western parts of South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas suffered most widespread loss and showed the heaviest percentage of decrease. Certain counties in Northern New England and in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan lost in population from 1890 to 1900. These counties lay mainly in regions where agriculture is not highly prosperous and the opportunities for other occupations are limited.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Father M. J. Ward of Beloit, one of the most prominent Catholic priests in the State, has decided that neither he nor any other priest of the Roman Catholic faith will give absolution to those who have taken the oath of the International Typographical Union.

Father A. F. Schinner, administrator of the arch diocese of Milwaukee, who he himself would say the same thing. "Such an oath," said Father Schinner, "is distinctly aimed at religion. I do not know that the refusal to give absolution to such union members is enforced, but I think it should be. It has been told me by a member of the union that nothing antagonistic to religion is intended, but there is a possibility of reading it that way.

I am in favor of taking extreme measures at once, but if the printers' union does not mean as it reads, I think an opportunity should be given to have it changed."

MINE OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

VICTOR CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 9.—The Mine Owners' Association has decided that no members of the Western Federation of Miners will be employed in any of the properties owned by members of the association. The association's influence upon the prosperity of the district has been perceptible, according to the mine owners, especially since they will no longer tolerate its alleged dictation. Many union miners are still confidently expressing themselves, and are keeping their organization well intact. Officials of the association declare that of 1000 men formerly employed in four mines, but an attempt has been made to reopen operations, only 110 have returned to work.

It is reported that mine owners have made arrangements with railroads for special rates for laborers from the South to Missouri, and it is expected that 5000 will be brought from the Cripple Creek district to take the places of striking miners.

Trouble began breaking out in the Cripple Creek district on Labor day, and the mill guard line was established to enhance this property. Operations were also resumed today in a number of mines in the Vindicator and City placer ground.

Shortly after the guard had been stationed at the Sampler he noticed a man sneaking about a building. He ordered the man to halt which order was not obeyed. The guard fired at the man, and started in pursuit, firing as he went. As the soldier passed a clump of trees he was felled by a rock thrown by a second man. The shooting aroused other sentinels who arrived on the scene as the two men disappeared over the edge of Bull Hill. A volley was fired at them, but they escaped in the ground range of the muskets.

The wounded man was picked up and carried to camp, and a surgeon was summoned. He was found that the injured though unconscious when found. The shooting of a dead man with a bullet through his heart about a mile

ENORMOUS LOSS OF CHRISTI

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Times from Monastir, dated Sept. 2, says a railway bridge to Monastir guarded by Turkish troops, the devastation of the Christian population is complete. The villages are disappeared. The Christians have deserted, and the Turks have burned villages along the line, with armed Turks in charge, to be described as "Christian villages."

The signs of the times are that a few burned houses, a few Turkish victories are sufficient to drive the number of villagers to the mountains, and the number of villages over all the northern columns of smoke in the direction of Meveri.

The Monastir correspondent of the Daily Mail sends a report of the sickening slaughter in the hospital there. Turkish brutality is described, and Wallachian children had their throats cut, leaving them to die. Others, inflicted by regulars and the Bashi Bazouks, were left to die in Martinia. The atrocities tended to prove that the Turkish authorities are responsible for the massacres and brutalities and not the revolutionaries.

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Father M. J. Ward of Beloit, one of the most prominent Catholic priests in the State, has declared that neither he nor any other priest of the Roman Catholic faith will give absolution to those who have taken the oath of the International Typographical Union.

Father A. F. Schinner, administrator of the archdiocese of Milwaukee, says he himself would say the same thing. "Such an oath," said Father Schinner, "is distinctly aimed at religion. I do not know that the refusal to give absolution to such union members is enforced, but I think it would be.

"It has been told me by a member of the union that nothing antagonistic to religion is intended, but there is possibility of reading it that way.

"I am in favor of taking extreme measures at once, but if the printers' union does not mean as it reads, I think an opportunity should be given to have it changed."

WILL FIGHT UNIONISM.

MINE OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 9.—The Mine Owners' Association has announced that no members of the Western Federation of Miners will be employed in any of the properties owned by members of the association. The baneful influence upon the prosperity of the district has been personal, according to the mine owners, who openly declare that they will no longer tolerate its alleged dictation.

Union miners are still confidently waiting, and are keeping their organization well intact. Officials of the union declare that of 1000 men formerly employed in four mines at Cripple Creek, an attempt has been made to replace them, only 110 have returned to work.

It is reported that mine owners have made demands with railroads for reductions for laborers from Southern Missouri, and it is expected that men will be brought from the Southern district to take the places of strikers.

Trouble began breaking ore in the Independence mine this morning, and the mill guard line was established to protect this property. Operations will be resumed today in a number of leases in the Vindicator and other placer ground.

SHOCKED MILITIAMAN.

SHOOTING STRIKERS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 9.—An attack by a militiaman acting as guard at the Independence and Brunton Sampler mines, one of the officers commanding the militia and within a few minutes, every available man in the camp was scouring the hills.

Shortly after the guard had been established at the Sampler he noticed a commotion about a building. He ordered the man to halt which order was disobeyed. The guard fired at the fleeing man and started in pursuit, firing as he ran. As the soldier passed the building he was felled by a rock thrown by a second man. The shooting aroused other sentinels who arrived in time to see the two men disappeared over the edge of Bull Hill. A few shots were fired at them, but they escaped from range of the muskets.

The wounded man was picked up and his wife was summoned. He was seriously injured though unconscious when found.

The finding of a dead man with a bullet through his heart about a mile from the station of Clyde has created no small amount of excitement. Clyde is a small station on the very outskirts of the district. The body was brought to the city but has not yet been identified.

Work at the famous Stratton Independence mine was resumed this morning. This is the fourth mine to be started up under the protection of the militia in the past two days.

The force of men employed at the four mines is comparatively small, although the effort to resume operations has been successful thus far.

LABOR BUREAU.

MOVE OF UNIONS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Some of the labor organizations of this city are complaining that the Labor Bureau is run as a partisan office, and propose to petition Congress to remedy this situation. Several of the unions have considered the matter, and have passed resolutions protesting against the consolidation of the Bureau of Labor with the Department of Commerce, alleging that the non-partisan character of the office is destroyed by putting it under a secretary representing a political party.

It is pointed out that when the Bureau of Labor was originally established by the act of 1888 it was intended to be organized and conducted strictly on a non-partisan basis. The labor people propose to make the "rehabilitation" of the Labor Bureau a feature of their work before Congress, during the coming session, and petitions have already been prepared for transmission to the President asking his influence in behalf of the change.

FARCICAL STRIKE.

SEATTLE CAR MEN'S UNION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 9.—All but ten cars out of 160 usually run by the Seattle Electric Company, which owns the street car system of this city, are in operation today, notwithstanding the decision of the executive committee of the street car men's union early this morning to declare a strike. When the order to strike was given out this morning, a great majority of the employés of the company discarded their union badges, and went to work as usual upon the promise of President Furth that he would treat with a committee of the men, in an endeavor to reach an amicable adjustment of the differences. It is believed the effect of this will be the disruption of the Seattle branch of the Amalgamated Order of Street Railway Employés.

The demands made by the union, the refusal of which led to the strike, included recognition of the union, reinstatement of all men discharged because of their connection with the union since the strike last March, a wage scale of 30 cents an hour and time and a half for overtime and on legal holidays.

UNIVERSAL PEACE.

Union Formed to Promote it. Points to the Remarkable Progress Made in Recent Years.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

VIENNA, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The conference of the Inter-Parliamentarian Union for international arbitration closed this afternoon. The report of M. Gobat on the proceedings of the interparliament was adopted. It says that since 1900 thirty-six international disputes had been laid before the arbitration court and several States had concluded arbitration agreements. M. Bobchief, a Bulgarian delegate, recommended to the consideration of the congress the amelioration of the condition of the inhabitants of European Turkey as quickly as possible by the application of article 23 of the Berlin treaty.

The delegates held a farewell banquet tonight at which Dr. Von Koerber, the Austrian Premier, delivered a speech in the course of which he paid a tribute to the mission of the peace society, which he said was arousing increasing enthusiasm throughout the world.

ITHACA'S GUSHING WELL.

ITHACA (N. Y.) Sept. 9.—The new pumping station which as a sequel to the typhoid epidemic was built in connection with the new filter plant to supply the city of Ithaca with pure water, has caught fire from a gasoline tank. The building was burned to the ground. Coincident with the fire has developed a gushing well which flows half a million galons daily. This makes certain that Ithaca will, in only a few weeks, have an entirely new water supply which will not have to be filtered and which cannot be contaminated.

ENORMOUS LOSS OF CHRISTIAN LIFE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

[By Atlantic Cable.] Organizations are preparing a memorandum to be presented by representatives of the powers, in which they will declare that the Porte intend to resort to repeated Turkish atrocities. The memorial declares that 65,000 men, women and children have been slaughtered and 200 villages burned.

The memorandum repeats the statements issued by the insurgent committee at Monastir, that the object of fighting the insurgents is to bring about a general massacre of Christians. The organizations declare that they are issuing the present memorandum because they are unable to restrain the hands from the sword and henceforward the revolutionists will deal with the great powers, instead of attempting to restrain the Turkish barbarities, are willing to allow the Turks to speedily end the revolution.

GERMANY'S LONE VESSEL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The Tageblatt says the German training frigate Moltke, will leave Lisbon for the Mediterranean. She will stop at a port in Greece and thence proceed to Syria. The Moltke has 400 men on board, part of whom could be landed in case of need. She will be the only German ship in the Mediterranean.

The Loriey, the guardship of the German embassy in Constantinople, is now cruising in the Black Sea.

The Frankfurter Zeitung declares that the trouble at Beirut was caused by the appearance of the American squadron.

POPULATION WIPED OUT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10—A dispatch to the Times from Monastir, dated September 3, says a railway journey from Salonica to Monastir gives a slight idea of the devastation of the country. The Christian population seems to have entirely disappeared. The crops are lying deserted, and the railway stations and villages along the line are swarming with armed Turks, few of whom could be described as regulars.

The signs of insurgent victories are a few burned blockhouses. The Turkish victories are indicated by the number of villages deserted and burned, and the number of fires still burning over all the neighboring hills. Vast columns of smoke are seen in the direction of Neveska.

The Monastir correspondent of the Daily Mail sends a graphic account of the sickening sights he witnessed in the hospital there. The victims of Turkish brutality were mostly Greeks and Wallachians. Many women and children had wounds from Mauser bullets, proving that they had been inflicted by regular troops, inasmuch as the Bashi Bazouks are armed with Martinis. The stories told by the victims tended to prove the worst accusations against the Turkish troops of brutalities and massacres

FIGHT FOR A FORTUNE OF MRS. MAYBRICK.

PROCEEDINGS BROUGHT IN BEHALF OF UNFORTUNATE WOMAN.

Vast Estate Left by Her Grandfather Darius Blake Holbrook Has Melted Away, but There is a Chance to Recover Some of it.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Fighting to secure a fortune for Mrs. Florence Elizabeth Maybrick, whose release from an English prison is expected next July, counsel today began proceedings to recover more than $40,000. That is all that is left of the immense fortune of Darius Blake Holbrook, grandfather of the American woman now spending the last month of a fifteen-year term in an English prison.

Attorneys for Mrs. Maybrick will appear before a referee, and ask for an accounting from Hamilton B. Bradshaw and William H. Gardiner of New York. They were executors of the will of Holbrook, who left his estate to his daughter, now the Baroness von Ruques, a resident of Rouen, France, with a reversionary interest to her daughter, Mrs. Maybrick.

Tens of thousands of that fortune went to save Mrs. Maybrick from the gallows, when she was sentenced to death in 1888 for poisoning her husband.

Darius Holbrook also owned 3500 acres of coal and iron lands in Virginia and West Virginia, and suits to recover them have been instituted. Should they be successful Mrs. Maybrick may become one of the wealthiest women in the United States.

Holbrook was a capitalist of Mobile, Ala. He was associated with Cyrus Field in the laying of the first trans-Atlantic cable; he founded the town of Cairo, Ill., and was one of the promoters of the Illinois Central Railroad. When he died in 1868 he was considered one of the wealthiest men in the South.

BURTON'S EUROPEAN TOUR.

Congressman Making a Thorough Study of River and Harbor Improvements—Marked Courtesy of Russia.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Prussian Cabinet has decided to again propose to the Landtag the construction of a great cross-country canal to connect the Rhine, Weser and Elbe, thus completing the Emperor's proposed system of internal waterways.

Congressman Burton, chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House, who has returned here from his inquiry into the river and harbor improvements in Eastern and Southeastern Europe, says this is the only canal project seriously considered in Europe that compares in expense to the proposed Erie Canal improvement.

The Rhine-Elbe Canal was estimated to cost $60,000,000 though it is now thought it will cost considerably more.

Burton, who is accompanied by Maj. Mahan, United States Engineer Corps, retired, and his secretary, Mr. Floyd, was received most courteously in the countries through which they passed. Russia presented Burton a steamer for his transportation, and Prof. Timonoff and other engineers went with Burton and his party on the Volga from Tyre to Tsaritzin, 1660 miles. Burton spent eleven days on the Volga, and then visited the Black Sea harbors, the Danube and Upper Elbe.

Burton will visit the Lower Elbe near Hamburg, and the canals of Northern France before going home.

PEKING, Sept. 10. [By Asiatic Cable.]—It has been decided that the portrait of the Dowager Empress now being painted by Miss Kate Agusta Carl, an American artist, shall be exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition. It is contrary to Chinese traditions to have likenesses of their semi-sacred rulers made and the innovation has caused a sensation at the Chinese court.

The painting of the portrait was suggested and the consent of the Empress to sit was obtained by Mrs. Conger, wife of the United States Minister.

Miss Carl has resided in the palace the last month as a guest with apartments near the Empress who gave her daily sittings. Miss Carl has frequently dined with the Imperial household.

Carrara Paint saves you half

The reason why Carrara paint is so popular with the largest users of paint is that it does more than any other paint.

The supreme test in paint economy is a paint that will last longest, look the best all the time and spread the farthest when put on.

These are all selling points in favor of Carrara paints, but they are not all.

Carrara paint never fades, cracks, peels or chalks, in any kind of a temperature or weather, or even under the influence of chemicals, fogs, sea air, or any climate conditions. That cannot be said of any other paint on earth.

It costs a trifle to look just as bright, glossy and brilliant for years as it did when first put on.

It is absolutely proof against fungus growths and will not absorb floating poisons. Therefore when used around chemicals it is not affected. Gas, soot, smoke, dirt, dust or any other floating substances have no more effect on it than does water on a duck's back.

No matter where it is spread it looks better than any other paint. It is equally good on wood, tin, iron, brick, stone, tile or plaster, and always looks fresh and clean.

Carrara paint does not require a varnish to make it keep. It dries as hard and smooth that it can be washed and scrubbed without staining or injury.

Carrara paints will not cause lead poisoning or painter's colic. They spread one-third farther than the best paints of any other kind.

Carrara paint is made by Carrara Paint Agency, Cincinnati, O.

Why It Couldn't Be Heard.

She nestled close to him, and for one brief moment her head was pillowed on his breast.

Then she started up affrighted.

"Why, George," she exclaimed, "you startle me!"

"What's the matter with my being a bit startled myself?" he returned. Then more gently: "What's the matter, dearest? Did you hear it, too?"

"Hear it!" she said. "No; it stopped."

"Yes, that's so. But I'm sure I heard it a minute ago."

"Of course you did. But, George, it stopped. Dear George, there must be something wrong." The girl was worried and excited.

"Maybe you're right," he said, looking a little worried himself.

"But, George, it ought not to stop. It ought to be regular."

George looked puzzled.

"What are you talking about, Mabel?" he asked.

"Why, your heart, George. It stopped beating."

"Stopped beating!" he exclaimed. "Stopped beating! Why, what in the world do you expect it to do—climb up into my mouth the way it does in novels when the hero hears the old man's step in the hall?"

"Why, George, father is out of the city."

George heaved an eight-ton sigh of relief.

"Try it again, Mabel," he said. "I guess you'll find it going now."

She found it attending to its regular business.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

CALIFORNIA'S NATAL DAY.

Native Sons Celebrate It in San Jose.

Veteran Firemen Chief Guests of Honor at Chico.

Methodists Uphold Dr. Hammond. Yuba River Improvement. Strangled Babe.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P. M.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 9.—Admission Day was celebrated here today on a most magnificent scale, under the auspices of the local parlors of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, having as their guests the parlors of San Francisco and other adjacent cities, who came 2000 strong and brought with them probably 6000 friends. Other visitors from Santa Clara county towns swelled the attendance to 20,000.

The weather was delightful, though a trifle warm. A notable feature was the long line of pioneers. These were led by a carriage containing Mrs. Margaret Branham-Ogier, Mrs. J. M. Murphy, Mrs. Will Lewis and Mrs. Josiah Belden, each of whom came to California in 1846.

Grand President McNoble's carriage contained also Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco, Mayor Worstwick of San Jose, and L. F. Byington, president of the day.

The literary exercises following the parade were held in St. James's Park, which was crowded from street to street. The address of welcome was by D. M. Burnett and the oration by Grand President McNoble, each of whom was given an ovation. W. E. Foley of San Francisco served as grand marshal with Ed Younger of San Jose as chief of staff. The San Jose parlors held open house for thirty-six hours and extended generous hospitality to all comers. Many of the visitors took long drives in the country during the afternoon and evening.

Tonight receptions were held at the headquarters of all the parlors, where dancing and refreshments were the features. Alum Rock Park is also specially illuminated and dancing is in progress there.

The celebration as a whole is one of the most delightful ever held in this city. The order has been all that could be desired.

CHICO'S CELEBRATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P. M.]

CHICO, Sept. 9.—Chico was the center of attraction today for those of Northern California, who desired to celebrate Admission Day. There was a monster parade, in which Native Sons and Daughters and volunteer firemen from Sacramento and many neighboring towns took part. Governor Pardee was present and reviewed the parade, after which he delivered an address at the Armory Opera-house. The veteran volunteer firemen of San Francisco were guests of honor.

Chico won the hose race, defeating Red Bluff and Oroville teams. A balloon ascension was successfully given, and then a sham battle between the local militia and Indians.

RAISED THE BEAR FLAG.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P. M.]

SONOMA, Sept. 9.—The celebration here today was a success in every sense of the word. Four trains brought visitors from all parts of this and adjoining counties. The parade was very elaborate, and all the Native Sons of the county participated. Henry Beason, the only survivor of the Bear Flag party, raised the Bear Flag.

STRANGLED BABE.

MYSTERY OF A LABEL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—The police are searching for the murderer of the infant whose dead body, wrapped in a newspaper, and with a cord firmly knotted around its little neck, was found in a vacant lot on Telegraph Hill, late yesterday afternoon. So far, the police have unearthed no clue, beyond that the newspaper in which the little body was wrapped bore a yellow label bearing the name and address of "Hon. J. K. Jones, Washington, Ark.," and immediately after it the words "The Bulletin." The newspaper was a copy of the Evening Times of Buffalo, dated August 19, 1903. The detectives have a theory that the mailing clerk of the paper was careless and that the slip bearing the name of Senator Jones was inadvertently pasted on the paper and that the paper came to this city among the exchanges of the Evening Bulletin of this city. It is the custom for the newspapers to dispose of their waste and extra papers through several channels, and it will be very difficult to trace the identity of the murderer or murderers through the means of the newspaper.

The detectives engaged in the case have no theories in any way connecting Senator Jones with the mystery.

YUBA RIVER.

PROPOSED IMPROVEMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—The California Débris Commission met today and adjusted the differences between the land owners and the dredging people. These differences concern the proposed improvement of the Yuba River at Daguere Point, twelve miles east of Marysville, for which the government and State have jointly appropriated $800,000.

After the government had agreed to purchase title to the land involved, it was discovered that part of the land was valuable for gold dredging. Later William P. Hammond, who is largely interested in the dredging enterprises around Oroville, and his associates secured options on the land. The contract for the building of the barriers was today awarded to Samuel Montgomery and the work of making the cut at Daguere Point to Edward Malley. In the performance of the latter contract Hammond agreed to construct, at his own expense, certain training walls, to cost about $5000, with the agreement that he will be permitted to carry on his gold-dredging business without interruption. The contractors expect to finish the work in three years.

RESTRICTIVE LAW.

TROUBLES FRUIT GROWERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A. M.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 9.—The fruit-growers of this county expect a lot of trouble may arise over the interpretation and enforcement of the bill passed by the last Legislature, the object of which was to prevent fraud in the branding of fruit, the requirement being that all picked fruit must bear a label showing where it was grown and packed. The packers claim that they cannot take fruit from different sections of this district, and make its labels. The Cured Fruit Association classed Hollister, for instance, as the Santa Clara Valley, and the point has arisen whether or not Hollister fruit must be branded as Hollister or Santa Clara.

DELAMAR SAVED.

FIRE MENACES COPPER CITY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P. M.]

REDDING, Sept. 9.—The people of Delamar fought throughout the day to save their homes from a forest fire, which sprang up about the smelter which reduces the ore of the Bully Hill mine, at a point twenty-six miles northeast of Redding. Although seven houses became ignited at different times, the flames were extinguished in all cases. Tonight the danger of Delamar's destruction seems to have passed, although the fire has leaped Squaw Creek, and fanned by a stiff north breeze is racing toward Copper City, a small settlement four miles south. Men are on guard at Delamar, and Copper City citizens have been warned of danger. They will resort to back firing.

The court held Booth guilty of mismanagement and negligence, and sentenced him to remain at the foot of the list of lieutenant-colonels during the rest of his active service—eleven years.

Gen. Funston, in reviewing the sentence, reduced the time to five years.

On receiving the blow, Hubbard drew his revolver and fired at his assailant. The bullet missed its mark, but struck Mrs. W. W. Kergan, wife of an Oakland physician, in the arm, inflicting a slight wound. The man who is supposed to have caused the trouble fled and his identity is unknown.

He said he would get into the fly wheel of the air compressor, which was running at the time. The engineer told him to go out, but the man waited until the engineer had returned to work when he made a sudden jump, landing in the fly wheel, which was revolving at the rate of 160 revolutions per minute. The man went around with the wheel twice before he was thrown out. His right leg and arm were both torn off, the left leg and arm both being broken and the back of his skull was crushed. He was a stranger about 35 years of age.

TUOLUMNE, Sept. 9.—The Coroner's inquest on the body of Walter J. Brown, killed in a pistol duel during the Labor Day celebration here Monday has adjourned until tomorrow. Some of the alleged mystery of the shooting was cleared up today. The theory of a third party in the tragedy was exploded when the Coroner's jury visited the scene and found that Brown could have received the fatal shot from Godat in the position the two men were standing. It was also found that Godat's pistol was taken to Sonora by a Deputy Sheriff.

METHODIST CONFERENCE UPHOLDS HAMMOND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P. M.]

MONTEREY, Sept. 9.—The fifty-first session of the California annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church opened this morning at Pacific Grove, Bishop Earle Cranston presiding. The following officers were elected: Secretary G. E. Irons; statistical secretary, H. J. Winsor; treasurer, Thomas Filben; postmaster, E. S. Robertson.

Immediately after organization the following resolution was introduced by C. K. Jenness:

"Whereas, the reputation of a Methodist pastor is his most valuable possession, and confidence in their judicious management the chief asset of our connectional interests; and, whereas, a metropolitan journal has recently published statements and intimations gravely reflecting upon the integrity of our ministry, the disinterestedness of our bishops and the wise management of our connectional enterprises, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that we condemn such attempt at trial by the press as contrary to our discipline, as destructive of the bonds of fellowship among Methodist preachers, and as wantonly detrimental to our church enterprises."

This resolution, which had reference to certain newspaper criticism of the management by Dr. J. D. Hammond, of the affairs of the San Francisco branch's Methodist Book Concern, and the Chinese district, caused a heated debate which lasted a greater part of the session. It was finally passed by a decisive vote.

A committee on completion of the University of the Pacific endowment fund, consisting of W. C. Evans, E. D. McClish, H. E. Milnes, A. C. Bayne, Thomas Filben, Dr. F. B. LOVE AND NOT MONEY MADE HER MARRY.

MRS. GAY MAKES VIGOROUS DENIALS IN SAN DIEGO SUIT.

Says She Never Called Her Wealthy Old Husband "Skinflint," "Miser" or "Fool," but Charges that He Denied Her Respectable Clothing.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 9.—The plaintiff's answer to the defendant's amendment to the cross-complaint in the divorce suit of Lucile V. Gay vs. John H. Gay, indicates the nature of some of the counter charges of Mr. Gay. It appears that Gay has charged Mrs. Gay with marrying him solely for his wealth, and of being in league with her father, P. M. Daniel of Los Angeles, to get money from Gay. These charges and insinuations she denies.

According to her story, Gay was the one who first sought an acquaintance, having introduced himself as a relative, and referred to himself as "cousin." The advances were invariably by Gay. She denies that she ever said: "Now that we are to be one, we can talk over financial matters." She declares that she never implored Gay to make her father a loan of $25,000 or any other sum. She admits that she loved Gay at the time of marriage, and denies that her marriage vows were not made in good faith. She declares that she did not know Gay had signed the note for Daniel until after the deed had been done. She denies that she ever said: "We'll find means to make it more costly for you than it would be if you let Daniel have the property indefinitely."

Mrs. Gay denies that her aged spouse let her have all the means she asked "so far as clothing and feminine finery are concerned." She denies that she was extravagant, either as to living or dress. She asserts that Gay refused to provide her suitable clothing, and that her father in Los Angeles came to her aid with money for clothing to keep her warm and respectable. She denies that she ever referred to him as "a miserable old skinflint," "selfish miser" or "miserable old fool." The trial is set for the 18th inst.

BOY ALMOST BURNS THE WHITTIER SCHOOL.

YOUNG DESPERADO STARTS A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Charles Waller Sets Blaze in Assembly Hall and Scholars Save the Building—Firebug Will Now go to the State Prison.

WHITTIER, Sept. 9.—Charles Waller, an eighteen-year-old desperado, made a deliberate attempt to burn down the State Reform School here today, and was almost successful.

Young Waller sneaked away behind the scenes on the stage of the Assembly Hall and started the blaze. It was not discovered for some time, when it had made considerable headway. A general alarm was then turned in, and the boys of the school turned to and fought the flames like Trojans, only their good work saving the building from destruction.

The Assembly Hall was thoroughly gutted, and all of the scenery and stage settings being destroyed, and the walls and furnishings being extensively damaged. The loss is estimated by the school officials at between $1000 and $1500.

At first it was thought that crossed wires started the fire, but an investigation by the officers fastened the crime of incendiarism conclusively on Waller.

Waller is one of the worst cases of young criminality that ever came to Whittier Reform School. He will doubtless now be sent to the State penitentiary. Waller was convicted of burglary in Glenn county, after having been in numerous scrapes less serious. To give him an opportunity to reform, the Judge there held his sentence open, and gave him an indefinite term at Whittier. During his very short residence at Whittier he has more than maintained his bad record, and has made trouble continuously. Recently he made a desperate attempt to murder four of the other boy prisoners, and was just restrained in time. Waller will now be sent back to Glenn county to take his sentence for burglary in the penitentiary.

BIG RAILROAD SWINDLE.

Arrests in San Bernardino of Santa Fe Employees Disclose Extensive "Straw Pay Roll."

The arrest of A. E. Eldridge at Needles, by Santa Fé special officers a few days since, proves to have been the beginning of an effort to break up one of the most extensive attempts to swindle unearthed in the history of railroading. Not that the amount involved was so great, for perhaps it is limited to $1500, but it is stated that at least twenty employés are implicated in the "straw pay roll," the conspiracy of which Eldridge was the head. Already there are five others lodged in jail at San Bernardino.

The pursuit of the guilty is being taken up vigorously by Sheriff Ralphs of San Bernardino county, and a large number of other warrants are still out, although many of the suspects took flight on the heard of Eldridge's arrest. The swindlers included a lieutenant named Buts, whose part it was to find employés willing to sign a voucher for a full month's pay, when less than that period of work had been performed, or for absolutely bogus employés. Others under arrest include Joseph Young, E. L. Marston and William Dorsairt.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes, no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

The following excerpts are from an editorial in the Zeitung, Frankfort, Germany, referring to the effects of the meat inspection laws which took effect April 1 and barred American pork.

"Pork prices are now 20 per cent. less than a year ago, and it is possible that as the summer advances there will be a further fall. How is it possible that in spite of the completed closing of the frontiers, in spite of the meat-inspection law, which renders importation difficult, prices have not risen? If the frontiers were opened today for the admission of foreign pork, the Agrarians would cry out that this importation was the cause of the low prices; but now we have the proof that this is not so. The abnormally high prices of the past two years have lessened the consumption, and some time will be required to again increase the consumption of pork by means of temptingly cheap prices.

"The same people who thought they were playing their greatest trump in the enactment of the meat-inspection law, believing that it would hinder importation from abroad and thus keep the price of hogs at a high level in Germany, now find themselves deprived of the anticipated fruits of their policy."

A perfect phonographic record of the exquisite song of the brown thrush was produced before the American Ornithologists' Union by Prof. S. D. Judd.

With equal success, Dr. Judd has been experimenting with other birds, and his achievements are attracting attention in the scientific world. The educational possibilities of the undertaking are generaly conceded. Nature-study in schools is just now receiving more attention than ever before in history, particularly along lines of direct economic interest. Now that many species of valuable birds are threatened with extermination it is regarded as especially important that the growing generation be made conversant with American bird life. Students taught from childhood the sounds of birds faithfully reproduced by graphophones in the schoolroom would be able instantly to recognize various species singing in the woods and fields. The exhibition of stuffed birds serves a valuable purpose in educational work; yet, however skillful the taxidermist, it is difficult for the student, familiar only with embalmed specimens, to identify them on the wing or even by calling to their mates.

The calls and cries of wild animals might also, with intelligent patience be secured for use in the schools.

That a body can acquire, during the night, a different temperature from that of the surrounding atmosphere has been demonstrated by Mr. Well, an English physicist. If a thermometer is taken from the window wrapped in cotton and placed on the ground its mercury will descend 7 or 8 deg. Vegetables similarly situated, and being bad conductors, may freeze at a time when the thermometer does not mark the freezing point—proof that the cold experienced by a plant may be entirely different from the temperature of the surrounding air. The low temperature of plants, however, only occurs when the night is clear, since at this time the plant loses its heat throughout space and becomes chilled, whereas if the night is cloudy the phenomenon does not occur. This gives rise to the popular opinion that plants and buds are hurt by moonlight.

When a singer is up before an audience he or she can tell whether the effect of the voice is pleasing or not by watching the countenances of the people," says Thomas A. Edison in Popular Mechanics. "When, however, he sings into a dead instrument like the phonograph, without the slightest recognition as to whether the voice is properly tuned and pitched, the singer becomes rather nervous. I know many very capable singers who can sing splendidly before an audience, but when it comes to getting their voice into the phonograph, they are lost. I have brought people of note out to the works, and paid them handsomely for their vocal efforts, only to find, when I came to reproduce these attempts on the phonograph that the records were utterly worthless."

There are three waters in the State of Indiana that actually impart magnetic powers to needles, knife blades and the like. One is at Carlos Springs, Hendricks county. It is derived from a well sunk at Lebanon, while the third is from a well driven at Fort Wayne. The waters contain large proportions of carbon dioxide gas, which is liberated upon exposure to the air. While the water retains this gas, it continues to impart magnetic properties to steel, but, as soon as the gas escapes a heavy precipitate forms on the bottom of the container, consisting of magnetic oxide of iron. Any considerable quantity of one of these waters will deflect the needle of a compass.

The University of Paris is to establish a Bureau of Scientific Educational Information for the use of foreigners, designed primarily for the benefit of foreign students. This bureau will place its services gratuitously to those foreign students of metallurgy, engineering or physical science. It will be extended to students recommended by the national legations in Paris, obtaining free access to hospitals, laboratories, museums, factories, statistical departments of the various institutions, professional libraries, etc. It is expected that the bureau will be in working order by October 1. It will make it much easier for a stranger to obtain the advantages the university and other educational institutions have to offer.

The latest test of speed on the Pennsylvania Railway proves conclusively that accounts of trains attaining a speed of 100 miles an hour even for a short distance, are apocryphal. Over a stretch of twenty-five miles of perfect track on the New Jersey and Sea Shore division the Pennsylvania officials put a train with their fastest engine and ninety miles an hour was the highest rate ever reached. One car after another was dropped, and finally, with the engine alone, on several trips, 93.1 miles was the best that could be done. The distance was accurately measured and the chronographs used in the tests was absolutely reliable.

The phonograph of Hospitilier and Rosa makes the oscillations of sound waves to be transmitted to a revolving mirror and exhibited as the reflection of a spot of light upon a screen, or recorded photographically upon a band of sensitized paper. This method of indicator diagrams of engines operating at speeds from several thousand revolutions per minute, and will go far to give information as to the actual behavior of events within the cylinders of the double motors and similar machines.

The Academy of Paris, in order to determine if the n-rays from artificial sources pass through opaque substances and increase the phosphorescence of bodies, were also present in the tests. There also present in the tests a tube of phosphorescent calcium sulphide of calcium—placed behind a panel or shutter, closed from the light, exposed to the sun, and then brought into the chamber dark. If now a plate of lead, or even the hand, be interposed between the shutter and the tube, the phosphorescence diminishes, and when the plate is withdrawn it increases.

A great many, perhaps the majority, of otherwise well-informed people, believe that they see the same with both eyes. That this is not the case, one can easily convince himself by the following simple experiment: Cover one of the eyes with a hand or a bandage, and let the experimenter attempt to snuff out a candle suddenly placed within a few feet of him. He will almost invariably miss the flame either overreaching, underreaching or putting the fingers too far to the right or left of the flame. With both eyes normal and open, the accommodation for distance and direction is instantaneous.

Ample evidence of the narrow margin of safety in the powerful automobiles is shown by the fact that in the Paris-Madrid race nearly all the big cars came to grief through failure of working parts. The heat softened the metal in the bearings, cylinder heads crooked, rods bent, giving evidence that the machinery was under-proportioned and overworked. It is more than probable that this disastrous race will prove useful in showing that the limits of safety, either in construction or operation, cannot be exceeded with impunity.

The effect of the use of pure and adulterated tobacco will be the study taken up by Dr. Wiley of the Agricultural Department after having concluded experiments in the effects of adulterated foods, he is now conducting. It is his intention to take men who are regular smokers and to ascertain their physical condition as to heart action, breathing, and digestion, while continuing the use of tobacco under normal conditions, and then to have them suddenly cease the use of tobacco entirely.

It is asserted in the Department of Agriculture that cassava will make the Southern States a great stock-raising country. Slabsided cows from the pine forests which were fed on cassava more than doubled their weight in seventy-five days. The cost of the live weight produced was one cent a pound and the profit made in fattening beef 59 per cent. Hogs did equally well.

Since the time of its discovery, Borelly's comet has rapidly increased in greatness and is now easily visible as a star of the fourth magnitude. It can be seen by the naked eye as a hazy patch of light one or two degrees southwest of the bright star Alpha Cygni.

The ice in Greenland is melting, more rapidly than it is formed. Comparison of the descriptions of the Jacobshaven glacier shows that its edge has receded eight miles since 1850 and it has lost twenty to thirty feet in depth.

The Russian Suicide Cult.

A new suicide cult has made its appearance in Russia, and advices have been received that it is quite popular in St. Petersburg.

As in the case of the strange sect whose fanatical doings came to light a year or two since, these peasants consider it a duty to take their own lives under certain conditions. There are branches numbering several hundred flourishing in the neighborhood of Kieff and Odessa, and since they make their rites more or less secret, for fear of interruption, it is believed that there may be hundreds more belonging to the sect in various other parts of the country.

Discovery of their existence was made by the police of Kieff, who had suspected an anarchist meeting in a certain out-of-the-way locality, and determined to raid the old farmhouse where the supposed conspirators were assembled.

On breaking into the cellar, they found, not a band of furtive "reds," printing secret manifestos or filling bombs, but a gathering of wild-eyed men and women, chanting a strange invocation to some weird deity of the nether world.

From one of the men who was arrested on suspicion it was learned that the sect had been formed during the last ten years, and that it already claimed scores of devotees in that immediate neighborhood, and had many more in various rural sections of the empire.

The principal tenet of the gruesome creed was that a person owed it as a duty to society to kill himself when he reached the age of thirty. By a curious perversion of certain theories of political economy, they have reached the conclusion that any man living beyond thirty does so at the expense of his fellows.

It was accordingly agreed that every member of the organization should take a solemn pledge binding himself or herself to commit suicide in due form at the allotted time.

The method of suicide is the same as that adopted by the sect of fanatics in northern Russia. The victim is conducted to a vault, and there, in the presence of witnesses, consents to be walled alive and left to die of hunger and suffocation.

Many cases of this shocking self-immoiation had occurred among the branch of the sect discovered by the police. Some of those who had assisted in laying up the stones and cementing the wall that shut in their fellows told of the proceedings without a trace of compunction or horror at the act. The government is taking measures to stamp out the cruel superstition, and professed adherents of the suicide cult are treated as lunatics and put under surveillance.—[Washington Times.

Edward and Archbishop Walsh.

Great is the sensation which has been created, not only in Ireland, but likewise throughout the United Kingdom, by the action of King Edward when at Dublin the other day, in granting precedence to the Roman Catholic archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Walsh, over the Protestant archbishop of Armagh, who is the Anglican primate of Ireland, at the levee held at Dublin Castle. In fact, to Archbishop Walsh was accorded the "par" immediately after the white-haired lord high chancellor of Ireland, before any of the other great dignitaries and nobles present at this ceremony.

In paying this compliment to Archbishop Walsh, King Edward took the ground that whereas Dr. Alexander has been Anglican archbishop of Armagh and Protestant primate of Ireland since 1896, Dr. Walsh has been archbishop of Dublin for close upon twenty years. It was the first time that a Roman Catholic archbishop of Dublin, or, for the matter of that, a Roman Catholic dignitary of any kind or description, had ever crossed the threshold of Dublin Castle, where for so many hundred years "popery" ranked as treason to the crown. Indeed, to this day Roman Catholics are barred by statute from filling the office of one of the lord justices, who are intrusted with the powers of viceroy whenever the latter has occasion to leave the island.

Of course, the ultra Protestant element of King Edward's subjects of England are loud in their denunciation of this concession on the part of the sovereign to the church of Rome. But it meets with the approval of all broad-minded people, who argue with right that inasmuch as there is no longer any state church in Ireland, the Anglican church of the Emerald Isle having been disestablished more than thirty years ago by Mr. Gladstone, and since more than three-quarters of the population of Ireland are Roman Catholics, it was only just that the monarch should give precedence to Dr. Walsh as an archbishop of considerably older standing than the Protestant archbishop of Armagh.—[Marquise de Fontenoy in the New York Tribune.

The Mothers' Union Rebels.

The Emporia Mothers' Union met Saturday and transacted some important business. It was decided that hereafter a radical change will be made in entertaining girls visiting Emporia. Heretofore mothers have had to do washing and ironing not only for their own girls, but for visiting girls, and visiting girls often bring highly-ruffled petticoats which require more attention than the petticoats of the home girls. The mothers' union decided that anything more than two gauze skirts a week and a pair of black stockings a week will be sent to the laundry and the bill stuck in the mirror of the visiting girl's room every morning till it is paid.

The mothers also decided that it will be considered proper for visiting girls to "do the dishes." Heretofore, because a home girl has company, she has considered it proper to get up and entertain her company after meals, but the mothers' union demands that the fiction that the dishes will wash themselves be abandoned. In the matter of cooking for picnics the mothers' union made this rule: All chickens bought for lunches shall be charged to the visiting girl, and if she has any new ways of making potato salad she shall put on an apron and make it herself instead of giving the mother the recipe.

There was a long debate at the meeting yesterday over the matter of parties. Many mothers held that if they gave a party for the visiting girl it would enable their daughters to get into a little better social set than otherwise, as often the visiting girl had other friends in town who were the real thing. But the majority of the mothers held that the union should stand only for informal parties, where the invitations are sent by telephone and the refreshments consist of ice cream, lemonade and cake, served on the porch. It was decided by a unanimous vote to make rich cousins either pay board or bring presents for all the family. Fans don't go.—[Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

Duke's Wonderful Array.

Miss Elsie Whelen and Miss Gladys Brooks, who have established the record of not having appeared twice in the same attire this season, must look to their laurels. They have a rival in the Duke of Roxburgh, Mrs. Ogden Goelet's guest. His flannels seem inexhaustible and are of many tints, from a heavy blue with white braid on the trouser leg to a pale mauve. The Duke, who is a manly chap, can wear these dainty colors without seeming effeminate. The dinner jacket he wore one night at an informal dinner of men was covered thickly with black silk braid. So were the trousers. In evening clothes the Duke is imposing, with a scarlet ribbon about his neck, from which a few jeweled orders are suspended. He has an expression not dissimilar to that of King Edward, and whoever tells the Duke of this resemblance is forever a friend of Roxburghe. To attend to the contents of the thirty ducal trunks, there had been four men servants, but Mrs. Goelet has added six more in order that Roxburghe might want for nothing.

A good deal of interest hinges on his prospective engagement to Miss May Goelet. The latest gossip is that when Mrs. Goelet was questioned whether her daughter was engaged, she replied: "We shall see." The manner in which the Goelets have "rushed" the Duke is significant. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Goelet's aunt, evidently favors the British suitor and does not chance to trot him about in New York restaurants.—[New York Press.

OFFICERS AND THEIR DUTY.

The Los Angeles Police Commission, after due deliberation in a case wherein an officer was charged with using undue force or violence in ejecting a certain person from a disreputable district of the city, adopted a resolution instructing the Chief of Police to reprimand the officer for using unnecessary violence upon the occasion in question. "The Chief is further instructed," continues the resolution, "to notify all officers of the department that in making arrests no unnecessary force is to be used, and that in dealing with citizens in general no abuse or use of undue violence on the part of officers will be tolerated by this board."

Honestly and sensibly construed, this instruction is all right. But there is large latitude for differences of opinion, and very radical differences of opinion, as to what constitutes unnecessary force on the part of an officer in making an arrest. In the nature of the case, the officer must be permitted to use his own judgment and discretion, to some extent, in such matters. It may be further stated, as an abstract proposition, that in the absence of evidence to the contrary which is absolutely convincing, an officer should be sustained by his superiors in the use of such measures as he deems necessary to employ in making an arrest. There are always circumstances and conditions which cannot be fully understood save by the officer upon whom rests the duty of making the arrest, and these should be fully taken into account by those upon whose moral support the efficiency of the officer largely depends. If the officer be competent, his superiors should trust and support him until he has been shown to be unworthy of their support and confidence. If he is not competent, he should be dismissed from the force.

There is nothing more destructive of proper discipline, and nothing more directly encouraging to crime, than the withholding from arresting officers of the moral support which they should have from their superiors and from the public in the performance of duty. It is this support which clothes the officer with the authority which makes his presence and his acts respected. Without such support, he is simply an individual in uniform, for whom the criminal element feels little respect or fear. If an officer be made to feel that he is likely to receive a reprimand for doing what he conceives to be his duty, an element of indecision is forced upon him which is almost surely fatal to his higher efficiency as an officer of the law.

All this is not saying that an officer who exceeds his authority, or employs undue force in the discharge of his duty, should not be reprimanded. Whenever it has been made clear that an officer has been thus culpable, he should of course be properly reproved, and it should not require many repetitions of the offense to secure his dismissal. But the case against him should be made so clear as to leave no possible doubt as to his culpability. If there be doubt, the accused officer should be given the benefit of it. Less grace is not accorded to a common criminal. Particularly culpable are his superiors if they be misled into giving the officer an undeserved reprimand at the behest of some sycophantic politician or clique that may desire to curry favor with the criminally inclined or with those who affiliate with that element.

Censure of an officer for the performance of his oftentimes difficult, hazardous and far from pleasant duties, is a club which should be used with extreme caution by those in whose hands it is placed for purposes of proper and wholesome discipline. The improper use of this implement of discipline is as much an offense against discipline as is the abuse of authority by an arresting officer. Much of the rioting and general lawlessness which have disgraced and injured so many of our larger cities may be traced directly to the fact that Mayors, Police Commissioners, police judges, and other officers intrusted with the enforcement of the law are sycophants and demagogues, secretly in sympathy with or subservient to the disorderly elements of the community, and therefore not ready and willing to back up arresting officers in the performance of duty, nor to do their own duty as required by their oaths of office.

The only way to suppress lawlessness is to suppress it sternly, uncompromisingly, and with absolute impartiality as between lawbreakers. In order to do this, every subordinate officer must be made to feel that he has back of him not only the majesty of the law but the support of his superiors, from the lowest to the highest, so long as he is diligent and conscientious in the performance of duty.

A DISGRACEFUL SPECTACLE.

The spectacle of Sam Parks, the convict, parading at the head of the union laborites of New York City on Monday last was one to make the angels weep. No further evidence is needed to convince the thinking multitude that the management of the labor unions has been given over completely into the hands of the disreputables in those orders. While the unions are filled with good and true men and good citizens, there is, and always has been, in them an element that stands for mischief, disturbance and insurrection, and it is the scum that has risen to the surface all over the country. We have some lurid examples thereof right here in Los Angeles. If the better element in the trades unions were to take the management thereof into their hands instead of permitting the Sam Parkses, the Lem Biddies and the Jim Grays to run things the strife now existent from Maine to California would be eliminated and the bad odor in which the unions now find themselves would be dissipated. No man, nor set of men, can be respected who do not respect themselves. When men are willing to parade through the streets behind a measly miscreant and jailbird like Sam Parks they ought not to find fault if people conclude that they are all birds of a feather.

THE OXYHYDROGEN LIGHT.

At the eleventh annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Gas Association, held recently at San Francisco, an interesting paper was read by G. A. Bobrick of this city on the subject of liquid air, its manufacture, distillation into commercial oxygen and nitrogen, and the application of oxygen in the industries, especially for use in connection with illuminating gas. After describing with considerable detail the processes for the manufacture of liquid air, Mr. Bobrick stated that by one process it is now possible to produce liquid air at less than one cent per gallon, and that commercial oxygen (by which is meant a gas containing from 60 to 80 per cent. of oxygen) can be produced from the liquid air at a cost of less than 25 cents per 1000 cubic feet. Heretofore the cost of this product has been over $30 per 1000 feet. As to the cost of the oxyhydrogen light, compared to the arc lamp, Mr. Bobrick made the following statements:

"Eight cubic feet of an average quality of illuminating gas, if burned in about 6 feet of commercial oxygen, will produce a light equal to that given by an electric arc consuming nearly one kilowatt per hour, and giving a light of over 2000 candles. At present, illuminating gas retails in the larger California cities at $1 per 1000 cubic feet, but not knowing the cost of producing this gas I will assume, for the purpose of this paper, that the manufacturer's cost is say 50 cents per 1000 cubic feet, and the cost of commercial oxygen 25 cents per 1000 cubic feet:

	Cents.
8 cubic ft. of gas at 50c per 1000.....	.40

"This is but a little over one-half cent per hour for a light of over 2000-candle power. The city of Los Angeles, for sake of illustration, and with which situation I am familiar, pays for about 1100 electric arc lamps (which are supposed to be of 2000-candle power each, but which are in reality only about 1000-candle power, and at times less,) at the rate of $81 per lamp per annum for about 3500 hours' use, or at the rate of about 2.3 cents per lamp per hour. It will, therefore be readily seen that the oxyhydrogen light can more than successfully compete with the arc lamp, not only for general illuminating and the lighting of halls, theaters, churches, stores, etc., where a much higher price is usually obtainable, but also for street lighting, and oxyhydrogen gas consuming appliances can also be successfully and economically used for general domestic and manufacturing purposes."

All this is extremely interesting and "important if true." But, as the adage goes, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Mr. Bobrick's claims —or predictions—remain to be verified in actual practice. If, as he states, the oxyhydrogen light can be produced at a lower cost than the arc light, it is only a question of time till it will come into general use for the services to which it is best adapted. We live in an age of progress, and he would be rash who would say that the electric system of artificial illumination is the finality of attainment in this field of research and invention.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

Physical culture, in its manifold forms, has been vying hard, as a popular fad, with the consumption of cereal foods. Both are good things, and a big improvement over patent medicines, but even a good thing may be overdone. Greatly exaggerated claims are made for cereal foods, and for methods of physical culture having some special secret and highly valuable form, of which so many men advertise to have an exclusive ownership. It is not by any means necessary to pay a man $30 to send typewritten duplicates of instructions how to move your arms, how to exercise your limbs. A regular deep breathing every day, a little tension of the muscles, which may be done as you walk or move around, and a little healthy exercise, such as gardening, wood chopping, or walking up and down hill, together with persistence in assuming a correct carriage—keeping the stomach in and the shoulders down—will do as much for you—and perhaps more than any high-priced physical culturist who advertises in the expensive magazines "How a paralytic may overcome a Samson," "How to be beautiful though ugly," "How to be happy though married," and so forth.

The women folk are not overlooked by these advertisers and other teachers of physical culture. One can scarcely pick up a paper nowadays without seeing pictures of more or less beautiful females, in all kinds of extraordinary attitudes, that would certainly scare a sensitive horse into a runaway. However, as already stated, physical culture is a sensible and wholesome fad, and it should by no means be discouraged. In carrying out such a system, however, let the master of the house not forget the wood pile and the lawn mower, and the mistress the washboard. All of these are good healthy exercises—and useful, withal.

EASTERN HOMESEEKERS.

A short time ago, in an editorial, The Times admitted that Southern California could not successfully compete with the central and northern parts of the State in offering to homeseekers low-priced lands for general farming. A correspondent, who has been engaged in colonization work for the Santa Fé railroad, wrote from Tropico, calling attention to the fact that there is a large amount of land between Los Angeles and the ocean suitable for subdivision into small tracts, where corn, alfalfa, hogs, poultry and dairy products could be raised. The following communication on the subject has been received from George H. McDonaugh, colonization agent of the Union Pacific Railway Company at Omaha. The reference made by this correspondent to "the impression that the Union Pacific is discriminating in California" is obscure, and is not understood by The Times:

"While in Los Angeles recently (my home,) my attention was called to an article in your editorial columns on the subject of the lands in the artesian belt between Los Angeles and the ocean, which had been bought by one of your correspondents at Tropico.

"I had intended to call upon you before leaving Los Angeles, but was so busy that I did not have time, as I wish, through you, to disabuse the minds of your correspondents and your readers of any idea they had formed that the colonization was a scheme of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific against Southern California in favor of Central California. I also wish to impress upon your mind that a class of farmers that are leaving the middle and middle western States for California would not hesitate to pay from three to five times as much for lands between Los Angeles and the ocean (as spoken of in your editorial) as against lands in Central California, where many of them have been located.

"In this connection I wish to say that on a recent visit to a locality in Kansas where that solid colonist train was made up, the bankers and merchants said to me 'you not only took the best of the farmers to California, but they withdrew their thousands from our local banks and took it with them to California.' When you take into consideration that the farmers who are looking toward California for homes are able to dispose of their eastern holdings at from $75 to $150 an acre, they would not hesitate to pay from $100 to $200 an acre for lands for general farming with water such as can be secured, either by artesian wells or by pumping, anywhere between Los Angeles and the ocean.

"Hoping you will excuse me for taking up your time and space and through your paper correct the misimpression that may have been formed that the Union Pacific is discriminating in California, I remain," etc.

It begins to look as if the rock pile and hobo stockade were about to become realities in our midst. Those improvements have long been clamored for by this tramp-bedeviled people and aren't coming a moment too soon. We have ample rock in this vicinity for Weary William and his pals to work on for many long years to come; and in addition thereto many, in fact most, of our streets need an overcoating of broken stone. It is to be hoped that Willie will come soon, now that we are fully prepared to entertain him and his brethren. There is no better climate on earth in which to hammer rock than this. The days are sunny and the nights are cool and refreshing. We have every confidence that the new manufacturing enterprise will be a howling success.

VETERAN SOLDIER'S SONG.

We are marching, comrades, marching,
Yes, slowly marching on,
In the daytime and the nighttime,
From eventide till dawn,
O'er the border wastes of timeland,
Single file, without our arms,
To the happy vales of dreamland,
Whence every prospect charms!

We are marching, we are marching,
But not, as once of yore,
To the sounds of fife or trumpet,
Midst cannon's awful roar,
In columns and serried columns,
Prepared to meet the foe
On the fated fields, for conflict,
In the years of—long ago.

We lost full many a comrade,
Who died upon the field,
Whose every drop of life-blood
The doom of slavery sealed.
We bore the brunt of battles,
And lived to see this day,
When our nation, reunited,
Leads all the world the way.

We are marching, we are maching,
Yes, slowly marching still,
To the happy vales of dreamland
As it pleases Heaven to will.
Wounds, sickness and infirmity
To many a one brought pain;
But we glory in this recompense—
We have not lived in vain!

LOVES THE SONGSTERS.

HOW ANDREW M'NALLY IS TRYING TO FILL SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WITH SONG BIRDS.

[Chicago Tribune.]

ALL his life Andrew McNally, known to nearly all of Chicago, has loved birds and flowers, the former, perhaps, a little more. When, fourteen or more years ago, Mr. McNally took unto himself a winter residence in California, the land of flowers, he determined to do all that might be done in the way of introducing into this pleasant region birds of sweet song and gay plumage not indigenous to the country.

Hundreds of such birds have since then been set free to begin a natural life in the new country, and with but few exceptions these experiments have met with success. Now birds of many kinds and varieties are reared and set free every season. Mr. McNally's plan of accomplishing his cherished project is at once simple and unique.

ALWAYS A BIRD LOVER.

"I have always loved birds," he says, speaking of this project, "and I have always had them in my home, in Chicago and elsewhere. When I took to spending four months of every year in California—I have a wife, three daughters and thirteen grandchildren, who all share with me the bird passion and enthusiasm—I began to wonder why, in a climate nearly ideal, all manner of beautiful and sweet singing birds might not live freely the year around, unmolested and unharmed. After a little further thinking I decided to make the experiment at least. And for fourteen years it has proved pleasant and successful. Every year I manage to pick up something new in experiment with, and every season we set free new birds."

Many visitors to Altadena suburb in which the feathered songsters find a home until the time comes for allowing them fullest freedom, seek out the "McNally place" place with the special object of inspecting the outdoor cages in which the rearing and sheltering goes on. Humming birds, mocking birds, orioles and many handsome and tuneful throated winged creatures are natural to California, but Mr. McNally early noticed that canaries, linnets, larks and other small birds of song were lacking. So he began operations filling his outdoor cages with these birds.

English goldfinches, Japanese robins, Java sparrows, and a number of other and similiar birds have been placed in the cages from time to time, and carefully watched, fed and tended. At the end of the mating season, so soon as the young birds are old enough and strong enough to run no risk of injury or starvation, by being separated from their parents, the cage doors are opened and some of the birds let loose.

MAKE STRAIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

And the ringing cry of joy with which each happy little mite of life and song and feathers makes straight for freedom and the farthest blue is seldom varied, according to Mr. McNally. Born and bred in captivity, knowing nothing of freedom by actual experience, each and every bird exhibits this same wild longing to be free.

Nor is this so because of cramped or stinted quarters. The main outdoor cage, the first erected, is an octagon with fourteen feet of room for every side. It is fifteen feet high, moreover, so that the birds may have full use of wings as well as throats. The two wings now built at each end are but little smaller. And all are stocked, continually, with happy birds. There are many specimens of certain varieties, but single or double pairs, perhaps, of others. But all are there for the purpose of rearing other birds for ultimate freedom and of being themselves sooner or later set free.

Few accidents mar the progress and pleasure of this delightful experiment. Some birds, doubtless, are destroyed by larger birds, but these are comparatively few in number; the freed birds, for the most part, are known to live on happily.

Some of them linger about the cages for a few hours or days after leaving behind their pleasant prison, some come back later to visit the friends and comrades still shut behind the gleaming bars. A few have actually been known to desire readmission to the cages, and have been granted this privilege in every case. But, in the main, the bird for whom the prison doors are opened is off like a shaft of loosened sunshine, and most of the little creatures fail to return at all.

"They are so glad to get free, doubtless, in spite of the fact that I believe they are quite happy here," says the man who rears and loves them, "that in the enthusiasm of flying they get too far away for return before they stop to think of their whereabouts. A few remain with or near us, but most, I think, are scattered far and wide. And this is as it should be. The country is so vast and the birds I can set free so few compared with the area over which I wish them to scatter that the farther they travel the better. There is no reason why such birds as I set free should not thrive and flourish and multiply unendingly in California, and it is for that I work and plan.

"I hope that long after I have passed to other regions the birds I am now trying to introduce into Southern California—or their descendants—will be flying and singing about there. And to have added a little touch of joy and beauty to the land of one's living, this is worth a little effort, to be sure."

REGION FAVORS ALL BIRDS.

And it is easy effort, easy and enjoyable so says Mr. McNally, who buys birds the world over, and has otherwise secured them from many climes. The climate of Southern California is of such a character that almost any kind of bird may thrive there; even the brilliant-feathered children of the tropics do well after a few generations, and few years of more moderate sunshine and milder breezes than those originally experienced and known. Birds from less-favored regions are at once fairly song riotous with the joy of life. Good food and water, slight, comfortable shelter, a little watching and tending, especially at the time of the young birds and the first flights—these are the simple requisites for success in bird acclimatization in the opinion of the man whose success has been so marked and unvarying; these and the close and near proximity of trees, shrubs and flowers. The birds of the McNally rearing cages, especially the canaries, the English songsters, and those originally hailing from fervid climates delight in the fifteen McNally acres given over to flowers and verdure, in the long and ample rows of waving blossoms, the great, luxurious rose trees, and gigantic flowering bushes; the beds and parterres and borders of many-toned vivid bloom. Next to the birds, Mr. McNally loves the flowers that help to make and keep them happy; birds and flowers together—with much of love to render the whole quite perfect—he believes to constitute a combination and condition most favorable to human happiness as well.

It is a combination, a condition he successfully endeavors to attain, both here in Chicago and in the California home, occupied only during the winter season. It is a combination a condition, he enjoys a little better and more thoroughly in California than in Chicago, because there the birds may be ultimately set free without danger of injury or death by storms or inclement weather.

And surely if he who leaves the world a little more beautiful than he found it does his fellow-humans a service—as surely as eyes and reason, can doubt or question—the name of Andrew McNally should be loved and cherished in Southern California for all time.

Battle With Ants.

The most desperate conflict that ever occurred between a Phoenix citizen and a colony of red ants is about to be realized. The industry and perseverance of the red ant are proverbial, and his efforts are often directed against the most obstinate enterprises, yet are generally crowned with success. It has been frequently hinted that if the red ants in this valley had been men and the women had been red ants, the Tonto dam would have been built years ago.

This particular colony of red ants decided that it wanted to do business on a lively thoroughfare, so it selected one of the principal streets of the city and settled under a cement sidewalk. When the summer season came along better ventilation was desired, so without loss of time the whole colony set to work, and in a few days had a hole bored up through the sidewalk, the ant engineers having chosen a thin place between the cement blocks.

Then came the man's turn, for a red ant hill is not a pleasing sight nor a matter of utility on a cement sidewalk. The man thought there must have been a break in the walk, else the ants would not have been able to get through. So he got some putty and stopped up the hole. It took the ants just twenty-four hours to carry away the putty. Fearful that they had got next to him and went to work on the putty before it got dry, he decided to get something with quicker action, so he secured a quantity of cement and again stopped the hole. This held them two or three days, but they gnawed through again about the time he began to call the attention of his friends to his supposed victory. He next tried plaster of Paris, and after that solder, but with similar results in both cases.

Then he resorted to the primitive method of drowning them out. He knew that nobody else ever successfully drowned out an ant hill, but thought it was because of the scarcity of water in this valley. He could surely drown the insects if he used water enough, for the water cure fixes even a Filipino. As he had plenty of time on his hands he spent the next few days carrying water and running it through a funnel into the hole. Finally the insects began to subside and he thought he was making progress, when he made the discovery that the cellar under the house was full of water. He then stopped pouring water for a while to let the cellar dry. When the water in the cellar began to go down the ants would begin to come out again. After a few days spent in experiment he found that by counting the ants on the sidewalk he could tell just how much water was in the cellar. Then he gave up the water cure. He is still sure that it would be a success if he used water enough, but the contract to keep the cellar full of water all summer with a tin bucket and a funnel began to look formidable.

Finally a new idea struck him. He got a pound of wire nails and a hammer and drove the ant hole full of nails. At this date he has the ants pacified, all the same Filipino, but he can hear them gritting their teeth on the lower side of the pavement, and he knows they are ripping up something designed for his mental prostration.—[Arizona Republican.

Workmen to be Consuelo's Guests.

All the workmen who have been employed on the Duke of Marlborough's fine new mansion in Mayfair have received notice that the Duke and Duchess are to invite them to spend a day at the Marlborough country place in Oxfordshire.

In order that every man who has set a brick or handled a trowel for her should be included, the Duchess took the precaution that each workman's name and address should be recorded when he first entered her employment. The Duchess has instructed the builders not to take the days' wages from the men's pay. The men will go one day and their wives and families the next. It is estimated at least 1000 persons will thus share in the Marlborough hospitality. It is the first time in the history of the building trade in London, and so far as is known, in the United Kingdom, that such an invitation has been given.—[Kansas City Star.

EVENTS IN SOCI

Senator and Mrs. Shelby were the guests of honor at [illegible] given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Parker at their home on Eighth street.

The other guests were Miss Miss Ridgely and Miss Eleanor Burden of Lexington, Mo.

Senator Cullom and his party arrived in his private car in Los Angeles on Tuesday en route to San Diego, where he will visit his sister, Mrs. Albert Parker, who is the wife of Mr. C. C. Parker of this city. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Parker and the party here and have gone to San Diego, where there will be a reunion of the family.

The luncheon was a simple affair, the table being daintily decorated with white carnations and maidenhair ferns.

Wedding Announcement.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Mary Fallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tilghman Fallis, of Bellevue avenue, and Charles Edgar Hixon.

The marriage will be solemnized in the First Methodist Church on September 22, at 8:30 o'clock, the pastor of the church, Rev. Robert McIntyre, officiating.

Miss Nannie Fallis, a sister of the bride, will act as maid of honor, and Don Fallis, her brother, will perform the office of best man. The bridesmaids are to be Miss Josephine Curry and Miss Miller. Dr. Earl B. Sweet, Will Hancock and [illegible] Brown are to be the ushers.

Miss Fallis is a graceful, charming girl and has many friends here. For she has lived most of her life, is a graduate of the Los Angeles High School, and also of the Normal. She has been teaching until recently in Whittier, Cal.

The prospective bridegroom is well known in this city, being one of the book department in the [illegible] book store.

The young couple will be at home to their friends after October 1, on Wednesday afternoons, at 1448 Alvarado street.

Kitchen Shower.

Miss Annette Oliver of 343 Bunker Hill avenue, has selected one of the most useful of all showers as the keynote of an entertainment which she gives this afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Fallis, whose wedding is announced above.

All the little kitchen conveniences so dear to a woman's heart will be carefully wrapped and placed upon the table, and as carefully unwrapped by the fair hands of the future bride. A unique little game will be played, called "A Floral Love Story," in which a little red heart-shaped cards will be inscribed the various lines of the love story.

A dainty souvenir to be presented to Miss Fallis is a "Wish Bone," white, hand-painted in red roses, the work of the hostess. Within the bone each guest who has contributed to the shower of useful gifts will place her heartfelt wish for the bride's future.

The prevailing colors of red and white will be carried out in the decorations, strings of red hearts being festooned from the chandelier to the four corners of the gift table.

English Wedding.

Following the English custom of the bridegroom's family, the wedding of [illegible] Wortman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Worthington of 1113 Bargahan street, and Edward L. Graham, was celebrated at noon on Tuesday, Rev. J. H. Stewart performing the ceremony.

The bride's gown was an exquisite creation of pearl brocade and white chiffon with a magnificent brooch of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, as the only ornament.

Miss Ethel Graham played the wedding march from "Lohengrin," and the young couple left immediately after the wedding for the north. Miss Blanche Warren of Redlands being the fortunate one to catch the bride's bouquet as she tossed it out of the carriage.

Mr. Graham is the younger member of the firm of Graham Bros., of the Washington Iron Foundry, and son of the late H. L. Graham. A number of relatives attended from Redlands.

Luncheon and Photography.

Miss Alice Parrish charmingly entertained a coterie of friends recently at her home on West Twelfth street, in honor of Miss [illegible] Avalon. An elaborate luncheon was served in the dining-room, which had been pictorially treated in miniature and pink roses. After several musical selections had been rendered, Miss Parrish, who is an adept in photography, conducted her guests to her studio and made several excellent photographs of them. Among those present were Misses Ruth Royce, Katherine Robe, Mamie Lee, Fay Killips and Maude Lee.

The members of the Southern California Alumni Association of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity met at Levy's Wednesday, and after doing justice to the good things set before them, elected the following officers for the coming year:

President, James Neill; vice-president, Paul Burks, William McIntosh, Tom Hastings; treasurer, Dr. Geo. Kress; corresponding secretary, [illegible] Bibbet.

A large number of the members of the society were present, and it is the intention to continue the monthly dinners, as heretofore. At the close of the dinner, James Neill, a member of the University of Georgia Chapter, introduced the Burbank as the guests of the association to be his guests to witness the performance of "Shenandoah."

Bunker Hill Luncheon.

Miss Bertha Oliver of Bunker Hill avenue, entertained on Tuesday with a luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Florence Crow Mull of Columbus, O. Brilliant red flowers and crimson ribbons in a vivid color scheme, and the daintily planned place cards were decorated with views from Lake Tahoe, where the Misses Oliver have whiled away the summer's vacation.

Wedding Announcement.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Mary Fallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tilghman Fallis, of 625 Bellevue avenue, and Charles Robert Bizzen.

The marriage will be solemnized at the First Methodist Church on September 22, at 8:30 o'clock, the pastor of the church, Rev. Robert McIntyre, officiating.

Miss Nannie Fallis, a sister of the bride, will act as maid of honor, and Don Fallis, her brother, will serve as best man. The bridesmaids are: Miss Josephine Curry and Miss Edith Miller. Dr. Earl B. Sweet, Ralph Miller, Will Hancock and Robert Brown are to be the ushers.

The prospective bridegroom is also well known in this city, being head of the book department in Fowler's book store.

The young couple will be at home to their friends after October 20, on Wednesday afternoons, at 1448 Albany street.

Kitchen Shower.

Miss Annette Oliver of 345 South Bunker Hill avenue, has selected the most useful of all showers as the keynote of an entertainment which she gives this afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Fallis, whose wedding is announced above.

All the little kitchen conveniences so dear to a woman's heart will be carefully wrapped and placed upon a table, to be as carefully unwrapped by the fair hands of the future bride. A unique little game will be played called "A Floral Love Story," with little red heart-shaped cards upon which are inscribed the various lines of the love story.

A dainty souvenir to be presented to Miss Fallis is a "Wish Book" of white, hand-painted in red roses, the work of the hostess. Within the book each guest who has contributed to the shower of useful gifts writes her own heartfelt wish for the bride's future.

The prevailing colors of red and white will be carried out in the decorations, strings of red hearts being festooned from the chandelier to the four corners of the gift table.

—o—

English Wedding.

Following the English custom of the bridegroom's family, the wedding of [illegible] daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Worsting, of [illegible] Graham street, and Edward [illegible] Graham, was celebrated at noon on Tuesday, Rev. J. H. Stewart performing the ceremony.

The bride's gown was an exquisite creation of pearl brocade and white chiffon with a magnificent brooch of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, as her only ornament.

Miss Ethel Graham played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The young couple left immediately after the wedding for the north. Miss Blanche Warren of Redlands being the fortunate one to catch the bride's bouquet as she tossed it out of the carriage.

Personals and Personals.

Dr. Emily J. Valentine, president of the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Arts, has returned from her summer vacation, part of which was spent in the mountains and the remainder at Santa Barbara and Long Beach.

Pasadena gossip says that George Marshall and his wife and daughter Ethel, the latter's tutor, Miss Potter, have been for several weeks at the Alexandria Hotel, New York City. Last week Miss Mitchell and Miss Potter went over to Boston to meet Miss Amy Beardt of Los Angeles, who has gone there to resume her studies at the New England Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Mitchell expects to return to Los Angeles next week and Miss Mitchell will go to Washington, D. C., where she will enter the National Park Seminary.

Among the passengers for the east on the Santa Fé overland Wednesday night were three prominent college men of this city: W. Bemis Phelps, B. S., '03, Los Angeles, Cal., Francis Shaver, M. S., '03, San Jacinto; Gaston Bastanchury, B. S. '03, Fullerton; all being of last year's class of St. Vincents College. Bemis Phelps was captain of last year's football team, while Bastanchury held center field in the championship baseball team. Shaver was interested in the literary work of the college. All three young men are bound for Golden Gate, Col., where they will enter the Colorado School of Mines.

MISSIONARY FOR TURKS.

Miss Nina Rice, Graduate of Pomona College, Will Take up Work at Sivas, Western Turkey.

Within a few days Los Angeles, which is becoming quite a missionary center, will send out one of its pretty young women to help spread the gospel in foreign lands. This young lady is Miss Nina Rice, a graduate of the class of 1903 at Pomona College; and her work will be located in Western Turkey. Miss Rice goes to take a position in the Girl's School, conducted by the Congregationalists at Sivas, and will be under the direction of the American Board of Foreign Missions. She will start on her long journey within the next ten days, and will be accompanied most of the way by a missionary and his wife who are traveling to some other point in the Asiatic country.

Last night at the First Congregational Church a reception was held in honor of Miss Rice, and was attended by representatives of several of the Congregational churches of the city. The regular mid-week prayer service was held first, and had for its theme prayers for the Lord of the Harvest to send forth workers into the harvest fields. It was a deeply affecting meeting, in which there was much spiritual fervor. Following this came a social season and the presentation of a beautiful American flag to Miss Rice by the First Church Christian Endeavor Society. The presentation was made by Robert Harwood, president of the society; and Miss Rice made a happy response.

On Sunday evening at the First Church there will be a farewell meeting for Miss Rice, and she will be formally consecrated to the work she has undertaken. Miss Rice will make an address, and there will be short talks by others, including the pastor and the pastor emeritus.

In her work in Turkey Miss Rice will receive her support from the Congregational women of Southern California, who are also supporting several others in the missionary fields.

REPORT TO GOVERNOR.

To His Excellency, Hon. George C. Pardee, Governor of California.
Charges and rumors reflecting the management of the Southern California State Hospital having been brought to the public press and otherwise, investigation into the affairs of the institution was made on September 1st, 2d and 3d at the hospital. All the members of the Board of Managers of this hospital, to wit: F. P. W. Hatch, superintendent of the State Commission in Lunacy, C. R. C. Moore and V. C. Decker, representing the State Board of Charities and Corrections, and Dr. Melick, secretary of the State Board of Examiners, were present and all participated in the investigation. Notwithstanding the fact that notices were sent to all persons who had made charges against the management of the institution and were invited and urged to be present, only a few availed themselves of the opportunity to do so. Their absence made it necessary for the members of the State boards participating in this investigation to investigate personally a large number of witnesses and secure from them the grounds of their charges. These statements and testimony so secured were carefully fully considered at this session. This investigation then proceeded along three lines.

First—To inquire into the charges made by the Rev. E. E. Dolan in the case of Rev. E. E. Dolan vs. Dr. Campbell, et al., involving general charges of ill-treatment of patients by physicians and attendants.

Second—An examination touching the business methods of the institution.

Third—Regarding the matter of alleged cruelty to patients by the board of managers and the testimony in this case, at length, on August 7, and at which time Mrs. Planette had stated that she was satisfied that there had been cruelty practiced upon her at this investigation, on which occasion she appeared, supported by Mr. Landis and Rev. Dr. Young of the Los Angeles presbytery. She evidently believed that new information would be developed upon this case. This case proved to be based upon what the matron of this hospital had said. Mrs. Matthews, a patient on parole, had information that three times had been seen Rev. Planette and Dr. Hatch pursued upon and subdued. Dr. Hatch failed to maintain Rev. Planette in any material particulars. Other witnesses were called in this case, and it was fully proven that Dr. Hatch, while in this institution, had, at times, violent, but the physicians and attendants considered such restraint in handling were necessary. Regarding the charges of Mrs. Planette and Dr. Campbell and Dr. Hatch, to which she took offense, it appears that she misinterpreted the motives which prompted Dr. Hatch in making the inquiry. As to the general charges of cruelty and attendants, we find them unfounded. Many of these rumors of cruelty were traced to patients and to former employés who, in most cases, were discharged for cause. In these cases, as in all such cases, evidence for obvious reasons must be viewed with more or less allowance. The testimony of patients was taken in several cases and given such credence as seemed warranted by the mental condition and the corroborative circumstances in the case under consideration. For instance, Rev. Mr. Matthews recited two horrible cases of cruelty with much tragic force but one of the parties on whom the cruelty was alleged to have been practiced appeared and positively denied the correctness of Mr. Matthews's statement. The other charge was entirely uncorroborated. The testimony showed that the positive injunctions of Medical Superintendent Campbell are that if abuse or unkindness be used by any of the employés of this institution upon a patient they are subject to dismissal at once.

In the matter of the use of apomorphia, the evidence shows that this drug is used in a regular professional way and Dr. Campbell quoted eminent medical authorities sustaining the use of apomorphia in such cases as these in which it had been prescribed in this institution. The use of apomorphia in disciplining patients in lieu of mechanical restraint was admitted by the physicians in certain cases in accordance however, with the authorities cited.

The charges that carelessness of secretary and others connected with the institution, no evidence was presented sustaining the same in any particular.

The payment of moneys received on contingent sales of property and products was the cause of some delay in the transmission to the treasurer of the board, who, under the law of 1899 should receive the same in monthly settlements. Loose methods of book-keeping were found prevalent in the steward's office. Supplies are issued without requisitions in many cases, monthly and daily accounts are not kept up nor the monthly balances made promptly.

We find the administration of Dr. Campbell, medical superintendent, to be efficient and humane and we fully exonorate him on all charges alleged against him.

A complete stenographic report of the sworn testimony accompanies these findings.

Recommendations: In regard to business methods we recommend:

(A.) All said moneys received by the superintendent shall be paid over to the treasurer of the board of managers on or before the 7th of the succeeding month.

(B.) All moneys in patients' private cash fund above one hundred dollars ($100) should be placed without delay in the hands of the treasurer of the board of managers.

(C.) The practice of substitution on estimates, requisitions or claims should be discontinued absolutely.

FEDERATION W.C.T.U.

The Federation of Los Angeles W. C.T.U., held an all-day meeting yesterday in the Christian Church on Broadway. The morning devotions were led by Mrs. Wormsley, followed by Mrs. Ada R. Hand, who extended a greeting to Mrs. Heather T. Griffith, president of the federation, who has just returned from Minneapolis. In response, Mrs. Griffith gave a brief account of her trip, and of her observations on eastern temperance unions that she visited, saying that nowhere had she found any organization superior in their workings to those of Los Angeles. A new union has been formed at Hollywood, and its president, Mrs. E. Edwards, was present. She reported a membership of fifty, having in charge a Loyal Temperance Legion, presided over by Mrs. Libbie Ashcroft.

The afternoon session was led by Miss Abbie Mills. An address was made by E. E. Bacon, secretary of the Coffee Club Association, who asked the coöperation of the W.C.T.U. in its work, lately undertaken. Mrs. Mary Sampson spoke on the subject of the Ransome Home, saying that more money is urgently needed with which to complete the new building. An address was made by Rev. O'Hanlon of Pennington Seminary, New Jersey. Mrs. Capt. Hughs of the Volunteers of America also spoke, followed by Rev. Kendall of Long Beach. The session was closed by a short talk by O. T. Nichols, field secretary of the Los Angeles county Prohibition party.

EXTENSIVE WORK ON ARIZONA RAILROADS.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SEEKING AN ENTRY INTO COLORADO.

Will Build Line from Durango to Cochise Through Rich Mineral Districts and Then Absorb the Road to Guaymas—Several Damage Suits.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Sept. 4.—It is reported from Denver that the Southern Pacific is backing the proposed road from Durango, Colo., into Arizona, primarily for the purpose of securing entry into Southern Colorado. This is the line that is to have its southern terminus at Cochise station, near Willcox, to connect with the road already built by Epes Randolph to Pearce, the same road that is to absorb the Cananea-Naco line of the Greene Consolidated Copper Company, and that is to be extended down to tidewater at Guaymas or Topolobampo. The road from the north is to be known as the Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado, in Northwestern New Mexico are to be tapped great beds of good lignite coal, and on the Apache plateau it will penetrate a fine forest of yellow pine. In Arizona the projected line is through districts rich in copper.

According to a report credited to Gen. Luis E. Torres, the Nacozari Railroad of Phelps, Dodge & Co., is to be extended to Tobario, a well-protected harbor on the lower coast of Sonora. A giant blast was exploded on the grade, two miles north of Nacozari. A hill was tunneled and then loaded with 8000 kegs of black powder. The top of the hill was lifted off.

Grading is in progress on the Phoenix and Eastern Railroad as far as Silverside, Pinal county, and much of the tunneling along the Gila has been completed, including practically all of the heavy work at The Buttes, where the road crosses the Gila, twelve miles above Florence. Five hundred men are employed on the grade in that vicinity. Tracklaying has been suspended for a couple of months, owing to difficulty in securing rails. It is expected that the next work of the track-laying gang will bring the rails to the Gila. The depot for Florence will be across the river, north of the village, about two miles distant.

The work of sprinkling the Southern Pacific track between Colton and Tucson is now about complete, making a decided change for the better in the comfort of travel.

Wells, Fargo & Co. have taken over the express business of the El Paso and Southwestern system from Benson to El Paso, including the Bisbee branch to Lordsburg, and that of the Arizona and New Mexico road to Clifton, and of the Morenci Southern, narrow gauge, from Guthrie to Morenci.

The business men of El Paso, having some cash left over from a recent junketing trip to Bisbee, used the surplus in the purchase of a handsome gold watch, which was presented with ceremony to General Manager H. J. Simmons of the El Paso and Southwestern system.

The Esmond wreck near Tucson is brought into remembrance by a suit against the Southern Pacific Company for $5000, filed by Isabel Reitz. She seeks damages for the death of her husband, Charles C. Reitz, who perished in the catastrophe.

George S. Ford of Wickenburg has sued the Santa Fé, Prescott and Phoenix Railroad in the District Court at Phoenix for $15,000 damages, because of hurts received by him while unloading ice at Wickenburg. He was thrown from a car by the bump of a careless coupling with the engine and received injuries alleged to be permanent.

Fifteen thousand is also the figure set by Humboldt Ward, Jr., as recompense for injuries received by him and charged to the El Paso and Southwestern Railway Company. Ward, at the time a brakeman, was thrown from the top of a box car at Douglas by a wire that had carelessly been stretched across the track. He alleges that by the fall his ankle has become permanently disabled.

PLANS OF SHIPS.

The Care Taken to Avoid Mistakes in Building Battleships—Many Drawings Are First Made.

[Brooklyn Eagle:] When Uncle Sam decides to build a warship there must be something over 1200 plans drawn and approved by the government before the vessel can be constructed. These plans alone, in the case of a first-class battleship such as the Vermont, the contract for which has been recently awarded to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, near Boston, cost the builders about $75,000. For the steel plates of the hull, to take a single large item, 500 distinct and separate plans are necessary. The 800 or 900 plans necessary for the hull as a whole range from a small sheet of paper twelve inches square to a big sheet eleven feet long by two and one-quarter feet wide, and each plan must be duplicated in at least a dozen blue prints to facilitate the work of the shops and save the original drawing from being worn out by constant handling.

At a rough estimate this means that over 18,600 square feet of paper will be covered with drawings before the yard begins hull construction, to say nothing of over 10,500 square feet of paper that will be used in preparing the schedules of materials by which the yard will order the various supplies necessary for construction. To make the hull of a war vessel more paper is used than would serve to wrap it up afterward. Meantime the engine department and the electrical department must prepare their own plans on a similar scale of detailed munificence, the result being, all told, that about 1200 separate drawings will be necessary before the battleship has been accurately made on paper.

The hundreds of plans do not consist, as one might at first imagine, in plan after plan of the vessel until Uncle Sam smiles approval and says "Go ahead, that suits me exactly." As a matter of fact, Uncle Sam has a very complete notion of what is going to suit him exactly before the contracting shipbuilders touch pencil to paper, and the shipbuilder's work is based upon yet another series of mysterious-looking blue prints that come from the government. The first plans for every class of war vessels, with the single exception of the lively little torpedo boats and equally lively little destroyers, are draws by the government before any shipbuilding establishment is invited to bid for the task of finishing them. But these first plans, although they represent the labor of three government departments—the Bureau of Construction and Repair, the Bureau of Equipment, and the Bureau of Ordnance—are simply a statement of the kind of vessel wanted and are supplemented by a bound volume of specifications that covers between 200 and 300 pages. It is this interesting volume that the management of the shipbuilding establishments has to reduce to terms of profit and cost before it decides upon the minimum price for which it can build the vessel, pay about four years' wages to a thousand workmen and put a little something in the bank on its own account. In the case of the Vermont the final cost per pound is estimated at 15 cents, or three times the cost per pound of a thoroughly modern steel schooner.

No object, either on land or sea, could be more carefully specified in its every detail than the modern war vessel. When the government orders a canvas gun cover, for example, the specifications state definitely how many stitches to an inch are to be taken in sewing the canvas, and these stitches are not to be averaged up, but there must be so many of them to every inch, no matter at what point the government inspector who supervises the making of the cover may choose to count them. If the number is not parallel with the specification, the right number of stitches must be put in—at the expense of the company. This small example is an exact illustration of what "specifications" mean as they apply to a war vessel, although as a rule the specifications that reach the modern ship yard concern themselves only with the hull and machinery of the vessel. But they include every bolt that goes into the hull, every beam that supports her decks and platforms and every inch of the miles of pipes and wire that connect her engines, dynamos and conning towers with the various mechanisms that they are designed to operate. In the Vermont there are more than 20,000 of these bolts, and electric wires alone sufficient to distribute an amount of power that would supply light to the streets and houses and run the trolley cars of a city of 25,000 inhabitants.

Putting these specifications into actual plans—in other words, building the warship on paper with rule, T-square and compass—takes about twelve months of steady work and requires the services of a small army of expert engineers, naval architects, draughtsmen and photographers. All through this period a special electrical apparatus is busy preparing blue prints of the completed designs. From the government point of view everything that is drawn on paper is a plan; and everything that goes into the vessel must first be drawn on paper. Building a war vessel is different from building a house in that you can't nail the parts together or make them fit as you go along. Every plate of unbending steel, of which no two are exactly similar, has its individual place in the ship, every rivet hole has its individual place in the steel plate, and every plate must therefore have been carefully planned on paper before it becomes part of the ship's construction. The armor plan of a warship is therefore one of the longest tasks of a shipyard's draughtsman. Other large and more complicated plans are those that provide for the working of gun mounts, ammunition hoists, and other important sections of her inner mechanism. And in this respect no two vessels are alike, even "twin warships" being like other twins in that they look alike but usually act differently. Still another series of delicately complicated plans are those that provide for the arrangement of tubes, wires and other means of connecting every part of the ship with every other part, for not only must space be economized to the finest practical point, but every part of the system must be readily accessible in case of necessary repairs at short notice.

Miracle of Construction.

The two Americans who constructed this road, Messrs. Meiggs and Thorndike, were considered crazy when they proposed it.

It was necessary to carry the roadbed for miles through galleries cut in the solid face of the rock, and the workmen engaged in cutting the galleries were in many cases lowered in cages from the cliffs above. More than sixty tunnels had to be cut in the course of construction, one, the famous galera tunnel, one and one-half miles in length, the highest engineering project of its kind on earth.

It is on this road that the signal achievement of constructing a lofty steel bridge connecting two tunnels was accomplished. In building this bridge, which spans a crevice 575 feet wide and hundreds of feet deep it was necessary to lower all material from the top of the cliffs by wire cables. The whole stupendous task was made possible only by the liberal use of the "V switch" or "switchback." In one instance on the Peruvian railroad it was necessary to construct a switchback in the side of the mountain, the train heading in on the lower level and back out through an upper tunnel almost exactly above. The cost of the Oroya railroad, when completed, was $43,000,000, or $211,594 a mile, making it one of the most costly roads in the world.—[World's Work.

Japan and Russia.

In relation to the rumors of an impending conflict between Japan and Russia, a representative had an interview with Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister, at Hampton. "In the first place," said his excellency, "I am assured that the relations between Russia and Japan have in no way changed. I have noticed all the reports that have come to this country stating that war was imminent between the two countries, but it is noteworthy that none of the reports has emanated from Tokio, where, I may point out, there is no censorship, and that they are mostly from a Chinese or Manchurian source. I am in daily communication with my government, but I am assured that there is not the slightest foundation for any of the statements. Japan would have no object to serve in endeavoring to conceal anything, and therefore it may be taken as authentic that war is a very long way off. Japan is exactly in the same position as the European powers. We have interests in the Far East just as much as other powers—perhaps even greater interests. War is a thing which most nations wish to avoid as much as possible, because it means a certain loss, even to the victors. Japan has no particular disagreement with Russia to fight about, and if there were any disagreement, doubtless the matter could be settled by arbitration.

"As to the statements that Japan has ordered more warships we are only following our usual policy of keeping our fleet up to date. The new programme provides for a large addition of battleships and cruisers the contract for which will extend over twelve years. The contract has not yet been placed but I am glad to say that all the battleships will be built in England. Then as to the purchase of so-called merchant cruisers I can explain that by saying that there is a large shipping company in Japan which is simply making additions to its fleet, a corollary of events brought about by the natural expansion of trade. I was surprised to see it stated that a Russian and a Japanese fleet had assembled at Port Arthur. The Japanese fleet may have come within sight of the port in the course of its customary cruise, but no foreign warships are allowed inside Port Arthur and there is no suitable anchorage outside. "Russia, however, has as much right to assemble her warships at Port Arthur as the Germans would have at Kiao-Chau or the British at Wei-Hai-Wei. As to the merits of the fleets, Japan might have a greater number of newer ships; but Russia is making large additions, and, therefore, in ordering our battleships we are only keeping pace with other nations. It is Japan's intention to keep her navy up to modern requirements. We have to provide for any emergency. But that fact cannot be reconciled with the view that we are preparing for war. Japan, since the Chino-Japanese War, has been credited with being a warlike nation. Still, Japan may be warlike without breaking the peace of the world. In conclusoin, I can give a positive assurance that there is no occasion for alarm at present in connection with far eastern affairs."—[London Standard.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period—how they can avoid pain, suffering and remove the cause.

"I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds and feet wetting.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment and was cured a month later. I am like another person since I am in perfect health."—Miss Agnes Miller, 35 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of woman's health. Fifty thousand letters from women prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regulates menstruation, and makes those periods painless.

COFFEE HEART

Barred by Life Insurance Co.

Coffee directly affects the heart and many life insurance companies now recognize "Coffee Heart" as a well defined disease and refuse insurance to those suffering from this trouble.

Leaving off coffee and drinking Postum Food Coffee regularly in its place quickly remedies this and puts the heart normal, healthy and steady again.

"I was examined for membership in the 'Woodmen of the World' about a year ago and the examining physician told me that I had 'Coffee Heart' due to coffee drinking and told me that I would have to stop or he could not answer for results. He said I would no doubt find it difficult to quit the use of coffee unless I drank well boiled Postum Food Coffee in its place and recommended Postum to me which he said would not only aid me to give up the coffee habit but would greatly help my health. My pulse registered over a hundred beats a minute and I was not admitted to membership in the Order but my application was held open for three weeks.

"I began the use of Postum according to the doctor's directions and was highly pleased with it and liked it better than the best of coffee. After three or four days the beating of my pulse began to diminish and at the end of three weeks it was normal and my application and examination papers were again sent to the Sovereign Physician of the Woodmen at Omaha with the result that I received my policy.

"Hundreds of people have I heard remark, 'Oh, there's no harm in coffee.' Now I never dreamed the use of it was affecting me in the least and consider myself lucky that I underwent this examination just when I did and found out the truth about coffee from this physician. I believe that even when coffee is not suspected it is always doing ill and will in time hurt the strongest constitution." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DOES MUNROE MEAN TO BOX?

Doubts as to Honesty of His Intentions.

Now Wants to Dictate to Jeffries Where They Shall Meet.

Women Cyclists Make New Record—St. Leger Stakes. Bell and Freeman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The latest turn in the Jeffries-Munroe negotiations is the Butte miner's attempt to dictate to Jeffries where the contest shall be pulled off. Munroe has raised a big kick on fighting in Los Angeles, for reasons best known to himself, and wants to box in San Francisco. He says the San Francisco clubs will put up a larger purse for the bout than will be offered by the Los Angeles promoters. Among well-informed sporting men along Broadway there is considerable doubt expressed as to Munroe's sincerity, inasmuch as the Los Angeles club made by far the best offer that was hung up for the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons contest held some time ago in San Francisco. A great deal of surprise has been expressed that the champion would allow Munroe to do the amount of dictating he has already permitted.

It is not thought at all likely Jeffries will care to change his plans to fight in Los Angeles, as friends of his here have been informed the big boilermaker's real object in securing this contest is not so much the actual money involved as his desire to give Munroe a good trouncing before the public of his home town. This is believed to be responsible for his apparent willingness to let Munroe make unusually favorable terms.

Munroe has made no preparations to start for the Coast as yet. Many are outspoken in their belief that he does not want to meet Jeffries, and is only fishing for ever more favorable terms. His actions have not been reassuring, to say the least. Munroe has had everything to gain, o good loser's end and a chance to make a reputation from comparative oblivion. If he was really meaning business it is thought there would be no quibbling about the place of the contest.

DOUBTING MUNROE'S PLUCK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Billy Delaney does not believe that Jack Munroe could be dragged into a match with Champion Jeffries, and the big fellow has the same idea that Munroe is not acting in good faith in his dealings for the proposed match at Los Angeles. Delaney says the Butte miner thoroughly understood the situation on the Coast; knew that the match, if made, was to have been held in September, and the postponement to October was a concession. He had been told that Los Angeles was a better place than San Francisco to hold the fight, and altogether has been making a gigantic bluff with his numerous objections.

As the matter now stands, the prospects for the fight are slim. There is no question about Jeffries's wishes in the matter. The one aim of his life is to have another chance at the chap who has stained his escutcheon. He has agreed to a 40 per cent. loser's end in order to make the inducements as alluring as possible, and he is hankering for the time when he can face Munroe inside the ropes. If that time ever comes, it is safe betting that the miner will not again stay four rounds.

DOUBLE-HEADED CLASH.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—Oakland and Seattle clashed in a double-header today. The first game, which was played at Oakland this morning, was taken by the recruits. Barber of Seattle outpitched Cooper as far as steadiness was concerned, but luck was against him. In the third inning, with the score 1 to 0 in favor of Seattle, Oakland took Barber's measure and hit his best offerings to three of the corners of the compass. Seattle made a bid in the fifth and tied the score. Oakland won the game in the seventh inning. O'Hara got away with a base on balls, went to second on Francks's infield out, and scored on Zinsser's error of Schwartz's fly drive.

OAKLAND-SEATTLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—The afternoon game at Recreation Park was a lively contest, no errors being made by either side. In the seventh and eighth innings Graham was wild, and Seattle scored two runs, tying the score. The tie was broken by Oakland in its half of the eighth. Score:

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 9.—Thielman was very effective in the box today, and although twelve hits were made off his delivery, the Senators were unable to bunch enough of them to make runs. The pace was too fast for Brown, who was officiating for the Senators, and the Portland Browns bunched hits on him in the eighth inning, and five runs were tallied. Score:

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Capt. Wringe, who sailed the Shamrock III in her races against the Reliance for the America's cup, today announced that he had decided to make this country his home in the future.

As a result of this decision, Sir Thomas Lipton may be obliged to modify His recent statement that he will challenge again, provided he can find a designer. Besides a designer, he will now have to find a suitable skipper, if Wringe is the best handler of single-stickers on the other side.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Joseph Riley, a bantamweight pugilist, died shortly after midnight tonight at St. Agnew's Hospital. Riley last night engaged in a six-round bout with Grif Jones at the Southern Athletic Club. The fight ended in a draw, and Riley seemed in good condition at the conclusion of the fight, but shortly after reaching his dressing room he fell to the floor and in an unconscious condition was quickly removed to St. Agnew's Hospital. He never thereafter regained consciousness.

Grif Jones, William Hohl, the proprietor of the club, and several seconds of the two men in the bout are under arrest.

The dead man fought under the name of Joseph Riley, but it is understood his right name was Olin Knight. He was 23 years of age.

LOOLOOS WIN A HARD GAME.

Impartial Clouting of Twirlers' Offerings Throughout.

"Sea Cow" Hurlburt Actually is Seen Stealing Third Base. Swatfest in Detail.

Looloos, 12; Harrisites, 10.

Batteries—Lindsay, Herr, Krug and Zearfoss; Gray, Wheeler and Spies.

Features—The stealing of third base in the fifth by Sea Cow Hurlburt.

A contented, holiday crowd of fans filed out of Chutes Park at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after assisting at the daily pitcher-killing, a ceremony in which Messrs. Lindsay, Herr, Krug, Gray and Wheeler officiated as chief mourners with eclat. The fan who said "they do not hit in California" was buried under an avalanche of some 34 swats of various sizes; and the crowd rose upon its hind legs and "hollered." It would have been a rotten game had not the bingies been pretty evenly distributed; as it was both teams had their batting clothes on, and the occasion was one long, delirious revel of hard smashed balls; a pitcher's nightmare in real life, and one of the things fans remember after the pennant is won.

There were all manner of sensations sprung during the play. Of these by for the biggest occurred after big Ed Hurlburt, better known as the "sea cow," "the elephant," and 'Dude" Hurlburt succeeded in getting on the bases in the fifth by forcing out Spies. This in itself is not such a rare occurrence, as we are informed, and believe Mr. Hurlburt has been there before, but there is grave doubt if he ever before yesterday had the effrontery to express such brazen contempt for pitchers and catchers as he manifested when he stole third base. That "Sea Cow" of all people should attempt to pull off such a play was monstrous. Why, the very unexpectedness of it let him get away with the chance. Lumbering down the line like an overloaded burro, big Ed crashed into Irwin at third just as that worthy, after recovering from his surprise had requested in dulcet tones that the ball be thrown to him. It came too late. 'Twas not in flesh and blood to block the mass of flesh that surged into third. Irwin capsized as Hurlburt rammed him, and both sank together. Big Ed responded first, but Irwin looked and felt as if a mountain had tumbled upon him. The crowd roared with laughter.

Incidentally Dummy Hoy established a new world's record this season, at least, by making five hits in five times at bat. Every one was an unqualified single, three into right field, one a swell double along the left foul line, the other a perfect bunt beside the pitcher, too slow to handle. Little Hoy scored three runs and did some swell stunts for his country both on bases and in the field.

There were, however, others. That Dutchman Krug, who wants to play the game all by his lonely, butted in again with some notable stuff, such as a single, stole third base like a crazy man, and grabbed five hard balls in the center field. Not content with this he ambled into the box at the finish and demanded to pitch. Dutchy's stock in trade was a dandy fast ball that Hoy alone could hit. If Krug is not careful he will be getting popular in Los Angeles.

Charley Irwin also fell into the glory hole by making four hits, and stealing three bases, as did Pat Meany. The way the Harrisites purloined extra bags on Count Heinrich von der Spies was a shame to tell about, but most of the time they had the Count up a tree with men on bases and he did not care to risk a chance. Dave Zearfoss, the 'Frisco catcher, made a pair of two-baggers. Ross made a brace of triples. In fact, nearly everybody had a stick in on the clouting, and the impartial way in which the wows were distributed was a relief to see.

Talk about your patchwork lineups, the Looloos had grandma's crazy quilt lashed to the mast for keeps. Dillon started to play first, but went to third when Wheeler began to pitch, and Hurlburt replaced the Cap at first. The team looked like a spavined horse after a bum farrier had finished tinkering with him. Toman was the only infielder in his regular position, and he ought to be in bed. The little fellow has earned a long rest and deserves to have it. In addition to being ill, he seems a little stale in his work, and no wonder, for he has been in almost constant training for three years, and that is enough to take the steam out of a bigger man than King Chimmie. With Smith out of the game still and Ross sore from his bone bruise, it is a wonder the Looloos do not get thumped worse than they have been.

Lindsay, surnamed the Rabbit, started to pitch for Col. Harris. The 'Friscos went to bat first and the only sensation of the first was McDonald's calling a balk on Dolly Gray; Dolly balked fast enough, but he only did it from force of habit. A pair of passes came to naught. In the last half the Looloos made Lindsay run into the tules in favor of Herr. Hoy opened by hitting to right. Wheeler beat a perfect bunt along third-base line, Hoy scoring and Patty going to third on Irwin's wild throw past first. Corbett's out and Dillon's Texas leaguer over Shay scored Wheeler. Dillon stole second and went to third on Zearfoss's throw into center field. Dillon scored on Cravath's long fly to center. Ross walked, stole second and registered when King Chimmie Toman proved present with the goods and swiped a single shot to left center. Shay made a freak jump and stop of Spies's bounder or there would have been further doings. The four runs chased the Rabbit to the burrow, and a shock-headed, husky youth named Herr sallied forth to pitch. "She" had a straight ball, a heart full of hope and a prayer. The combination did not work to the best advantage.

Meanwhile the Harrisites were making Dolly's life burdensome. That ornery Dutchman Krug, as usual, started it by beating a slow one to short, and going to second on Toman's inability to handle Lynch's bounder. Krug, laboring under temporary mental aberration, stole third. Delmas hit to right and registered Dutchy at the plate. Lindsay swiped the air thrice. Ross robbed Shay of a two-bagger in left center by playing judiciously for him and making a fine aerial catch by leaning fencewards at the extremity of a long run. Meany walked. Irwin bit sharply to left and the indicator clicked twice as Delmas chased Lynch home. Meany went to third on the play. Then he and Irwin worked the double-steal gag successfully, scoring another run. Toman got Leahy's fly and the torrent of runs was stayed, but not stopped.

The Looloos made another in the second when Hoy walked, then scored on Wheeler's single into right and Meany's failure to stop it. Herr was doing the pitching, and looked so easy that the Looloos tried to tear the cover off the ball with the usual result, some pop flies.

In the third, Zearfoss and Krug chased Dolly back to the desert, and Wheeler replaced him. The fat boy pitched great ball, but the Harrisites would have clouted Matthewson, Leever, Donovan or anybody else into insensibility yesterday, and they played no favorites against old George.

Zearfoss opened with a swell two-bagger into deep left center. Dutchy Krug then basted one of Dolly's offerings over the fence so hard that Ross never moved back. The ball is believed to have fallen in the Santa Fe yards somewhere, as it was headed that way when last seen. Dillon then jerked Gray out of the fire and his successor, the fat boy, walked Lynch. Two runs were already in. Delmas bunted for a sacrifice, but Wheeler's ability to field his position helped to nail Lynch at second. Herr forced Delmas via Dillon at third after the Cap had fumbled, made a quick recovery and snapped the ball to Corbett. Singles in succession by Shay, Meany and Irwin made two more runs. The Looloos got very busy in their half. Cravath walked and scored when Ross drove a triple into the camera of some lady photographers in right field, much to the disgust of Don Patricio Meany. Toman's out and Spies's long fly into right allowed the speedy little Ross a chance to take advantage of Meany's throwing arm, and he scored with ease. Hurlburt, who had butted in at first, walked. Hoy again hit to right, but there were no more runs. At the end of the third the score stood 8 to 7 in favor of the Insurgents.

They added another in the fourth on consecutive doubles along the left foul line by Zearfoss and that Dutchy Krug, and in the last half Dillon tore a board off center-field fence to no purpose. That left it 9 to 7. Shay's hot shot to center, Meany's swell sacrifice and a liner to left-field fence that Irwin made only one base on made it 10 to 7 in the fifth, but the Looloos reduced the lead one in their half by the frantic efforts of "Sea Cow" Hurlburt, who got on by forcing Spies, went to second on Delmas's attempt to make a double of it, watched Hoy beat a perfect bunt, stole third, and scored on Irwin's inability to hold the ball after being fallen on by such a human elephant. The Insurgents could no nothing more with the fat boy, who had steadied down to giltedge pitching, and the Looloos proceeded to tie up the horse and lock the barn. The score:

Animal Stories for the Little Ones.

LEARN TO BE CONTENTED.

SAMBO was tired of his kinky locks. He wanted straight hair like the white folks and the "yaller gals" had. He had tried combing them out daily. He had put starch on them to make them stand straight, and nearly scared the wits out of his good mammy, who, coming suddenly, thought he was a hobgoblin. He had tied strings to his hair and tied the strings to the bedpost, but it only woke him up all night and did no good.

So he had gone out behind the barn to grieve and complain, which, of course, was entirely wrong.

"I hate this plagued wool," he said, running his hand through his black corkscrew ringlets.

"Why can't a fellow's hair be decent and straight and silky?"

"I can't go out but what some white boy yells, 'Hi! there, woosy!'

"Wool ought not to grow on boys, anyway. It's only meant for dirty old sheep, and they can't do nothin' but lie round and blati. Dey's des no 'count no how;" and he got up to look at himself in a bit of broken mirror. But there had been some one listening to all this. Around the corner sat old Mr. Ram.

"Umph!" he said; "so he thinks that wool is only fit for 'no 'count' sheep, does he? And he's ashamed of his looks, is he? Well, I'd just like to show him that it isn't what a fellow looks like, but what he is, that counts. I believe I will give him a lesson in manners, anyway. It isn't polite to remark on people's appearance behind their backs, and he called me 'dirty sheep.'"

With that he gave one loud "Bah!" and, ducking his head, went for Sambo.

My! how that little darky ran!

It was a long way to the fence, and before he made it the ram had caught him and lifted him over into the potato patch on the other side. He lit on his head, but got up instantly, scared, but unhurt. "My!" said Sambo, reflectively, "if it hadn't been for my wool I'd 'a' got a hurt."

"Of course you would, impudence," said the ram. "Maybe now you won't complain about the way the Lord made you.

The Animals of Strangeland.

I once spent a year in Strangeland, and I suppose I had as good a chance as anybody to see the animals that live there, but I never thought any boys or girls would care to hear about them, and so I took no notes while I was there.

I remember some of the animals, however, and I believe that the things that made the most impression on me were the tiny waiter elephants, not bigger than robins, that are used to serve at table.

You see, the dinner tables there are about fifty feet long, and only two or three people sit at each table, and as they have no servants there it would be very hard to pass things if it were not for the waiter elephants and the toy railroads that they use.

A circular track runs round the table, and on it are tank cars for the soup, milk, water and coffee; platform cars for the cold meats and vegetables and box cars for things that need to be kept warm. If my friend at the other end of the table wanted some soup I would hitch Knurt, our little four-inch elephant, to the soup-tank car and tell him to carry it down to the other end, and away he would gallop as hard as he could, and then perhaps come back with a box car full of salt or sugar.

We never tried having two elephants more than once. My friend had bought a little fellow, and he hitched him to a soup car and sent him to me at the same time that I sent him some water, and the two tiny animals, running full tilt, met in the middle of the table and had a head-on collision. Soup and water went sky-high, and it is a wonder the elephants were not killed.

They both picked themselves up and began to fight, and before they were through, the track was torn up for inches round and the table cloth was torn to shreds.

As a general thing, the elephants in that country are fed at the end of each meal by giving them a bale of hay as big as a couple of cubes of sugar, but these bad little elephants went to bed supperless that night, and after that we did not try to do a two-track business on a one-track road.

CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS.

A Long-headed Dog.

Rover had been disturbed long enough. His sleep had been broken constantly for nights by the endless dispute of two big Tom cats that nightly sat upon the wall of his yard and fought it out till morning. He determined the thing should cease.

One day, therefore, when these two quarrelsome pussies came down into the yard beside him, he said:

"I should think you two would get very tired of standing with your backs hitched up like a croquet wicket all night long?"

"We do," said the cats; "but don't see how we can help it. This thing holding them up. There are two iron spikes with round knobs on them just over here on this side of the yard. You both jump on these, let your feet hang down on either side, and the iron will hold your backs up."

"Clever! clever!" said they both.

So that night each jumped on one of these iron bars and began the duel.

"Great!—fizz—sizz—meaow!" yelled Nibs.

"Fine!—fizz—sizz—Mariah!" yelled Nobs.

But when they went to get down neither could move. They couldn't lift up, nor move to the side, for the wall was too narrow. Rover had them.

"Help! Help!" they cried.

"On one condition," said Rover.

"We grant it."

"That you stop this nightly row."

"Agreed," they said. And Rover called the maid, who removed them. And yet we say dogs don't think.

The Piggy that Aspired.

Once on a time a piggy strolled
Far from his fireside and fold;
To rise above his station low
Was what made piggy do just so.

"My voice is sweet and soft and fine;
And though I'm but a lowly swine
I'll show the best among the beast
That I am not accounted least."

Thus piggy uttered as he cast
A farewell glance behind, and passed
From out his pen where he was born—
And should have stayed with straw and corn.

WENT TROTTING BACK.

Alas! poor piggy was turned down
By all society in town;
He tried to sing, but his appeal
It only ended in a squeal.

The dog, the horse, would hot consort
With him, and e'en the cat's retort
It was more harsh than words of men:
"You're only fashionable for a pen."

So, when the evening shadows dense
Came down, poor piggy through the fence
Went trotting back into his home,
Quite satisfied no more to roam.

HORACE SEYMOUR KELLER.

The Ambitious Penguin.

A penguin living in a zoo
Grew tired and wanted work to do,
But what to do he did not know,
He'd lived so long for naught but show.

He thought of days so very nice,
When he lived north 'midst snow and ice,
Where there were fish of many kinds—
To eat instead of melon rinds.

Now, penguins, have a stately air,
And when you see them anywhere
They walk erect just like a man,
And strut about when'er they can.

AN OFFICER OF HIGH DEGREE.

And so into a looking-glass
This penguin looked, and said: "I'll pass—
At least I'll try to pass—and be
A policeman of high degree."

He passed the civil-service law,
And answered all without a flaw.
They dressed him in a coat of blue,
With helmet, club and medals, too.

An officer of high degree,
He now is called, and you can see
This penguin almost every day
In charge of crossings on Broadway.

HENRY LIPPINCOTT.

The Bear and the Bicycle.

A bear who was strolling along a road one day saw a man on a bicycle.

"Isn't that fine?" cried the bear. "I would just like to know how to do that. It seemed easy enough."

So he got behind a big rock and when the man came close enough the bear sprang into the road and said "Oof!" as loud as he could. The man was so frightened that he jumped right off the bicycle and scrambled up a tree.

Then the bear walked up to the wheel and looked it over good.

"I believe I can ride that thing," said he.

"Try it," cried the man in the tree, who was anxious to get the bear out of the way so that he could climb down and run home.

"I'm going to come up there and eat you first," replied the bear.

"No," said the man; "the proper thing for you to do is to take a little ride on the bicycle to whet your appetite. Then you will enjoy your meal."

"I BELIEVE I CAN RIDE THAT THING."

"I guess you are right," replied the bear, "and that is just the very thing that I shall do."

So he climbed upon the seat and put his feet on the pedals.

"Remember," said the man, "that the faster you ride the easier it is to stay on."

"Very well," answered the bear, and he began to pedal away as fast as his little short legs would go.

Bumpety, bump, he went down the road, and all the time the man yelled out to him, "Faster, faster."

"I'm going as fast as I can," shouted the bear, who was losing control of the machine and losing his breath at the same time.

Over rocks and stones and fallen tree branches he flew, bumping higher and higher each time that he struck an obstacle and gathering more speed with every foot of ground that he covered.

Suddenly there was a loud explosion. The tires had exploded! Right over the handle bars went Mr. Bear into a bramble bush. The poor old fellow was so nearly dead from shock and exhaustion that he actually hadn't energy enough to pick the briars out of his eyes, and he lay there helpless for two or three hours.

Insurance as a Cause of Suicide.

Can it be true that a considerable part of the remarkable increase of suicide is due to life insurance? This novel and surprising theory is advanced by the eminent insurance statistician, Frederick L. Hoffman, in the current Spectator. He reasons from the carefully analyzed suicide returns of fifty American cities, with populations aggregating 14,500,000. New York and all the larger cities are included in the list. In these fifty cities 2500 persons took their own lives last year.

Prof. Hoffman concludes from these figures that the rate of suicide for the whole country, which advanced from 12 to 17 per 100,000 of population between 1890 and 1900, is still advancing. From a special study of New York's returns for 100 years past he deduces the fact that before the Civil War the city's suicide rate was about 10 per 100,000, and is now more than twice as high (31.) All over the country, he says, the rate is highest where the proportion of French, German and Slavonic population is largest, and lowest where native American and Irish population preponderates.

The professor's most astonishing deduction is that there is a "progressive increase in the suicide rate of males, ages 25 and over, representative of the period of life which includes the larger proportion of male risks insured with American life-insurance companies." Dr. Muirhead, medical officer of a leading English insurance company, says the English death returns show that "no less than 7,087 per cent. of the total (English) deaths by suicide occurred in the very first year" of insurance, and more than 3 per cent. besides in the second year.

"Not a few" men, in Prof. Hoffman's opinion, "at certain periods think less of their own lives than they do of the comfort of their families." If this view is correct, the surprising increase in self-destruction has a sentimental and half-chivalrous side hitherto unsuspected. The idea that 10 per cent. or more of suicides deliberately devote themselves to death so that their wives and children may not suffer want might have found a place in Mr. Howells's "Altruria." But there are more probable causes for the vogue of self-slaughter.—[New York World.

BIG OIL FIRE.

Pacific Refinery Destroyed With Loss of Eight Thousand Dollars—Water Plug Too Remote.

The Pacific Oil Refinery at Butte and Minerva streets was practically destroyed by fire last night. The plant was valued at $8000, and the total loss on the buildings, oil and machinery is estimated by H. J. Van Ness, manager of the company, at about $9000. There was no insurance.

Gas blown by the wind from the receiving house under the fire box in the engine room was ignited at 10:30 o'clock and the blaze was communicated to the gasoline and oil in the tanks near by. The flames ran swiftly over the inflammable material and the oil-spattered woodwork. Explosions of gasoline stored in corrugated tanks threw the burning fluid to adjacent parts of the plant, and when the engineer, who was the only man about the place, sent in a telephone alarm, the fire was under fierce headway.

Although the engines made the usual rapid response, the business of getting water on the fire was greatly delayed, as the nearest fire plug, that at a Ninth and Santa Clara streets, is 4000 feet from the refinery.

Four 1000-feet lengths of hose were strung out and a relay engine was put in to help out. After the engines began pumping it wasn't long before the flames were under control. Two large tanks of gasoline were saved and four ding 2500 gallons, went up in smoke. Also about 100 barrels of oil were destroyed.

The residents in the vicinity of the refinery tried to have a fire plug installed in their neighborhood last spring, but unsuccessfully. It is said that the property occupied by nearly 1000 people is jeopardized owing to the lack of fire facilities.

Connoisseur—Epicure.

"Let me taste that Madeira; I am something of a connoisseur," said Count Lucresne.

He was about to sample it when the owner interposed.

"I cannot understand," he said, "what a connoisseur has to do with wines. Now, count, if you are an epicure, I'll let you have a taste."

"Of course I pride myself on being an epicure; but one is not obliged to be an epicure in order to judge of the quality of wines. I repeat—I am a connoisseur. Permit me."

"Never; I stand on my principle. A connoisseur is one who critically judges art through the eye alone. He cannot go beyond paintings, statuary and carvings—that which may be seen but not handled. I draw the line there. The connoisseur has no business with music, laces, tapestries, etc."

"Rather new and original. And what would you call a judge of fine old Madeiras?"

"An epicure, of course. An epicure is one who is factidious in his eating and drinking; he must be a judge of both food and drink, and he should eat like a gentleman. He must be better than a gourmet, and far removed from a gormand. Gormand is a synonym for hog or glutton."

"What would you call a judge of fine tapestries, laces, etc.?"

"An expert."

"And a judge of music?"

"A critic."

"I do not wholly agree yith you, my dear fellow. A connoisseur is one who possesses absolute and intimate knowledge of one subject, art or thing, and is qualified to pass judgment thereon. He may examine through either of the five senses—sight, taste, hearing, smelling or feeling. An epicure is merely a high liver. If he eats canvasback at $8 a pair he is an epicure; if he eats corned beef and cabbage he is a glutton. Epicurism is simply a matter of price, added to a soupcon of palatal courage. If one eats a sora, masticating every bone, including head, bill, feet, etc., one is an epicure; if one eats only the breast, one is a barbarian. An expert is a mechanic. A critic is an amateur. Now, will you let me have a taste of that wine?"—[New York Press.

Grateful Old Negro.

An old negro's gratitude and his love for the little daughter of his benefactor was evidenced this morning when the will of Charles Nicholson was admitted to probate in the County Court. Miriam Blackburn, the three-year-old daughter of Walter A. Blackburn, deputy United States marshal, is the old darky's heiress. The estate consists of the savings of years. A pension helped the old man through his declining years and added to his little hoard. But the aged darky's gratitude was pathetic and his devotion to little Miriam was touching.

"Uncle Charlie, as he was known in the neighborhood, served in the latter part of the Civil War, and was severely wounded in several engagements. He was a slave and belonged to one of the most prominent families in Jefferson county before the war began. He only enlisted himself after all the male members of the family had gone into the army. After the war he came back to this city, and for years was a familiar figure on the streets of Louisville. A year ago he began to feel the effects of the wounds he had received during the war, and told his story to Mr. Blackburn.

Filled with pity for the old negro, the deputy marshal provided a room for him in a building in the rear of his own home. Here "Uncle" Charlie lived the last year of his life in peace and happiness. He applied for a pension several months ago, and not only received it, but back pay for several months as well. Not all of the pension money was spent, and when the old negro died he had several hundred dollars deposited in the bank.

He left no relatives, and there was no one of his own race or color to have the money he had saved. But "Uncle" Charlie had formed a lasting friendship with Miriam, Mr. Blackburn's daughter. The little girl spent many of her hours in the old man's cabin listening to stories to which every child in the South has listened since the days of slavery began. The negro resolved to leave his savings to his little friend, and a few months ago he had his will drawn up bequeathing everything to her. He did this without mentioning it to the members of Mr. Blackburn's family, and it was not known until after the funeral arrangements had been made.—[Louisville (Ky.) Times.

A Lesson in Chess.

The moral of the fate of young Henry Smythe, the Philadelphia chess player who went insane at Syracuse, is not a difficult one to read. The late Dr. J. G. Holland pointed it out as one of his "Lessons in Life," when he bade his readers beware of becoming the slave of one idea. This unfortunate Philadelphia lad, not yet 19 years old, worked on chess problems, according to his father, until he could think of nothing else, and his mind gave way under the strain."

It need not be chess; the fixed idea may be, as it more frequently is, the deeper problem of the hereafter. The concentration of mind required of the successful chess player conduces unquestionably to "brain fag," however, and the incipient stages of insanity. Steinitz, mentally an infant outside the game, used to play it as a cure for the insomnia it had caused. Of him, at least, that which had been alleged of other professional players, was true; his phenomenal skill was developed at the expense of the more important faculties of his brain. That way lies madness or genius, either one. But the modern scheme of symmetrical education, like that of the Greeks, does not include the cultivation, but rather the repression of abnormal tendencies or traits, be these gifts of the fiends or gods. With the weight of an empire on his mind, Napoleon kept it in sound working order, he declared, by oiling and using, not one or several, but all the essential parts of its marvelous machinery.—[New York Mail and Express.

Proper Test of an Automobile.

A new transcontinental record for automobiles has been established by two men who drove a comparatively small machine of American make from San Francisco to New York. They left the former city on June 20. They arrived here last night, muddy, tired, but not materially the worse for their uncommon experience. They averaged about eighty miles a day. They crossed mountains. They traversed deserts. They trundled over al kinds of roads in all sorts of conditions of weather. And through it all their machine met with no serious mishap, a fact which will help to reduce the automobile joke of the funny papers to its proper level of inconspicuity. Once before the continent was crossed by an automobilist, but he did not make as good time as did the two people who landed in New York

REBUILDING CAR TRACK.

Two Miles of New Road for Maple Avenue.

Great Activity All Along Lines of Mr. Huntington.

Force of Thousand Men to Hurry Salt Lake Rails Across the Desert.

Property owners on Maple avenue will be gratified to learn that work was begun yesterday by the Los Angeles Railway Company rebuilding its Maple-avenue car line from Fifth street to a point where the Santa Monica branch of the Southern Pacific crosses Maple avenue—a distance of over two miles. This bit of improvement involves relaying about four and three-quarters miles of single track. The old combination rail is being removed and replaced by a modern sixty-pound T-rail, such as now lies in all streets occupied by the Los Angeles Railway Company.

The impetus toward rebuilding this line was quickened by Mr. Huntington since his arrival on Saturday. He has also ordered the rebuilding of a mile of old track on Central avenue.

In discussing this matter of improvement with General Manager Muir yesterday, Mr. Huntington stated that, with the completion of the work on Maple and Central avenues, practically every mile of Los Angeles Railway track has been rebuilt within the past year. The work now under way will be completed by October 1. This means that by that date all the old trackage in the system at the time it was purchased by the Huntington-Hellman syndicate less than two years ago has been replaced by a new, modern track. And, moreover, it is to be remembered that every joint has been cast-welded, with the exception of a small amount of such work, which is now under way and being pushed to completion as fast as possible.

It may be truly said that the roadbed of the Los Angeles Railway Company cannot be surpassed in America. This is something that few people realize, and the same statement may be made regarding equipment in general and cars in particular.

Mr. Huntington is justly proud of the magnificent new coaches now running on all his lines.

"It is an interesting fact," said he yesterday, "that New York City is still using street cars with a seating capacity of twenty-four passengers, while our shops here have just finished rebuilding thirty-four coaches seating twenty-six passengers so that now they seat forty-two—an increase of a little more than 60 per cent. in seating capacity. All of our cars now in regular service are double-truck, double-motor combination cars, and there remain but four single-truck combination cars, which will only be used as emergency may demand."

WORK ON VIADUCT.

Bids were asked yesterday on work looking to the immediate reconstruction of the long viaduct on the Downey avenue line of the Los Angeles Railway Company. On this viaduct still remains about a half a mile of old-style track, which will be removed when the structure is strengthened and rebuilt. The new tracks will be of the construction.

SWITCHING TOWER.

The Union Iron Works has been awarded the contract for erecting the switching tower to be built by the Los Angeles Railway Company at the corner of First and Spring streets.

DESERT SANDS FLY.

Work has begun in dead earnest on the Salt Lake road out of Daggett. It is stated by the John H. Norton Company that next week one hundred men will probably be in camp making the sand fly in the cause of progress.

"As soon as the present camp is thoroughly organized and equipped," said Mr. Norton yesterday, "we shall start another until we hope to have 700 to 1000 men at work. The nights have already begun to get cool on the desert. We are having some difficulty in getting enough men and teams. The shutting down on work of the Santa Fé in New Mexico has, fortunately, given us a good supply of experienced railroad builders, who have been eager to go to work at Daggett."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The Epworth League of the First Methodist Church held its annual business meeting Tuesday evening in the league rooms. The yearly reports were presented and showed a prosperous condition of affairs in all the different departments. There are at present 322 members—the largest number ever recorded in the society's history. Over $1000 has passed through their hands for charitable and missionary purposes and for the printing of their monthly paper, The Harvester. Forty-two conversions have occurred at their altars. The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year is as follows: President, Don Fallis; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. D. Burch, Walter H. Fisher, Mrs. Stella Weaver; Dr. Ira H. Peters; secretary, Ralph Hamlin; treasurer, John J. Rutherford.

Class Amusements.

"Don't you think the amusements of many society people are very nonsensical?"

"Sometimes," answered Miss Cayenne, "but not as nonsensical as the amusements of those people who amuse themselves by imagining how society people amuse themselves."—(Washington Star.

FOR BIG BAPTIST TABERNACLE AND CONVENTION HALL COMBINED.

A PROPOSITION is on foot to build a magnificent tabernacle to be used as a church and a convention hall, and the support of moneyed and influential citizens is back of the gigantic scheme, to be undertaken by a big private corporation.

The proposition is the outgrowth of endeavors on the part of the trustees of the Temple Baptist Church to formulate practical plans for building a self-supporting church and office building along the lines of the Tremont Temple in Boston. It was the scheme of C. R. Harris, chairman of the Board of Trustees of this church, to purchase a piece of property extending through from Broadway to Spring at some point between Fourth and Seventh streets, and to erect thereon office buildings fronting on each street with a tabernacle between.

At the suggestion of Hon. Charles Silent, chairman of the Convention Hall Committee, it is now proposed to float the proposition on a much larger scale and build a combined tabernacle and convention hall which will seat 5000 people. Mr. Silent suggested that this enterprise might obviate the necessity of the issuance of bonds by the city for the proposed municipal convention hall, which some citizens think it would not be feasible for the city to try at this time, inasmuch as the sewer bonds still remain unsold.

The project has been fully discussed by the Board of Trustees of the Temple Baptist Church, and was presented at the general business meeting of the church members Tuesday evening, at which there was a large attendance. The opinion of both the Board of Trustees and the meeting was unanimously in favor of the enlarged project as suggested by Mr. Silent. Upon the organization of the company the church offers to take a 99-year lease of the temple.

The proposed structure is to be known as the Temple Building, and will cost about $750,000. If constructed on lines now proposed it will extend from Spring to Broadway, a distance of 230 feet, and will be 150 feet wide if a piece of property of this size can be obtained. Fronting on each street will be an eight-story office building 90 feet deep, and between these two the temple will be situated. There will be about 200 offices in the two buildings, unless a lease is effected for a large department store to occupy the first four stories on both streets. Overtures for such a lease have already been branched, and the mercantile company, which declines to allow the mention of its name, has agreed to take a bunch of stock in the project. These business sections will be semi-fire proof and will be modern in every detail.

LIKE THE MORMON TABERNACLE.

The design of the temple is along the same lines as the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake, what is known as the bake-oven structure, and in addition to the ground floor will have two galleries extending on three sides. The oval construction is to be of steel with a vaulted roof made almost entirely of glass. The entire temple is to be plain and simple, prettily decorated but with no ornamentations to obstruct the sound, and its construction will be along those lines which should secure perfect acoustics. Situated as it is planned, no noises from the street or outside could mar the quiet of the secluded auditorium.

The structure will be mechanically ventilated and brilliantly lighted with electricity. Ingress is to be had from both streets and access to the galleries will be by inclined planes. The arrangement is to be such that the temple may be emptied in a few minutes, and easy access to all parts of the house will be afforded.

The plans call for a basement under the temple which is to be fitted up with lecture and social rooms and will have a high ceiling. It is proposed to have reading rooms, a coffee parlor and a night educational school in this basement. The building will be steam heated throughout.

"Not the least attractive feature of the temple will be the organ, which may not be the finest in the world, but will be a grand instrument, upon which Clarence Eddy would be proud to play," said Mr. Harris, "and it will probably be built right here."

Mr. Harris is a mechanical engineer, and although he has drawn up rough plans, he will not be the architect. The project will be placed in the hands of architects in the very near future, and only the final action of the board of trustees is necessary before going ahead. Mr. Harris has been a member of the Baptist church all his life and has offered his services gratis.

"This project from start to finish," said Mr. Harris, "is to be in the interests of the general public along moral, spiritual and educational lines; and while we maintain that the investment will pay 5 per cent. or over, we want it understood that it is not promoted simply as a money-making scheme. There are to be no promoters' stock, high salaries or 'graft' in it, and we shall hope for support from the general public and look for a subsidy from the property owners in the neighborhood of the location of this building.

NO PRIZE FIGHTS.

"The temple will be used only for clean entertainments. There will be no prize fights or vaudeville allowed, but the patronage of high-class vocal and instrumental companies will be solicited. We expect to inaugurate a series of semi-weekly educational lectures and entertainments, especially planned for scholars and students, the rate of admission to be as low as possible."

Ten days ago Mr. Harris returned from a special trip to Salt Lake City, where he went to take measurements and data of the temple on which this structure is to be modeled.

WHAT BURDETTE SAYS.

Robert J. Burdette is full of the project and Mrs. Burdette is equally enthusiastic. "It may look as if this church has joined 'the rainbow chasers,' but we mean business and are going to send a skyrocket after that rainbow," said Mr. Burdette last night. "It is something which the city grievously needs and the undertaking should be indorsed by the clergy, the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, School Board and all citizens. Such a building is a greater public benefit than a free trolley. It is an undertaking too splendid to be monopolized in its benefits by one denomination—it belongs to Los Angeles and this era of great things."

THE TABERNACLE AT SALT LAKE CITY AFTER WHICH IT IS PROPOSED TO MODEL THE LOS ANGELES "TEMPLE BUILDING."

HIS GAY SONGSTRESS WAS TOO LONESOME.

THE STORY told in The Times yesterday morning of the divorce of the gay and beautiful songstress, Mrs. Emma Moffatt, from her husband, Joseph Moffatt of this city, revived long-forgotten talk concerning her.

During the days when she was solicitor and collector for the East-Side News, a local weekly paper published by her first husband, Frank Dyer, in East Los Angeles, her persuasive powers, it is said, were as apparent in that line of business as they have been in her career a a vocalist. The effect seems to have been much the same; for Dyer, who plodded along in the print-shop while she mixed freely with the patrons, became jealous of her popularity with certain of her male acquaintances, and that was the beginning of the end of Dyer's dream of happiness with his beautiful mate, for the divorce soon followed.

Other stories relate to her career as the proprietor of a millinery store on Spring street, after her marriage to Moffatt, where it is alleged that during temporary absences of her husband from the city there used to be gay doings. Mr. Moffatt himself says that he found it necessary to call her attention to some of these things upon his return from a five weeks' business trip to Texas.

"I don't want to do or say anything that would be unjust to my wife or anyone mentioned in connection with her," he said. "I want to be on the right side, and then it won't trouble me afterwards. If they do wrong they will discover it sooner or later and will have only themselves to blame. In all our married life there was never a word of dissension between my wife and myself, except when I a few times took her to task for some indiscretion, and she always said she was sorry, and that was the end of it.

"When she went away, more than a year ago, I drove her to the depot in my buggy behind two fine horses, and no woman could have been more loving than she was. If she gets into trouble I am as ready as ever to do what I can to help her."

Mr. Moffatt, as has been stated, is a large producer of honey and has been for many years. He now owns 250 stands of bees, his apiaries being scattered over a large district, ranging in distances of from five to twenty-five miles from the city. He is a gentleman of the very highest character, and his integrity has never been questioned; his adoration of his beautiful wife amounts almost to worship, and he refuses to utter a syllable in criticism of her actions. Her shortcomings he attributes to the influence of others over her and not to her own desires.

His business necessarily demands that he spend most of his time among the bees on some lone mountain-side or mesa, and, to say the least, it would be remarkable if a woman of Mrs. Moffatt's temperament and talent would care for a life so nomadic. Consequently she was largely dependent upon her own resources for entertainment.

Mr. Moffatt's favorite place of residence when in the city is in a small, plain, two-story house out on Hamilton avenue. The surroundings are very unattractive; all around are the gaunt specters of lowering oil derricks close upon the little house; in the place where the dooryard ought to be looms up a thousand-barrel tank, and the day and the night are made hideous by the groanings and creakings of the pumping-jacks.

A less talented, attractive and flattered woman than Mrs. Moffatt could scarcely be expected to choose such a home.

MOFFATT, THE BEE MAN AND HIS MAPLE AVENUE HOME.

COL. GRIFFITH'S SON IS TAKEN FROM HIM.

COL. GRIFFITH'S son is to be taken away from him and given to some person whom the sick mother shall choose. This was the order of Superior Judge Trask yesterday in the divorce suit begun by Mrs. Griffith.

This son, Vandell, has been Col. Griffith's companion since the tragic shooting of Mrs. Griffith, and even accompanied him to the arraignment in the City Justice Court.

He is 15 years old and has the privilege, in case he should be dissatisfied with his mother as guardian, of asking the court to appoint a new one. He can choose his own guardian with the court's approval.

As Mrs. Griffith is, of course, unable to care for the boy, he will probably be turned over temporarily to the care of Mrs. Jennie Mesmer, the widow of Louis Mesmer.

As soon as Mrs. Griffith can possibly come to court, the divorce proceedings will be rushed and the question of the permanent custody of the child will come up.

Yesterday Col. Griffith was served with the order of the court tying up all his property, pending the divorce proceedings.

To the astonishment of his wife's lawyers, it was found that he only holds one piece of property worth about $1200 in his own name. All the rest has been assigned to the Briswalter Land and Water Company, of which he is president. The restraining order of Judge Trask was directed against this company and also against the Art Tile Company, of which he is president.

He was served yesterday about 1 o'clock at the office of his attorney, Charles Silent. The person who served the papers asked him who the secretary of the Briswalter Land and Water Company is. Col. Griffith looked at him coldly and passed on into the office without making any reply.

WALKING DELEGATE BOUNCED FROM CAFE.

LAUGHED AT BY WAITERS WHEN HE ORDERED STRIKE.

Attempt to Get up a Walkout Leads to Discomfiture of Trouble-maker. Turned Down by His Union and Turned Out by the Boss.

A walking delegate "called out" the waiters at the Palace Café yesterday. He did his stunt in the most melodramatic manner. The only thing that slightly marred the perfect success of his scheme was that none of the waiters would strike.

The mean things gave him a loud and derisive laugh, so he had to do all the striking himself. Be it ever so painful, it must be said in common candor that this left much to be desired in the way of a strike.

This walking delegate is a fellow named Douglas, who lives off the Waiters' Union, and is expected to stir up trouble once in a while.

Douglas thought he had a "telepathic" message telling him that the Palace waiters wanted to strike. He thought the reason they wanted to strike was because they wanted to work five days and be paid six full days' wages. As a matter of fact, they have no such fool ideas. Douglas's wirelesses were crossed.

He has been hanging around the Palace for some time trying to make trouble. Last night his bluff was called.

J. Felber, one of the proprietors of the Palace, spoke to him courteously and told him that they could not grant the demands he had made, although they offered some concessions.

Douglas became offensive and Felber lost all patience with him.

"All right," he said at last, "go ahead. Call the waiters out now. Do it now. Here they all are."

Chagrined, Douglas sneaked over to where some of the waiters were standing, enjoying the fun. He begged them to please come ahead and strike.

They laughed at him and turned away.

That would have been enough for the average man, but Douglas saw ahead the horrible fate of having to work for a living if he couldn't make a better bluff than that.

He hung around the café. After a while he got on the other side of the half barrier that fences the Palace in two and began haranguing the waiters there near the ladies' tables.

Felber saw him and marched him out by the shoulder. At the door they had a short heart-to-heart talk.

Felber said: "Now, see here! I don't want you ever to come down here again. I gave you the chance to call out our waiters. Now get out!" Douglas got.

He skulked around the place for a long time and one of his henchmen tried to stop the men who came on duty at 5 o'clock in the evening. They gave about the same answer, showing that the men in the café refused to strike because they were satisfied and did not want to strike.

The men of the night shift shoved the walking delegates contemptuously to one side and went to work.

THINK "SUNSET" IS TRYING TO JOB 'EM.

THE Home Telephone people think harsh "thinks" of their rivals, whose hairy hand they see in W. P. Jeffries's suit.

As previously reported, Jeffries has filed an application for a writ of mandate upon the Home Telephone Company to compel that concern to exhibit its books.

The document alleges that Jeffries went repeatedly to the secretary of the company in an effort to get a look at the books, which he claims is his right as a stockholder, but the secretary refused him admission to the records.

The disgruntled stockholder's attorney affirms that the stock of the company is all held by Messr. Marble, Metzger and Adams of the Adams-Phillips Company, who, it is further affirmed, rule the roost because of the large number of shares they control.

In reply Thomas W. Phillips, secretary and treasurer of the Adams-Phillips Company, declared yesterday that the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company is behind Jeffries and his attorney in a scheme to harass the Home people.

"Jeffries bought a pooling certificate for five shares some time ago," said Mr. Phillips, "and after the transfer of the stock Lawler came around and wanted to see the pooling agreement, which he was shown. We decided that Lawler was using Jeffries as a cover for a foreign corporation that has continuously exhibited the desire to harass the Home company. The purpose of the pooling plan represented by the three of us mentioned in the complaint is to protect the niterests of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Jeffries, who holds just five shares of stock, is the only one who has ever objected to the pooling agreement.

"So far, everything that the Sunset people have done to harass us has proven a boomerang."

The officials of the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company disclaim any connection with the matter.

FREE-LUNCH RIVAL NOW IN FULL BLAST.

COFFEE CLUB TO COMPETE WITH THE SALOON.

Not a Money-making Scheme and an Appeal is Made to Charitable People to Help Put it on Self-sustaining Basis.

The Los Angeles Coffee Club, which the management announces as the rival of the saloon, is now ready for business, at No. 133 East Second street.

The room, which is 25x50 feet, has been handsomely fitted up as a restaurant, with counter and chairs running the entire length of one side, but as the Coffee Club is designed to rival the saloon in other ways beside furnishing drinks and lunch—at least two-thirds of the large room is open space for chairs and tables for the comfort of men who may wish to pass their leisure time in a pleasant place, free from the surroundings of the saloon—a place where they will find a welcome, even though they go there not to buy.

As an offset to the free lunch set up by the saloons, for those persons who buy a glass of beer, the Coffee Club offers for 5 cents, choice of drinks—coffee, tea, milk, cocoa, lemonade, hot milk or buttermilk—with choice of bread and butter or any kind of rolls or cakes. There are also many other healthful and nourishing dishes that may be secured for a nickel, including baked beans and soup with bread and butter, ice cream or ice cream soda.

There will be no cooking done in the room, but such things as must be kept warm will be kept on a gas-heated table, and for 10 cents may be had hot baked beans, hot coffee and bread and butter; or hot soup, bread, butter and dessert; or soup, baked beans, bread and butter. Thus it will be seen that a hungry man can get a pretty solid meal for ten cents, with the guarantee of having everything pure and clean, which seems to bear out the claim that the Coffee Club is not a money-making scheme, but designed to simply counteract the influence of the saloon free lunch, and provide in addition reading-matter, games, parcel checks and other conveniences without charge.

For several months the venture is not expected to be self-sustaining and an appeal is made to charitable people to lend it their aid during this crucial period, in the belief that it will rescue many men from the saloon and eventually become self-sustaining because of the large patronage it will attract.

The officers are Paul C. Brown, president; F. D. R. Moote, vice-president; E. E. Bacon, secretary; George W. Parsons, treasurer; R. W. Bailey, correspondent, No. 411 West Twenty-second street. These, with the following, form the board of directors: O. D. Courey, C. A. Faithful, C. N. Hand, J. O. Smith. H. C. Morse is the manager in charge of the club, assisted by J. W. Smith. Mr. Morse has had a wide experience as hotel steward and restaurant manager, and it is thought he will be able to handle the new venture economically and successfully.

Persons may become members of the club by paying any sum they feel inclined from $1 up, but the only benefit that accrues to a member is the privilege to vote in the business meetings of the association.

FOR OILED STREETS.

Council Committee Inspects Work Done and Will prepare Specifications Governing Use of Crude Petroleum.

In furtherance of the plan to use oil more extensively for sprinkling streets, Councilmen Skilling, Kern and Farish spent yesterday afternoon in inspecting thoroughfares that have already been treated with oil. The three Councilmen named form a special committee charged with the duty of preparing specifications governing the use of oil on street surfaces.

Two blocks on South Union avenue have been treated with oil as an experiment, the Council having set aside $300 for the purpose. The street was harrowed and sprinkled with oil and then with sand. The committee was favorably impressed with its appearance yesterday. A hard, dustless street has been formed and it is thought the surfacing will wear well.

Councilman Farish estimates that at the present price of oil it will cost from $600 to $700 a mile to treat the street surfacing with oil in a proper manner.

Considerable difficulty is foreseen by the committee in preparing specifications as different quantities of oil and different methods of application are required by different kinds of soil.

AT NEW YORK HOTELS.

Welcome to the Honored Chief of Grand Army of the Republic.

MADE THEM HAPPY.

"THAT is my old colonel and his wife," huskily whispered an old warrior last night with intense emotion as he shakily grasped the hand of a comrade to whom he was confiding. This veteran had just loosened, with reluctance, and tears in his eyes, the firm right hand of his comrade of other days, Gen. John C. Black, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the tears had been made almost to overflow by the second greeting of the latter's good wife, who remembered the comrade as if he had been a lost relative.

This was one of the many pleasant incidents that occurred during the hour while the stalwart, dignified, kindly commander-in-chief and his mate stood in the reception rooms of the Chamber of Commerce last night and shook hands with the throng that gathered to bid them welcome.

Gen. Black arrived yesterday morning from San Francisco on the Owl and was escorted to the Van Nuys Hotel by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce and the local G.A.R. posts. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, accompanied by the members of the committees, he was taken to the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle by electric car, returning in time to take a short rest before appearing at the public reception at 8 o'clock in the evening.

The special committee of the Chamber of Commerce consisted of Maj. John H. Norton, chairman; Gen. H. G. Otis, Maj. E. F. C. Klokke, Col. W. H. Holabird, Gen. C. C. Allen, Capt. J. D. Fredericks and Col. J. E. Brady. The G.A.R. committee consisted of Dr. H. H. Bartlett, chairman; J. M. Guinn, W. S. Daubenspeck, Sam Kutz, John Cross, Charles F. Derby and A. J. Bell. In addition to these a general reception committee was appointed for the evening reception consisting of the following named: Hon. J. W. Eddy, W. C. Patterson, Albert Cohn, G. F. Conant, C. F. Adam, A. M. Brown, H. L. Knight, A. A. Eckstrom, B. F. Allen, F. L. Allen, E. A. Beardslee, D. Bonoff, D. Botiller, Gen. E. Bouton, W. W. Bowen, J. H. Braly, G. D. Cadwallader, Edward Chambers, T. B. Clark, J. E. Cook, A. J. Crookshank, W. E. Cummings, M. J. Daniels, Dr. J. H. Davidson, H. G. Dean, H. F. Despars, Col. J. W. F. Diss, W. H. Dotty, M. N. Edwy, A. P. Griffith, W. A. G. Harris, F. J. Hale, Abbot Kinney, Z. D. Mathues, C. A. Miller, L. E. Mosher, T. W. Phillips, William Pridham, C. O. Valentine, George Rice, E. S. Shattuck, H. Siegel, S. T. Clover, J. H. Haskell.

At 5 o'clock Gen. Black and family were escorted in carriages from the hotel to the Chamber by Gen. Otis, Dr. Bartlett, Capt. Cross and Gen. Barrett. The members of the family were Mrs. Black and two daughters, Mrs. Vrooman and Miss Black. After an ovation to the party from the assembled public Gen. Otis briefly introduced the distinguished guest, calling forth a second round of applause by his reference to the commander's honorable service in the cause of his country, and his present exalted position as the head of the noble host that had defended the republic in its hour of need.

Speaking with admirable distinctness and eloquence, Gen. Black responded with words that brought forth frequent outbursts of pleasure from his hearers.

"I wish to thank this splendid audience, comprised alike of soldiers, citizens and ladies, for the extremely generous welcome it has accorded me," he said. "And I must especially address myself to my soldier comrades assembled here, for while we are all citizens equal, perhaps, in our love of country, the meeting of men who have communed together with death, who have suffered all losses side by side in defense of the flag, is the tenderest of all reunions. In a special sense am I glad to be here with my fellows who have planted the flag on the shores of republic that you helped to save has begun, and will continue to flow until the whole great Pacific will be an American sea of peace and commerce."

Gen. Black closed his eloquent tribute to California and to the nation by inviting all to shake his hand in an informal way and let him become acquainted with them; and scarce a man, woman or child left the building until they had received a personal greeting from the typical American soldier and veterans and their friends, eager to greet the new commander.

Among those who accompanied Gen. Black were: Gen. E. Bouton, Maj. W. H. Bonsall, Gen. Sheldon, Gen. H. G. Otis, Gen A. W. Barrett, Col. C. F. Derby, Capt. John Cross, Dr. H. H. Bartlett, Sam Kutz, A. J. Bell, J. M. Guinn, Col. W. S. Daubenspeck, Maj. Brady, Paul de Longpré, Capt. H. D. Field, Rev. D. B. Shuey. Besides those who occupied seats on the stage,

In a special sense am I glad to be here with my fellows who have planted the flag on the shores of our ultimate sea. And yet it is not the ultimate sea in the sense that it is our bound, for I believe that in the fullness of time, with the favor of the Almighty, the glorious ideals and principles that constitute the American republic will forge on until they dominate the globe. I do not believe that a permanent check to these principles is ever possible, for the American soldier has seated that fundamental principle, liberty, beside his republic on her high throne.

"Forty-one years ago this month this great nation was as a man sore stricken with many wounds. From its veins the blood had been drained, sapping its vitality. Down on the peninsula in Virginia there had been fought those battles that, for a time, made many men doubt the outcome of the fierce conflict in which they were engaged.

"Then, in the hour of extremity, of ebbing vitality, when every hospital in Northern Virginia was filled with our stricken soldiers, and the graveyards were heaped with our dead, there came to us from the far Pacific shore, as if on the wings of the lightning, that message telling us that California had raised $100,000 in gold for our soldiers. More invigorating than relief was the message of substantial loyalty from the hearts of the young State way over here. By it we knew that California, though young and afar off, had stood true for the land of its fathers, and since that day the name of this State has been dear to the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic. And so tonight I am glad to bring you greeting from the whole host.

"You are now beginning the harvest of what you sowed then. Over your mountains, down your valleys and through your ports the wealth of the republic that you helped to save has begun, and will continue to flow until the whole great Pacific will be an American sea of peace and commerce."

Gen. Black closed his eloquent tribute to California and to the nation by inviting all to shake his hand in an informal way and let him become acquainted with them; and scarce a man, woman or child left the building until they had received a personal greeting from the typical American soldier and veterans and their friends, eager to greet the new commander.

J. Bell, J. M. Guinn, Col. W. S. Daubenspeck, Maj. Brady, Paul de Longpré, Capt. H. D. Field, Rev. D. B. Shuey. Besides those who occupied seats on the stage, were Gen. O. H. LaGrange, Maj. T. J. Cochrane, Maj. H. E. Hasse, Capt. S. P. Reber, Dr. H. G. Burton. Ladies of the party who occupied seats in the box of Mrs. O. H. LaGrange were Mrs. H. G. Otis, Mrs. Hartwell, past department president, and Miss Hartwell, Mrs. J. C. Black and Misses Black.

Gov. LaGrange introduced Gen. Black with an eloquent tribute which called forth a great outburst of enthusiasm. Gov. LaGrange said:

"Members of the Pacific Branch: I have today the pleasure and the honor to introduce to you a citizen who has always been a partisan, but only because partisanship could best enforce the patriotism which is the basis of his character; a citizen who has held many places of trust and honor from his fellow citizens, and has never left a duty or a trust without the regret of those he served and the loyal affection of those who served with him or under him; a man who for twelve years worked for the Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, and helped to make it the monument it is of the nation's generosity and gratitude. I introduce a soldier without fear and without reproach, who has suffered for the cause he loved as much as any soldier who has lived or died, and who, instead of being soured and narrowed and embittered by years of suffering, has grown sweeter and broader and stronger and better with each year of pain, and who has now reached an honor equal in my judgment to any honor that can be attained by any American, the honor of being by unanimous choice the commander of the survivors of the grandest army that the world has seen—the Grand Army of the Republic—Gen. John C. Black."

When the applause had subsided, Gen. Black addressed the veterans at length. A brief reception and refreshments followed.

Your Wife

Can be provided with an annual income for life, in event of your death, at less cost than you can make the same provision for your children.

The low rate makes very attractive this form of contract, devised and introduced by The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

On August 7, 1899, a young business man of New York took out Policy No. 1,038,743 in favor of his wife. He paid three premiums of $698.40 and in September, 1902, he died. The Company at once paid his widow $1000, and will continue to pay her that amount annually as long as she lives.

TREATMENT FOR

The Exact Cause

I Wait For My Fee Until You Are Cured.

Good Results are Not Had by Guessing, but by Knowing What to do and How to Do It.

I am able to say this through the many who have found a cure under my plan of treatment. I do not produce temporary relief, but remove the "EXACT CAUSE" responsible for the condition. Patients who have been disappointed, and who have had chronic conditions follow improper treatment will find a cure in my treatment. It is personally applied and every application is effective. You will note improvement from the first, which will be the beginning of a permanent cure and a re-establishment of functional order. Many weakened conditions are directly traceable to rectal troubles which have been neglected or entirely overlooked. My examinations are such that I am able to detect the exact location and condition requiring treatment.

Contracted Diseases

Become chronic through improper treatment, painful, caustic remedies are the direct cause of stricture, ulceration and deep-seated inflammation of the urinary tract. Chances are that every case now chronic could have been cured in one week to ten days with the right treatment scientifically applied. I am confident I cure these ailments more quickly than anyone, and with less pain and inconvenience to patients.

Varicocele

My treatment affects a cure in 4 to 6 days, and the cure will be PERMANENT. Normal circulation is quickly restored, the pulsing cease, swelling subsides, the patient's strength and vitality improves immediately.

Not by Mail

My treatment is reliable and gets at the "EXACT CAUSE" and condition. It does what others have failed to do. I accomplish more in a few days' time than can ever be accomplished by guessing through the mail.

Weakness

Decline of functional activity, strength and vitality is nearly always traceable to a disturbance in the functions of the reproductive system. Under my treatment functional equilibrium is restored, the nerve irritation reduced, the circulation is increased and strength renewed. My cures are absolute and permanent.

PROFESSOR CLARK SAYS OUR WESTERN SCHOOLS LEAD.

Head of Department of Public Speaking Tells of Revival of Interest in Proper Reading and Speaking—Will Address Southern California Teachers.

Prof. S. H. Clark, head of the Department of Public Speaking in the University of Chicago, is in Los Angeles with his two little sons. His visit is purely one of pleasure and recreation, and he is making the most of his time in the enjoyment of the many trips around the city.

Prof. Clark arrived in California about ten days ago, and has visited San Diego, Santa Catalina, Mt. Lowe and other points. He will spend the remainder of the week in Los Angeles, and will then go north.

The professor, who has been connected with the University of Chicago since its founding, is, as he expresses it, the representative of "a lost art," that of correct reading and speaking.

Prof. Clark is enthusiastic over his work; and speaks most encouragingly of the revival of interest in the art of good reading and public speaking.

"It is a lamentable fact," said he, when seen last night at his hotel, "that Americans have almost lost the art of correctly interpreting the printed page by the human voice. It is simply remarkable how few people there are who can read aloud in an intelligible manner. And it is a well-known fact that on the line of instruction in reading our public schools find their weakest point. It is a fact that it has become almost a lost art."

But the professor preaches the revival of the antiquities, so to speak, and he sees ahead a great change in the courses of instruction of public schools and colleges. "The University of Chicago has made a prominent feature of this department," said he, "and I have noted with much pleasure the interest developing in it among the western educational institutions within the past few years. In fact, the West has led in this matter; and the slow, conservative East is just beginning to awaken to the importance of a thorough revision of methods in this line.

"Our idea is not that which is generally understood by 'elocution,' for the phases generally understood to be combined in this much-abused word we lay little stress upon. It is our aim to develop the individual merits of each student, and not to make each conform to a set or rigid system of rules. Public speaking has been given a prominent place in the work; and has developed the student's ability to think and express his ideas while on his feet.

"It would be difficult for me to give you an idea of the scope of the work we are accomplishing, in a few words, but the movement for better methods of instruction, and a revival of the art of properly interpreting the printed page is now one of the prominent movements before the educational world."

This is the second visit of Prof. Clark to Los Angeles. He was here the past winter, and he was so charmed with the country that he decided to come again for his vacation.

He will be here again at the meeting of the Southern California Teachers' Association during Christmas week when he will address that body; and he will then go from here to San Francisco to speak before the State Educational Association on the proper methods of teaching reading and literary interpretation.

His Great Mistake.

"Go West, my son," said the Eastern broker, "and dispose of that worthless stock to the guileless Westerners."

Three weeks later the father received the following telegram from his son:

"I followed your instructions, but you made a great mistake. They don't do business that way out here. Telegraph me $50,000 to make good their losses or ship me a coffin by express."

After mature reflection the father sent the money with this comment:

"Advice was all right, but you went too far West."—[Chicago Post.

Facts of Their Own Combines Are Now Presented.

How Over Defunct Linemen's Strike—Some of Its Shameful Lawlessness.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—"What do you want us to do? Do you want us to do this to help the linemen who are on but their strike?" This was the caustic response of Andrew Furuseth, labor leader, and secretary of the Sailors' Union, in the open meeting of the San Francisco Labor Council, when that body was asked last Friday night to call a meeting to back up the strike.

"If you want us to help them get back easy?" he continued, "just as we helped the cooks and waiters down south when they lost their strike, after establishing a cooperative soup house and putting the treasury of what money was left in it?"

Ever since the row began, but Furuseth was too well versed in the ways of labor unionists to be stopped, and continued his denunciation of those who were imposing on the public in the hope of bolstering up a bad cause.

"If the linemen have lost their strike against the Pacific States Telephone Company is plain, not only to the Labor Council, but to the public at large. Notwithstanding the malicious work of scabs working linemen, and the cutting of wires and cables by hired men imported for the purpose of injuring the company, the service in San Francisco has not been impaired, and the company not only has all the men it needs, but has applications from hundreds of others who would be glad to get to work if a place could be made for them.

HARMFUL LAWLESSNESS.

"There has been anything but a peaceful strike, notwithstanding the constant protestations on the part of the strikers and their backers that no violence has been resorted to by the union. In Oakland there has been almost a state of war every time a lineman went up a pole, and in San Francisco the only way in which the company could do anything was by sending heavy guards of men, whose numbers were such that the strikers were overawed. The police have been as partial toward the strikers in this city as they have been in all other cases. Their action during the present strike, when they permitted scabs to be abused, dragged from cars and bespattered with filth and insults without interference, is duplicated in this strike. Men who worked have been assaulted and insulted by gangs of hoodlums, while the sworn officers of the law lolled against a lamp post on the corner.

"Indeed, a working lineman was dragged by a mob of toughs, dragged from a car and beaten so badly that his life was despaired of, while a policeman saw the whole operation without raising a hand in the victim's defense. Another working lineman was attacked by a mob of strikers and drew his gun in self-defense. He was arrested by the vigilant policeman and dragged before the Police Court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The assailants were not disturbed in their lawless amusement. The lineman was fined for carrying the gun, when it was conclusively shown that his life was constantly threatened by strikers.

INGENIOUS DEVILTRY.

"There are but two instances out of innumerable ones which might be cited to show the peaceable methods of the present strike. Men have been assaulted, stoned, beaten and insulted every day, and it was only after the most strenuous effort that the telephone company prevailed on the chief of police of Oakland to send a guard with the linemen, and their lives were cared for by the municipality. In San Francisco no police guard was done away with, and the squads of linemen were obliged to protect themselves, and every midnight has a wholesome scrap in it when who will protect them-

July 29 and September 1, have cut 1540 wires of the company. It is a significant many of these wires were short circuited on or near both poles of the Western company, whose men are not on strike, but are members of the union which is striking on the telephone company.

"These wires have been cut or maliciously interfered with after has been done by experts, exclusively that it was done by men who knew the business. It is laid at the doors of hoodlums or men who have no knowledge of electrician's art. Cables have been cut in places where none but experienced linemen would know where the greatest damage, could be done by short-circuited and crossed in such manner that it required the time of an expert to find the damage. Wires that were the property for the business of the company have been the ones selected, and the effort has been to cripple the long-distance service, showing that it has been done by men who are well acquainted with the plans of the company; and knew exactly where to strike them hardest.

"Much might be written showing the devilish ingenuity of the strikers in their efforts to cripple the company. It would be but a repetition of the manner where wires were cut or crossed, or where they were crossed with high power, or electric light wires in order to make them dangerous to those handling them. Crossed wires between high power wires have in some cases set fires in the central office, and in one instance a telephone operator was badly injured by the shock received over the wires.

STRIKERS CAN'T CRAWL.

"While the strike is lost, so far as the company's union is concerned, the strikers will have to continue striking, for there is no place for them to go back to. Their places have all been filled with competent men and the business of the company is unimpaired, so far as the public at large is concerned. When the Supervisors, at the Board of Supervisors, attempted to bring about a settlement of the strike by importuning President Crocker of the company, that gentleman told them to mind their own business, as the company was getting along very nicely, thank you, and the matter was not mentioned in passing that the public was not impaired, neither Furuseth nor the Supervisors have been heard from again since their rebuff. They found that they were dealing with a man who was not disposed to "let the linemen down easy," as other strikes have been ended, "on terms satisfactory to the union."

That gag has been worked so persistently that when it is now announced that a strike has been settled "on terms satisfactory to the union," it brings a smile even to union men, who well know that it is simply another way of saying that the strikers were glad to crawl back to their old places on any old terms.

But in this instance it will be a lucky lineman who crawls back to work for the Pacific States Telephone Company. The company knows that its men here were forced out by the union to help the Los Angeles linemen, and that they were not dissatisfied with their work or their pay. The company will consider a long time before it will discharge any of the men who have stood by it during trouble, to make place for men who left it at the first sign of danger. The company also knows that striking linemen from Los Angeles are working here as non-union linemen, and that striking linemen from San Fracisco are working at other points as non-union men.

BIG BODIES AT WAR.

While the linemen are having their troubles in a small way, the big labor bodies, the San Francisco Labor Council and the Building Trades Council are almost at the point of open war. By great effort on the part of the leaders in both bodies, a conflict between the two organizations was postponed until after the Labor Day celebrations. There was imminent danger that the two parades which were scheduled to pass each other on the streets of San Francisco might cause a riot, but by hard work the leaders induced the rank and file to make a showing of friendship and cheer each other as they passed.

But that public exhibition of friendship is but a flimsy disguise of the real feeling that exists between the two organizations. The San Francisco Labor Council recently issued a circular letter to unions and the public generally, announcing that it was the only central body of organized labor in San Francisco, and to it must come all disputes regarding labor questions. This circular letter was a direct slap at the Building Trades Council, which that body will be quick to resent. It was the direct statement to the public and to labor union organizations that the body presided over by P. H. McCarthy was an outlaw organization, and that the Labor Council was ready to carry the war into the camp of the enemy.

CASE OF "DOG EAT DOG."

The fire has been smouldering for some time, and there have been many little flames smothered, but the present enmity between Furuseth and McCarthy is so bitter that the fight will be on in a very short time. The prediction has been freely made by students of labor affairs that the day was at hand when labor organizations would be fighting each other, is about to be verified in San Francisco.

The alliance between employing organizations and labor organizations has brought about conditions that make the laboring men bear the brunt of the increased expense of living. When the Milk Drivers' Union combined with the Milk Dealers' Association, and raised the price of milk in order that the wages of the drivers might be increased, a howl went up from other labor unions, and the Labor Council refused to sanction the new wage scale. That sanction, however, was not deemed necessary by the Milk Drivers' Union, and the scale went into effect because it was part of a conspiracy between the union and the owners to cinch the people.

That is but one of numerous instances where there has been a combination of employer and employé for the purpose of fighting the public, and the present controversy between the two central bodies is a part of the result. It will now be a case of "dog eat dog," and it is barely possible that there may be some benefit accruing to a long-suffering public.

The combination of Casey and McCarthy, the boss politicians of the union labor element, shows that the political end of the controversy is on one end of the fight. Casey, as president of the Teamsters' Union and president of the City Front Federation, is affiliated with the Labor Council, but he is hand in glove with McCarthy of the Building Trades Council, and has carried his feeling to such an extent that the Teamsters' Union refused to parade with the Labor Council on Labor Day. As it was not affiliated with the Building Trades Council the teamsters sulked at home and took no part in the big celebrations, which were made as exhibitions of force to further intimidate the employers.

Young Old Women.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is as exquisite as was the perfect bloom of her youth. You wonder how it is her life has been a long and happy one. Here are some of the reasons:

She knows how to forget disagreeable things.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant things.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She retained her illusions and did not believe all the world wicked and unkind.—[Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE POISE

Of a woman in perfect health attracts the eye at once. Such a woman is all too rarely seen. The most of women bear scars of suffering on their faces which no smiles can hide, and often in their very carriage betray the womanly weakness which oppresses them.

There can be no perfect health for the woman who suffers from disease of the delicate womanly organism. Her general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organs that these must be cured before the general health can be established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures womanly disorders and diseases; brightens the dull eye, rounds out the hollow cheek and gives strength for wifely duties and maternal cares.

"My health is the best now that it has been for four years," writes Mrs. Phebe Morris, of Ira, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Box 52. "I have taken but two bottles of your medicine, 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines have done me more good than all that I have ever taken before. I couldn't do my work only about half the time, and now I can work all the time for a family of four. Before I took your medicines I was sick in bed nearly half the time. My advice to all who are troubled with female weakness is to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery'—the most wonderful medicines in the world."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Before YOU go home

"Just get The Delineator"

THE OCTOBER NUMBER, now on the news-stands, answers squarely the question of supremacy among the magazines for woman and the home. In your selection of a magazine you may choose from two classes—those you need and those you read for recreation—or else you take THE DELINEATOR and combine both.

If the word "necessary" is susceptible of a superlative, THE DELINEATOR is beyond all question the "most necessary" of all the magazines published for Woman. Nine hundred thousand families proved this to be so last month; and each month brings its new thousands of members into the ever-growing DELINEATOR FAMILY.

Among the fashions it is the "most necessary" because it is all the fashion magazines in one, with their mistakes eliminated—their exaggerations corrected, and the really successful novelties stamped with the seal of authoritative approval—for if it is pictured in THE DELINEATOR it is "good form."

It is equally the "most necessary" in the Nursery—in the Sewing-Room—in the Kitchen—throughout the whole house and out-of-doors in city and in country. The partial list of contents below can only hint at the interest underlying every line.

The Evolution of a Club Woman, by Agnes Surbridge, begins in this number. It is an autobiography and is the predicted success of the year. J. C. Hemment, the world-famed camera expert, begins one of the most remarkable series of photographic articles ever presented. They relate to his personal adventures at home and in foreign lands. The Silent Partner, by Lynn Roby Meekins; A Florida Cracker, by Virginia Frazer Boyle, are prominent among the fiction features, while the departments are fuller than usual of the good things, with special interest centering in the children's page.

If the "most necessary" of the magazines for Woman is that one which helps most in every hour of "her" day and brings its after-hour of fascinating leisure-reading when the day is over, then, surely, "JUST GET THE DELINEATOR." SCHOOL FOR HOUSEWIVES---By Marion Harland

HOUSEWIFE'S EXCHANGE

By MARION HARLAND

I HAVE been married nearly two years, and have the very best husband a woman could want. May I tell you something I have found out, and that is the best thing in the world to a woman, a good man's true love? My husband's salary averages $75 per month, and we are trying to make it go as far as possible. We care very little for meat, our meat bill never being over $1.50 per month. We eat more fish than meat; and we are getting so we only eat meat or fish perhaps once or twice during the month, and sometimes wish to discontinue it altogether. We are fond of maccaroni and cheese, whole-wheat bread and eggs.

My husband's work requires him to be out of doors a great deal, and what I wish to ask is—

1. Can we retain our health and have nutritious food without meat, our "living expenses" not to exceed $15 per month? We have no children.

2. May I also ask, is there any way of cooking beans so that there is not the disagreeable after-effect? MRS. N. H.

1. Hundreds—maybe thousands—of people in our country exist and lead strenuous lives without eating meat. Eggs, milk, butter, brown and whole-wheat bread, fresh fruits, carrots, onions, tomatoes, rice, and a host of other foods, not to mention fish, make brain and brawn.

2. Soak dried beans in warm water, changing to hot at the end of two hours and setting the vessel containing them at the side of the range until you are ready to boil them. Put in a pinch of soda in cooking and simmer slowly until tender.

WILL one of the circle kindly give me instructions for making a gentleman's housewife, one of those that hang on the wall, with receptacles for needles, thread, buttons, etc.? An early answer will greatly oblige. WILSON.

I shall be happy to publish directions for making the desirable article, or to forward a pattern to the querist. I retain her address for this purpose, knowing how readily our members respond to such appeals.

AND now, as to our traveling man who wants something to rub on his body to keep off bedbugs. I would like to suggest spirits of camphor. I know this to be very effective with mosquitoes. I also take the occasion to thank the writer who suggested turning the under arm piece of silk shirt waist upside down, when worn or stained by perspiration; it has been a great help to me.

Would I like to ask a question? Do you think any flour containing worms is fit to use after being thoroughly sifted? The reason I ask is, my husband is very fond of graham, or entire wheat bread, but we have found it impossible to procure flour free from worms during July, August and September. I sift all flour, even graham, examine the hulls and then mix with the flour again. The live stock ranges all the way from a tiny flea to a full-grown worm two inches long. Being of the same color as the flour they can only be discovered by sifting. When I see the slightest trace of life I send the flour back to the store. Once a grocer said to me: "Why don't you use it after sifting out the worms? That is what they do at the mill; refill the sacks and send the flour out again!"

So, I thought I would ask you. And what is the matter with the woman who can feed from four to six people on $4 per week? I know of several wives who are waiting for specifications and rules, but no doubt she is taking a much-needed vacation after such a strenuous task! And to the lady who dresses neatly and stylishly on $16 per year I would say we can't all live on the LaGrone Island. In this country one requires a little more than two pink silk fronts, a collar and bow. Much "women make me tired," because there are some men foolish enough to believe these things and expect their wives to do the same. MRS. G. O. H.

The idea of eating flour from which larvae of assorted sizes and divers species have been sifted out is not pleasant. That sifting does not eliminate germs which may develop into visible "things" is proved by the fact that the sifted flour will be again quick with life if kept in a warm place for some days. Let me suggest that you sift the graham flour as soon as you buy it, and spread it in the sun for the whole of one hot day, turning and stirring often. This will destroy the germs.

As to "E. D.," I, too, await impatiently her menus and detailed instructions. I hope, for the sake of many who long to learn of her, that she will be heard from soon and definitely.

I AM an old lady, with hands badly crippled with rheumatism, but I feel it a call of duty to try and help "O. A." and many another young housekeeper to rid their bright new homes of ants. I have kept house fifty years, and I know the best for her (and the rest) is to throw the borax into the drain, use the pepper in chow-chow, fly-paper, and buy five cents' worth of tartar emetic. Put a pinch of it in a small dish (say individual butter dishes), one or two, wet it up with sweetened water, and stand where they are most troublesome. Put the remainder into something and label it plainly and keep for use another spring, when they may call again. If cared for as it should be you will never have to buy any more, as they hold a family consultation and agree never to visit you again. It does stick them so sick! Try it, and you will have, now and then, a grateful thought for this old aunt. I tried borax and everything else for twenty-five years. I have put borax on a piece of pie, all over it, in fact, and had it black with ants in two hours.

Hot alum water, as strong as will dissolve, is the best to rid a house of bedbugs. It is cheap, and with clean mop wet the clean floor thoroughly all around baseboard, and let it dry on, and wash bedstead legs with it as warm as hands can bear. All of the bedstead, I mean, and keep bedstead from touching the wall anywhere. It is very effectual if thoroughly used, and is not a deadly poison to be fanned about in the air by bedding and broom. I know that no housekeeper need have bedbugs. AN OLD SOLDIER'S WIFE.

What miracles of housewifery our veteran must have accomplished before her hands were disabled (?) by rheumatism! We shall be honored and glad to hear again from her.

INSTEAD of trying to teach others our way, let's cry: "Common sense and economy everywhere!" For there is no place so remote, no person, rich or poor, who cannot use the recipe. Let us learn, also, that what is economy for us is not economy for someone else. For instance, if I live in a village and board a family of five on $4 a week, or I dress on $15 or $20 a year, why should I be offering advice to a friend in the city, where prices and conditions are so unlike? Why should I be prating about my stingy husband and airing my troubles before the world? Rather set about using my influence for better at home. And, rest assured, all is well that ends well. That somebody else's recipe for a cross, stingy husband won't work with yours at all; that while other people make new clothes out of old ones, remember, you haven't the old ones; that while some people are vegetarians you would die on the diet in a month. So stop forever trying to wear someone's else hat, and get one yourself and fill it full of your own individuality and common sense. Be a period, instead of a dash!

To all that don't agree—I beg your pardon! Just one woman's view.

L. H. P.

All of us have heard of the pastor's retort to a stingy deacon who opposed missions, calling out in the meeting assembled to advance the cause, "Mr. President, charity begins at home!"

"Yes, Deacon Closefist; but it shouldn't end there!"

If each housewife were so engrossed in looking after the ways of her own affairs that she had neither word nor thought for her neighbor's welfare or perplexity, every family would be a close corporation. Nobody would ever try a new recipe; our Housewife's Exchange would starve for lack of nourishment, and—harrowing thought!—nobody would buy a new cook book!

If competition be the life of trade, consultation is the life of housewifery. If there be a better way of cleaning, of mending, of cooking, or of saving, than I know of now, it is a neighborly deed in her who has this better way to tell me of it.

As I reminded readers less than a month back, this Exchange took long ago as a motto of faith and practice: "To do good and to communicate, forget not!" It is the excuse for our being—the genius of our action.

This is the "view" of scores of women who make our Corner interesting and helpful.

That Important Question of Children's Early Friendships

IT IS natural and desirable that, to a reasonable extent, children should be allowed and encouraged to choose their own little friends.

However, the mother should consider it a part of her maternal duty to inquire into their associations, both in school and out, and to discourage such as do not appear entirely desirable.

Children do not—fortunately, in one sense—contract lasting friendships, as a rule, and the more violent the attachment in its beginning, the sooner will come its ending; hence it is not often necessary for the mother or father to interpose and break off the acquaintance in the abrupt fashion that always arouses resentment, and often provokes disobedience.

When it can be avoided—and it almost invariably can, if proper precautions be taken—this is not a wise rule to follow: for in most cases the children thus thrust apart conceive and nourish a feeling of anger against the intervening power, while their affection for each other is intensified simply through being forbidden.

The better plan is to follow up the children's little acquaintances as they are formed, and to gently nip in the bud those that were best not formed at all, taking care not to do this in a way that seems arbitrary or unjust.

Some children appear to have an unfortunate proclivity for forming undesirable friendships—often because of a too generous nature, which attracts good and bad influences alike and is incapable of perceiving the essential differences between them; and such children, of course, require more constant and careful watching and training than the more trusty ones who are less impressionable.

It is not good for any child to grow up without friends of his own choosing, since these are more likely to be after his own heart than any which can be chosen for him.

Fathers, as well as mothers, should look into their growing boys' associations; for no boy can be trusted entirely to follow his own inclinations in a matter which so closely concerns his personal welfare, while he will, if approached in the right way, feel flattered rather than annoyed by the interest his parents evince in his little affairs.

On the other hand, fathers who persistently ignore their paternal duties, and leave their young sons to their own devices, have but themselves to blame if trouble and disgrace form the sum total of the end attained.

YOUNG WIFE'S COURTESIES TO HER HUSBAND'S RELATIVES

ONE of the most difficult questions for a young wife to decide is how she shall treat her new relatives.

Sometimes, of course, her husband's and her own family have been friends for years, and she at once slips into her place as the daughter of the house, only changing dear friends into still dearer relatives; but this is not always the case.

More often she meets her husband far away from his family, and is only introduced after her marriage.

A bride should try to remember that everything depends on a first impression, and should, therefore, be careful to create a favorable one at once.

She must recollect that, whatever their failings and peculiarities are, they are her husband's people, and, as such, to be treated with respect, even if she cannot feel for them the affection she is desirous to give.

Let her try to love them as her own people; but if this is impossible, she can at least treat them with courtesy.

As a rule, however, the young wife will find her new relations only too ready to love her for her husband's sake at first, eventually for her own, and she ought to have no trouble about returning it.

SOME EXTRA GOOD RECIPES FOR READERS

String Bean Salad

Cook the beans in the usual way until tender. Strain, retaining the water in which they were cooked in another dish. Put into a frying pan a tablespoonful of butter or beef drippings. When melted sift in a tablespoonful of flour. Stew until smooth. Now add, little by little, the water you have reserved, stirring until smooth and thick. Add pepper and salt, if necessary. Remove from the fire and stir in some finely chopped parsley. The above recipe may be varied by adding lemon juice or vinegar and finely cut raw onion to taste when done. Either way is good.

MRS. B.

Tomato Welsh Rabbit

Fry or boil slices of ripe tomatoes less than half an inch thick, and lay each upon a round of buttered toast arranged upon a hot platter.

Have ready heated in a saucepan a cupful of milk slightly salted, and with a pinch of soda dropped in to prevent curdling. To this add a cupful of grated cheese, and when this has melted a dash of red pepper and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Stir until it begins to thicken, pour over the tomatoes and serve.

This is a new recipe and a nice dish for a Sunday night supper or for a family luncheon. It will be popular wherever it is introduced.

Potato Griddle Cake

(Contributed.)

Pare, wash and grate six large raw potatoes and an onion. Add salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Now add three eggs, beaten without separating whites and yolks. Fry on well-greased griddle, spreading the mixture out flat with a spoon. Serve piping hot, buttering as you eat.

N. B.—Try this when you are hungry and see if it does not "hit the spot," as my John says—only his name happens to be something else.

MRS. T. B.

Onion Fondu

Soak a cupful of fine dry bread crumbs in a cupful of milk. Heat another cupful and thicken with a tablespoonful of flour rubbed up with one of butter. Add the soaked crumbs, the beaten yolks of two eggs, a pinch of soda, salt to taste and a dash of paprika. Beat hard for a minute before stirring in a large cupful of cold boiled onions which have been run through your vegetable press. Beat two minutes and whip in the frothed whites of two eggs. Turn into a baking dish and cook in a quick oven until puffy and delicately browned. Eat at once, as it soon falls.

A Savory Rechauffe of Liver

Cut cooked calf's or lamb's liver into dice. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, add salt, pepper, paprika and onion juice. Cook till the butter is dark brown; add two teaspoonfuls of flour and enough weak stock of any kind to make a moderately thick sauce. Add a little chopped parsley, two hard boiled eggs cut fine, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the liver. Cook till the liver is heated through, take from the fire, pour in a wineglass of sherry and serve at once on slices of buttered toast.

Corn Boiled on the Cob.

Strip the husk and silk from the cob, and put over the fire in plenty of slightly salted water that is at a hard boil. Boil for twenty minutes. Drain and send to the table in a dish lined with a napkin. If the corn is old and hard it will require longer boiling.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By MARION HARLAND

I MAKE room this week for part of a strong, crisp paper from our Consulting Chemist, whose eyes and wits are ever on the alert where interests of the rising generation are involved. I regret that the communication cannot be given for lack of space. It is drawn from "Lillian's" letter, defending the phrase and the practice of "keeping company" as a subject upon which the girls of our family would seem to be peculiarly sensitive, if one may judge from the protests and the commendations I receive.

Of the "Girl of the Period" our critic says:

Her vigorous assertions and the cocksureness of her part criticisms of seniors are not really so interesting as her mental attitude toward boys (I say "men"). That is characteristic of the period. There is no modesty, no reserve, nothing of that which Goethe calls the "eternal feminine." The Girl of the Period "gets" a boy or lover, when she wants him, exactly as she gets a new shirtwaist. Both can be had—and are "got."

She probably is willing to "keep company" to try whether the young man suits her, or perchance she suits "him." If either is dissatisfied, he or she "quits" and "tries" the next, till she finds or he happens upon a "party" which will do for a "trial" in marriage. If found wanting, the divorce mills are put to work, bickering over the possession of the "kids" is publicly indulged in, and the poor of these unfortunates are ready for the next "gamble" to find their "affinity." It is too bad for the children though—or the "kids," to use the vernacular of the class of Americans, I understand, of course, that the measles and pneumonia of this sort are unavoidable—that the first result of the prevalent custom of "new" womandom must be disastrous to the brainless, the mentally ill-poised, but, as I said before, I am sorry for the children of such.

Tell me, why do our women voluntarily descend to the level of mares? Why do they?

H. W., 70 C.

Thank heaven all women do not! Yet the wise observer of the signs of the times cannot but admit that much truth underlies the caustic utterances of this man who has wife and children of his own. "One of the old-fashioned type of wife and mother," he says pridefully. The fact authorizes him to utter forth his opinions on homes and home-makers. His are no haphazard conclusions.

I AM HOPING that you will not refuse one of the daughters who consult Parents' Corner for advice.

A year from next month I am to be married. Before then I have a year of school before I graduate. When I graduate I dare say that I will be more than I do now of French, Latin and art history. Of course, these things to be well up in, but will they help me to be a better wife to him I could be now? What I would like, above all things, would be to go to a boarding school until next June—a boarding school where one can learn to darn, cook, sweep, make beds, everything, in fact, that I can use when I am housekeeping in our six-room bungalow.

My mother is dead, and for ten years father, brother, the housemaid and I have lived together. So, all I learned of housekeeping I learned from mother. I could be spared very easily next year, because my father's sister is coming to live with us, and she can take my place at the helm.

What I want you to tell me is if I have the right idea, and if there is a boarding school, and describe any place out West here, or in the East.

This well-written and earnest letter comes from California. In spite of the educational facilities of that wonderland, I cannot say with any assurance that there are not boarding schools there where the branches enumerated are taught. I know of none such East of the Rocky Mountains. Mary Lyon, in founding Mount Holyoke Seminary, had this ideal home-training in mind. I am told by graduates of that fine institution that apprenticeship to domestic service in its various branches is now a mere form, approximating a farce.

However practical the curriculum in this respect might be, it could not take the place of the housewifely education the daughter may get in her father's and her mother's kitchen. "K. R." may learn more of sewing, darning, cooking and making beds by helping the housekeeper who has had charge of the household since the death of the mistress, than in any school where these arts are taught, if there be such a school. Housewifery, as taught in classes, reminds me of Marie Antoinette playing at butter-making in the model dairy at Petit Trianon.

SOME weeks ago a lady, whose pen-name I cannot recall, referred to a string of beads which, if worn by an infant teething, was a preventive against illness. The beads during a child's second summer. She added that she was the mother of seven children, all of whom had worn the beads, and that she had never experienced any trouble in getting them past that period. She called the beads "Job's Tears." You remember that you asked "What are Job's Tears?"

I have watched the paper carefully for an answer, but have not found it. Will you kindly inquire again of the lady as to what the beads are made of? Many of my acquaintances, mothers of infants, await your reply. COMMON SENSE.

The modicum of common sense with which Nature has endowed me enables me to repudiate utterly the idea that a string of grayish beads—vegetable or animal—can make it cut teeth without pain or danger. Before you read this I shall have seen the description of these beans or nuts, and learned that they are common in the West Indies.

The name of "Job's Tears" gives a smack of superstition to the use of the beads dictated by the West Indian boy who gave them to another of our correspondents. As a curiosity they are interesting. As a help to dentition they are worthless.

WILL anything restore the brightness to coral beads that have become dull by wearing around a child's neck? MRS. M.

Wash them first with warm water and white soap and dry thoroughly. Then rub gently with a bit of flannel wrung out in olive oil. Leave them one day, shut away from the light, before polishing with soft old silk.

ANOTHER parent—this time a mother—is stirred to animated expostulation by sixteen-year-old "Lillian's" censure of her elders:

I want to thank you with all my heart for the fearless way in which you answer some of our constant readers and some of these "Smart Alecks" who think they know it all—like sixteen-year-old "Lillian," for instance. In regard to "keeping company," or rather "keeping on trial" (as you say), I fully agree with "L. H. P." and "C. O. L." Having a grown daughter myself, I think I know a little about it, and will say there is a vast difference between courting and "keeping company." In these days of organization there could be no better one consisting of parents having daughters, who forbid them to "keep company."

PIG STICKING. The Cincinnati Price Current of September 3 says there has been some gain in the supply of hogs compared with the preceding week, but the movement was not large, although considerably exceeding the moderate offerings a year ago. Total Western packing 335,000, compared with 370,000 the preceding week, and 370,000 two weeks ago. For corresponding time last year the number was 278,000, and three years ago 335,000. From March 1 the total is 10,265,000, against 9,455,000 a year ago—an increase of 750,000. The quality is somewhat variable. Prices are a little easier at the close, prompt markets averaging $5.40 per 100 pounds, compared with $5.60 a week ago, $5.45 two weeks ago, $7.25 a year ago, and $6.25 two years ago.

The speculative provision market is only moderately active the past week. The near deliveries were easier, but the deferred contracts were steady to firm. There was more interest in the lard market than in the other descriptions. For lard the market was easier in tone, and compared with a week ago quotations are higher. For the other leading articles there was no important change. There was considerable done in transfering contracts to later deliveries. Exporters bought moderately, but with more freedom than in the recent past. In the trade foreign demand is expected to improve, as prices are now on a parity with competing countries. The export clearances of product show a decrease compared with the preceding week, but there is an increase compared with the corresponding week last year.

The following shows the lowest, highest and closing prices of leading articles at Chicago for the week, for delivery indicated, and also the closing prices a week ago and a year ago:

For current delivery, green hams 10 cents selling at $9.12½@$9.25, green shoulders $8.37½@$8.50 per 100 pounds, and pickled hams at 12 pounds $11.50, shoulders $8.50@$8.75—at Chicago.

OREGON PRUNES. Reports from Portland, Or., say that the Willamette Valley Prune Association has sold a number of carloads of prunes of the crop of 1903 to European account on a 2 3-4 cent basis with a slight premium for GRAPE PRICES. Advices from Grass Valley say that Bartlett pears were taken under contract at 50 cents per box on the ground, an advance of 10 cents over last season's prices.

CANNED FRUITS. A San Francisco commercial journal says that prices are likely to go still higher for pears, peaches and apricots, for to get supplies buying from second hands will have to be made and nearly all of these do not get their full quota. The pack as a whole will be larger than in 1903. M. Phelps, manager of the California Can Company, says that this season the company's sales of canned fruit to fruit and vegetable canners aggregate from 15 to 20 per cent more than last year, notwithstanding some of the canners had a surplus over of cans.

PRUNE TALK. From San José comes the news that growers have been induced to hold for a price which will make it impossible for the packer to buy below 3c basis for Santa Claras.

PRICE NEWS. Increased activity is generally reported at the close of the New York spice market last week. There were takings more interest and buyers showed a disposition to purchase freely whatever supplies were obtainable. Cable advices from the East were very strong, and spot quotations in several varieties showed a corresponding advance. Pepper was generally ½c per pound higher and cloves 8c higher. The shipments of black pepper from Singapore and Penang during the last half of August amounted to 1,650 tons, while only three tons of cloves came to the United States.

HONEY CROP. Honey promises to be cheaper and higher this season than last. The New York State crop has been more or less injured, first by drought and then by too much rain and poor weather. California will not send as much as usual, and prices have already been advanced on honey in the quarters there. The West Indian crop is uncertain, owing to unfavorable weather, including hurricanes and excessive rains.—[New York Commercial.

A great deal of tartaric acid is made in Europe and elsewhere from the most expensive grapes. California agriculturists assert that tartaric acid produced from the most costly grades of grapes is no better than obtained from the cheaper ones.

A great deal of tartaric acid is made in Europe and elsewhere from much less expensive grapes. California agriculturists assert that tartaric acid obtained from the most costly grades of grapes is no better than obtained from the cheaper ones.

MR. HACK'S GOOD LUCK. Admission Day was celebrated by Glen W. Hack, Jr., of Compton, Hack Fruit Company, with the arrival in the morning of a bouncing baby boy. Glen W. Hack, Jr., lives at No. 2517 West Sixth street. The latter is the happiest man in the world. He isn't over smiling about it.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

Holiday activity prevailed in local produce circles during the forenoon (today) but all stores were closed at 12 o'clock noon in celebration of Admission Day. The volume of business was satisfactory, although no orders were delivered in the afternoon. Conditions in the main were not different from those of Tuesday.

Advices from the North inform dealers of a firmer feeling in Highland Burbank potatoes. This grade of spuds has been selling f.o.b. Stockton and Sacramento as low as 75 cents per hundred, but now the quotation has run up to 90 cents. When the season opened the price went up as high as $1.05, but subsequently dropped to 75 cents. Fancy potatoes for first-class grocery trade are very scarce; prices firm.

The egg situation is firm with the tendency of prices still upward for all grades. There is a consensus of opinion on the street that ranch eggs of prime quality should be selling for 28 cents, because the laying-down price of eastern stocks has advanced. Ranch receipts are not heavy, and the movement of fresh eastern and storage is heavy. But few strictly ranch eggs are selling for less than 29 cents, while eastern bring 27 cents.

Butter is steady; supplies seem to be ample, and a further advance in prices is hardly anticipated.

Cheese unchanged; local in good demand; eastern firmly held.

Yellow Danver onions at about $1 per hundred are supplying for the most part an indifferent demand.

Prices for loose Muscatel raisins in carload lots have been fixed at shipping points as follows: Two-crown, 6¼ cents; three-crown, 6¾-2 cents; four-crown, 7 cents. Prices on other varieties and packs are still awaited.

Local peanuts are not yet on the market.

Pears and plums are now prime and in good demand, as are also berries, which are unusually late.

A carload of bananas arrived this afternoon.

Fish in ample receipt, except halibut and barracuda; salmon will be out of season after today until October 16.

California ham declined ¼ cent; lard advanced ¼ for Silver Leaf and White Label. Poultry in fair demand for all kinds; young stock none too plentiful.

Hay and grain firm.

Other commodities steady at jobbing prices heretofore quoted.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Wheat showed but little activity at the opening today, and while it sold higher, influenced by firmer cables, it soon suffered a reaction on favorable advices from the Argentine, closing weak at under quotations. December showed a gain of ¼ to ¼ at 82, but dropped to 81⅝ under pressure of the early selling. The close was firm, with December ⅛ higher, at 82¼@82⅜, after having sold ¼ higher on the bulge. The failure of predicted rains to fall over the corn belt, together with easier cables, caused a weak start in corn, with local traders liberal sellers. Later in the session the upturn in wheat, with renewed predictions of frosts tonight and excessive rains, started prices upward, and the close was firm, with December at 51⅛, having sold up from 50⅝. Oats were very steady, although responding in some degree to the early slump in other grains. Commission houses were free buyers at times. December closed ⅛ higher, at 37⅛. The demand for provisions was exceedingly active, and prices showed a good advance throughout the list. Investment buying in October pork at one time sent that product up nearly 75 over yesterday's close. Final sales were at an advance of 42½, at 15.05. October lard closed 25 to 30 higher, at 8.35, while ribs were up 10 to 20, at 8.12½. The leading futures closed as follows:

DAUGHTERS AND SONS OF GOLDEN STATE.

CELEBRATE ADMISSION DAY ROYALLY AT SAN BERNARDINO.

Great Throng from Various Parts of Southern California Assembles at Urbita Springs — Patriotic Speaking and Merry-making.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 9.—The city proper was well-nigh deserted this afternoon, but there were things doing a plenty at Urbita Springs, a few miles south, where Arrowhead Parlor, No. 116, Native Sons of the Golden West, was in charge of the biggest celebration of its kind that ever happened hereabouts. Hundreds of Native Sons and Daughters from Los Angeles and points more or less distant helped swell the throngs of local Natives, and all present had the time of their lives. Special trains were run from Los Angeles, and the capacity of the electric railway on its several lines, connecting Redlands, Colton and Highland with the Springs, was taxed to the utmost. Lost Angeles, Redlands, Corona, Pomona and Downey were among the outside parlors represented.

The afternoon was devoted to a programme of music, literary exercises, sports, a watermelon spread, and dancing. John Brown, Jr., delivered an address on "The Pioneers," and Miss Eva T. Buiseuls of Los Angeles, Grand Marshal of the N.D.G.W., spoke on the subject of "The Native Daughters." The oration of the day was delivered by Hon. R. F. Del Valle of Los Angeles, on the subject, "California." Handsome prizes were awarded the winners in the different events in the programme of sports. A novel feature was a boat race on the new and enlarged lakes. The festivities concluded with a big ball at the pavilion in the evening.

The following committees were in charge:

Entertainment—W. D. Wagner, chairman; secretary and treasurer, N. K. Hersog; chairmen sub-committees, Reception, S. F. Kelley; Dancing, H. M. Willis; Sports, W. D. F. Allen; Literary, Ralph Swing; Badges, Joseph E. Rich; Refreshments, N. K. Herzog.

Reception—S. F. Kelley, chairman; W. D. Wagner, B. F. Bledsoe, F. B. Daley, F. M. Towne, C. D. Lonzo, John Anderson, Jr., I. H. Curtis, R. E. Swing, W. E. Byrne, C. E. Hammer, E. E. Katz, W. W. Brison, W. Keir, A. C. Ames, George W. Seldner.

COLTON.

PROOF OF PROSPERITY.

COLTON, Sept. 9.—The Board of Trustees met last night and transacted business, which indicates the prosperity Colton is enjoying. Resolutions were passed ordering the laying of three and a half miles of cement sidewalk on Seventh, Eighth and Ninth streets. Permission was granted to George B. Ellis to build a gas plant on a site as far west as Tenth street. The board voted to purchase of the Edison Electric Company a line of pipe which the latter wish to lay from the nearest water main to the site of their substation about to be built on the corner of Mt. Vernon avenue and I street.

Several ordinances were passed, among them one providing that plumbers in the city must be licensed, and must perform their work under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets.

Owing to the unprecedented building here, it is impossible to get carpenters enough to work on the High School. It is feared that it will not be ready for school to be opened on September 28. Prof. George M. Green has returned from Catalina to superintend the moving of the fixtures into the building.

Mrs. August Lantz has been called to Green Bay, Wis., by the death of her father.

C. A. Johnson, engineer at the cement works, went to Long Beach this morning for a week's vacation.

Rev. Harbaugh, who has been in San Francisco for the past ten days, returned Saturday. Services in the Church will be resumed this week.

RIVERSIDE.

FESTIVITIES AT FAIRMOUNT.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 9.—Admission Day was happily celebrated here with all-day festivities at Fairmount Park, that new and accessible beauty spot, which has materialized during the past few years. The celebration was arranged under the auspices of the Riverside Military Band, a comparatively new organization which stands high in popular favor. The merchants and business men pledged substantial backing, so that the committee in charge was enabled to arrange a programme worthy of the day. Between 9 and 10 o'clock band concerts were given on Main street, at the Seventh and Eighth street intersections, by the Jurupa and the Military bands. Then hundreds boarded the electric cars for the park. More went in carriages, and at noon the big pleasure ground was filled with happy picnickers. The morning was devoted to a musical and literary programme of exceptional excellence, the oration of the day being delivered by Hon. Will A. Harris of Los Angeles. In the afternoon there was a fine programme of sports, with a long list of valuable prizes for the winners. These were followed by a sham battle, realistically portrayed by the members of Co. M., N. G. C., the scaling of a precipitous wall by the attacking forces being one of the startling features. In the evening there was a ball at the pavilion.

HOLT-COVERT.

Emerson L. Holt, formerly of Riverside but now of Benicia, and Miss Mary L. Covert, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Covert, on East Eighth street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Benjamin S. Haywood in the presence of a number of invited guests. The floral decorations were elaborate and beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Holt will take up their permanent residence in Benicia.

HERE AND THERE.

The deal was closed yesterday by the Riverside Hospital Association for the purchase of a half block of land at Twelfth and Walnut streets, as a site for a new hospital building, which it is proposed to erect at a cost of not less than $10,000. The amount paid for the property was $3500.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cochrane have returned from an extended trip to England and Scotland, where they visited relatives. They come back fully convinced that Riverside is the only place on earth to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Henderson have returned from a short outing at Long Beach.

J. B. Reed and family are at Newport Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Prior Russell have returned from an outing at Skyland.

Corp. Irvine, Quartermaster-Sergt. Darling, Sergt. Higgins, Corp. Skiner, First Lieut. Meacham and Second Lieut. Bloom, of Co. M., N. G. C., left today for Sacramento to represent the company in the State medal shoot.

Small "want" advertisements in The Times bring swife and sure returns. Telephone your wants to Red 661 and our Riverside Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

CORONA.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

CORONA, Sept. 9.—Miss Jessie Wells accidentally ran a needle into the palm of her right hand yesterday, inflicting a painful injury. The needle broke, a quarter of an inch of the steel remaining imbedded in the flesh near the bone.

The postal receipts are reported 35 per cent. larger than at this time last year. The demand for boxes far exceeds the supply. Postmaster H. C. Foster is arranging for the addition of ninety-six boxes.

The Corona Gas and Electric Company will install an electric plant of the General Electric system. The contract has been let to M. V. Lockwood.

Thomas Baldwin and a friend had a thrilling ride behind two runaway bronchos yesterday. Half a mile north of the depot, broncho, rig and occupants landed in a ditch. No more serious damage was done than severe scratches on the men and horses.

The Methodist Sunday School gave a picnic at the Tuthill ranch yesterday.

Misses Effie and Mary Allison of San Bernardino spent Sunday with their cousin, G. A. McCarty and wife.

G. C. Parrish left today for Portland, Ore.

ELSINORE.

PROHIBITION PROBLEM AGAIN.

ELSINORE, Sept. 9.—The City Trustees took up the prohibition problem again last night, and discussed the prosecution of the suit brought before the court several times here. It was the opinion that the prosecution had been so conducted as to give the city no other result than expense, the City Recorder having once declared the ordinance illegal, and dismissed similar cases. Trustee James Balfour read a draft of a prohibition ordinance similar to that in force at Long Beach, but the board was opposed to its adoption on the ground that it was too strict. Under it even the hotels would be unable to serve liquors with meals. The ordinance was held up for modification.

J. T. Cobb is ill at his home on Heald avenue.

Charles Prince is spending a week in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Hannah of Santa Paula, who have spent the past six weeks here, returned home Tuesday.

Miss Sadie Walkern, teacher in the Grand avenue school, here, has returned from a two-months' visit with relatives in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Clemmens and son, who have spent three months here for the benefit of Mr. Clemmens' health, returned to Santa Ana today.

Miss Louise Baker of Shenandoah, Ia., who has spent a month here visiting with relatives, left for home yesterday.

SANTA ANA.

CITY TAX RATE FIXED.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 9.—The City Trustees last night fixed the tax rate for the coming year at $2.05 on each $100 of assessed valuation within the corporate limits of the city. This amount is divided among the various funds as follows: General fund, 45 cents, street fund, 43 cents, library fund, 10 cents; waterworks fund, 20 cents; sewer bond indebtedness fund, 25 cents; common school fund, 20 cents; high school fund, 42 cents. The total estimated amount to be raised by taxation for carrying on the business of the city government is $32,035, and the assessed valuation $2,145,000.

BOOZE TRIAL DRAGS.

After the first day in the trial of "Doc" O'Connell at Los Alamitos for the illegal sale of intoxicants in violation of the county ordinance, only five jurors have been secured. Dist.-Atty. Head, who is at the beet-sugar town conducting the case for the county, is experiencing more than usual difficulty in finding men to serve on the case and from present appearances two more days at least will be required to finish The trial will be resumed tomorrow morning.

ORANGETTES.

Admission Day passed here without observation. Almost all of the business houses, with the exception of banks and public offices, transacted business as usual.

Don Marco Forster's collection of old Spanish and Indian relics for exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce rooms arrived today from Capistrano.

George Preble of Tustin, a prominent local contractor, was slightly injured in a runaway accident between this city and his home early this morning.

The Board of Education decided last night to make the commercial course in the High School last four years instead of two years as in the past.

The trial of the employés of the Bolsa Gun Club on the charge of obstructing the Los Bolsas Creek will occur here before Justice Smithwick tomorrow.

Prof. A. J. Cook of Pomona College, director of the university farmers' institutes for Southern California, was a visitor here today, arranging for the approaching institute at Bolsa.

Clinton Imes made a clever stop of a runaway team on North Bush street this morning. The horses became frightened while waiting to receive a load of lime at the Second street siding of the Southern Pacific, and ran up Bush street, where Imes caught the lines and brought them to a standstill. The heavy wagon narrowly missed crashing into several buggies on its run through town.

"The times that try men's souls" come only when they have neglected to advertise in The Times. Telephone your wants to Main 28, and our Santa Ana agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

FULLERTON.

FRUIT EXCHANGE ANNUAL.

FULLERTON, Sept. 9.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Placentia Orange Growers' Association nearly all of the stockholders were present and there was a full discussion of present marketing methods. The majority of the stockholders expressed themselves in favor of continuing the present arrangements with the Southern California Fruit Exchange. Two were opposed to the union of the exchange and the Citrus Union, and withdrew their fruit—about twenty carloads—from the association.

The following were elected directors for the ensuing year: E. F. C. Klokke, A. McDermont, A. Duffill, F. B. Dunham, William Thum, H. W. Schults and E. S. Richman. The board organized by electing the following officers: E. F. C. Klokke, president; A. McDermont, vice-president; Arthur Staley, secretary, and Arthur McDermont, manager.

SANTA BARBARA.

BASE BALL FOR CHARITY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P 34.]

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 9.—Admission Day's chief event was a game of baseball for charity. Teams of single and married men of the local lodge of Elks played ball before about the largest crowd ever assembled on a local field. The married men won. The proceeds, amounting to several hundred dollars, will be devoted to giving a Christmas dinner to the poor. Business was suspended throughout the day.

SUICIDE IN MOUNTAINS.

In a lonely cañon near the summit of San Marcus Pass, twelve miles from this city, P. C. Kinnevan, the 22-year-old son of Patrick Kinnevan, a pioneer resident of this section of the State, put an end to his own life this afternoon by shooting himself in the head. The young man is believed to have been demented. The Coroner and his assistants are tonight making their way over the trail to the scene of the tragedy and are expected to return with the body tomorrow morning.

SHEEP-SHEARERS STRIKE.

All the sheep-shearers and laborers in the employ of Vail and Vickers, owners of Santa Rosa Island, went on strike this morning for higher wages and better food. The latter is said to be the greatest grievance. The men took possession of the company's boat and came to Santa Barbara when the superintendent refused to accede to their terms.

TWO FEARFUL FALLS. TWO MEN KILLED.

CARL HUNT AND RUSSELL MOREHOUSE THE VICTIMS.

Former Fell from Telephone Pole and Latter Crashed Down from Top of Huntington Building, Becoming Mass of Broken Bones.

Two young men working at their trades were killed yesterday, each by a fall from a high elevation. Carl F. Hunt, aged 18, lost his balance while painting a pole for the Home Telephone Company and fell forty feet. He died fifteen minutes later. Russell Morehouse, an employé of the Llewellyn Iron Works, 24 years of age, made a misstep while working on the Huntington building at Sixth and Main streets, and fell to his death sixty feet below.

Hunt had just begun to paint the pole which was at Buena Vista and Ord streets, but in shifting around for a sure foothold he missed the cross piece on which he had been standing and was precipitated head first to the ground. He struck on the right of his head and became limp. The bucket of green paint followed him and when he was picked up his clothes were covered with the fluid.

He was removed to the Receiving Hospital immediately, but died at 4:35 o'clock, five minutes after his admission. None of his bones were broken, and there were no fractures on his skull. The body was removed to Pierce Bros.' morgue, where an inquest will be held today. Carl's mother, who is quite wealthy, lives in Hartford, Kan., and will direct the disposition of the body.

Morehouse, a structural iron worker, who lived at No. 534½ South Broadway, was assisting in laying the planking on the fourth story of the framework on the Huntington building. He was carrying the end of a plank, walking backwards, when his foot missed an iron girder and he plunged downward. His head struck an iron on the second story and when his fellows reached him he was a mass of broken bones and bruised flesh. His body was removed to Bresee Bros.' morgue, where an inquest was held yesterday afternoon. Morehouse was an orphan and came here recently from San José. The Redmen, of which he was a member, will have charge of the funeral.

KOREAN BOY GREEDY FOR AN EDUCATION.

SOH SANG NAN is on his way to college. He won one of The Times' scholarships and is eager to take advantage of it.

"I am greedy to get a good education," the Korean youth naively remarked just prior to sailing from Port Los Angeles for San Francisco yesterday. He is en route to Oakland to enter California College, a scholarship in which has been awarded to him by The Times.

Soh Sang Nan's case is unique in the history of Times scholarship contests. Many different nationalities have been represented in these contests, but no candidate for a scholarship has ever added so much to the gayety of nations as Soh Sang Nan.

There are only about half a dozen Koreans on the Pacific Coast, and Soh Sang Nan's entry into the late contest was therefore quite unusual. At first it seemed altogether improbable that he would be able to compete with the many bright American boys and girls who were striving for the scholarships. His candidacy, however, aroused much interest from the start. The people seemed to think that a young Oriental with such pluck and laudable ambition ought to be helped. The coupons and subscriptions in his favor began to pour into The Times office in large quantities, and he kept up such a steady pace in the race that he finished in nineteenth place in a class of thirty-five successful candidates.

A great portion of his success is due to Miss Maude Johnson of Ingraham street, chairman of the Lookout Committee of the City Union of Christian Endeavor Societies. Miss Johnson got all the C. E.'s in Southern California interested in Soh Sang Nan's behalf, and their good work counted for much in winning the scholarship for the Korean lad. Rev. R. A. Henck, pastor of the Bethel Baptist Church, and Rev. Ko Chow, pastor of the Baptist Church in Chinatown, were instrumental in getting Soh Sang Nan into the contest, and also did much to help him do win.

Soh Sang Nan is 20 years old and comes from a good family in Korea. He received a limited English education from an English tutor in Japan. He ran away from his home in Korea about six months ago and landed in San Francisco, from which place he worked his way to Los Angeles. He arrived in this city about May 1 and happened to run across Rev. Ko Chow in Chinatown. Rev. Ko Chow made a convert of the bright Korean youth and baptized him.

"I take great interest in American Christian institutions, and says his aim is to get a good education and return to Korea to enlighten his countrymen. Rev. Ko Chow says Soh Sang Nan has a strong mind, and from what he sees he expects great things of him. Mrs. Kerlin, a teacher in the Baptist mission in Chinatown, says she has seldom had an apter pupil.

"I hate to give Soh Sang Nan up," said Mrs. Kerlin. "He is so eager to learn that he asks more questions in a minute than I can answer in an hour. He wants to learn everything, including political economy. When he began quizzing me on that subject I had to quit."

Soh Sang Nan is a close student of international affairs. He is very anxious about the future of his native country and fears Japan intends to gobble it up. That is one reason why he is so eager to acquire American enlightenment and return to his own country to give his countrymen the benefit of his teaching.

A scholarship in California College, Oakland, was awarded to Soh Sang Nan because he preferred to go to a Baptist school, and there is no college under the control of that denomination in Southern California. California College of Oakland seemed to be the nearest college exactly suitable to Soh Sang Nan's needs, so The Times arranged with Rev. T. G. Brownson, D.D., president of the college, to have the Korean boy admitted there.

A year's tuition is provided him free, also free room rent and $2 a month for incidental expenses. With all these advantages the young man will still need a little more money to take him through college. If any of the many friends who helped him to win the scholarship, wish to contribute something to his support, the Rev. Ko Chow will be glad to receive and forward such sums to him as may be donated. Rev. Ko Chow's address is No. 413½ North Angeles street. He is well known to nearly all ministers of the gospel in California, and can be trusted to make a strict accounting of all money entrusted to him for the benefit of Soh Sang Nan.

Soh Sang Nan is very grateful to the people who aided him in the scholarship contest, and before leaving for the North he wrote the manager of the scholarship contest as follows:

Dear sir: I thank you very much for your kindness in allowing me to enter in the scholarship contest, and also in all cases to me this time. Here I send you a few words expressing the gratitude to all my kind friends and contributors. Will you publish it in the paper, please? Yours truly, SOH SANG NAN.

I find it impossible in all cases to thank the many kind friends and contributors, personally, consequently, I now take this opportunity to express my deepest gratitude to The Times and all interested in the scholarship plan and labor for their special consideration for my welfare in the endeavor to obtain my scholarship. SOH SANG NAN.

California College to which this interesting young Oriental is bound is situated in East Oakland. It has a fine campus of eleven acres in the city limits of Oakland on high ground, one mile back from the East Oakland station of the Southern Pacific Railroad. The Highland Park electric line passes the grounds, and the Eighth avenue line comes within two blocks.

There are three main buildings: Mary Stuart Hall, the recitation building; Gray Mansion, the girls' dormitory; Hook Hall, the boys' dormitory. The library contains 3000 volumes, and the school has a fair supply of laboratory and illustrative apparatus. There is also a good beginning toward an endowment. The buildings have been recently put in good repair and considerable new furniture secured. The dormitory rooms are neatly furnished and exceptionally pleasant.

The college expenses are moderate: Tuition for term of twenty weeks in the academy, $30; in college, $35; furnished room, light and board, $110 and $100, according to room.

At and near the college there are opportunities for students to earn a considerable part of their expenses. The college offers work to quite a number of students each year at good wages.

PORT ITEMS.

ALONG THE WATER FRONT.

WEATHER: Clear at 5 p.m.; wind southwest, velocity 12 miles.

Admission Day was appropriately observed at this port, nearly all of the vessels flying American flags from their topmasts. Work was practically suspended in all of the lumber yards, and the places of business both in the heart of the city and along the water front were closed.

The large new dipper dredge will begin work at the harbor entrance on a few days. At present a number of workmen are busily engaged in cleaning and overhauling the machinery, preparatory to the commencement of operations.

The steamers Redondo and William H. Kruger arrived with large lumber cargoes consigned to local wholesalers.

The steamer Coos Bay brought a cargo of merchandise consigned to the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, and a number of passengers. After discharging, the vessel took on a return cargo of freight and passengers and sailed for San Francisco, via way ports.

The steamer Fulton finished discharging, took on passengers and sailed today for San Francisco.

Suspicious for Life.

Alfred Henry Lewis was discussing politics and politicians when the name of a Tammany man was mentioned.

"Mr. Blank is to suspicious," said Mr. Lewis. "He thinks every one is trying to injure him. He is, as suspicious as George Biddle's dog."

"And how about the dog," asked a listener, who expected a story.

"Oh, the dog," said Mr. Lewis, "was so suspicious that he went through life sideways for fear some one would kick him."—[New York Times.

PASADENA METHODISTS CHOOSE A DELEGATE.

PARKER ENDORSED FOR SEAT IN CONFERENCE.

Elections by Official Board Are Enthusiastic — Big Y.M.C.A. Project. Church to Have Unique and Handsome Garden—Throop Trustees' Annual.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 24 East Raymond avenue, Sept. 10.—The official board of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city has highly indorsed and enthusiastically instructed to the lay electoral conference of Southern California, to be held in Los Angeles September 18, Prof. Frank M. Parker, "as a suitable and proper person to be elected to the general conference to be held in Los Angeles in May, 1904. And we pledge to him our reasonably and righteously earnest support in his election." The board's action continues:

"Professor Parker has an honorable and brilliant record of fifteen years as a teacher in Wilbraham Academy, Massachusetts. He has served as president of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city, has been for many years, and is now a teacher of one of the largest classes in Southern California, a faithful attendant upon the midweek prayer meeting, has been for a time a leader of the Sunday-school prayer meeting, is now president of the board of trustees of this church, is a member of the school board of Pasadena, is a competent, clean, reliable, religious man in every way fitted to serve the church in her great law-making body, and will bring great joy to this board should he be chosen to such office and service."

Rev. A. W. Lamport, who was chairman of the meeting, and J. H. Raymond, secretary, Prof. Parker seems to be the unanimous choice for the seat of honor.

Y.M.C.A. BOOM.

Dr. Solon Briggs of the Y.M.C.A. has great hopes for the future of the association in Pasadena. Not much greater things than have been done this far accomplished, but the institution is in a very flourishing condition, as it is.

"I should like to see," remarked Dr. Briggs yesterday, "in a $75,000 or $100,000 building on one of the corner lots at the corner of Fair Oaks and Raymond avenue, and have the kind of auditorium which Pasadena deserves, and if somebody will step up and start us off we will raise the other $50,000 or want to see the day when this will be done. The people are generous. There is no shrinkage in the subscription of $25,000 that we raised a few days ago, and with which we have purchased some handsome quarters, but we have failed to pay for what we thought we could when we bought them, on the other hand, several have raised their original subscription. H. H. Goodrich, for instance, could not induce him to do so at the time. He wished to have it so. We were going to accommodate him. The other day he came in and gave me a check for $500. We have others like that, and we expect that they will appear. Before this month we will give a reception and show the people how much has been spent to glorious purpose. If that doesn't arouse enthusiasm and shower more checks in we will be mistaken. We still have with which to commence work we have started, and we have a seventy-five-foot frontage that must be improved."

HARTLAND'S GARDEN.

Colonel Maryland's garden, which is laid out on the vacant grounds of the hotel on the west, will be made beautiful and unique. Manager Hand has just returned from Europe, where, with Myron Hunt, of Los Angeles landscape gardener, he gathered some ideas which will be incorporated here. A beautiful Italian garden is to be made, and will be 200 feet square. Around the entire site will be a row of Corinthian pillars about ten and twelve feet apart. In the center of the garden will be a pool of water lilies and other water plants. There will be walks and trees and there will be a collection of palms. The handsome garden will come to about $5000 and the Maryland has kept up to the summer, beyond the management. Mercedes this effort to uphold the summer resort as well as a winter one.

Y.M.C.A.'S ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Throop Polytechnic Institute, owners of the past year, resulted in the election of Norman Bridge, Vice-President; Thomas Daggett; Treasurer; Frank P. Flint, Auditor S. H. Hallenbeck, Secretary Theodore Coleman was elected. The three outgoing members, H. M. Hamilton, A. R. Metcalf and C. D. Daggett, were also re-elected.

SITE WAS CHOSEN.

The committee to teach Pasadena, dividing the work among the new teacher of the Shatfield Scientific School, has also done post-graduate work at the university. The question of the hiring of a stenographer-bookkeeper for the office and various plans for work were discussed.

CONGREGATIONAL SITE.

The site most favored for the proposed Congregational Church is on the northeast corner of Marengo and Green street. Another site that has met with some favor is on the southeast corner of Marengo and Union street, opposite the Methodist Church. The General Committee of Fifteen will shortly make a report on these two sites and leave the selection of the congregation. The meeting last night it was decided to call Rev. R. R. Meredith for another year. His first year expires on October 1. It is not known whether Mr. Meredith will consent to remain here or not. He has not greatly improved his health here, however, he may remain.

CATALINA ISLAND.

BAND TO STAY AWHILE.

AVALON, Sept. 9.—The continued crowds visiting Catalina have caused a revision of the plans concerning the band. It was prearranged that Saturday night, September 12, would close the contract with the band, and the members expected to take their departure on the 13th. Capt. William Banning, observing the crowd at the band stand last night, where all the benches were filled just as they were at the height of the season, concluded that it would not be wise to allow the band to leave, and this morning he announced that it will remain until further orders. This may mean one or two weeks, but it is expected now that the band will remain until October 1. The Banning Company further announced a horizontal reduction of 25 per cent. in rates at its hotels and at the Canvas City for the present month. As September is the best month of the year at Catalina, there will be gay times at Avalon for the remainder of the month.

SAN PEDRO.

INDIGNATION OVER OFFICERS.

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 9.—The City Trustees have subjected themselves to severe public condemnation by last night neglecting to investigate charges against Special Policeman J. H. Iman and tabling a petition signed by over a hundred taxpayers asking for that officer's removal. The deficiency in the local police department, and especially the incapacity of Iman, is an old story. This man, like all others of his stripe, declare the petitioners, should be removed from office without further delay, if the laws are to be enforced.

When the petition was read before the Trustees last evening there was surprise and consternation that anybody should dare assail a "peace" officer a few months ago. The distressed Trustees promptly decided to "lay it on the table."

The refusal of the Trustees to investigate the charges against Iman has caused considerable indignation here, inasmuch as he has confessed having accepted the paltry sum of $1 from a prostitute with which to buy drinks for himself and other members of the force. Such conduct of a police officer works a great wrong upon a city and is responsible largely for the wicked name that San Pedro has sent broadcast, declare the petitioners.

Iman is not the only San Pedro official that is accused of having gone wrong. It is charged that the man holding the responsible position of City Marshal was so drunk on two different occasions last week that he could not attend to his duties, and that he was found in a house of prostitution at East San Pedro.

CLAREMONT.

COLLEGE TOWN BRIEFS.

CLAREMONT, Sept. 9.—The funeral of Walter Scott Desendorf of the class of '99, Pomona College, occurred here this afternoon and was largely attended, many friends coming from Los Angeles. Thomas E. Gould, of the Indian Hill Citrus Union has returned from a brief outing at Sherman and Long Beach.

Miss Nellie Decker, '01, Pomona College, will return from Palo Verde next week, to teach school in Pomona.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED AT THE ENCAMPMENT.

ATTENDANCE STILL ON INCREASE AT LONG BEACH.

J. W. Van Horn Made Commander of the Southern California Veterans' Association, and Mrs. Cordelia Spence is Chosen President of Ladies' Auxiliary.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 9.—The following named officers were elected by the Southern California Veterans' Association this morning: Commander, J. W. Van Horn, Los Angeles; senior vice-commander, A. B. Paul, Santa Ana; junior vice-commander, O. P. Williams, Pomona; surgeon, H. Z. Gill, Long Beach; chaplain, Rev. E. O. McIntier, Los Angeles. The only contest was for the office of surgeon, for which honor Dr. Witfield of Elsinore was also a candidate.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Southern California Veterans' Association elected the following named officers at 2 o'clock this afternoon: President, Mrs. Cordelia H. Spence, Los Angeles; senior vice-president, Mrs. Lizzie Mills, Santa Ana; junior vice-president, Mrs. Buchanan, Pasadena; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Murry, Los Angeles; chaplain, Mrs. Wright, Pasadena; executive committee, Mrs. Martha Packard, Los Angeles; Mrs. Sarah R. Mason, Norwalk; and Mary Dunning.

The attendance at the camp still continues to increase, and the meetings, particularly the camp fires, are very largely attended.

It is understood that the Pacific Electric Railway Company is considering a proposition to build southward from Tenth street to the ocean, between Magnolia and Daisy avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland of South Pasadena are the guests of H. Everett, Third and Daisy avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Cunningham of Los Angeles are settled in their new cottage, No. 915 East Ocean avenue, and will remain during September.

The car on the Pacific Electric Railway Company's line which left here this morning at 9:45 o'clock slipped its trolley while near Cerritos, and the car took fire, resulting in damages aggregating $25. The passengers hustled around and assisted in putting out the incipient blaze. The car was pushed into the city by the car following.

Since "a crust is better than no bread," a small advertisement in The Times brings in more business than ten advertisements in all. Telephone your wants to Central Office, and our Long Beach Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

RIVERA.

MAKING NEW RIVER BED.

RIVERA, Sept. 9.—The work on the new river bed, begun September 1, is progressing satisfactorily. Superintendent James Broadbent has a force of nine or ten men at work, and $500 has already been subscribed. The work will extend from the Cate's dam to the Santa Fé bridge, a distance of about four miles. It has for its object the clearing of a straight channel for the river, to insure against overflows in the winter.

Will Davis and Bradley Horton have leased the two livery stables here and will run them under one management.

Miss Clara Wood returned Saturday from a prolonged visit at Exeter, Tulare county.

School opened Monday morning at Rivera, Ranchito and Gallaten, under the same teachers as before except that Prof. Charles Schweitzer will act as principal of Gallaten. Prof. Laurence having gone to the State University.

The Good Templars will give a basket picnic next Saturday at Long Beach.

A Gypsy lawn party will be held at E. C. Coffman's next Friday afternoon.

Judge Burke and family are at Long Beach in attendance on the G.A.R. Encampment.

A. Dorman and wife of Redondo visited old friends in Rivera yesterday.

SANTA MONICA.

WARM HALF-HOLIDAY.

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 9.—Admission Day this year will be remembered as one of the warmest days of the season. Picnickers thronged the beach, a band concert was given on the bluff, and half-holiday hours were observed by many of the business houses. The public schools were closed, as were also the public offices.

SCHOOL INCREASE.

Though the public schools this fall opened three weeks earlier than last year, an unusually large increase in number of pupils enrolled is noted. The total increase in the district for the opening day is 128 over the opening of the fall term of 1902. The increase is distributed as follows: Ninth grade and High School, 9; other grades, North Side, 73; Ocean Park, 56; total increase, 138.

BALK PENALTY NEEDED.

The Board of City Trustees has at last immortalized itself by voting to pay $50 to a competent horseman for "breaking" Santa Monica's notorious team of balky fire horses. But immortality is not always popularity. It is suggested that if certain of the Trustees desire to resume a speaking acquaintance with the people who elected them they defray this $50 bill by granting an indefinite vacation without pay to the driver who draws $75 a month from the city in recognition of his services in helping to make said horses balky. But as this individual is own brother-in-law to one of the Trustees—and so forth.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Porterfield application for a telephone franchise was turned down by the Board of Trustees, despite the recommendation of the Committee on Judiciary and Ordinances.

The board approved R. M. Miller's bid of $50 for the old City Jail Building. The new owner will take possession at once.

A thirty days' leave of absence was granted to Trustee Vawter.

The contract for the grading of Pacific street has been awarded to C. H. Yeaton at his bid of 42 cents a lineal foot.

The city printing contract was let to the Daily Outlook at its bid of 65 cents an inch for each insertion.

ALHAMBRA.

REALTY AND BUILDING ACTIVE.

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 9.—The movement in realty and building has become more active than for many years in Alhambra. The incorporation of the town has created new confidence, and attracted many new residents. Houses are still scarce, although new ones are being constantly completed and more are in prospect.

E. A. Maas has purchased of W. S. Gibbs for $4500 a desirable five-acre residence tract on the corner of Main street and Margarita avenue, upon which he will immediately erect a number of modern cottages. Several lots have been sold in the Windsor tract, and houses are being erected there. The Granada tract of twenty-seven residence lots, has also been nearly all sold, upon which several new houses will soon be built and occupied by the owners. T. J. Locke has just purchased the Draper residence property on Union avenue for $2100. Mrs. W. R. Lowry has sold her residence property (the old Weld place) to D. P. Warren, the price being $1950. The purchasers of these places intend to occupy them. A. G. Fowler has also purchased of Joseph Lago for $200, a small cottage and lot on Cleveland avenue, and occupies the same. The brick walls for the 45x75-foot addition to the Adams business block, corner Main street and Garfield avenue, are nearly completed, and the structure will soon be ready for the roof. The two storerooms on the first floor are already leased for five years.

POMONA.

DENISON RESIDENCE BURNED.

POMONA, Sept. 9.—The ringing of the old bell at the fire hall at 9 o'clock tonight called out one of the biggest crowds seen here in many days. The fire was in the two-story residence on North White avenue, owned and occupied by Charles B. Denison, former roque champion of Southern California and a well-known bee man. Nobody was in the house when the blaze started and it had gained great headway before an alarm was turned in. Denison, who was out driving, says the flames originated probably from an overheated terra cotta flue, as he left a fire in a stove when he went out.

The house was nicely furnished, contained a library of 700 volumes, a valuable piano and musical instruments, all of which were destroyed. The hose companies were promptly on hand, but could do but little except keep the fire from spreading to an adjacent large barn, containing $1000 worth of honey, and small buildings in which was stored equipment for the bee business valued at $500. The loss is estimated at $4000, with about $2500 insurance.

POINTERS.

The Board of Library Trustees last evening adopted a new set of rules and regulations governing the administration of the library, also considered a long list of books. The librarian's report showed a present membership of 2195. The total number of volumes is now 7850. During the month of August the home circulation was 2963, an increase of 267 over the same month last year.

OCEAN PARK PREPARES FOR INCORPORATION.

AN IDEAL CITY WHEREIN POLITICS SHALL BE BARRED.

"Cleanness, Happiness and Prosperity" the Municipal Motto—Hard-headed Business Men Will Stand Sponsors, and Any Attempt to Graft Will Mean Social Ostracism.

OCEAN PARK, Sept. 9.—The work of surveying boundaries for a new Ocean Park will be begun this week, the territory to have the following city limits: On the north, the center of Marine avenue; on the east, a line taking in the first row of lots lying east of the Los Angeles-Pacific railway tracks; on the south (probably,) a line taking in Short Line Beaches Nos. 1 and 2; on the west, the ocean.

As soon as the surveyors have established the boundary lines a petition will be drawn up requesting the County Supervisors to grant articles of incorporation of a city of the sixth class, to be called "Ocean Park." This is the proposed incorporation that has been referred to several times in this column. The Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce is back of the incorporation movement, and President Dana Burks is authority for the statement that the movement is bona fide and will be carried out without delay. Prominent in the petition for incorporation will be the names of such well known men as Dana Burks, Alexander M. Fraser, ex-Senator Lavayea of Dakota, G. M. Jones, W. M. Murphy and other men of push, property and successful enterprises.

Had Santa Monica political leaders not opposed the municipal division of the North and South Sides, the proposed northern boundary would have been Strand street instead of Marine avenue, the center of which latter stret is the south city limits of the present municipality of Santa Monica. It is thought, however, that the incorporation of the new Ocean Park must ultimately result in the official exclusion from Santa Monica of what is now known as Ocean Park, and that eventually the northern boundary of the new Ocean Park will be at least several blocks north of Marine avenue.

It is proposed to make the new Ocean Park an ideal suburban residence city. Quite a while ago the South Side of Santa Monica ceased to be a mere summer seaside resort and became a town of permanent residence, distinct municipal interests and commercial permanence. A city "built on sand," but not in the Scriptural sense betokening insecurity, its stable growth has amased strangers, delighted and astonished investors, and last but not least estranged the people of old Santa Monica and slowly but irrevocably built up a barrier of separate interests that as completely divide the two ends of the city as though a moat and guarded drawbridge lay between.

Located in the territory to be incorporated is property representing an assessed valuation of $400,000. At a tax rate of ten mills on the dollar, this would give, to start, a yearly municipal revenue of $4000, which it is proposed to expend solely for actual municipal improvements, chief among which will be electric lighting, garbage-gathering, water supply, sewering and enforcement of pure-food regulations. Dana Burks says:

"We propose to make Ocean Park the best-lighted city in the United States. When the lighting system is installed, steamers passing miles out at sea will have ocular proof of the exact location of Ocean Park. Pure-food regulations will be enforced rigidly. Even milkmen will have to 'show us' and obtain permits before they can serve milk to the people of Ocean Park. A chemist will be regularly employed and regularly paid, to make continual inspections of food products offered for sale in the city.

"City officials will serve without pay, and character, ability and proved public-spiritedness will be the three requisites for election. Politics will be barred absolutely from the municipal conduct; and with the elimination of spoils, purity of government will be easier to launch and maintain. Attempted dishonesty will mean dismissal, and dismissal will entail social ostracism.

"For the present it is likely that the Ocean Park Country Club will be the seat of city government, and the social element will enter largely into the conduct of municipal affairs. A sort of town secretary will be employed and well paid. He will have his office at the Country Club, and one of his duties will be to keep a complete, accurate and alphabetically-arranged directory of all the residents of the city. He will be a bureau of information, and, to a certain extent, a social sponsor for newcomers. He will keep a register, in which each person entering Ocean Park with the purpose of remaining longer than forty-eight hours shall sign his name and temporary address. Inquiry of the town secretary will facilitate the delivery of telegrams to temporary sojourners, the immediate finding of persons inquired for, etc.

"The territory which it is proposed to incorporate has a fairly permanent population of 2500, though which now varies in numbers only slightly the year around. The resort stage has been passed and the stage of permanent residence reached, and a seperate municipal government is required if the interests of the people are to be served as they deserve to be. Men of money, brains and integrity have interested themselves in the incorporation, and the movement will be carried through. These men believe that an ideal little city can be maintained here, and they propose to help to make 'Ocean Park, California,' unique among American municipalities for cleanness, happiness and prosperity. This is no Arcadian dream, but a sane and desirable project backed by hard-headed men who have succeeded and believe they know how to succeed again."

EL MONTE.

NOTES OF PROGRESS.

EL MONTE, Sept. 9.—One thousand feet of thirty-inch cement pipe has just been completed for the East Whittier Land and Water Company, and will be used at the head of the ditch at Station No. 1, near El Monte. Other wells will also be connected with the pipe.

Stanley Hicks, the little son of Constable Hicks, had a very fast buggy ride yesterday. The horse ran away and collided with a wood-haulers' wagon. Both vehicles were badly damaged, and the boy escaped with bad cuts and bruises.

Two streets are being surveyed south from the Santa Fé depot through lots owned by "Lucky" Baldwin, which have been placed on the market recently.

The carpenters have resumed work on the building of L. D. Ashton's fine home north of El Monte, after a delay of about a year.

Miss Mabel Parker and Lee Butcher, both of this place, were married in Los Angeles yesterday. They will make their home in El Monte.

The Western Union Telegraph Company is putting in a new line from Los Angeles east, and a force is now at work here putting in new poles and changing wires.

The election of officers for the El Monte Cemetery will take place next Saturday at the Baptist Church.

William Richards, an old settler, will move to Santa Cruz this week with his family.

Mrs. Richard Kallmeyer has returned from the San Joaquin Valley.

F. E. Mills is building a $2000 home in Mountain View.

Robert Dancer and family went to Redondo Tuesday for an outing.

S. T. Eldridge, the well-known contractor, and his wife returned yesterday from an extended tour of the East. Their trip occupied nine weeks, and almost every one of the great cities beyond the Rockies was visited. Mr. Eldridge returned more than ever enthusiastic over Los Angeles, which he declares "is certainly better than any of them."

A Lost Opportunity.

John Fox, Jr., author and strummer on the gentle guitar is also an athlete of no mean prowess, though he does not look it. One day, on a train, with true Kentucky chivalry, he called a drummer down for annoying a lady. The drummer resented the interference, "For half a cent," he said menacingly, "I would break your face."

Fox looked him good and hard in the eye, went down into his pocket, came out with a cent, and, proffering it to the offender, said: "There's a cent: break my face if you want to and keep the change."

Mr. Fox's face remained intact.—[Collier's Weekly.

Administration Officials at Washington Preparing for Developments—Minister Leishman Has Secured the Removal of the Vali at Beirut—United States Free of Diplomatic Tangles Involving European Powers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A dispatch received from Constantinople says Nazim Pasha has been formally appointed vali of Beirut, in place of Reshid Pasha who has been dismissed.

LEISHMAN DEMANDED IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10—United States Minister Leishman has presented a demand to the Turkish government for the dismissal of Reshid Pasha, vali at Beirut, on the ground that so long as he is retained in office the lives and property of Americans in Beirut are insecure.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The World's Washington correspondent says that the responsible officers of the administration are convinced that war between Turkey and Bulgaria, into which all Europe may be drawn, is unavoidable. All they are doing now with regard to Turkey is being done with a view to meeting such a development of the situation. The first move resulting from that conviction was to ask Turkey to settle all matters now in dispute between the two governments. The second move was made three days ago, but it did not become known until today. It was a formal demand made by Minister Leishman for the removal of Reshid Bey, Governor of Beirut.

The idea of Secretary Hay and the President is that it will be easier to get what the United States wants by asking now than it will be after the European powers have been lined up in case of war.

Turkey has not yet replied to the demand of the United States, but the Sublime Porte has, however, sent the Governor-General at Damascus to Beirut, and his presence there is taken as an indication of the purpose to comply with the American demand, at least to the extent of depriving Reshid Bey of his authority.

The State Department had no intention of revealing the fact that this government has taken a leading part in the moves that have been made at the Turkish capital. The fact was only incidentally developed about the time that the press messages containing the information were received here. It is the impression that the President and Secretary Hay are observing secrecy so as to assist one or the other of the great powers of Europe, all of whom are so bound up in a mass of treaties and understandings that have been made with regard to Turkey that none of them has a free hand. A demand of the kind could be made by the United States with better grace than any other nation, for the reason that the first serious disturbance at Beirut took place when Vice-Consul Magelssen was fired upon. In return for this favor, the power that received it has probably undertaken to afford full protection to the lives of Americans in Constantinople.

Such an understanding would be useful, notwithstanding the fact that the officers of the State Department, if it ever becomes necessary will maintain that the enforcement of the treaty closing the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus to war vessels cannot be made to our disadvantage in event of it being necessary to use our own agencies for the protection of the American Minister and other Americans residing in Constantinople.

HEADS BROUGHT IN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SALONICA, Sept. 10.—In the recent fight at Gaudetz, near Demir-Kapou, among the insurgent dead were eight Bulgarian officers, whose heads have been brought to Demir-Kapou.

BULGARIAN TEMPER RISING.

FERDINAND ATTACKED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The temper of the Bulgarian people and government, according to the telegrams from Sofia, is rising to the danger point. All indications tend to show that however loyally the government desires to observe a neutral attitude, it will be forced ere long by pressure from the people into a formal declaration of sympathy with the Macedonian Christians. Pemler Petroff's informal intimation to the diplomatic corps, in Sofia, that unless some means of restraining Turkey's terrible measures to suppress the uprising in Macedonia, is taken by the powers, Bulgaria will be forced to depart from strict neutrality is regarded as a warning in this sense to the powers.

A committee representing all classes has been organized by the professors of the Sofia University, and is sitting daily to discuss the situation. Bitter attacks on Prince Ferdinand are indulged in for his action in dissolving the Sobranje at such a critical moment, which is characterised as treason against the people. Resolutions will be submitted to this committee today urging the immediate mobilization of the army against Turkey.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Sofia, in a long resumé of the situation, points out that Bulgaria does not possess sufficient troops to properly cordon the frontier. She has only posts of five men each at points three miles distant from each other, and as the Turkish frontier guards always retire when they see Bulgarian bands crossing, the latter have an easy task. The correspondent thinks this points to the conclusion that the Ottoman government desires to keep the insurrection alive as a pretext for the annihilation of the Christians, and as the Bulgarians are unlikely to remain inactive spectators of the massacre of their brethren, the current of popular feeling may easily become too strong for any government to withstand.

Even in the Bulgarian army and administration there is strong sympathy for the Macedonians, and in these services there is also a large percentage of Macedonians. Hitherto, by promising European intervention and suppressing the details of the Turkish atrocities, the government has succeeded in allaying popular indignation, but such temporary expedients can no longer avail, and nothing short of international intervention can dispel the storm clouds now fast gathering.

A curious story appears in the Vienna Neu Freie Press that the Sheikh of Medina is spreading the report that the Prophet Mohammed rose from his tomb and exclaimed in solemn tones: "Allah, save thy people," whereupon the six guardians of the tomb expired from terror. The legend has excited Constantinople and is regarded as an intrigue to compel the Ottoman government to undertake an anti-Christian campaign.

LEISHMAN'S VIGOROUS ACTION.

FRANCE ALSO MAKES DEMAND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Minister Leishman cabled the State Department from Constantinople that the French Ambassador has demanded the removal of the Governor of Beirut, and that other foreign representatives probably will do the same.

Leishman is vigorously urging the Sublime Porte to replace the Governor by some one more capable of preserving order and of giving more efficient protection to American citizens and interests. In this course he has the approval of the State Department. Nothing is said in his cablegram of further disorders at Beirut.

NAZIM PASHA'S ASSURANCES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Advices received by the Foreign Office from Beirut say that Nazim Pasha, vali of Syria, is making a thorough investigation of the causes of the recent disorder at Beirut, and that he has given assurances to the foreign consuls that he will severely punish the guilty. Under the circumstances, it is added, the French, British and Italian consuls have decided not to ask for the landing of American marines, as (contrary to the Constantinople advices,) the excitement has subsided and the Christian refugees who fled are returning to their homes.

The investigation thus far made into the outbreak has shown that the police participated in looting the shops and houses, the farmer vali, Reshid Pasha, being unable to control the police.

NAZIM MADE WELCOME.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10.—The dispatch of Nazim Pasha to Beirut from his post at Damascus is considered to be a preliminary step toward a settlement. Nazim Pasha received an enthusiastic reception on his arrival at Beirut, a crowd at the railway station cheering him repeatedly. The town was then perfectly tranquil. According to the latest telegrams, however, the consuls continue to transact their business with Reshid Pasha, vali at Beirut.

Beirut advices received here late yesterday stated that uneasiness still prevailed among the Christians there, and that the exodus to the mountains continued, but no fresh disturbances had occurred.

Rear-Admiral Cotton confirms the reports that he can land 500 marines and bluejackets from the Brooklyn and San Francisco in case of urgent necessity. Nothing is known here anent any arrangements made by other powers for sending warships to Beirut.

Private advices from Kirk Kilisseh state that while the Turkish regular troops are conducting themselves well, the Albanians are insubordinate, and are pillaging and burning villages and are even threatening their own officers when they are ordered not to plunder.

Up to September 7, twenty-seven battalions of troops had been concentrated in the Kirk Kilisseh district.

An imperial irade has been issued ordering the repair or reconstruction of the fortifications at Adrianople, Chatalja, Erzeroum and the Bosphorus.

CONFIDENCE RESTORED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Navy Department has received a cablegram from Rear-Admiral Cotton, dated Beirut yesterday, stating that the arrival of the Turkish Governor-General from Damascus has restored confidence. The Governor-General has warned the local authorities that he will hold them responsible for disturbances. Admiral Cotton says that the city was quiet Tuesday night and business improving.

NO ORDERS FOR SHIPS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—So far as can be learned, though the powers are prepared to send ships at a moment's notice to Salonica, in compliance with the reported request of the consuls, no orders for warships to sail have yet been issued. Confidence is expressed that if such action be taken it will be in concert.

No confirmation has been obtained of the report of Dissett of Vienna today that the Turkish troops have been ordered to cross the Bulgarian frontier of Eastern Roumania, on the coming full-moon nights, in order to surround all the insurgent bands in the vilayet of Adrianople, but it would not be surprising if, in spite of orders to the contrary, Turkish troops pursuing insurgent bands should cross the frontier, and this would precipitate a conflict between the Turks and Bulgarians.

COMPLETE ROUT OF TURKS.

SOFIA, Sept. 10.—A private dispatch from Riloplan announced that an engagement was fought September 2 at Testele, in the Permim district of Roumelia. Six hundred Turkish troops were completely routed by the Macedonian insurgents, who, it is added, were everywhere received by the population with enthusiasm. The Turks fled.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Minister Leishman transmitted to the State Department today a communication from Consul Ravendal at Beirut, in which the latter said the situation there was quieter. The text of the dispatch was not made public, but it was explained that this was all the news that it conveyed relative to conditions at Beirut. All of Ad-

EUROPE ON EDGE OF A PRECIPICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] "Europe is standing on the edge of a precipice today," said a diplomatist who is participating in the international negotiations in connection with the Balkan question, "and no one can tell but that tomorrow may see Turkey and Bulgaria plunged in war in spite of all the efforts made to prevent it, and though the powers separately have made strong representations to Bulgaria to desist from aiding the insurgents and are on the eve of making a joint demand for the observance of a policy of strict neutrality.

"In the meantime, Turkey is becoming encouraged by the attitude of the powers toward Bulgaria, and there is a strong feeling among the Mohammedans that the opportunity is at hand to take summary vengeance on the Bulgarian people. The Porte has been warned against engaging in war, and, we believe, hesitates to embark on a move which may result in the armed intervention of Europe. The only encouraging sign in the situation is the understanding between the powers, all of which, we are sure, are upholding Russia and Austria in their efforts to maintain peace."

All of the advices, official and otherwise, received here agree in saying that the Turkish government has now restored quiet at Beirut, and that the Porte appreciates the necessity for taking action in the matter, as shown by the removal of the vali of Beirut, as demanded by the United States Minister, Mr. Leishman.

GOTHAM'S SUFFERING.

Report on Ravages of Consumption.

Tenement-house District Crowded With Miserable Homes in Which Disease Revels.

Five Deaths in Seven Years the Record of One Room in the "Ink Pot" Building.

Prof. Koch Proves His Theory by Rendering Cattle Positively Immune.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Tuberculosis Committee of the Charity Organization Society has been making an inspection of the tenement houses and collecting statistics of consumption.

Ernest Poole, a member of the committee, accompanied the health and tenement inspectors through the block bounded by Cherry, Catharine, Hamilton and Market streets, which is known as "the long block." This locality is described in Poole's report in order to show the conditions which prevail to a greater or less degree in tenements throughout a city. In his report, Poole says:

"It is a block packed close with huge grimy tenments; these tenements are honeycombed with rooms; these rooms are homes for nearly four thousand persons. To squeeze in more homes, light and air are slowly shut out. Halls, courts, airshafts, are all left cramped and deep and noisome. In a block so congested, dissipation becomes easy. Here a thousand struggle on, while hundreds yield and sink, and so pollute others. So come squalid homes and wretched meals. Hard drinking tripes susceptibility to consumption.

"Of 285 cases reported on the block (in nine years,) 104 came from the old tenements alone. There is one called 'The Ink Pot.' Here live 160 persons. Twenty-three are babies. Here I found one man sick with plague in the front of the house, two more in the rear, and one of these had a young wife and four children. Here, in nine years alone, twenty-six cases have been reported. One room in the house has a record of five deaths in seven years from consumption."

CATTLE RENDERED IMMUNE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prof. Koch announces a skeleton conclusion of his experiments in connection with bovine tuberculosis. He has discovered means of rendering cattle positively immune from tuberculosis infection. Dr. Neufeld, his chief assistant at the Prussian Institute for Infectious Diseases, reports today that Koch for two years has inoculated hundred of animals with tuberculosis bacilli taken from human beings. None of the animals sickened even after the administration of large doses. Koch, in a signed statement in August, last, assured the medical world that this was all that was necessary to prove the correctness of his theory.

COPPER SUFFERED.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Maintain Copper at Artifical Level is Not Successful—Stock Market.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The copper-mining industry of the United States suffered during 1902, according to the report just issued by the Geological Survey, from the reaction that followed the unsuccessful attempt during 1901 to maintain a value of metal at an artificial level.

The collapse, which came toward the close of 1901, left many of the producers committed to sales covering a long period at low prices, with menace of heavy accumulations of metal constantly over the market. Yet in spite of this, production during 1902 was heavier than it had been in the preceding year, because some of the enlargements and improvements previously begun became effective during the year. The output last year was 294,343 tons, against 269,000 tons for the preceding year. The consumption of copper in the United States was enormous last year.

Commissioner of General Land Office Issues Statement.

States Extending Control of Railways — New Arizona Surveyor-General.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Commissioner Richards of the General Land Office today issued a statement showing that approximately $8,461,494 was covered into the treasury to the credit of the reclamation fund from the sales of public lands and fees in the various irrigation States in 1903. This amount will be distributed among the same States. The irrigation projects of the government will be carried on by means of this fund.

The statement shows that an aggregate of $16,197,636 has been received from sales of lands in the various States during 1901, 1902 and 1903, for use in furthering irrigation plans.

The total amount received in 1901 was $3,144,822 and in 1902 $4,586,521.

FRENCH SARDINES SCARCE.

TIP FROM CONSUL RIGLEY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Imported sardines will be higher than ever this winter, owing to the fact that the catch of French sardines this season was a failure. Consul Rigley at Nantes says that the catch of this year was worse than it was last year, which was a short haul compared with previous records. He reports, however, that lately sardines have begun to appear in small quantities off the western coast, and it is now hoped that the catch may improve, but it is almost certain that this will not exceed 25 per cent. of a good average season.

One of the reasons ascribed for the failure is the excessively cold spring and summer. The other is the scarcity and high price of codfish roe, which fishermen use for bait in attracting and holding sardines in the fishing grounds. Last year the French catch was less than 30 per cent. of the average, and up to the present the catch of 1903 has been even worse.

CONTROL OF RAILWAYS.

EXTENSION BY STATES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today made public statistics covering parts of a general report on the State regulation and taxation of railways in the United States in 1902. It shows that thirty States exercised control over railways through commissions, and says the legislative tendency during the past twelve years has been in the direction of more efficient control over rates. The report says:

"A study of the railway statutes during the past twelve years indicates a slight distrust of the ability of railroad commissions as at present organized to control the railway situation and a tendency toward including other corporations as well as railway corporations under the control of State boards."

INDICTED CALIFORNIAN.

RESIDES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An official of the Postoffice Department today said that while he was not sure of the identity of the Californian indicted by the grand jury here Tuesday, he was satisfied that the man was in San Francisco and formerly connected with the San Francisco postoffice. He added that the only case in which California men appear to be involved was that relating to contracts for supplying time registers to mail boxes, and that while the department had been unable to discover any crookedness in the transaction, the grand jury might have unearthed something.

The cashier of the San Francisco postoffice was here recently, and testified before the grand jury, as well as giving information to the department inspectors.

NEW YORK ARREST.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—At least one business man in this city who has been identified with the sale of supplies to the Postoffice Department will be placed under arrest tomorrow, it is expected, as the result of an indictment in Washington, D. C., in connection with the postal scandals.

Two postoffice inspectors arrived in this city tonight, having come here with certified copies of indictments found by the grand jury in Washington. The inspectors had with them also warrants that had been issued when the grand jury filed the bill. They had been preceded here earlier in the day by Postoffice Inspectors Whalen of San Francisco and Birdseye of Boston, who had been sent here from Washington with a certified copy of the indictment against George W. Beavers and others, in which it is alleged they were charged with conspiracy. The inspectors also had a warrant for Beavers' arrest. It has been arranged with Beavers to surrender himself tomorrow morning, when he will be arraigned before a United States Commissioner.

UNCLE SAM'S PENSIONERS.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The annual report of Commissioner of Pensions Ware places the total number of pensioners now on the rolls at 996,548, of which 725,356 are soldiers and 267,189 are widows and dependents. Mr. Ware announces that it is not probable that the pension roll will again cross the million line, the high-water mark having been reached a year ago. Five of the pensioners are on the roll on account of the War of the Revolution, 1116 on account of the War of 1812, 4724 on account of the Indian wars, and 15,574 on account of the Mexican War. The average annual value of each pension is now $123. The total annual value of the Spanish War pension roll has reached $1,765,317.

Commissioner Ware makes the following recommendations: Laws forfeiting the pension or right to pension of any man convicted in court of an infamous crime; prohibiting the giving of pensions to women who marry soldiers after the soldiers become old pensioners; a different method of examining applicants for pensions, Mr. Ware stamping the present system as uncertain, expensive, unsatisfactory and generative of an enormous amount of political friction.

Mr. Ware says the bureau has gained on the current work 100,000 cases during the last two years. The actual total disbursements in pensions on account of the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, Indian wars, the Mexican War, Civil War, and the war with Spain was $3,038,628,200.

It is estimated that $16,000,000 was paid in pensions for disabilities and deaths due to military and naval service in the wars of 1812 and with Mexico and during the time of peace prior to the War of the Rebellion, making the payments of pensions to soldiers and sailors of the War of the Rebellion and of the regular military and naval establishment since the close of said War of the Rebellion and their widows, children and dependent relatives, amount to $2,862,240,600.

The cost of the pension system per capita of population for 1903 is given as $1.75, to which figure it has shrunk from $2.24, the rate in 1893. In ten years, he says, the burden will cease to be noted.

FOWLER OUTLINES PLAN FOR CURRENCY REFORM.

INVOLVES IMPORTANT CHANGES IN OUR PRESENT SYSTEM.

Proposes to Impound Greenbacks by Including Them in Bank Reserves—To Deposit All Public Money in Banks and Creation of Asset Currency.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Congressman Charles M. Fowler, chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, is in Chicago to confer with bankers on the details of the financial bill he is to introduce at the expected extra session of Congress.

Fowler has outlined the plan of his bill. It will include three leading features, each of which would represent an important change in the currency system.

The first feature provides for a retirement of the greenbacks, or for their "impounding" through a stipulation tha tthe banks be compelled to hold 40 per cent. of their cash reserve in United States reserve notes.

As the national banks today are voluntarily holding $163,000,000 of the greenbacks, Congressman Fowler thinks that this requirement would involve no hardships. It would, according to his idea, be an effectual way of divesting the greenbacks of their power for harm.

The second feature is for the depositing of all public money in the banks, the government to get 2 per cent. interest, and be secured by a first lien on bank assets, the relationship between the government and the banks thus resembling the present relationship of States and municipalities to the banks where they keep their money on deposit. Deposits are not to be larger than 50 per cent. of the paid-up capital of banks receiving them.

The third feature of the bill will be a provision for asset or "credit" currency. National banks will be permitted to put out such currency by depositing in the United States Treasury gold coin or government bonds equal to 5 per cent. of the amount so put out. This 5 per cent., together with the 2 per cent. interest on government deposits and a 1 per cent. tax on the notes thus issued would constitute a safe guarantee fund. When this "guarantee fund" amounted to $10,000,000 the excess over this amount would be utilized in purchasing gold bullion for converting the greenbacks into gold certificates.

BEVERIDGE TALKS.

NO RADICAL LEGISLATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Sept. 10.—The second annual convention of Indiana bankers was addressed today by United States Senator Beveridge. Senator Beveridge has but recently returned from a visit to the President at Oyster Bay, and his positive assertions with regard to the action of the coming session of Congress were given all the more weight. He said, in part:

"The coming session of Congress will not enact any radical or sweeping financial legislation. Except in great emergencies, moderation is the word in all financial legislation. The stability of financial legislation, although imperfect, is more desirable than sudden and comprehensive changes, even though those changes are toward greater perfection. Some moderate financial legislation, which will relieve the periodically recurring money stringency in the money center is probably desired, and may be enacted. But such legislation, if enacted, will be simple in its nature and will not disturb or alarm the business interests of the country. No legislation is possible at the coming session of Congress which will radically effect our entire currency system and cause the business world to pause in our present prosperity until it is seen how such legislation is going to work."

ARIZONA SHAKE-UP.

Surveyor-General Price is Succeeded by Ingalls of Yuma.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Hugh J. Price, Surveyor-General of Arizona, has been removed from office as a result of an investigation made by Secretary Hitchcock's orders into charges preferred against Price and his chief clerk, W. E. Murphy, of receiving illegal fees for expediting work in the office.

Frank S. Ingalls of Yuma, Ariz., has been appointed Surveyor-General in Price's place. Murphy has been suspended pending the inquiry by the Civil Service Commission into the charges against him. He has sent in his resignation, but it has not been accepted. Murphy was appointed from Georgia and Price from Arizona.

PLANT FOOD EQUAL IN ALL THE SOILS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of the scientists of the Department of Agriculture, Prof. Milien Whitney of the Bureau of Soils, has made a discovery which Secretary Wilson regards of the utmost scientific and practical importance. Prof. Whitney has found that the amount of plant food found in all kinds of soil is about the same, thus exploding the popular theory that one soil is richer than another, so far as the quantity of food it contains, is adapted to the growing of crops. The reason one piece of ground will yield better crops than another plot adjoining is yet to be found, in the view of Prof. Whitney. He believes that the difference in yield is dependent upon the condition and kind of cultivation and rotation of crops, maintaining certain necessary physical conditions in the soil under which this plant food can be used.

This discovery will have the effect of raising doubt, if only in the minds of Prof. Whitney and his associates, as to the value of the fertilizing materials in increasing the crop. Having determined that there is as much plant food in one piece of ground as in another, the scientist will now have to determine what elements it is that produced a good or a bad yield. Prof. Whitney's conclusions are based upon an analysis by new and exceedingly sensitive methods, by which the amount of plant food in the soil moisture itself, which is a great nutritive solution for the support of crops, has been determined and not by digesting the soils in acids, which attack the inert mineral matter of the soils. While the conclusions appear to be in conflict with the opinions held for so many years by the agricultural chemists, they are in strict conformity with the experience of good farmers in all countries.

The fertility of soil is shown to be due to physical causes which control the supply of water and plant food which it contains, as the soil moisture in all cases appears to be about the same in composition and concentration. The fertility is, therefore, controlled by physical cause and the chemical examination of a soil cannot be expected to indicate the yield of the crop.

ENORMOUS TRAFFIC ON WESTERN ROADS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The western roads all expect to have a tremendous volume of traffic to move during the coming fall and winter months. They say the tonnage will be very much larger than that of last year, when the limit of their capacity was taxed to the utmost. Since this time last year they have increased their capacity by large purchases of bulk cars and locomotives, but the increase in traffic, it is expected, will turn out to be larger than that of the capacity.

It is fully expected that congestions and blockades will be of as frequent occurrence and as severe as they were last winter. The heavy traffic will be occasioned by the fine crops which the western country has produced, and the general prosperity which these have augmented and served to maintain. There is but one element of uncertainty, and that is the condition of the corn crop, but as each day passes without injuriously affecting it, confidence grows stronger that it will in the end turn out all right. It is not yet beyond the reach of frost, and all of it will not be for three weeks to come, but even if the corn crop should turn out a total failure, of which there is now no probability, the roads would still have enough to afford them a very profitable year.

ROUND VS. SQUARE.

FREIGHT-RATE PROBLEM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Sept. 10.—An important conference has been held here by traffic officials of railroads that are parties to the suit instituted before the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Planters' Compress Company of Boston to compel fourteen leading railroads to allow a differential of 10 cents per 100 pounds in the freight rate on round-bale cotton from St. Louis and Memphis to eastern points under the rate charged for the transportation of square-bale cotton.

The meeting was for the purpose of formulating a plan of defense for the railroad companies before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Before adjournment, the conference passed resolutions asking the commission to meet in Memphis during October or November, for the purpose of conducting the hearing in the case. The case is practically a contest between the round and square cotton bale.

EXPRESS COMPANIES' POOL.

PLATT TO BE INVESTIGATED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Federation of Labor has planned a Congressional inquiry into the business of express companies. It is charged that Senator Thomas C. Platt, president of the United States Express Company, is profiting by the contract by which his concern has a monopoly on the carrying of government money, distributing gold and silver to sub-treasuries and handling army and pension funds. President Schadt of the Chicago federation said:

"There is no doubt whatever that the express companies are in a pool to control rates. There is absolutely no competition. The Texas Railway and Warehouse Commission has just compelled companies doing business there to restore charges in existence before the recent increase of 5 cents per pound.

"Suits are now pending for the recovery of overcharges. It is quite probable that the Pacific and Fargo companies will lose their Texas charters, while the United States and American companies will be proscribed from doing business in the State."

WATSONVILLE'S PROMINENCE.

TERMINAL FOR APPLES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 10.—The Southern Pacific Company announces that Watsonville has been made a terminal point for apple shipments. The rate of $1 will apply from that place, from San José and intermediate points to common points east of Chicago.

The low rates made by the Southern Pacific Company last year to meet emergency conditions and assist apple growers will continue in effect this season. These rates are 75 cents to Denver, 75 cents to Missouri River points and 85 cents to Mississippi River common points and to Chicago. It is believed by the railroad company that these rates will materially help the growers of Pajaro Valley.

The freight department of the company also announces a rate of $2.50 per hundred on dry goods from San José to eastern points.

D. AND R. G. IMPROVEMENTS.

SHOPS FOR SALT LAKE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SALT LAKE, (Utah) Sept. 10.—Gen. Supt. J. H. Young of the Rio Grande Western announced today that the City Council of Salt Lake would be presented at its next meting with a petition for necessary franchises for improvments for the Denver & Rio Grande system in this city, aggregating nearly $1,000,000. This will include the erection of a new depot, to cost at least $300,000, enlargement of the shops at an outlay of $225,000, the doubling of the present freight facilities and a great enlargement of the yards.

The old ccntroversy with the Oregon Short Line over the use of certain streets has been settled amicably, and the road is now in a position to go ahead with the improvements planned by Gould during his visit to the city about three months ago. The shops, wen enlarged, will give employment to more than five hundred men.

RATES ON GRAIN.

PROTESTS BRING A REDUCTION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—At a meeting in this city of traffic managers of the trunk lines a reduction of 1 cent per bushel on grain from Buffalo to New York has been announced to take effect September 16. This will bring the rate down to 4 cents for wheat, 3½ cents for corn, 3 cents for oats, and 3½ cents for barley.

The reduction is said to be the result of protests by New York grain merchants against the high rates current in this port, which were, it was claimed, forcing the bulk of the grain exports through the Gulf ports and Montreal.

The new rates, which were largely in the shape of a compromise, will expire October 15. They will apply to Boston and Philadelphia, as well as New York. Baltimore has a differential of 4 mills.

NUTS ARE ACTIVE AND GOING HIGHER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The prospect for an active trade in most of the leading description of nuts this season is exceptionally bright. Inquiries are reported fully as large as usual, and early sales have been heavier than for years. These trade indications confirm the statements made that the consumption of nuts is increasing very rapidly year by year, and that unless production increases more rapidly than it has done for some seasons past, there will be a perpetual shortage in a number of the principal varieties.

Pecan prices have advanced, and are now held high. Western interests have been seeking supplies in this market, and have been ordering their purchases forward by express. Meanwhile, large jobbing interests which refused to consider offers at a comparatively low figure a short time ago, are paying an increased price now, which is perhaps a sufficient commentary on the situation. California almonds have sold freely, particularly the cheaper grades, which are wanted by confectioners and bakers. Holders do not confirm orders readily now, indicating that supplies have become somewhat reduced. The higher-priced sorts are not taken as liberally, but moderate business is reported in them.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT.

TUXEDO PARK (N. Y.) Sept. 10.—Dr. Edward C. Rushmore of the Tuxedo Colony was fatally injured, and Miss Cornelia Herrick of Southampton, his niece, was instantly killed in an automobile accident at Arden today. The machine rushed backward down the hill, going down a sixty-foot embaukment on the mountain side

UNION JACK GOING AWAY UP NORTH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HALIFAX (N. S.) Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Great interest is manifested in Canada, especially by scientists, in the expedition which left Halifax by the steamer Neptune for Hudson Bay and adjacent waters. This expedition, which is in charge of A. P. Lowe of the Geological Survey of Canada, has a multiplicity of duties to perform. The place of government for Hudson's Bay district is to be decided on, police posts are to be established, the geological and botanical features of the territory are to be investigated, and a determined effort is to be made to break up the poaching on fishing and sealing grounds carried on by fishing vessels from the United States. In this latter matter, it may be said, according to the Canadian government, the three-mile limit does not apply to Hudson's Bay, that body of water being looked upon as an inland sea.

The Neptune is starting rather late in the season to do much work before the winter sets in, and will probably be compelled to make winter quarters at Chesterfield Inlet, in the northwestern port of Hudson's Bay. It is expected the ship will be frozen in in November and remain until June, 1904. After the Union Jack has been planted as far north as it is possible to penetrate, the Neptune will return as far as Lancaster Strait, between Prince of Wales, North Somerset and Cockburn islands on one side, and North Devon, Cornwallis and Bathurst islands on the other, going up that strait until again stopped, hoisting the British flag on all islands and taking formal possession in the name of King Edward VII.

As the season will then be late, the Neptune will start south again along the east side of Baffin Bay, past Cumberland Gulf, through Hudson Strait and the Fish Strait into Cumberland Inlet, where mounted police will be landed and left, the monarchs of all they survey. Barring accidents, it is expected that this will take place in September, 1904.

MAKING PLANS FOR REVOLUTION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Strong interests on the Isthmus of Panama, who make their headquarters in this city, are reported to be considering a plan of action to be undertaken in coöperation with men of similar views in Panama and Colon to bring about a revolution, and form an independent government in Panama, opposed to that in Bogota.

There is much perturbation on the Isthmus on account of the failure of the canal treaty, which is ascribed to the authorities at Bogota and the natives of Panama think it is to their best interests for a new republic to be formed on the Isthmus, which may negotiate directly with the United States a new treaty.

MARROQUIN'S PLAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—While the Senate at Bogota postponed until this week discussion of the new bill authorizing the government to negotiate another isthmian canal treaty with the United States, it is known, says a Panama dispatch to the Herald, that the government does not attach much importance to the proposed law, but it is believed the Marroquin administration will treat directly with the Washington government for a new treaty, on what it considered an equitable basis.

BUBONIC PLAGUE INVADES FRANCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MARSEILLES, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A number of buildings on the outskirts of this city where suspected cases of bubonic plague had been reported, were burned today. The sanitary officials used sulphur in the disinfection of merchandise in the buildings, and the flames communicated to the buildings themselves.

The officials here continue to assert that the existence of the plague has not been established, but they admit that eight suspicious cases, five of which resulted in death, have occurred. These cases originated in a cargo of rags brought here in a vessel from Constantinople.

The unofficial reports make the situation more serious. The dead, it appears, include four women and one man, whose bodies were covered with buboes, leaving little doubt as to the nature of the disease. Eighteen suspects are under surveillance.

MARCHING ORDERS ISSUED BY DOWIE.

KENOSHA (Wis.) Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Preparatory to the big trip to New York next month, and remembering that in invading the enemy's country, his brave 3000 followers "take their lives in their hands," Zionist Dowie has issued a list of warnings and reminders for their guidance. Among them are the following:

"Do not talk too much.

"Do not argue any questions.

"Do not do as you please, but obey orders.

"Do not talk about things you do not understand.

"Remember that New York is the imperial city of the United States.

"Remember that you are to approach New York with great respect.

"Remember that the people of New York are intelligent.

"Remember that there are multitudes there who desire to know and to do God's will better.

"Remember that the average New Yorker is a solid person of strong intellect, strong character, with sturdy instincts and strong retentive powers.

"Remember that the unscrupulous dealers on the Stock Exchange are the real curse of the country, and let us pray God that we may bring many to give up their evil ways."

William Hoffman Kills His Generous Father-in-Law and Pursuing Posse Expects Battle With Him.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WATERLOO (Ill.) Sept. 10.—William Hoffman, a young farm hand living near Mayestown, Ill., twelve miles southeast of Waterloo, called his father-in-law, Dr. W. M. Brandt, to the door of his house last night and shot him to death. Then he rode back to his wife and told her that he "had killed the old hound," her father; gave her $2, which he said he wanted her to spend on the christening of their four-weeks-old daughter, Mary, kissed her and their four children and rode into the woods.

"There are two men I must kill before I kill mtyself," he said to his wife before leaving.

The family of Dr. Brandt offers a reward of $200 for Hoffman's capture. Sheriff Thomas Rupp and a large posse are searching for him and expect at any time to have a pitched battle with him. He is armed with a shotgun and revolvers. Before killing his father-in-law he purchased fifty rounds of cartridges for the gun.

Hoffman is an unerring marksman, and the officers believe was driven to recklessness by whiskey and his imaginary troubles.

It is supposed that Hoffman killed his father-in-law because the old gentleman refused to increase his weekly allowance. Dr. Brandt was quite wealthy and had been practically supporting his son-in-law and family.

Ineffectual Efforts to Compel Navy Department to Retain William H. Helm, as Chief Quartermaster.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Chief Quartermaster William H. Helm of the Construction and Repair Department at the navy yard, has been handed his discharge from the service, signed by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling. He was afterward offered a position as quartermaster laborer, which he refused to accept.

The case of Helm has attracted widespread attention because it involved the G.A.R., of which he is a member, the secretary of the local organization having written a letter to the Secretary of the Navy in which he threatened that if Helm was discharged, the veterans would be heard from this fall.

The matter was also called to the attention of the President, and his intervention in Helm's favor was requested. The President refused to interfere and merely referred the matter to the Secretary of the Navy.

Troops in Cripple Creek to Aid the Sheriff.

President of the Miners' Union is Placed Under Arrest.

Men Leaving Telluride — Gold Field Compressor is Again in Operation.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER (Colo.) Sept. 10.—Gov. Peabody declared this evening unwarranted the suggestions of a conflict between the commander of the State troops in Cripple Creek and the Sheriff of Teller county over the possession of a prisoner. He declared that martial law had not been established in Cripple Creek, and will not be. Gen. Bell and his troops, said he, are in the district to aid the civil authorities in maintaining order, not to supersede them.

In regard to the case of President Kennison of the Cripple Creek Miners' Union, the Governor said: "I do not know whether Gen. Bell has a right to arrest the prisoner from the Sheriff or not, but I do know that he will not release him."

Gov. Peabody is said to have had a conference with Gen. Bell over the telephone regarding the Kennison case, nothing of its character was given out.

UNION LEADER ARRESTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

COLORADO SPRINGS, Sept. 10.—It is announced from Cripple Creek that a clash between the civil and military authorities in the camp is feared for. President Kennison of the district unions had trouble with a non-union miner this morning and drew a gun, but was disarmed before he could use it. Later he was arrested by the civil authorities and the military has now surrounded the jail, with the reported intention of taking charge of the prisoner.

Kennison was arrested and placed in jail on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He said: "I am guilty of the offense charged. I carried a weapon for the sole purpose of defending my life. The guards at the Excelsior mine said they would stretch me up to an electric light pole. I was brutally assaulted this morning, and I drew a revolver in defense of my life."

COMPRESSOR STARTS UP.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 10.—The great compressor of the La Bella Mine Company at Goldfield, furnishing light to several towns of the district, and compressed air to several mines, started in motion this morning for the first time since the strike was declared, forcing air into the Golden Cycle, Vindicator, Findlay, Theresa and other mines and several leases that have started operations. The shift that started the machinery in motion was composed entirely of new men, none of the old employes having reported for duty. The plant is completely surrounded by cavalry and infantry.

MEN LEAVING TELLURIDE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TELLURIDE (Colo.) Sept. 10.—The strike here is complete. Fifty men left camp today mostly for Colorado points. All the Ophir properties are not working. Manager Buckley of the Smuggler Consolidated met a union committee and agreed to the wage scale and the exception of the clause compelling working three shifts in certain mines.

Manager Axtell of the Carribou will not concede the wage scale asked for and it is thought these two properties will therefore continue operations uninterrupted.

miral Cotton's communications to the Navy Department are promptly sent to the State Department.

GREECE WILL CO-OPERATE.

SUPPORT FOR THE TURKS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A special dispatch from Athens quotes former Premier Zaimis as saying that the Greek government is determined to coöperate with the Porte in the suppresion of the insurrection in Macedonia, though Greece is fully in favor of the institution of reforms after order has been restored. He denounced the attitude of the Bulgarians, saying that their aim is to destroy all the Greek Christians and to prevent Macedonia from becoming independent.

M. Zaimis added that he believed the powers would never permit the Turko-Bulgarian war, and said that measures would be adopted by the Porte at a very early date to suppress the revolution.

AMERICAN CITIZEN RELEASED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Minister Leishman has cabled to the State Department that he has secured the release of Abdul Kader Mathaney, a naturalized citizen of the United States, born at Tripoli, Syria, who, soon after returning to his native country in 1901, committed an offense for which he was sentenced by the consular court of the United States at Beirut to a term of six months in the Syrian jail. In the early part of the current year, he was arrested at Tripoli and condemned by the local court for the same offense to three and a half years imprisonement. Minister Leishman promptly protested against this violation of the rights of an American citizen.

DEMONSTRATION AT BELGRADE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BELGRADE, (Servia) Sept. 10.—A mob made a great demonstration last night against the newspapers which have defended the army officers recently arrested. The crowd attempted to proceed to the Turkish legation, but was dispersed by the police. Many persons were slightly injured.

GREATEST EXCESSES SO FAR COMMITTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A European merchant who left Monastir September 8 has arrived at Sofia and has given the Associated Press correspondent an account of the terrible conditions prevailing in the vilayet of Monastir. Hilmi Pasha is following the lines of his predecessors and the greatest excesses that have ever been committed have happened since his arrival. Throughout the vilayet of Monastir, the Turkish soldiers are daily perpetrating almost inconceivable atrocities. They dishonor the young girls in the presence of their parents and pillage and murder everywhere. Even funeral processions are halted and the corpses stripped of their clothes. The priests' vestments are seized and the soldiers sell all their plunder openly, the officers apparently consenting.

The informant of the Associated Press says the Christian inhabitants are terror-stricken, hourly fearing a general massacre by the Musulmans, whose fanatical hatred of the Christians has reached the highest point. The shops are closed in Monastir, business is suspended, and the streets are deserted. Even the Consuls do not dare to venture outside their homes. The country people are afraid to come to the city, lest they should be robbed and murdered on the way. Europeans desiring to see the burned villages are prevented by the authorities on various excuses. The British Consul wanted to go to Smilevo, but Hilmi Pasha informed him that he could not guarantee his safety, as the revolutionists had plotted to kill him.

The informant continues that it is estimated that there are over seventy thousand people in the district without shelter and starving. Hilmi Pasha has promised the Consuls that he will assist the destitute people, but he has done nothing and even refuses to allow them to enter the town and beg for food.

Many cruelties perpetrated on Christians are attributed to Greek spies, headed by a Greek bishop, who, with the Greek Consular, it is said, are paid by the Porte for their services. The Greeks are accused of inventing reports for the purpose of fanning the Mussulmans' hatred of the Bulgarians.

The Turkish functionaries openly scoff at the idea of reforms or European intervention, declaring that should armed European forces come, the Turks would immediately burn, destroy and massacre, leaving only bare fields throughout Macedonia.

OTHER NEWS FROM SOFIA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 10.—The continuous reports of wholesale massacres of the Bulgarian population and the destruction of Bulgarian villages in Macedonia are causing much excitement in political and general circles here. Premier Petroff is said to have informed the representatives of the powers in Sofia that neither the government nor the Bulgarian people can witness with indifference the annihilation of the Bulgarian element in Macedonia and the devastation of the country, and unless the powers can find some means of restraining Turkey's terrible repressive measures, Bulgaria will be forced to depart from her present attitude of strict neutrality. While the Premier's intimation was conveyed in the course of informal conversation with the diplomats in Sofia, and was in no sense intended as an official communication, it may be regarded as an indication that the patience of the Bulgarian people is becoming exhausted.

Every day brings news of fresh massacres and outrages in Macedonia. The revolutionary organizations today published elaborate statistics giving the names of 111 villages burned by the Turkish soldiers, the number of houses in each, the date of the incendiarism and particulars of the number of persons murdered in each case.

Official representatives residing here are suspiciously reticent, but no doubt exists regarding the terrible barbarities practiced by the Turkish regulars and Bashi Bazouks on helpless women and children in Macedonia. The Sofia government has hitherto withstood all attempts on the part of the Macedonian committees to draw Bulgaria into a war with Turkey, but the trend of affairs is daily becoming more critical and the position of the ministry more difficult.

The official view of the situation continues pessimistic, but in other quarters the belief prevails that the powers will shortly propose a new scheme of pacification in Macedonia and thus remove the possibility of a Turco-Bulgarian war.

Much confidence is expressed that the approaching visit of the Czar to Vienna will result in the peaceful solution of the difficulties. Telegrams from the frontier indicate approaching disturbances in Northern and Eastern Macedonia. A telegram from Djoumala says the rich Turks are leaving the villages in that district, and that the Pomaks, or Bulgarian Mohemmedans, would follow suit, but do not know where they can find refuge.

The great forest of Pirin is burning. The Turks set fire to the forest in four places, and the flames are visible at a great distance. Fighting is reported to be taking place near Melnik, and another fight is also going on in the vilayet of Monastir. At Bukovit, Severn Orshevo and Gostiva, the insurgents surprised a body of Bashi Bazouks pillaging the village. The latter were attacked and many were killed. Near Midesch, District of Kostur, it is reported that a band led by Tchakaloroff has defeated a detachment of Turkish troops, who had about sixty killed.

Many wounded Turks are arriving at Monastir, filling the hospitals. The population in the district of Veles are reported to be in a terrible condition. Nearly all the villages have been plundered and destroyed. The old men, women and children were brutally flogged by the soldiers, and many were killed, the Bashi Bazouks leaving the bodies unburied. The Bulgarian inhabitants of the town of Veles are terrified, fearing to leave their houses lest they should be denounced by the Greek spies and cast into prison.

A telegram from Burgas states that 2000 Turkish soldiers, with two cannon, have landed near Vasiliko, on the Black Sea, and attacked the town, which is still occupied by the insurgents.

EUROPE MUST SEND PURE WINE AND OIL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Agricultural Department is making strong efforts to keep out of the country all imported goods, the entry of which is inhibited under the pure-food act, Since August 1, when the act went into effect, approximately 600 shipments of meat, wine, olive oil, etc., have been held up pending the examination, as to their purity, or the determination of the question whether their use is prohibited in the country whence they are imported into the United States. Up to this time only one shipment, consisting of a number of cases of white wine, has been refused entry.

Our special agents and consuls abroad keep the department advised by cable of all shipments of goods which may come within the prohibitions of the law, and instructions are sent at once to the collectors at the ports where they are to arrive to hold them in warehouses and send samples to Washington for analysis or other examination.

POPE LEO'S MALADY.

Prof. Carderelli Writes Long Article to Demonstrate that it Was Tuberculosis Cancer Instead of Pleurisy.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ROME, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Prof. Carderelli, the eminent physician, who is a member of the Senate, publishes in the Rivista D'Italia today a long article to demonstrate that Pope Leo XIII died of tuberculosis cancer, or right hydrothorax. He fortifies his statement with arguments based on his own experience, and that of authorities such as Trousseau, Barth, Frankel and Zagari, to show that all the symptoms of the illness of Pope Leo as stated in bulletins by Drs. Lapponi and Mazzoni lead to the conclusion that the late Pope was not affected by the pleurisy or pleuro-pneumonia.

WHOLESALE THIEVERY.

Grocery Jobbers of Chicago Unearth a Conspiracy, Whereby They Have Lost Thousands of Dollars.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—By the arrest of eight men last night the wholesale grocers of Chicago struck an initial blow at a widespread conspiracy, by which they have lost thousands of dollars worth of merchandise in the last few weeks. Those in custody are six teamsters, a receiving clerk and a retail grocer. Other arrests wil be made today and the promise is that fifty or more men—employés of the wholesale houses as well as retail grocers—will be involved in the charges.

According to the confession of one of the prisoners, the scheme was worked in this manner:

"For instance, a driver would take sixty bags of sugar out of the warehouse. Then he would drive around to some retail grocer, who was 'in' on the play, and would deliver perhaps fifteen of the bags to him. That done, he would deliver the other forty-five to the wholesale house.

"Of course to make the records seem right it would be necessary for the drivers to have an understanding with some receiving clerk in the wholesale house. The receiving clerk would check up for sixty sacks received, and in this way the theft would not be detected until it was found that the stock on hand was becoming depleted."

NEGRO HERE TO STAY.

SALEM (Mass.) Sept. 10.—Senator Hoar and George von L. Meyer, United States Ambassador to Italy, were the principal guests today at the annual summer outing of the Essex Club of Massachusetts at Baker's Island. Senator Hoar, the chief speaker, discussed "Problems of the Nation." Discussing the race problem in the South, the Senator said: "I see that one enthusiastic Southern gentleman has renewed the proposition that we shall send ten million negroes out of the country. This is totally impracticable. Let us not delude ourselves. We have got the question to meet squarely at home. The negro will stay. The European and Asiatic will come. You cannot turn them out and you cannot keep them out."

Mamet was arrested by the Marshal on the charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday and the saloon men had sworn vengeance. The men met at Van Sycle's saloon and Mamet at once drew his revolver and shot Surties, the ball striking him in the wrist. Surties then opened fire.

POPE POSTING HIMSELF.

ROME, Sept. 10.—The Pope is carrying out his intention to do all and to know all, and for this purpose he has not appointed a Secretary of State. While writing the encyclical addressed to Catholic bishops throughout the whole world, which he turned over sheet by sheet to Mgrs. Sardi and Galli to translate, the Pontiff was also employed in personally writing answers to diplomatic notes and attending to other political affairs which did not go into the hands of Mgr. Merry del Val, the active Secretary of State. In this way the Pope, in less than two months of his pontificate, has learned many things, and is able to direct and carry out his policy which he is now quietly formulating.

STATE TAX RATE FIXED.

San Francisco's Assessment Raised Thirty Per Cent.

Nineteen Other Counties Must Also Revise Their Schedules.

Dangerous Alaskan Navigation. Desperate Convict—Forestry Reserve Policy.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 10.—The State Board of Equalization this morning fixed the State tax rate at 86 cents and 1 mill on each $100 of assessable property in the State.

The total amount returned by the various auditors was $1,894,684,718. The board increased that amount $178,423,-808, making a total assessed valuation of $1,813,978,578. The railroad assessments as fixed by the board amounted to $84,087,753, making the grand total of assessable property $1,597,066,031. From that sum 5 per cent., or $79,853,-301, is taken for delinquencies and collection of the same, making the net valuation upon which the tax levy is based, $1,817,213,726.

The Legislature required the board to raise for the general fund $6,200,000; for the school fund, $2,617,203; for the interest and sinking fund, $141,485, or a total of $7,959,435, or 52 cents and 6 mills on each $100 of assessable property. To this is added 2 cents for the State University and 1 cent and 5 mills for the high-school fund, making a total rate of 86 cents and 1 mill. The vote for 1902 was 53 cents and 1 mills. The total value of all property in 1902 was $1,259,976,062.

The vote on the motion to let the assessments stand of those counties other than the counties that were raised stood as follows: In favor, Beamer, Mattison, Colgan and Brown. Against, Alford.

Equalizer Alford of San Francisco, in explaining his vote, said he voted against passing the other counties because he was not in favor of allowing their assessments to stand while that of San Francisco was raised.

Alford moved to reduce San Francisco's assessment 15 per cent. from that figured returned to the State board by the County Auditor. The motion received no second.

He then offered the following: "Resolved, That the amount of the assessment of Los Angeles county as returned by its County Auditor be reduced 15 per cent. and that the assessments of the other counties remain as they have been returned by their respective auditors." Alford was the only member of the board to vote for the resolution.

Equalizer Mattison moved that San Francisco be increased 20 per cent. The motion carried, Alford and Colgan voting no.

Alford then moved that all the counties outside of San Francisco be raised 15 per cent. for the purpose of putting them on the same basis with San Francisco. The motion received no second. He then moved to increase these counties 25 per cent., but received no second, and so on to 20 per cent., 15 per cent. and 5 per cent., with the same result.

Alford announced that his votes in favor of raising the counties would be cast solely for the purpose of putting them on the same basis with San Francisco, and for the purpose of protecting that city against discrimination.

He gave as his reason for voting no on the motion to pass the counties not raised by the board that in his opinion San Francisco was assessed at high and higher than she ought to be, and therefore he could not vote for the motion to pass any county after the board raised San Francisco.

Following are the percentages of increase: Alameda, 20 per cent.; Butte, 10 per cent.; Contra Costa, 10 per cent.; Humboldt, 10 per cent.; Marin, 5 per cent.; Mendocino, 15 per cent.; Monterey, 10 per cent.; Orange, 10 per cent.; Riverside, 15 per cent.; Sacramento, 15 per cent.; San Bernardino, 10 per cent.; San Francisco, 20 per cent.; San Mateo, 10 per cent.; Santa Barbara, 10 per cent.; Santa Clara, 10 per cent.; Santa Cruz, 10 per cent.; Solano, 10 per cent.; Sonoma, 10 per cent.; Ventura, 10 per cent.; Yolo, 10 per cent.

The increase in each equalization district is as follows: First (Alford), $118,218,078; Second (Brown), $27,893,-606; Third (Beamer), $113,582,993; Fourth (Mattison), $18,423,831.

Helps Out Los Angeles.

It is said that the ruling of the State Board will cut off $100,000 from Los Angeles county taxes.

What probably won the fight for this county was the showing made by the delegation, consisting of Deputy District Attorney James, Chairman Longden of the Supervisors, and John Lowe, Deputy Clerk, as to the San Francisco assessments. This delegation showed that whereas San Francisco had $15,000,000 in building permits, the assessments for increased improvements were only $2,000,000.

GUILELESS ANGELENO.

SAVED FROM BUNCO SHARPS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Maloney, alias Jack O'Brien, alias John Mahoney and David Brock, were arrested by Detectives Ryan and Taylor at Third and Market streets yesterday, just in time, they think, to save George Dickinson of Los Angeles from being buncoed. They found Maloney and Brock with Dickinson in tow, and knowing the pair's record, did not wait for further developments. Maloney is said to have served seven years in Walla Walla penitentiary for a bunco trick, he turned in Seattle. At No. 34 Ellis street on May 22 of this year, according to the statements of the police, he buncoed Charles Nelson, a tanner, out of $115. He fled from the city and returned yesterday.

Brock has an eastern record, having been arrested in New Orleans for confidence work.

CONVICT GRAFF.

FORTUNATE CAPTURE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Warden Dryden of Walla Walla penitentiary has learned that by recapturing Convict Joseph Graff early this week the penitentiary guards prevented a desperate hold-up and possible murder which Graff intended to commit. Graff was followed for thirteen days by two guards, who overpowered and recaptured him on a ranch. He escaped from the pen while taking care of the flower beds as a trusty. He was serving a sentence of two years, and had but two months more to serve.

Another convict has told Warden Dryden of Graff's plans, had he made his escape good. According to this prisoner, with whom Graff had chummed, he intended turning just one more trick, and was then going home, as Graff said, to live a respectable life. With another convict who had recently been released, Graff intended holding upp a wealthy hop grower in Umatilla county, Oregon, relieving him of a large sum which he would be carrying home to pay off hop pickers. An outside pal furnished Graff with a Winchester and steel-cap bullets with which he shot several bears before reaching Eight, where he was retaken.

HAMMOND TO BE TRIED.

DECISION OF CONFERENCE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PACIFIC GROVE, Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At the Methodist conference one of the first questions called up yesterday was the Hammond case. Dr. Hammond's friends introduced a resolution deploring the publicity in the case, and censuring the preachers responsible for giving the facts to the newspapers. Drs. Briggs and Dennett, made such vigorous replies that the censure was cut out. Then Hammond asked the right to make a statement, and it was decided to hear him today in secret session. Dr. George C. Mains, of Eaton & Mains, agents of the Book Concern, made a clear statement showing that the big apparent deficit of $600,000 was due to dropping old stock which had been carried for years on the books, but which had no real value.

Today, Hammond made a long statement which was evasive and unsatisfactory. Pinned down by Briggs, he admitted the destruction of his account books. He made so poor a showing that the conference decided to try him before a committee of fifteen clergymen representing both sides of the controversy. An attempt was made by his friends to have him let off without a trial, but it failed. The trial will be on a charge of dishonesty in business transactions, with six specifications.

HAS RIGHT OF CHALLENGE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PACIFIC GROVE, Sept. 10.—The conference will meet tomorrow morning in executive session to elect the members of the trial committee, against any one of which Dr. Hammond has the right of challenge. It is planned to have the trial at once and completed before the conference adjourns. The sittings of the trial committee will be held behind closed doors.

The lay electoral conference meets tomorrow morning to elect delegates to the general conference, which meets in Los Angeles next May.

FOREST RESERVE POLICY.

PROF. PINCHOT EXPLAINS IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Sept. 10—"The forest reserve policy in California" was the subject of a lecture given at the university by Gifford Pinchot, forester of the United States Bureau of Forestry, who is now on the Coast investigating conditions, particularly in California. His address was largely a defense of the position of the government in setting aside the great forest reserve in Northern California, a measure which has met with much opposition.

"In the large sense," he said, "it is the use of the forest reserves that is the excuse for their existence, and the government must make them useful to all the people. In taking up the work with this point in view the government necessarily overlooks private interests for the public good. Hence the occasional clashes with interested individuals, especially when private enterprise becomes destructive to the public good.

"Among the many misconceptions that cloud the issue in the northern part of this State is the argument that the boundaries of the forest reserves, as finally adjusted, will coincide with the boundaries of the land withdrawn —a total of 12,000,000 acres. But this is not the case, since a considerable part of the territory will probably turn out to be unfit for forestry purposes, and will be thrown open to the public again. Another point that aroused much discussion is the clause in the forestry act agreeing to exchange outside lands for lands included in the territory appropriated, which it was feared, would prove a chance for speculators. These and all other objections would not, however, survive long after a community has gained an understanding of a real forest reserve. Strange to say, although Northern California still cherished a strong sentiment against the forest reserve, Southern California was heartily in sympathy with the proposition."

MAGNETIC ROCK.

MAKES COMPASSES USELESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 10. Samuel Jackson Barnett, assistant professor of physics, has returned to the university after several months spent in survey work along the Alaskan coast. Prof. Barnett left here last May to take charge of a party sent out by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey to make accurate surveys of the northern country, along the coast line. The party made a special investigation into the peculiar magnetic disturbances which have made navigation difficult in certain localities.

Near Skagway these disturbances are very severe, the deflection of the needle being so great that the compasses are rendered almost useless in that vicinity. It was found that this strange state of affairs was due to the abundance of magnetic rock in the locality. This rock is present in immense quantities on Douglas Island, and on the main land and near Skagway, it is especially abundant. Prof. Barnett says that there was almost a perfect magnetic pole at that point. He will prepare a full report on the subject for the government.

FINE TIMBER BURNING.

FIRE RAGING IN SHASTA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

REDDING, Sept. 10.—The greatest forest fire in the history of Western Shasta county has raged for several days about the towns of Igo and Ono. It is now racing rapidly toward a great belt of timber which lies along the Shasta side of the mountains which divide Shasta and Trinity counties.

The fire started Tuesday morning near the farm of Mrs. Catherine Ritchie, near Ono. All fences and improvements of the Conrad farm, excepting the dwelling and the barn were destroyed. The properties of Robert Richter, John P. Wright and William Richter were saved only by the greatest effort. The water supply of the Happy Valley Irrigating district was menaced. The entire country was aroused, the residents turning out in a body to combat the flames.

LOSSES NEAR DOWNIEVILLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DOWNIEVILLE, Sept. 10. — The worst forest fire that has ever visited this section is burning fiercely in the timber on the mountains close to town and several miles of valuable timber have already been destroyed. The fire has crossed the south fork of the North Yuba, and is spreading rapidly in all directions over a territory that has never been visited before.

Another fire is also raging between Camptonville and San Juan on the hill near Badena. A large tract of country is being burned over and much timber will be destroyed.

SNUFFS OUT HER LIFE.

WEALTHY YOUNG WOMAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Miss Isabelle D. Clark, aged 32, a sister of Mrs. Jerome Hart, and daughter of the late Jeremiah Clark, whose family is one of the most wealthy in this part of the State, was asphyxiated at the McNutt Hospital last night.

She was found dead in bed by her maid this morning. Miss Whitelaw detected the odor of gas, and calling Miss Mattie Schmidt, the matron of the hospital, the two entered the room occupied by Miss Clark and found her dead in bed with the jet of the gas stove turned on.

Miss Clark had been at the hospital for several weeks, and was being treated for nervous trouble. She had no special nurse, except her maid, and had been in the habit of being left alone when she retired at night.

About two years ago Miss Clark attempted to commit suicide, but was saved through the action of one of her sisters. Since then she has lived very quietly, almost in retirement, at the Clark home in San José.

No reason except ill-health can be assigned for the suicide. A private note addressed to Dr. McNutt was found, but the contents have not been made public.

SAN JOAQUIN CANAL.

INJUNCTION SUIT BEGUN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

FRESNO, Sept. 10.—The J. G. James Company began an injunction suit against the San Joaquin and Kings River Canal and Irrigation Company this morning to prevent it from maintaining, constructing and operating a canal or ditch, so as to hinder the plaintiff from using the waters of the San Joaquin River for the purpose of irrigating its property.

It is also alleged in the complaint that the defendant has constructed head gates to its canals which prevent the plaintiff from having any water on its land. Plaintiff asks the court to order these gates destroyed, and that the plaintiff be allowed the free use of the waters from the San Joaquin River for use on its property.

Bonds in the sum of $10,000 were filed to compensate for any losses incurred pending the injunction in case the decision is adverse to plaintiff.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

The woman's husband, Charles Williams, was a brakeman on the train which caused her death. The train was in charge of Engineer Hammond and Conductor Buckman. The woman's body was horribly mangled and torn, and almost unrecognizable. It is supposed that strong drink was the cause for her action.

Norman Lockyer Points Out the Decision Made for Her Universities Compared With Those of Germany and the United States.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—[By Atlantic cable.] At the British Association for the Advancement of Science met last night at Southampton, Sir Norman Lockyer delivered his annual address, entitled "The Influence of Brain Power upon the Course of his remarks, Sir Norman dwelt at length on the importance in modern competition of the British industries, contrasting from international exhibitions, with Germany, on the Paris Exhibition, with the organization of science. He said:

"In relation as a nation, our success depends are in peril chiefly—with preventable causes—because of our lack of completely efficient universities and our neglect of them.

"In Great Britain, have eleven universities competing with 134 State splendidly endowed in the United States and 25 State endowed in Germany. The German State gives to one city more than the British government allows to all the universities of Scotland, colleges in England, Ireland and Wales put together. Here are the conditions which regulate the production of brain power in the United States, Germany and Great Britain respectively and the excuse of the latter is that this is a matter of voluntary effort.

"Is the scale of private effort able to compete with in regard to the German universities?

"The United States during the last year, universities and colleges received more than $40,000,000 from private sources.

"Now to consider the large endowment of university education in the United States and Germany, it is obvious that the State aid can only make any education possible with either." He then compared the vast sum given by the British government for "brain power," and added that the navy bill of one hundred and twenty millions sterling that amount to the value of Great Britain's brain power.

SOLDIER SHOT SNEAK THIEF.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—William Crowley of Monaca, Pa., was shot in the groin today by a soldier at the United States Arsenal. He was removed to the hospital, in a serious condition, and a dispute is now on between the police authorities and the commandant of the arsenal concerning the arrest of the soldier who did the shooting. Thefts of copper and lead from the roofs of the barracks have been frequent of late. It is alleged that Crowley, with several others, was detected removing the copper. Crowley refused to halt, when commanded, and the soldier shot him. The police authorities demanded the arrest of the soldier, but the commandant barred the gates and refused to surrender him.

DOG FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—In a gloomy, old-fashioned house in Dean street, Brooklyn, the police, who battered down the door, have found the body of Mrs. Margaret May lying on a bed in an upper story. At her feet lay the body of a fox terrier dog. Until recently the old house has been the Mecca for the poor of that quarter. Since the death of Mrs. May's husband, who was quite wealthy, the woman distributed charity to all who applied. She had not been seen for a month, and weeds had grown high in the usually well-kept garden, where she formerly had spent much time. Finally, alarmed at her non-appearance, the neighbors notified the police and the doors were broken open. The woman had been dead nearly a month, evidently from natural causes, but the little dog had never quitted her vigil and died from starvation.

BUSINESS.

In spite of the fact that the week ended yesterday included two legal holidays, the clearings of the local banks for the four active business days were in every way satisfactory, averaging over a million dollars a day and amounting to $4,430,939.09. The figures for the corresponding week of last year were $4,491,778.09 showing a decrease of about 1.3 per cent. for this year. Last year, however, Labor Day appeared in the previous week. Business everywhere reported active and money is in demand.

The New York stock market was more active yesterday, but the activity was in many instances at the expense of prices. Extreme weakness of steel stocks, which were sold in large volume, was a disturbing feature. The Chicago grain pits were busy without notable transactions.

FOOD FRAUDS.

Apropos of the campaign that has been waged by the health officers of Los Angeles against impure milk and impure beef, a correspondent sends The Times the following clipping, with the remark: "Let us all take to the woods." Is it any wonder that so many people die before their time? Is it, indeed, not a wonder that civilized people live as long as they do? Also, is it not about time to begin a serious and determined campaign for a national pure-food law, notwithstanding the selfish opposition of the big packing-houses:

"In Paris snails are popular, and the adulterators mix them with lungs of cattle and horses. Even entirely artificial snails are manufactured. The shells, recoated with fat and slime, are filled with lung and then sold as 'Burgundy' snails. Livers of fresh rooster combs are imposed upon by a substitute cut out of hogs' intestines.

"Chopped artificial truffles are made of black rubber, silk, or softened leather, and even whole truffles are made out of roasted potatoes, which are flavored by adding other. They are said to sell well.

"Fish spoiled in spite of ice and borax is treated with salts of zinc, aluminum, and other metals. Rubbing the fish with vaseline to give it a fresh look and coloring the gills with fresh blood or cosin—a coal tar color—is resorted to. The latter is also used to intensify the red color of inferior crabs.

"Imparting a greenish color to oysters is another adulteration. An oyster requires about one month in the beds to acquire the greenish color. As this is too long a time, the dealers help them along with an artificial color. The chemists in the Paris municipal laboratories have shown that tomato jelly is adulterated with turnips and powdered pepper contains a large admixture of powdered hardtack."

CRUSHING COMPETITION.

Reference was recently made to a big corner in cotton, as being decidedly "in restraint of trade," and consequently coming properly within the province of governmental action. Another instance of a somewhat similar kind is furnished in the attempt now being made by the Standard Oil Company to crush out of existence the small refineries that have sprung up in California consequent upon the development of the petroleum industry. The usual plan adopted is that of forcing the price of the product down to a point near or below the cost of production. Recently the price of distillate oil has been marked down to 10, then to 9, and finally to 6½ cents per gallon. It is further announced that, if necessary, a decrease in the price per gallon of one-half cent to one cent each week will be made until all opposition has been crushed out.

Of course, no sensible person believes for a moment that any such reduction in price would be permanent. As soon as the competition is removed, up would go the price again, and probably to a higher figure than ever, in order to make up for the money lost in crushing the small refineries, so that the consumers would, as usual, be the losers in the end, should they be so shortsighted as to "stand in" with Standard by accepting the bait of an unreasonably low price for a limited time. The small refineries should have the moral and financial support of our people. They are keeping money at home that would otherwise go to swell the bursting coffers of this eastern corporation. Competition is the life of trade, and legitimate competition should be encouraged. At least, the line should be drawn where a big concern deliberately tries to crush competition in the production of a staple article by such gross means as these.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

It is announced that an important change of policy in regard to the making of appointments in the consular service has been decided upon by the President. For many years it has been the practice for Presidents to appoint men to positions in the consular service substantially without reference to whatever previous experience they may have had. An endeavor has usually been made to select for appointment men of integrity and ability, but experience was not a determining factor.

Now, it is said that the President, after consulting with Secretary Hay and other members of his cabinet, has determined to appoint hereafter to important places in the consular service men who are already in the service, and have had experience and training in minor positions which will render them capable of filling places of high grade and greater importance. The change in policy, it is stated, does not extend the civil-service rules to the consular service, and it does not extend, necessarily, a Consul's tenure of office at any particular place, but it is pointed out that it does give reasonable assurance to the manufacturing and commercial interests of the United States that, within a comparatively brief time, all important consular positions will be filled by men not only of character and ability, but with men who by training and experience are specially qualified to advance the trade interests of the United States.

This is good as far as it goes—very good—but it does not go far enough. Consuls and consular agents are mainly business agents for Uncle Sam. They should be trained in an institution founded for the purpose, just as army officers are trained at West Point and navy officers at Annapolis. They should be required to speak fluently the language of the country to which they are accredited. Their positions in the service should be permanent, with promotion from time to time to more lucrative posts, and they should be entitled to retirement on half pay after so many years of honorable service. Then, and not until then, will Uncle Sam be able to compete with big private concerns in securing the services of thoroughly first-class men for consular positions.

SOME RIGHTS DEFINED.

Carroll D. Wright, ex-Labor Commissioner, to whom was referred, as umpire, five disputes between the operators' and miners' representatives on the board of conciliation appointed in accordance with the findings of the Anthracite Strike Commission, has rendered his decision in the disputed cases. Of greatest importance among the points covered by Mr. Wright's findings was the question of the right of employers to discharge men for any cause other than that of connection with a labor union. The operators' representatives contended for the right to discharge men without giving specific reasons for such action. Umpire Wright sustains this contention, and points out that it is in conformity with the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission.

"There can be no doubt," says Mr. Wright in his decision, "that a man has the right to quit the service of his employer whenever he sees fit, with or without giving any cause, provided he gives proper notice, and that the employer has a perfect right to employ and discharge men in accord with the conditions of his industry; that he is not obliged to give any cause for discharge, but that he should, as in the reverse case, give proper notice. This right to discharge," continues Mr. Wright, "must therefore be sustained. Any other view of the case would result in compelling men to work for an employer when they did not wish to, and thus enslave them; while on the other hand it would compel employers to employ men whether they had work for them or not, and whether the men were incompetent or not, and would thus stagnate business and work to the injury of all other employés."

There is, of course, no possible evasion or successful denial of the logic and common sense of this position. It is precisely in line with what The Times has long contended for—the right of freedom of contract; freedom on the part of an employer to discharge and employ men as the needs of his business may require, and freedom on the part of workmen to quit or to enter employment at their will, restricted only by the terms of specific agreements upon which they may have entered, and by such terms as may be agreed upon between themselves and their employers. The right of the employé to quit work, which nobody denies, has its exact counterpart in the equally well-defined right of the employer to discharge the employé at will, provided, of course, that no contract rights be violated. As Mr. Wright points out, if we deny the right of the employer to discharge, we must also, as a matter of course, deny the right of the employé to quit work—which would be to impose upon him a sort of perpetual slavery to the employer.

The trouble with labor agitators and walking delegates, and with those whom they mislead, is that they desire to have one law for themselves and another law, altogether different, for other people. They would deny to others the rights which they so vehemently insist upon for themselves. They demand that they be regarded as a sort of privileged class, entitled to extraordinary immunities and exemptions, as well as to extraordinary privileges and advantages, at the expense of the rest of the people. Those who deny these untenable claims and monstrous assumptions, are glibly termed "enemies of labor;" but, as a matter of simple truth, those who resist these unjust claims are better friends of labor than the complaisant and hypocritical men or newspapers that fawn upon the apostles of organized lawlessness and seek to excuse or condone their offenses against law, decency and common sense.

Organized labor has precisely the same rights under the law and in morals as unorganized labor, but no more. Employers have precisely the same rights under the law and in morals as employés, but no more. Privileges, rights and immunities accorded to one class of citizens must as freely be accorded to all other classes, and to all individuals of whatever class or condition. Men who train in the ranks of organized labor ought to understand and recognize these facts, both for their own good and for the good of the community. In any event, they will be made to recognize and understand them, whether willingly or unwillingly.

NO CONVICTION BEFORE TRIAL.

It is as easy to lynch a man in the press as at the stake, but in most parts of the country there is a wholesome sentiment against either process. There is sound public policy as well as fair play in the custom of giving a man a trial before hanging him or burning him up. In discussions of the Grimth case, however, this custom has been ignored in a certain quarter, where there is an obvious disposition to convict the respondent before he has had even a preliminary examination. The hasty action of the Mayor and Council in displacing Col. Grimth from the Park Commission was a doubtful proceeding under the circumstances. Whatever may be the merits of the case, and however shocking may be its circumstances, Col. Grimth is entitled to have his case legally presented, examined and considered before sentence is pronounced upon him, and he is also entitled to a suspension of public judgment until the evidence is all in. This much is accorded to those accused of the worst crimes, and such is the constitutional right of the humblest citizen.

It is a newspaper's business to report the facts and circumstances as they come out; but to conduct a campaign of argument and vituperation in order to prejudge the case of the accused before his legal trial comes on, this is a presumption and an indecency which has been rebuked by the courts, and for which no apology can be made except mere littleness. The Evening Express has assumed an unjustifiable position in this matter, and is pursuing an unjustifiable course.

GRATUITOUS GERMAN CRITICISM.

According to the press dispatches, the German newspapers are indulging in a considerable amount of gratuitous and rather raw criticism of the government of the United States. This because of the latter's action in sending warships to Beirut, in making prompt demands upon the Turkish government for satisfaction in connection with the reported assassination of Vice-Consul Magelssen, and in demanding the better protection of American citizens sojourning in the Turkish empire. The Berlin papers seek to throw the blame for the outbreak at Beirut upon the United States. Commenting on the affair, the Lokal Anzeiger of that city says: "Now that the Americans have their dead, they will make inquiry whether they were responsible for the effervescence in Beirut. By the unprecedented action of their Minister in Constantinople," the Anzeiger continues, "and the naval demonstration, the yearning of the United States to mix up in European politics has found some justification."

Our more or less esteemed contemporary, the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, is informed that it is very much misinformed if it supposes that the United States has the slightest inclination to "mix up in European politics." That noisome and unwholesome cesspool has no attractions for the United States. Quite the reverse. Our one desire, above all others, is to steer clear of it, and to keep our nostrils as free as possible from its offensive and enervating effluvium.

But, at the same time, we beg to inform our more or less esteemed contemporary, American interests and American citizens will be protected, in Turkey and in all other countries on earth, whether civilized or uncivilized. To the extent necessary to accomplish this result, we shall "mix up" with anything and everything that may see fit to oppose us.

Our German friends of the press appear to be a trifle "quick on the trigger," if we may be allowed to use an expressive phrase of the woolly West. This is not by any means the first time they have seen fit to be hypocritical with reference to world affairs in which our interests were virtually affected. Of course, this popgun criticism is not of the least consequence nor effect in influencing our action, for we shall certainly pursue such courses and methods as to us seem best, whether our Teutonic newspaper friends approve or disapprove. But even the buzzing of a fly against the window pane is sometimes anything but pleasant.

A Chicago traveling man has demonstrated that it costs $2.35 per diem to tip bellboys, waiters, bootblacks, cabmen, barber, porter, messenger-boy and such other assistants as may happen to be hanging around at the time. The gentleman referred to gives out the information in a sort of complaining tone of voice, forgetting the fact, doubtless, that the way to break up the tipping habit is not to tip. We would suggest, in case these few lines meet the gentleman's eye, that he try that plan and see how it works.

We warn the government of the United States that the longer it postpones the building of a postoffice in Los Angeles the bigger it will have to be built, when it is built. But perhaps it is foolish to peer far, far into the future in this way.

A Peking dispatch affords reliable and trustworthy information that a portrait of our old friend Tsi An, painted by an American, will be on exhibition at the St. Louis Exposition next year. This concession to American art and American enterprise is much appreciated, Tsi.

Senator Beveridge informs the country that there will be but little change in the finances next year. Probably not—it will be just the same old hustle to get a few more dollars than we had this year, and, most of the time, slipping up on it.

The condition of affairs between Turkey and Bulgaria approaches a crisis, wherein the powers are speculating as to what will happen to them when the war drum begins to beat the long roll and the insistent bugle to sound "to arms."

When that $100,000,000 farmers' combine gets to working and refuses to sell Mr. Rockefeller any green corn, watermelons, or other produce, he will probably wish he had engaged in growing something he could eat besides coal oil.

The battle is on. A doctor who wasn't called declares that the late Pope died of cancer, and that he was not afflicted with pleurisy or pleuro-pneumonia. We ask a suspension of judgment until the other side has been heard.

The Servians are making demonstrations and we warrant that King Pete is wishing he could trade that crown back for a nice quiet place in some shady spot located quite a distance from the madding crowd.

Now that the government has the matter of national irrigation well under way, the time would appear to be opportune for Los Angeles to take up the matter of planting some shade trees to turn the water on.

Our French friends are now taking to golf, but as they swear in their native language when they fail to swipe the ball, it cannot be much fun for one not conversant with their tongue to watch the game.

According to a London cablegram it is barely possible that our old friend the Sultan may be stampeded into a war with Bulgaria. We can scarcely conceive Mr. Hamid hurrying much about anything.

Prince Ferdinand will not declare war; upon this his mind is made up. But as to venturing out riding in the midst of his subjects, that is quite another matter. Ferdy is shy about some things.

The Prohibitionists have been prompt in announcing that they will put a Presidential ticket in the field next year. We understand that the Democrats also have the matter under consideration.

No doubt the usual intelligence will be forthcoming this morning as to just why Prof. Langley's airship did not go booming over the course yesterday. Give us this day your daily excuse, professor.

Gov. Dole of Hawaii will have something in common with William Jennings Bryan next year. He won't be a candidate. This will doubtless simplify matters for both gentlemen considerably.

We love to hear Mr. Carnegie predict that Great Britain and the United States will some day be one for the reason of our belief in this country's principles of expansion.

Los Angeles will have seventeen more letter carriers after October 1, but the postoffice will be continued in a rented building located quite a ways out of town.

If there is any section of Southern California not already outfitted with a trolley line to Los Angeles, or projected, will it please hold up its right hand?

Mr. Carnegie is now buying up battlefields. Maybe we could prevail on him to purchase Fort Moore, so long as he won't give Los Angeles a library.

The jacking up of assessments of under-assessed counties in California compels belief that there is still a God in Israel.

As Mr. Carnegie is buying up battlefields why doesn't Kentucky try to unload Breathitt county on the old man?

There is at least this much about it; when a man falls from a sky-scraper there isn't much room for argument.

Of course, the weather isn't warm; but then it isn't so all-fired cold, either, as you may have observed.

Great Britain wants to know how about those islands off the northeast coast of British North Borneo which the United States is said to have seized? No doubt Uncle Sam is in position to explain to his own entire satisfaction.

VACATION DAYS ARE OVER.

AMERICAN MEAT MEN WON.

Attempt to Discriminate Against Them in Chief London Market Was Hastily Dropped.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 29.—American meat importers have proved too strong for the powerful corporation of the city of London which controls Smithfield market. For months there has been an outcry because the American section was getting control of the best shops and stores in the market, to the exclusion of the English and Scotch firms. Representations were made to the corporation that they were acting unpatriotically, with the result that the Markets Committee promised to consider the proposal submitted to them. The organizers of the Anti-American movement threatened all sorts of pains and penalties if the corporation refused to give British importers and salesmen precedence in acquiring space in the market.

The Americans did not wait for the committee's decision. They went quietly to work, perfected a scheme by which they would be enabled to do without Smithfield market and the London corporation, and then laid the plan before the Markets Committee, asking blandly if it was the intention of the corporation to shut out free competition in the market to the prejudice of its American tenants. As the absence of the American element in the market would leave half the shops empty and necessarily lower rents, the committee decided forthwith to reject the proposal for discrimination.

The American scheme, briefly outlined, was to transfer their stores to the slaughter yards at Deptford, which would be used as a distributing center. They were also ready to buy up a large number of retail shops all over London. In this way they would not only inflict a severe loss on the Smithfield authorities but they would also prove dangerous competitors for the ordinary London butcher. The Armours and Swifts led the campaign on behalf of the Americans.

CROKER AND IRISH GIRLS.

He Founded a Society to Keep Them from Coming Over to the United States.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 29.—One of the officers of the Dublin Anti-Emigration Society, which has just been publishing startling statements about the fate of many of the Irish girls who go to America, informs me that Richard Croker of Tammany fame was chiefly responsible for the formation of the society. Sometime ago while on a visit to his brother in Cork he made it his business to interview some of the leading priests and bishops in the south of Ireland on the subject of the exodus to the United States, and related to them some tragic stories which had come under his own notice in the slums of New York. He saw the Archbishop of Dublin on the subject and impressed upon him the necessity of lending his name to a scheme that would do something to convince young girls and their parents of the folly of indiscriminate emigration.

Croker promised that if a society were formed for this object he would lend it financial support.

Romance vs. Reality.

[Chico Daily Enterprise.]

It seems strange that the counties of the Sacramento Valley will vote money to pay for advertising the resources of the different counties of this valley and then send men before the Board of Equalization to knock the bottom out of all the work done looking to have outsiders invest money here.

If the State papers had published all of the statements made by residents of the Sacramento Valley before the State board this week, the poorest States and Territories of this Union would have been telegraphing supplies to the people of this valley.

Here is another sample of California enterprise. While all of the Northern California counties are crying to the State board that our people are all on the road to the poorhouse Los Angeles comes in and voluntarily raises her assessment 40 per cent., aggregating $50,000,000.

SOME LONG SLEEPS.

Accounts of Remarkable Slumbers Which Lasted for Years—Statistics that Astonish.

[London Tit-Bits:] The imaginative writer who created the character of Rip Van Winkle was probably under the impression that his picturesque bit of fiction was without parallel in fact, but had he lived during the present or the past century he might possibly have changed his belief, for scattered over the world today are men, women and children who have been sleeping for months and even years, and who have defied all the efforts of the greatest savants of the age to awake them from their heavy slumbers.

Perhaps the most recent instance of a lengthy sleep comes from Paris, where the victim died last May, after a nap which lasted two years. In the latter week of April, 1901, Marguerite Bayenval of Thessales, near St. Quentin was engaged in the kitchen of her home, quietly ironing some handkerchiefs, when a girl friend ran in and jokingly exclaimed: "Fly, Marguerite, the gendarmes are coming to arrest you!" With a cry the girl fell to the ground in a catgleptic sleep, from which she awoke on the 28th of May last.

Dr. Cherlier, an eminent French physician, tried every means to awaken the girl, but without success, and at last, abandoning his efforts in that direction, turned his attention to the best means of nourishing and sustaining the patient until she should awake of her own accord. The method adopted was to bathe the sleeper night and morning in thin gruel and milk, ejecting a little of the same fluid into the throat by means of a reed, the liquid thus absorbed by the pores of the skin being found sufficient to keep the heart beating and sustain life.

When the girl fell asleep in 1901 she was pretty, fair of complexion, and about 19 years of age, but as the months rolled on the flesh wasted away, the eyes, over which the lids were closely drawn, became sunken, while all the facial bones could be counted. The skin turned as white as marble, and when the flesh was cut by one of the surgeons the blood, instead of being red and flowing easily, was white and of the consistency of glycerine. At the end of 1903 the body was simply a bundle of bones, over which the skin was stretched like vellum.

Doctors came from all parts of the continent to visit the slumberer, but among them all there was not one who could succeed in arousing her. During the last week in May of this year the sleeper, who was closely watched during every moment of her long slumber, was seen to move her right arm, then her head, and at last, slowly opening her eyes, the young girl—now in appearance an old, old woman—looked wonderingly round the room.

The physicians present spoke to her, but, though she apparently had a desire to reply, no words came from her mouth. For twenty minutes the heart continued to beat, and the doctors were in high hopes of saving her life, when, raising herself by some extraordinary and momentary effort, she uttered a few unintelligible words, and fell back dead.

Men and women who have slept for periods of six months and longer seldom live after their awakening. An exception to this, however, is found in the case of a Russian of the name of Piatkowska, who is reported to have slept for seven months in his home in a small village some twenty miles from Moscow. Piatkowska, who had served ten years in the mines, was a man of 40, strong and wiry, though he had always been subject to periodical fits of slumber which had lasted for two and three days at a stretch.

In 1893, according to a Russian writer, he fell asleep while working in the fields, and was there found by his wife, who had him carried to their cabin and laid on the trestle-bed, so that he might have his sleep out in comfort, as he had done on many previous occasions. The next day and for several days he still slumbered, and when a week had gone by his wife became alarmed.

She managed to secure the services of a local doctor, whose practice was among the peasantry, but though he tried his best to awaken the sleeper, his efforts were futile.

The doctor visited the patient for five months, when his duties called him to St. Petersburg, and he was obliged to relinquish the case. Another physician, however, cheerfully undertook to watch the man, and two more months passed. No effort was made to feed the sleeper, and he does not appear to have lost flesh to any great extent.

In the spring of 1894, the man, who had been lying on his back, was found to have turned over on his left side, his left arm being tucked under his head. The doctor was quickly sent for, and after examining the patient he injected a powerful hypodermic, which took instant effect. The man opened his eyes, stretched his arms above his head, yawned and attempted to get out of bed, but his limbs were as weak as an infant's, and he would have fallen to the ground had not the doctor pushed him gently back. He was carefully fed and nursed, and in a fortnight was sufficiently recovered to go about his work.

A more recent case was that of Winfred Earle, living in Sixth avenue, New York, who fell asleep in December last year, and after slumbering for three days was sent to Bellevue Hospital to see if the physician there could succeed in waking her. Every thing, from electric batteries to caffeine injections, was tried, but without success.

The girl, who was only 18, continued to slumber peacefully for three weeks, when a slight movement of the eyelids was noticed. A strong light was held before her eyes, and a few moments later she awoke. So weak had she become, however, that every effort was made to feed her, and she gradually gained strength, and days fell into that from which there is no

Allison Barlow: There are always a lot of anarchists who are constitutionally down on the police. These are naturally against Mr. Elton.

Rev. John L. Pitner said: "I respect any man who enforces the law, and when Chief Elton took his stand against riots and the use of force in the furtherance of strikes and boycotts he simply did his duty."

"In enforcing the law against boycotters Chief Elton has done well," said Walter R. Bacon, Esq. "I believe Elton is an honest man and is doing the best he knows how to properly police the city."

J. R. Newberry declared: "I believe Chief Elton an honest man. I think he deserves the gratitude of citizens for preventing any organized violence in the settlement of labor disputes. This city has been very free from riots in consequence."

"Of course, Chief Elton has done well in enforcing the law," said J. H. Spires. "It was his duty to do it. Naturally he incurred the enmity of the unions when he refused to allow them to carry out their boycott. Elton is hampered by a Police Commission that is sometimes on one and sometimes on the other side of the fence."

RAILROAD NOTES.

General Manager Wells of the Santa Fé announces that he has given orders to extend the road from Sunset to Superior, a distance of 21-10 miles. Actual construction work will begin as soon as the necessary right-of-way can be acquired and materials put on the ground.

The local division of the Pacific Coast Association of Traffic Agents will hold its regular monthly meeting Saturday night in the Rock Island offices at No. 257 South Spring street.

J. M. Northmore, chief clerk in the general freight offices of the Northwestern in Chicago, will return East today, after a vacation trip of several weeks in this part of the country.

C. B. Neiswender, chief clerk and stenographer in the local passenger department of the Union Pacific, will resign on September 15 to begin an engineering course at Throop Polytechnic Institute.

The Salt Lake Railroad, through its assistant general passenger agent, T. C. Peck, has just issued a very pretty folder, "San Pedro to Riverside," containing descriptive write-ups of the towns along the route. It is an exceedingly neat and attractive publication and should prove a valuable advertising medium. Upon the completion of the Salt Lake route, Los Angeles will be nearer than San Francisco to Salt Lake City by 133 miles, Denver 311 miles, Omaha 83 miles, Kansas City 181 miles, St. Louis 403 miles, Chicago 152 miles, and it will bring Salt Lake City 600 miles nearer to Los Angeles, effecting a saving of two days in time.

The Clear Lake Electric Railway Company, which was incorporated last March, was yesterday granted a franchise to run a forty-mile electric line from Cloverdale in Sonoma county to Lakeport in Lake county. Principally Los Angeles capital is interested in this enterprise, the following men being stockholders: Dr. W. P. Prather, W. C. Phillips, H. C. Healy, Robert M. Hartwell and H. R. Bingham. This line will open up a country of fertile resources which has been held back because all the products had to be hauled out by team.

FOR SALE—

IF A BUILDING BRINGS IN SIX PER CENT. NET ON $15,000, ISN'T IT WORTH $18,000?

THIS ONE WILL DO BETTER THAN THAT, AND YOU CAN BUY IT FOR $18,000.

IT WILL YIELD ONE PER CENT. A MONTH ON $18,000 RIGHT NOW!

It is on Temple st., 250 feet west of Spring, st.—No. 127.

It is a substantial, fine looking, two-story and basement brick, 24x80 feet in size, with storeroom, 24x80, on first floor, and ten office rooms on the second floor.

The rear faces a 20-foot paved alley.

We believe the property will bring $15,000 easily, within the next 18 months. It is WORTH $15,000 NOW! It will pay 6 per cent. net, now, on that valuation. Six per cent. on $15,000 is $900 per year, or $75 per month. It will pay $100 per month right now—$1200 per year. The surplus $300 will a good deal more than pay the taxes, insurance, repairs, etc. Half of it will pay them.

The building has recently been thoroughly overhauled—new roof, new plumbing, repainted inside and out. It won't need a cent's worth of repairs in five years to come.

Now, ask yourself why this shouldn't be a good buy? Is there any other reason on earth than the silly one that it is on Temple st., and TEMPLE ST. IS "NOT IN THE SOUTHWEST"—of course it isn't, but does anybody suppose the Courthouse is going to be moved away from Temple, or the Peoples' Store, or the Bible, or the London Clothing Co., or Hale's, or any of the other big concerns, from the block adjoining Temple?

Temple is all right; it will always be an important street. It has been under a cloud, but anybody can see that a change has come, and that there is bound from now on to be a big advance in values along its whole length. There isn't a better speculation in Los Angeles today than this uncommonly good income-producing property at $18,000.

Easy terms as to payments.

SENATORS' WINGS CLIPPED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 10.—The Senators' wings were not in working order today, and a multitude of throwing errors followed, that gave the game to the Portland team. Fitzgerald was pitching an excellent article of ball, but the errors on the part of his support would have lost any pitcher the game. The day was close and sultry, without a breath of air in motion, and in consequence it was hard on the players of both teams. Score:

LOOLOOS WIN BETTER GAME.

Iburg is Hit Rather Often, but Corbett Puzzles.

Conversationalist's Running Fire of Talk Helps Some.

Looloos, 7; Harrisites, 2.

Batteries—Corbett and Spies; Iburg and Zearfoss.

Features—Fancy club-swinging exercises introduced and demonstrated by Messrs. Zearfoss, Krug, Delmas, Lindsay and Iburg of the San Francisco team.

J. Bullshooter Corbett is a wiz.

Partly by prize pitching, perhaps more by the exercise of those capable conversational qualities which gave to him his middle name, and gained for him in the baseball business the name of B. B. S., the Empress Josephine stayed the tide of twirler clouting that has made boxmen's lives miserable and flooded Chutes Park with bingles during the last two weeks. The public's thanks are due to Josephine, for he brought one game down to something like the normal standard as regards stick work.

Judging from the conversationalist's stock of fast and slow curves, shoots and slants and from his ready flow of language while in the box, not the least valuable of his pitching assets, a few tricks in the infield have not hurt Corbett. He made five of the visiting team saw the ether around the plate the customary number of times to earn them free transportation to the bench, and four of these worthies were not content with doing the fan act once, but had to try it again just to recall the good old days of the bush league again.

Most of the Harrisites looked as if they never saw such things as some of Corbett's curves. Josephine used all he ever had, and that is enough to stock a National League corps of pitchers. Occasional visitors got hit on the bat and copped bingles; most of them looked surprised when the ball went safe. Most of the Harris gang stood still while Josephine socked the first one over. The second and maybe the third, would be "feelers," a little too close in, or perchance a shade wild. Joe was not afraid to waste an occasional ball yesterday, for only once did he fail to get the necessary one over, and that was on Pat Meany, who is by no means a mark to pitch at. Don Patricio knows about as much in regard to the appearance of good and bad balls coming up to the plate as any.

Corbett kept his batters in the hole nearly all the time, and gave a fine exemplification of his pet theory—making batsmen hit the balls they do not want to hit for fear of having strikes called on them. Whenever anybody got at all dangerous and wanted to make a hit, Josephine usually talked him out of the notion; assured him it was all a mistake, etc. Then the Harrisite who was up would grit his teeth, and take a savage swipe at the next one with the customary result. It would be either a fast outcurve that shot through too soon to be hit effectively, or a slow one that in their anxiety the batters would either clout up into the air for a pop fly, or foul off into the bleachers. Corbett was not the whole show, for he had good support but he was a highly-interesting part of it.

Cap. Dillon at first base pulled off a neat trick on little Lynch that would have given Brother Dowie heart failure, for Dowie's revision of the baseball rules cuts out all deception as ungodly. The jobbing of Lynch was a feature of the fifth and it came after the little man had reached first on a pop fly, very much Texas and just out of Toman's reach. Toman got Meany's liner, and Irwin, the next man up, hit a long fly to center field. At the bat crack Lynch started for second, but seeing Hoy was under the ball, he turned and leisurely trotted back toward first, watching Dillon for any movement to catch a ball. The Cap. stood there arms akimbo and joshed Lynch. Meanwhile all the strength of Hoy's little body had gone into a dandy throw aimed right at first base, and as it came sailing in, Dillon's glove grabbed the sphere, and Lynch's interesting conversation about the weather came to an abrupt, warm stop, for he was out off first. After passing some general reflections upon the decency of Los Angeles ball players, little Henry trotted benchward to oblivion as fast as his sprained legs would carry him.

Doc Smith was back in the game at third base and his bald head loomed up like money from home. The tooth artist was a bit chary of the lame arm, but had no compunctions about clouting Ham's slow ones until that brainy pitcher began feeding him some popfly balls.

Iburg is usually a puzzle to the Looloos, or indeed, anybody else, but his malarial fever did not let it seem like the same old smile and Hamilton E. was thumped for a total of ten and one. Cap. Dillon, as usual, led with three singles, while Smith and Corbett each tore off a pair.

Corbett hit Lynch at the start-off, and then gave Meany a ball that even Pat could not keep out of some infielder's way, and Lynch was forced. Then Joe made another mistake and fed Cap. Irwin of the Insurgents one to his liking and it bounded back off the scoreboard when he was through with it. Meany registered. Leahy rolled one down to Wheeler and Corbett made a show of Dave Zearfoss with his assorted curves. In the second, with one out, Delmas and Lindsay stuck out their bats to good effect, but no runs resulted. Then the Harrisites took a rest until the seventh, occasional ineffective thumps being registered. In that inning Lindsay got his revenge for striking out by banging a single to right center. Iburg did the fan act, but Lynch pushed a safe shot through to Cravath, only to be forced by Meany again. Meany has been trying to give Corbett a good thumping some day, but force-outs were his best yesterday. Lindsay scored when Irwin Texased over short.

The Looloo runs came through hard hitting and brainy baseball. Hoy opened by walking—he gets to first as often as anybody—and Wheeler forced him at second. Smith put his big stick against the ball for a smash to left, Dillon half bunted a slow liner through to right, and Cravath shot another into left, scoring Smith. Wheeler being a dead one on an attempted steal.

Toiman's well-placed drive over third base, a clever bit of stick-work by Heinie Spies resulting in a sacrifice, Leahy's failure to hold a long throw by Irwin from back of third on Corbett's bounder, and Wheeler's long hit to right center yielded one in the second, and another came in the third on Dillon's mile-a-minute drive through the box, Cravath's sacrifice, a long fly and some more base running by "Sea Cow" Hurlburt, who ran for Dillon. The big boy is determined to get his name in the papers for lively work on the lines, and certainly got away with a rare bit yesterday when he made Zearfoss throw repeatedly after him at second and finally got to third when the ball got by Delmas. Then that long fly gave Fat a chance to show his sprinting abilities, and he came down the line under a press of steam actually going six miles an hour. Hurlburt is all right, and he has certainly won a home with the fans.

In the fourth the locals broke up the game beyond any reasonable hope of repair and the Harrisites rather lost interest. Corbett opened with a hit to right center and Hoy diked a swell sacrifice down the line toward first. Wheeler stuck his stern out at one of Ham's slow ones and took a walk. Then Doc Smith's long stick solved the mystery of Ham's floaters for a two bagger to the left-field fence, and two runs came in. Cap. Dillon decoyed the infielders close up for a bunt and pushed a shot by Krug at second for a single, scoring Smith. Cravath was robbed of another two bagger by Lindsay, who played in deep right center for him and got a hard, ow fly, to everybody's surprise.

The last came in the eighth, when Spies hit a long fly to right which Lindsay let go through his hands. Corbett tore off a single over second base, and Hoy beat a perfect bunt to Iburg. Wheeler hit to Krug, who shot the ball home in time to cut off Spies, but Corbett made third and came in after Smith had been Lynched in left. That ended the run-getting.

Notes of the Game.

Newton will pitch for the locals today, and he will probably be opposed to Whalen. Harris's pitching staff is somewhat used up this series.

Lindsay made an odd record yesterday at bat—two singles and two strike outs. Zearfoss came near duplicating it.

Lindsay got five flies in right yesterday, and Cravath did not get a chance, being mostly left-hand hitters, the Looloos are liable to clout a right-handed slow ball pitcher that way a great deal. Five of their hits went that way, too.

Corbett struck out two men in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings, which is pitching some. His nine fans constitute one-third of the work that was done in the game, which is certainly playing the game from the box.

Cravath sacrificed like an old-timer when ordered so to do yesterday. The boy is learning every day, and when he begins to just meet the ball as Dillon and some of the cracks do, he will be a dandy hitter, for he seems to have a perfect eye.

Toman seems to be getting back a little in his playing. He had eight plays to make, and got several hard ones, missing only one.

Shay was out of the game. He got mixed up with "Sea Cow" Hurlburt at second the day before, and now needs a rest.

For the first time in many days the Los Angeles infield was intact once more. The visitors are still badly crippled.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 10.—This afternoon the Supervisors adopted a resolution presented by Mr. Jasper to call a special election to vote on the proposition of issuing $200,000 bonds for the construction of four trunk highways in the county, the bonds to bear interest at 5 per cent. A meeting will be held the 21st inst. to make the election call and define the course of the roads. One of them will be from the county line at Oceanside to Tia Juana and another from this city to Imperial via Jacumba.

The Supervisors today voted the Chamber of Commerce $1600 for advertising purposes and virtually agreed to levy a tax of 2 cents per $100 this year and next for this county's exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition. This will yield about $67,000.

BRITISH UNION GALL.

Organized Bookbinders Planning to Send Delegation to Oppose Re-election of President Roosevelt.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Organized labor in Great Britain is quietly developing a scheme by which a number of its representatives will proceed to America soon to discuss with labor leaders there a plan for opposing President Roosevelt at the next Presidential election. The Amalgamated Society of Bookbinders is specially active in getting together the new delegation as a protest against the action of the President in his relations with the Bookbinders' Union in the Government Printing Office in the United States. The Union men have a strong footing in the government offices here, and it is understood to be their intention to amalgamate with the organized men in America if such an arrangement can be found practicable. If a general election here is not probable this side of Christmas, the delegates will be ready to go to America about the middle of October.

CARS MET AT FULL SPEED.

Alarming Collisicn Near the Garvanza Bridge.

Motorman Was Too Busy Talking Abou' a Mail Bag.

Deputy District Attorney Donnell Bowled Over — Several Passengers Injured.

A conductor and motorman, discussing the engrossing theme of a mail bag, caused a serious collision of two trolley cars at the west approach of the Garvanza bridge yesterday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock. Car No. 88 of the Pasadena line, east bound, ran head on at almost full speed into a Garvanza car, switching back from the single track at that point. The front end of the Pasadena car was demolished, seats were torn up from their castings and passengers on the wrecked car were thrown violently into the aisles and against the woodwork, many of them sustaining bruises and scratches.

Among those injured were Maj. John A. Donnell, Deputy District Attorney, right arm wrenched and lacerated; Mrs. E. E. Hewitt of Aurora, Ill., lower lip badly cut; an invalid woman, who fainted from the shock; three persons, a woman and two boys, each of whom received a bloody nose.

The blame for the collision is placed on Motorman O'Hara of the Pasadena car. From the Highland Park postoffice at Avenue 57 and Pasadena avenue, Conductor Pegenkopp was standing beside the motorman talking about a mail bag which had been thrown off at the postoffice. With them was another conductor, who was not on duty. They were deep in the discussion, say the passengers, and thus failed to notice the Garvanza car as they approached the switch.

There is a down grade as you approach the switch from the city. When the car came within fifty feet of this point, the Garvanza car, west bound, was pulling from the single track to the double to make way for the Pasadena car.

Neither Motorman O'Hara nor Pegenkopp noticed the approaching car and the motorman ran his car relentlessly into it. As the Pasadena car was on the down grade and going swiftly the force of the collision was terrific.

Every seat on the forward platform was torn from the floor; the controller box was wrenched away, and the flooring and heavy wooden guard were splintered.

Into this confusion the front-end passengers were hurled like bowling pins. Those on the inside, most of them women, were launched from their seats, and jammed into a heap in the forward end.

The fright of the passengers was great. Nearly everyone saw that the collision could not be avoided. The women screamed and stood up, helplessly awaiting the inevitable. Several of the forward passengers, all men, ran for the door, hoping to gain the middle of the car before the crash, but the foremost only got as far as the door and were thrown forward on their backs ten feet from where they were standing.

Among these was Maj. Donnell. Just as his hand was on the door inside of which he expected to find some protection, he was hurled several feet and fell into the opening in the floor, where the motorman dives down to clean his motor. The lid of this trap had been lifted up by the shock and skated off into the street.

With his body two feet beneath the floor of the car and only his head and feet appearing above the surface, it looked to the other passengers as though the major had been cut in twain and had parted with a considerable portion of his anatomy.

On top of him were broken seats and other passengers. Sprinkling this confused mass of arms, legs and bodies were bits of shattered glass and splintered pieces of timber.

Although the effect of the collision was not so serious within the car, there was greater pandemonium. All but two or three of the passengers were women and they made the most of it.

Their shrill cries were audible from a few seconds before the collision until several minutes afterwards, there being no elapsed time. Residents of Garvanza were drawn from their houses by the unusual sounds, and rushed to aid the sufferers.

After equilibrium had been established it was found that no one had been seriously injured, though several women were soaking up bits of blood from their faces with their handkerchiefs; two women were fanning back to consciousness the one that had fainted, and two boys were holding half in pride and half in pain, their bloody noses.

Two passengers jumped before the collision and therby saved themselves bruises. These were J. H. Skeggs, in charge of the standardizing of the Pacific Electric's tracks in Pasadena, and the conductor mentioned as being off duty.

The other passengers considered Maj. Donnell the most seriously injured, and some wanted to get a doctor, but the major waved them aside. A young lady, a neighbor of the major's, insisted on carying home his package of beefsteak for him, however, and it was so ordered.

Others besides those mentioned who received scratches were: J. H. Ballard, No. 1817 Vermont avenue, city, and F. C. Hewitt of Aurora, Ill.

Strange to say the Garvanza car was scarcely damaged, only the headlight being broken. Neither car was derailed. The car following No. 88 pushed the latter into the barn at Pasadena and prevented any but a slight delay in the traffic.

When his car arrived at Pasadena Motorman O'Hara reported at headquarters, and frankly took the blame for the collision. He said he didn't want any investigation, that he was satisfied to resign his position without

QUEEREST MARRIAGE BY OLD FOLKS.

MRS. PHOEBE KEITH OF LOS ANGELES WEDS W. H. PRINGLE.

Groom Lay Ill in San Diego Lodging House, With Two Wives and Nine Children in Town—Bride a Widow With Family.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 10.—Aged 72, sick with typhoid-pneumonia, almost beyond hope of recovery, W. H. Pringle, a wealthy retired sea captain, a widower with two former wives living in this city, a prominent citizen and member of the City Board of Harbor Commissioners, was married this afternoon to Mrs. Phoebe Keith of Los Angeles, a large owner of property here, herself a widow and the mother of six children, all grown up.

The couple have been engaged some time, but the captain's illness appears to have hastened the consummation of the matrimonial deal. As his first wife, the mother of nine of his children, was living with one of them, Police Officer George Pringle, it would have been embarrassing to go there, and he preferred not to trouble other relatives. He decided to send for Mrs. Keith and have his tussle with sickness in a lodging-house, among comparative strangers.

The decision to be married was made at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The license was procured, witnesses summoned, the necessary affidavits made, and between 5 and 6 o'clock the ceremony was solemnized by Township Justice Thorp. G. C. Arnold, a prominent real estate agent, Dr. Doig, the skipper's physician, and Mrs. J. R. Richey, landlady of the lodging-house, were among the witnesses.

NIGHT STUDY WILL EXPAND.

Special Attention to be Paid to Evening School.

Two More Shacks for Day Pupils Were Finished Yesterday.

Preparations for Opening of the Fall Term Going on Apace.

An advantage offered to the men and boys of Los Angeles, upon which people seem to be not generally informed, is the public night school. This school stands upon exactly the same footing as the other public schools of the city, the teachers being appointed from the regularly qualified applicants.

The school will open on the evening of September 14, simultaneously with the day schools, and so far as it is possible the same course of study will be pursued. The hours being short, from 7 to 9 o'clock p.m., it is of course impossible to complete the branches studied as rapidly as in the day schools. It has regularly assigned quarters in the Spring street school building, and pupils of all ages, from the first grade upward, are admitted, as well as those far beyond school age.

Last year the ages ran from about 10 to 60 years, and included a dozen or more nationalities under three teachers. It is desired if possible to greatly increase the usefulness of the school among clerks, cashboys and those engaged in other occupations, in the various shops and industrial establishments of the city, and the teaching force will be increased by the Board of Education.

This school is absolutely free, and it is the opinion of the school authorities that there is a lack of information upon the subject, and that many men and boys will be glad to take advantage of this unequaled opportunity to secure a common-school education, once they know that it is possible by merely devoting to its these two hours of their leisure time each day.

TWO MORE SHACKS.

Herewith is a picture of one of progressive, up-to-date Los Angeles' newest public schoolhouses. It is so thoroughly the latest thing that it hasn't been painted yet—and never will be painted, anyhow. Here you see a type of a class of school building that the Board of Education is erecting to keep up with the pace of the natural increase in the city's population. Do the new schoolhouses look as if they could keep up with the pace? Judging by their appearance, they are already tired.

This is not a backwoods schoolhouse; no, it is a city schoolhouse a la mode de Los Angeles, 1903. It is after the antique. Two of them were finished on the school lot at Grand avenue and Eighth street yesterday, and another one is ready to stick splinters into the kids at Fremont avenue and third street. They are built of rough pine boards, straight up and down, containing one room apiece, measuring about 23x26 feet. They at furnished with ordinary school seats. Probably the boys and girls won't mind going to school in shacks, for they can play they are living long, long ago, and can watch for Indians through the knot holes in the resinous walls.

GENERAL TEACHERS' MEETING.

On Saturday morning at 10 o'clock a general teachers' meeting will be held in the High School building, presided over by City Superintendent Foshay, for the purpose of promulgating final instructions and inspiration for the opening of the schools on Monday, September 14.

House-cleaning is now the order of the day at all the school buildings throughout the city, and by Monday morning everything will be fresh and clean for the opening of the fall semester.

WORKING NEW "GRAFT."

Chicago Faker Evolves a Clever Scheme to Catch the "Easy" Quarters of the Charitable.

Trading upon the misfortunes of the crippled and the sympathies of the charitably disposed, a Chicago grafter has evolved a unique scheme for wooing the "easy" dollar.

This "pork city" rustler, calling himself "The Cripples' Employment Agency," has conceived the idea he can sell a lot of cheap jewelry to people who do not want it and have no use for it, if he can make them believe that by purchasing they are performing an act of charity. Carrying out this idea he has covered the country with circulars which give out the impression that cripples are to be assisted to employment through the sale of the stuff.

Dr. J. H. Martindale of this city is among the number who have responded to this latest Chicago enterprise. He was made the recipient of a letter containing shirt studs, for which, if he pleased, he could send 25 cents, which would be turned into "the crippies' fund"—or he could return the jewelry to the sender. Dr. Martindale sent the money.

Encouraged by this prompt response the doctor was put upon the "good thing" list, and in the course of time the second appeal was found in his mail. A query was deemed wise, so Dr. Martindale wrote to the Chicago Bureau of Charities. The bureau, having received many similar communications, had the matter investigated with the result that a clever dodger was run down who had been playing the "charity game" to enrich himself. No cripples' fund nor cripples' employment agency were found, the "manager" being eager to employ any able-bodied man ro woman to take an agency and work his scheme.

ANOTHER VASTNESS FOR RECLAMATION.

THAT the government's campaign to reclaim the "Arid Empire" of Southern California tributary to the great Colorado River, under the provisions of the National Irrigation Bill, is bowling merrily along, was evidenced by a telegram received yesterday by the local United States land office from the commissioner in Washington, ordering one of the most sweeping withdrawals of land that has yet taken place in connection with this wholesale undertaking.

The land approximates 760,000 acres lying in San Bernardino and Riverside counties, beginning just south of Needles. It is said to be some of the most desirable land subject to the Los Angeles office.

Several weeks ago several thousand acres were permanently withdrawn in San Diego county for the purpose of a dam site to be used by the government experts in their experiments. The exact purpose of the present withdrawal is not stated, but it will probably involve the choice of a second great dam site. After the government workers have completed their investigations of the tract, it is probable that a good proportion of it will be restored to public entry, but only under the provisions of the homestead act as defined and limited by the provisions of the irrigation bill, which allow only 160 acres to be taken up by the proposed settler.

"On account irrigation works withdraw from all forms of disposal lands remaining in townships 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13 south, range 21 east; 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 south, range 22 east; 7, 8 13 14 south, range 23 east; 9 and 10 north, range 22 east; 7, 8, 9, north, range 23 east; 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 north, range 24 east; 4, 5, 6 north, range 25 east; 3 and 4 north range 26 east; 2 and 3 north, range 27 east, S. QUARREL OVER SON IN GRIFFITH CASE.

BOY STILL WITH HIS FATHER, THE GRANDMOTHER ANXIOUS.

Attorneys for the Colonel Move the Dissolution of the Injunction—Mrs. Wright Testifies to Statement of Wounded Woman.

In connection with the divorce proceedings by Mrs. Griffith against her husband, Judge Trask ordered that the custody of the fifteen-year-old son, Vandell, be given to the mother and that she select a temporary guardian, pending her recovery and the result of the trial.

The son was told of the order at the California Hospital yesterday morning and is said to have promised his mother that he would go to his grandmother, Mrs. Jennie E. Mesmer, on Orange street, and remain with her until after the trial.

Mrs. Mesmer was waiting patiently all day yesterday for the appearance of her grandson, but he did not show up, and at a late hour some worry was experienced in regard to him. A reporter on going to the Fremont was told that neither Col. Griffith nor the son Vandell was in, but later the clerk admitted that they were both upstairs in the colonel's rooms. Instructions had been given to admit no one.

The son may choose his own guardian subject to the approval of the court. The feeling of the relatives has become very strong over the boy and it adds fuel to the feud.

MORE EVIDENCE.

More evidence is reported by the attorneys for the prosecution in the assault case against Griffith, the latest being the statement of Mrs. Wright, wife of the proprietor of the Arcadia Hotel, to the effect that when she found Mrs. Griffith lying on the couch in the vacant room into which she had crawled from the roof, the injured woman said: "I am going to die. My husband shot me, and I am going to die. The bullet is in my head. Griffith shot me."

The line of defense which is to be followed by Attorneys Works and Silent is still kept in the dark, but one of these gentlemen stated yesterday that the divorce proceedings instituted by Mrs. Griffith would materially aid the defense.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

The temporary injunction procured Wednesday by the attorneys for Mrs. Griffith from Judge Trask, prohibiting the Briswalter Land and Water Company, of which Col. Griffith is president, from disposing of their property, brought out an answer by the attorneys for Col. Griffith in the form of a notice of a motion for dissolution of the injunction. The dissolution will be asked on the grounds that the injunction was issued without requiring Mrs. Griffith to give a bond. It is claimed by the prosecuting attorneys that this motion will not be granted, as the Briswalter Land and Water Company is Griffith J. Griffith. They assert that only 20 out of the 100,000 shares of the company are held by any person other than Col. Griffith, and that the directors are merely nominal. This motion for a dissolution of the injunction will be heard by Judge Conrey this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The suit for divorce proceedings has been assigned to Judge Allen, who will not hold court again until October 5.

SOUTH SIDERS WANT THINGS.

Lively Meeting of the South Maple Avenue Improvement Association and Plans Made for Neighborhood Advancement.

The second meeting of the South Maple Avenue Improvement Association was held last night at the corner of Jefferson and Trinity streets, and much enthusiasm was manifested for neighborhood improvements. The membership of the association was doubled, and there are now fifty names enrolled.

T. L. O'Brien was elected president, and the office of permanent secretary will be filled later. Much attention was given to the school question, and the need of a school building in that territory was urged. It was shown that over a hundred children have to walk a mile or more to school, and then attend only half-day sessions. A Committee on Schools was appointed, composed of A. Parker of No. 3940 Wall street and Mr. Foster of No. 3574 Maple avenue.

As a Committee on Garbage Collection Messrs. S. G. Thompson, C. R. Diamond and H. H. Hamlin were appointed, and for Street Sprinkling, Messrs. W. J. Hines, N. H. Ingersoll and H. S. Starr.

The association is desirous of securing free mail delivery to that section, and as a committee to look after this matter it appointed Messrs. S. A. Barber, W. S. Redmond and W. I. Dunmire.

The next meeting will be held next Thursday evening at the corner of Jefferson and Trinity streets at 7:30 p.m.

PUBLIC SERVICE.—OFFICIAL DOINGS.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Councilman Davenport yesterday declared his faith in the plan to build a stockade.

The Park Commissioners took measures to secure more water for the parks.

It is authoritatively stated that a majority of the Council favor readvertising the hose contract.

A curious case has come into the public eye in which a young girl is causing much official embarrassment because she has not had fits enough.

Pat Hanratta defied the court and refused to allow his money to be used to pay a fine.

AT THE CITY HALL.

OFFICER BAKER MUST MAKE FURTHER DEFENSE.

WITNESSES SWEAR THAT HE KICKED REESE.

Affidavits Filed With the Police Board Yesterday Morning Lead to Reopening of the Case—Testimony Given by Other Officers in Question.

Officer Sherman Baker, accused of viciously kicking Eugene Reese, the young paper hanger, in the crib district on the night of August 29, was suspended by the Police Commission at a special session yesterday.

The case against Baker was reopened and set for hearing on the 22d inst. because of affidavits filed with the commission yesterday morning by two men who swear that they saw Officer Baker kick Reese after leading him from the Ballerino court out upon the sidewalk of Alameda street.

Baker was acquitted of the charges against him last Tuesday after an all-day session of the Police Commission. The board declared the evidence introduced was not sufficient to enable them to fix the blame. Reese, the complainant, was the only witness who gave direct testimony regarding the alleged assault. His testimony was impeached in numerous respects by the statements of other police officers, and the remaining evidence was so conflicting that the board could not determine the guilt or innocence of Baker.

W. H. Richard and Orr Sang, teamsters, are the two men who swear that they witnessed the assault on young Reese. They say that after Baker took Reese out of the swinging doors of the court that the officer kicked him viciously; that Reese cried out "Oh, my God!" and that he later showed them his hand covered with blood and appeared to be suffering from severe pain. Reese told them that he had been kicked by the officer.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED.

The commission appointed seven new policemen from the civil-service list yesterday morning. Roy L. Allen, Charles R. Story and William H. Wright were named as regular officers and their appointment dated back to August 7, at which time their emergency appointment expired.

William W. Glenn, Enoch M. McClure, Andrew J. Lenox and Charles A. Lynch were also appointed regular policemen.

There yet remain two vacancies in the force.

TO REJECT BIDS.

HOSE OFFERS UNSATISFACTORY.

The official consideration of proposals to furnish the city with 5000 feet of fire hose was postponed by the Finance Committee yesterday until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. There seems to be little doubt, however, that all bids will be rejected and a new advertisement for proposals ordered. It is understood that five members of the Council have determined to reject all the bids.

It will be remembered that two recommendations were sent to the Council by the Fire Commission. Commissioners Dike, Yates and Thomson favored the purchase of "Paragon" hose at 90 cents a foot. This hose is represented here by C. Ducommun & Co. Mayor Snyder and Commissioner Kuhrts favored the purchase of "Victor Jacket," which was offered for 75 cents a foot, through Harper, Reynolds & Co.

The members of the Finance Committee have considered the question already in all its phases. Agents for the several brands of hose have been very active. They even called on Councilman Kern at Catalina when he was taking a vacation. After thinking over the question it is said that a majority of the committee and a majority of the Council as well have decided to slip between the horns of the dilemma and readvertise for bids.

Unless the bids presented in response to the readvertisement are satisfactory the hose will be purchased in the open market. It is very probable that the bids next presented will not be referred to the Fire Commission at all, but the Council will make the award in the first instance instead of in the last instance, as called upon to do in the present case.

It is stated that if the contract for hose is readvertised some firms who did not bid will compete for the award.

FAVORS STOCKADE.

"HOBOS" AND ROCK PILE.

Councilman J. P. Davenport of the Sixth Ward favors the resolution introduced by Police Commissioner Lang for the establishment of a stockade in one of the parks, but he believes that the location selected should be within ... feet of a rock pile.

"I do not believe that the stockade should be established for the purpose of constructing roads or that the prisoners should be transported several miles to work every day," said Davenport yesterday. "We have too much of that now. As long as the hobos and tramps are given a long ride through the streets, are not compelled to work very hard, are afforded opportunities to secure newspapers and have tobacco and opium smuggled to them by confederates on the outside, the chain gang will have few terrors for the petty criminal. What we want is to establish a system of corrective punishment so arduous that the criminals will not desire to repeat the dose. When they start going we want them to keep on and not return.

"Now, I favor building a stockade with decent accommodations for the prisoners in Griffith Park. It need not be located in a spot frequented by the public. Instead of using the prisoners in road building, as has been suggested, I think the stockade should be located within a hundred feet or so of a rock pile—there is a suitable quarry in the park I am informed—and compelled to break rock steadily during the term of their confinement. The broken rock can be used as surfacing material on city streets, and all taxpayers would share the benefit of the work equally. A railway line is soon to be constructed to the park and transportation arrangements could easily be made.

"If the men were marched from the stockade to the quarry near by, carefully guarded, compelled to work hard, denied the rids and the sights which they now see, I believe that few of the tramps, bobos, drunks and petty criminals would desire a second term. The punishment would be dreaded and Los Angeles would be shunned by this undesirable class."

Commissioner Lang's resolution is still under consideration by the Police Commission, but the Councilmen are showing a lively interest in this plan of relieving the congestion in the City Jail.

DUST IN PARKS.

WATER MAINS NEEDED.

The city parks are going to the "demnition bow-wows" for want of water and sprinkling carts according to the Park Commissioners who held an indignation meeting at the City Hall yesterday morning. Not long ago Street Superintendent Werdin promised to sprinkle the roadways in the parks and it is asserted that he has not done so. In Eastlake Park the dust is deep in the drives and on Alhambra avenue the surface is powdered to a depth of several inches, it is said. When one of the rapidly-moving Pasadena or Monrovia cars passes, a cloud of stifling dust is precipitated into the park.

On motion of Commissioner Rice the Water Commission was requested to appoint a committee to meet a like committee from the Park Commission and discuss plans for a better water system in the parks. At present Eastlake and Westlake Parks are entirely dependent on the zanja system for their supply of water for sprinkling purposes.

This summer water for sprinkling the lawns in Eastlake Park has been furnished about one day in the week on the average. With the pressure obtainable three or four days is required to sprinkle the lawns and flower beds. Therefore the Park Commissioners figure that they have had water only one day in three weeks. This supply is utterly inadequate to keep the lawns and flowers in condition.

The entire pipe system in Eastlake Park is worthless. Sheet iron pipes were put in and they have rusted out in many places. It would cost about $3500 to properly pipe the park with wrought iron mains and laterals. Superintendent Legrand is anxious that this work be done as soon as possible.

But it is the opinion of the park authorities that no pipe system will avail until the parks are connected with the domestic water system, thus insuring a constant supply for the growth of the lawns and plants. It is hoped that arrangements can be made with the Water Commission to connect both Eastlake and Westlake Parks with the main system.

The condition of Eastlake Park is aggravated by the large number of picnics held there. Recently about six picnics a week have been held in the park and the crowds of people trample down the grass. The Commission is considering the establishment of a rule preventing people from walking or lying on the grass during week days.

Commissioner Rice and Superintendent Legrand were appointed a committee to draft an ordinance regarding public discussions in the parks.

A change has been made in the plans for the picnic of park employes and it is probable that it will be held at Long Beach. Col. G. J. Griffith, while a Commissioner and the day following the shooting at Santa Monica which nearly killed his wife, arranged for this picnic at Eastlake Park and set the date as September 30. He even secured some data for a speech which he expected to deliver on that occasion.

It has been thought best by the Park Commissioners to change the plans entirely.

NUMBERS FOR "AUTOS."

TO REGISTER RED DEVILS.

Hereafter it should be the aim of all good chauffeurs to at least blacken both eyes of the victim.

For lo, the Council has decreed that all red devils and less pretentious automobiles must have a large distinguishing number which can be seen at a distance in the day time and which must be illuminated at night.

When the reckless driver runs down the lowly citizen it is the hope of the Council that the former can be located by the number.

All automobiles will be registered in a book kept by the City Clerk and that official will designate the particular number to be placed on each automobile. Arabic numerals must be used, and they must be five inches in height, five-eighths of an inch wide and three-fourths of an inch apart. They must be white and placed on a black background or plaque at the center of the machine in the rear.

Between sunset and sunrise all automobiles must carry a red light, and also a white light trained on the number of the machine.

Failure to observe all and sundry of the regulations laid down in the ordinance makes the chauffeur liable for a fine of from $1 to $100 or not more than fifty days' imprisonment in the City Jail or at hard labor on the city's rock pile.

The ordinance was prepared by the City Attorney on motion of Councilman Bowen and as he is now Acting Mayor, it is very certain that it will be signed and become a law, barring recourse to the direct-legislation provisions of the city charter.

MANY NEW BOOKS.

BUILDING UP LIBRARY.

An interesting discussion occurred at the session of the library directors last night regarding the upbuilding of the institution. As was ever the case the directors are earnestly looking forward to the time when a new building suited to the needs of the library will be available. But with that hope which "springs eternal in the human breast," the members of the board are laying in supplies of books and in other respects conducting the department as if a new and handsome library building was an assured fact.

Particular attention is being paid at the present time to strengthening the library in those branches which have been somewhat deficient in the past, according to Director C. J. K. Jones. A collection of the early Spanish literature is being made, and some rare books have already been secured for the library. Over $1000 has been spent in acquiring books which are rapidly passing out of print. Charles F. Lummis has acted as censor and advisor of the Book Committee.

The volumes descriptive of the Challenger expedition and other very valuable records of scientific research have been purchased recently. Arrangements have also been made to secure the publications of the Ray Society of London and other books from Europe of great scientific value. These additions to the library will be greatly appreciated by students and especially by those who attend the summer biological school of the University of California, which is usually held at San Pedro.

One of the old Spanish books recently purchased was shown to the directors last night. It was printed in 1692, and the type is remarkably clear for a book of such great age. It was written by a priest and dedicated to a bishop of the diocese of Oaxaca in Mexico.

There are now 94,509 volumes in the library. The circulation for August was 68,405 volumes.

The board decided to hold the examinations for entry into the library training class on the 25th inst. The Attendants Committee will give the examination at the library.

A site near the corner of Mountain avenue and Ruby street was chosen for the Garvanza branch library.

The branch library on Boyle Heights, located at the corner of Cummings and First streets, was opened last night under the direction of the W.C.T.U.

School Contracts Awarded.

At a special session of the Council held at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the contract for the construction of the Seventh-street school building was awarded to Martin Madden on his bid of $6665; the contract for the Ninth-street school building to Dawson & Eldridge on a bid of $21,890, and, the contract for the Prospect Park school building to Robert A. Brown at $16,982. Bids for the construction of the Twenty-fourth-street school building were rejected on the ground that the proposals were too high. The City Clerk was instructed to advertise for new bids under amended plans and specifications. In order to expedite the construction of schoolhouses as much as possible the Council held the special session.

Mayor Goes to 'Frisco.

Mayor Snyder, accompanied by Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. C. E. Smith of Fort Arthur, Tex., who has been visiting them in Los Angeles, will leave today for San Francisco. The Mayor has business interests in San Francisco which require his attention and he says the trip has no political significance. He expects to be away about ten days. Councilman Bowen will be Acting Mayor during his absence.

AT THE COURT HOUSE.

MUST HAVE MORE FITS TO CLEAR SITUATION.

AUTHORITIES DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH LITTLE GIRL.

Singular Case Where the County Has Sat Down to Wait Until a Girl Has Had Enough Fits to Make Her Crazy. Overcrowded Conditions.

When a little girl named Grammaud has had a certain number of fits, a most embarrassing official difficulty will be relieved. She has been sent down to the County Farm to wait until she has had them.

Although this has the sound of a rather grewsome joke, it is an actual state of affairs.

The little girl is the child of destitute parents. She has a weak-minded brother, and there are several other children in the family. Another is expected, and the parents are in utter despair. This child is the victim of terrible fits. She is a helpless burden.

There is a home for such children at Eldridge, but it is so full it will probably be a year or more until more patients can be taken in. In the meantime there is nothing that can be done for the child. They don't know where to put her or what to do with her.

The fits are rapidly sapping what little mind she has. In a little while she will be insane from the effects of the epilepsy. When she is crazy the perplexing situation will be plain and easy. She will be sent to the asylum.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday decided to send her down to the County Farm to be taken care of until her malady shall develop to such an extent that she can be sent to the asylum.

CRUEL HUSBAND.

SUED IN COURT.

Bedridden and deserted, Mrs. Louisa Steele has invoked the power of the law to make her husband give her money to exist on.

She brought suit against him yesterday in the Superior Court, alleging that Steele treated her with the utmost cruelty and abuse and then deserted her penniless when she was ill with a tumor.

She has a daughter by a former marriage who works in a laundry. She earns $5 a week and the two women manage to exist on this.

DESERTED WIFE.

CHARGES ADULTERY.

Upon complaint sworn out by Capt. Nellie Truelove of the Salvation Army, Constable De la Monte last night arrested David Wilson of No. 519 Temple street, and lodged him in the county jail. Wilson is charged with adultery. It is alleged that he had left his wife, who is in a delicate condition, and that he has been living for the past three weeks with a young girl, known as Clara Young, at the Royal lodging-house on East First street. The girl has been an inmate of the Salvation Army Rescue Home, and Capt. Truelove has taken an interest in her since that time; hence the captain's activity in the matter.

COURT NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

CHRIST SET FREE. Christ Petonovic, who stabbed a native of Montenegro in a row over religion, was allowed to go free yesterday, the complaint against him having been dismissed.

BLIND PIG. Tom Wilson, a colored man who has been running a blind pig at San Pedro, was fined $125 before Justice Young yesterday. He entered a plea of guilty.

DIVORCED. Carrie Long was divorced from William J. Long yesterday in Judge Wilbur's court on the ground of desertion.

LAW TESTED. The validity of the Pomona city ordinance prohibiting the charging of more than $1.50 a thousand for gas was tested in Judge Wilbur's court yesterday. Two collectors for the company, Carter and Demminger, were brought up on habeas corpus, having been convicted of charging $1.80. The matter was partly argued and continued for further argument.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

WALSH LOOKED TOUGH AND WAS PROUD OF IT.

LABOR UNION RIOTER ARRAIGNED IN POLICE COURT.

San Pedro Labor Agitator Who Knocked a Man Senseless at Chutes Park—Distressing Case of Coon Who Could Find no Rhubarb.

Among the bleared and besotted crowd of petty prisoners who were led from the tanks of the City Prison to the Police Court yesterday afternoon was a tall, strongly-built fellow of 28 or 30, with unshaven cheeks and a "hold-over" breath that would make a man wince in his sleep. He looked utterly tough and proud of it. He gave his name as Richard J. Walsh, and boastfully confided that he was a union longshoreman from San Pedro.

The court told Walsh that he was charged with disturbing the peace at Chutes Park on the afternoon of Labor Day. The fellow pleaded not guilty and said he wanted to be tried right away, as he already had spent four days in the cells without having been arraigned. His apparent familiarity with prisoners' rights suggested previous experience with the law. As he had no witnesses present, his trial was set for Saturday morning.

According to a local attorney who witnessed the disturbance of the peace charged, and who caused Walsh's arrest and will assist in his prosecution, assault and battery would be the proper charge to place against the San Pedro unionist. The attorney's statement is as follows:

"I was standing at a point about fifty feet east of the pavilion in Chutes Park on the afternoon of Labor Day, and had been trying to assist the police in quieting the riot, when I noticed Walsh and another man standing near me. Walsh was drunk. He was cursing and fouily abusing this man and daring him to fight. The man was making no reply, merely standing still with the half-foolish expression of one who doesn't want to fight and is ashamed to run away.

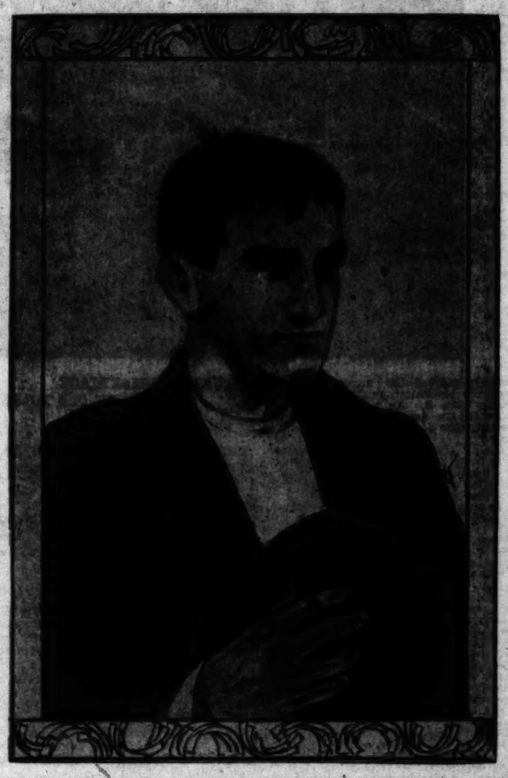
"Suddenly, without a word or movement of aggravation on the part of the assailed man, Walsh caught him a terrific blow on the mouth. The man went down on his back like a stone, and lay outstretched and insensible, his eyes wide open and staring, his jaw dropped, and blood running in streams from his fast-swelling lips. I don't know how long he lay insensible, but it was quite a while before his friends came and picked him up and carried him away, still unconscious. I never saw a more brutal or causeless assault.

"I immediately hunted up a policeman, pointed out Walsh and told the officer what I had seen. The policeman replied that it would be useless to arrest the fellow, as he never could get him through that drunken, fighting mob. While I was urging the officer to make the arrest, two other citizens, whose names I do not know, came up to us and also pointed out Walsh and said they had witnessed the assault. They corroborated my statement in every particular. The officer repeated that it would be useless to attempt the arrest, and then he turned and walked away into the crowd.

"I trailed Walsh to and through the park gates and north on Main street for a block, hoping to come across a policeman who would arrest him. I found none on the street, but presently the patrol wagon, loaded with officers, who had been telephoned for to quell the riot in the park, dashed up. Chief Elton was in the wagon, and I told my story to him. He at once detailed Officer Walsh to go with me and put the other Walsh under arrest. We found the fellow on Main street and the officer arrested him and sent him to headquarters.

"Upon reëntering the park grounds I found that friends of the injured man had picked him up and carried him away. We do not yet know who he is or how seriously he was hurt by the blow that knocked him senseless. On the ground where he had lain I saw a blood-soaked handkerchief, with which his friends had endeavored to stop the flow of blood from his mouth. Half-dried blood lay in spiotches on the ground where the man had fallen."

All of which is deplorably but accurately typical of the way in which Labor Day was celebrated at Chutes Park by a drunken union mob.



WALSH, THE SAN PEDRO AGITATOR, ON TRIAL FOR RIOTING AT THE CHUTES.

Pat fought his way through the tenderloin until it began to pall on him. He was found early yesterday morning asleep in the back of a Japanese crib on Alameda street. When the cop woke him, Pat hit out in the dark. Holding him until the patrol wagon came was like holding an escaped cyclone.

When they finally got him into the wagon, he amused himself on the way to the station by licking each of the other prisoners in the wagon impartially by turn.

When they got him in court yesterday, he had a bloody face and defiance was in his heart.

"Your Honor," he said, "I had only just arrived in town when this policeman says I was drunk and I hadn't had time to get drunk. However," he added severely, "I was drunk."

The court fined him $5 with the usual alternative of five days. As he had $5 bail up, they motioned him to go.

PAT WAS DEFIANT.

WOULDN'T PAY.

Pat Hanratta, a wild Irishman who is "agin" everything, made a finish of a spectacular spree in the Police Court yesterday.

"Where's me bail money?" he demanded.

"That goes to pay your fine," it was explained in a whisper.

"No it does not," he said belligerently, "I will work out the time on the chain gang." And he marched back into the dock with an air of firm determination.

They tried to tell him that it was too late; that he should have taken down the money before if he wanted it back. He would not listen. "It's my money," he said, "and I shall have it."

Another man was inspired by Pat to bid a similar defiance. Frank Barcus, a well dressed young man said to be in the employ of the Pacific Electric Railroad Company, was fined $2 by Justice Chambers for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk.

He said it was unjust inasmuch as he did not know the law, and vowed he would not pay it.

"Then you will have to serve the time," he was told.

Without a word he marched over into the box with the dirty drunks and sat down.

CHANGED PRESCRIPTION.

Brer Crowley, a long, lean, shuffling coon with one of his hands arrayed in an ornate mitten, was brought before Justice Chambers yesterday charged with drunkenness.

"Ah pleads guilty if Yo Honah please," he said, "but I asks Yo Honah to be easy on me cause I got a big boil on de channel of my back."

"Did you think whisky was going to make your boil feel any better?" asked the court severely.

"I tell yo how that was, Yo Honah," said Brer Crowley, beaming. "They was a feller tolt me whisky an rhubarb was the best thing yo could use fo yo boils."

"Well," said the court.

"Well I couldn't find no rhubarb."

He was fined $5.

Policelets.

John Sweeney, who tried to kill the coachman at the Catholic Orphan Asylum in East Los Angeles, was sentenced to do forty days or pay $40 by Justice Chambers yesterday.

W. H. Loudan, said to be a dope fiend, was arrested yesterday for obtaining money under false pretenses. He is said to have sold a desk to L. O. Skelly for $15, representing that it was his without incumbrance. As a matter of fact, Loudan was only buying the desk on the installment plan.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

Young Man Failed to Restore Watch Which He Knew Had Been Lost and is Arrested for it.

Because R. J. McKee of No. 408 Temple street, a well-known young man who is employed in a fruit store near Third and Main streets, failed to make proper efforts to restore to its owner a watch which he says he found, he is now in the same predicament as if he had stolen it. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Mawley and Murphy on a charge of petty larceny.

Several days ago T. R. Wallace of No. 1407 Delong street, reported to the police that he had lost a lady's gold watch somewhere on Spring street. He advertised it regularly, offering a reward for the return of the property. The detectives found the watch in a pawnshop and learned that McKee had disposed of it there for $4. Then they went after McKee and they assert he admitted to them that he had found the watch and while it was in his possession read the advertisement which Wallace had inserted in the newspapers. Instead of returning the watch, McKee is alleged to have pawned the property. Under the law an act of this kind is considered the same as larceny, and McKee was accordingly locked up on that charge.

SUGAR TRUST'S GRIP ON SOUTHERN TRADE.

LOS ANGELES JOBBERS UTTER LOUD REMONSTRANCE.

Complaint that Oxnard Sugar Factory is Standing in With Trust—Thirty Thousand Dollars a Year Taken from Them, They Say.

Local jobbers complain that the Oxnard Sugar Company is discriminating against Southern California in selecting a market. It is charged that the company is shipping its entire output to Omaha and Missouri River points, paying therefore $4.55 a sack net at the factory at Oxnard. The added freight of 55 cents from California points the price to the Missouri River jobbers $5.10, to compete with the Eastern-sugar price of $5.20.

Southern California, consequently, is compelled to patronize the trust exclusively or go without sugar. The Oxnard sugar is shipped from Eastern points to Southern California at a factory price of $5.10, which with the added freight of 55 cents makes the cost to local jobbers $5.65.

The jobbers' point is this: If the beet company would market its output at home, instead of abroad, and at the same price now received by the company, viz., $4.55 net, Southern California would get the benefit of the freight difference, minus the small local profit, and the Oxnard company would be making precisely the profit it is now getting off the Missouri River market.

It is asserting that Southern California can use between 3000 and 4000 sacks (300,000 to 400,000 pounds) of beet sugar per month—all of which is now purchased of the trust at trust prices—and claiming to Southern California jobbers would be in excess of $30,000 a

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

The guests at the Argyle Hotel were the sole witnesses of a romantic little wedding which took place there at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, when A. H. Curtis, for some time a resident of the hotel, was married to Miss Patterson, a young lady who came here a few days ago from Kentucky, Rev. Robert McIntyre performing the ceremony. The bride was stylishly gowned in a handsome brown tailored suit. Mr. and Mrs. Overbeitzer, proprietors of the hotel, held an informal reception last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, who will reside there.

Surprise to Redlands.

Frank Nutter and Miss Edith A. Gowland, two young people of high standing in Redlands, stole a march upon their friends and were quietly married last evening at 6 o'clock at Hotel Hollenbeck in this city, Rev. William Horace Day of the First Congregational Church officiating. The marriage followed close upon Mr. Nutter's appointment on Wednesday which makes hi msteward of the Southern California State Hospital for the insane, at Highlands, where the young couple will make their home.

Sweet Singer Married.

Miss Neva Bryson, a well-known soprano who has sung her way into the hearts of many Los Angeles people, was married yesterday afternoon to Albert Eddy, a young business man of this city.

The wedding took place at the residence of Rev. J. Frank Leland, pastor of the People's Church, who performed the nuptial rite. The bride's gown was an exquisitely fashioned creation of sky blue silk, trimmed with billowy blue chiffon, Miss Delphine Eddy and Miss Bessie Bryson acting as bridesmaids.

Whist.

The "Married People's Whist Club" had their first meeting at the home of Mr. antd Mrs. Pearson, North Anderson street, Tuesday. The members of the club are: Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Dailey, Mr. and Mrs. Warrington, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. McMurrey, Mr. and Mrs. Bird, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Fred Fuller's home on Edgeware Road.

Ascension Reception.

A delightful reception took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. Magee, No. 505 North Soto street, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. Arthur Evans, of the Church of the Ascension, to welcome them back from their summer's vacation.

About a hundred members of the congregation were there, the affair being planned by the members of the F. H. C. Young People's Society of the church, as a graceful compliment to their rector and his wife.

Wesleyan Banquet.

An elegant banquet will be given today to the Wesleyan College Alumni, at the residence of Senator Cole at Colegrove. A special car will leave on the Hollywood line at 11:45, the banquet taking place at 1 o'clock.

Wells-Fargo Benedict.

Mr. J. H. Bates, for eight years a trusted employé of the Wels-Fargo Express Company, and Miss Minnie Norris Johnson were married on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock by Rev. J. E. Edwards. They will occupy the new home which has just been built for them at No. 1326 Girard street.

More Weddings.

Miss Charlotte Oliver Drennen and Francis Marian Sniff of this city were married on September 8 at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 823 Flower street, by Rev. Jabez Hall. Mr. Anthony G. Steppen and Miss Mabel Dooner were married on the same date.

Notes and Personals.

Judge and Mrs. Stephen C. Hubbell, accompanied by Miss Hubbell and Miss Mary Hubbell, leave for San Francisco today for an absence of two or three weeks.

Miss Gwendolen Overton left early in the week for Strawberry Valley to be absent about a month.

Mrs. J. A. Green, formerly of Alhambra, has returned to Los Angeles after a visit to her daughter in Denver. Mr. Green will arrive in a few days, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Green. The family will take up their residence at No. 1143 South Olive street.

Miss Helen Taggert, who is a guest at the home of Mrs. R. Magee, Boyle Heights, is a Los Angeles girl who has been for several years in China, having a liberal education in the hardships which befall foreigners in a land where they are regarded as "foreign devils." Miss Taggert went to Cheefoo, China, to visit her sister, Mrs. D. F. McKenzie, just before the first terrible Boxer troubles there, Mrs. McKenzie's husband being an officer in the English army and shortly to assist in putting down the insurrection. The dire fate of Miss Taggert's brother-in-law was too horrible to relate, being put to death by inches by the fanatical Chinese. Miss Taggert was left with the care of her almost grief-crazed sister and a helpless babe who put in his appearance at that direful time. Mrs. McKenzie and child and Miss Taggert have very lately returned to California, the former going to Hueneme, Cal., and the latter coming to Los Angeles.

SAVED BY A RIB.

Mexican Laborer Stabbed by Fellow Countryman on Aliso Street, but Blade Failed to Penetrate the Cavity.

Francisco Medina was stabbed by another Mexican laborer about 8 o'clock last night, on the Aliso-street bridge, after a fight in which several men were engaged. Who wielded the knife the police have been unable to ascertain, for the reason that the wounded man has refused to give them any information. He is unable to speak English, but through an interpreter he admitted that he knows who stabbed him, but saying he will settle with his assailant himself, and does not desire the officers to know who he is.

Medina staggered into a store on Anderson street moaning and holding his abdomen, while between his fingers the blood was trickling. He said he had been stabbed, and then fell to the floor. A hurry call was sent for the patrol wagon, and the wounded man was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where Dr. Spencer found that he had sustained a wound in the abdomen which appeared to be very serious. The probe, however, disclosed the fact that the blade had not penetrated the abdominal cavity, but had struck the ninth rib. But for that fact the wound might have proved fatal, but as it was the injury is not considered serious. Medina has a police record himself. He has been in jail many times on various charges, the last term he served being for petty larceny.

THAT noted writer of railroad stories, Frank H. Spearman, has written a delightful story, entitled "Conductor Pat Francis," for The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

BOY BURGLAR CAPTURED.

Charles Case, Who Robbed a Church and Committed Other Thefts in San Diego, Arrested Here.

Charles Case, aged 16, was taken in custody yesterday as he stepped off a Santa Fé train from San Diego, and last evening he was sent back to that city in charge of an officer to answer to charges of burglary and larceny. The arrest was made by Detectives Hawley and Murphy, to whom had been given a telegram from the San Diego authorities. The boy admitted his identity, but at first denied that he had committed any crime in the southern town. When, however, he was confronted by a San Diego officer, he broke down and confessed that he had forced an entrance to a Presbyterian church in San Diego and had rifled the mite box, securing about $10. Subsequently he stole a gun and sold it. Just before he left home for Los Angeles he took his father's watch and chain, and that property was found in his possession. He says he will plead guilty to burglary when his case is presented in court.

THE OIL INDUSTRY

SOUTHERN ALASKA RICH IN OIL AND COAL.

IT MAY RIVAL PENNSYLVANIA IN THESE RESOURCES.

Drills Have Already Penetrated Three Oil Strata and Are Now Reaching for a Fourth—Immense Body of Anthracite Coal Discovered.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Petroleum and coal experts who have just returned declare that Southern Alaska will rival Pennsylvania in the richness and value of its coal and oil resources. A dozen strong companies, including a number of wealthy California and eastern concerns, are drilling for oil, having passed through three oil strata.

They are now drilling to a depth of 2000 feet, with the object of encountering a fourth and still larger oil-sand strata. Tests of the oil made in California and the East show it to contain more paraffine and illuminant than the best grade of Pennsylvania oil. Steamships bring news that an anthracite-coal belt, already known to be thirty miles long by twenty miles wide, has been discovered, lying adjacent to the oil fields. The veins run from eight to seventy feet in thickness, and can be traced on the surface for from three to six miles. Tests by experts show the coal to be of a higher grade than British Columbia coal, which the United States Navy is using on the Pacific.

During the last sixty days there has been a scramble to secure coal lands.

CUMBERLAND WELLS.

INJURED BY IDLENESS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SOMERSET (Ky.) Sept. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to the views of one who is familiar with the situation in Cumberland county, the prospects for an extension of the pipe line to that section are not very encouraging, and unless a better effort is made to get the wells in good pumping shape it will be a long time before there is a market for the product of that field.

Up to the present almost every well has been allowed to stand idle, and aside from being of no account in the development of the field untold injury is usually done to wells. Some of the wells completed a year ago, when first put to pumping after being drilled in, made an excellent showing, and looked like winners, but when started again last month they failed to produce. A number of wells filled with mud from the pencil cave, and this is given as a reason in many cases for their failure to put oil in the tanks when given a test. However, it is not generally thought that this trouble is of a lasting nature, and better results are expected after the wells have been cleaned.

USE California Cream of Lemon INSTEAD OF SOAP.

One Opinion!

The many testimonials we receive every day prove—"that no lady or mother who has tried GROGAN'S PURITY OLIVE OIL SOAP, made from the finest grade of pure table Olive Oil, would use any other."

This is a genuine California product, in olive shape and contains no impurities or animal grease; it is made from oil only, therefore does not lather too freely, lasts much longer and is good for the most delicate skin. Nearly all of the "so-called" Olive Oil Soaps on the market are made from tallow and a small percentage of cocoanut oil, some colored green containing little or no Olive Oil.

Our Olive Oil Soap is purely vegetable, and is pronounced by prominent experts to be

ABSOLUTELY THE BEST SKIN SOAP

Now, we all know that some unscrupulous dealers will recommend an inferior article in order to make a larger profit. Olive Oil is expensive, consequently the profits in making and selling pure Olive Oil Soap must be small for all concerned, so as to give the public

THE BEST QUALITY FOR THE SAME MONEY

Therefore, Beware of any just as good!!!
THERE IS NONE!

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

Dried fruits are beginning to display considerable activity in local markets and all varieties are firm. Peaches are reported pretty well cleaned up, while apricots are being largely held by growers for higher prices. The Southern California prune crop will be larger than last year—one estimate being an increase of 25 per cent. over last year. Figs are ripening rapidly; the greater portion of the small quantity grown in this section of the State is sold green, although some are dried and some preserved on a commercial scale. Buyers for all kinds of dried fruits are rushing through the country.

Walnuts are inactive as yet, awaiting association prices, which will be announced next Tuesday, when the Southern California Walnut Growers' Association will meet at the Chamber of Commerce in this city. Dealers assert that they look for a price on soft shells of 12@12 1-2 cents per pound.

Business generally in the local produce markets today (Thursday) was reported good. Conditions and prices were not unchanged from those of Wednesday. Eggs continue to show marked firmness for all grades; butter is steady, and good potatoes scarce. Flour is very firm, as are also hay and grain. Pink beans continue firm.

The car of bananas that arrived on Wednesday night went like hot cakes today. The fruit arrived in excellent condition.

Fresh fruits continue to enjoy their usual heavy demand at this season of the year in a wide range of prices.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The stock market was rather more active today, but the increased activity was in many instances made at the expense of prices. The opening, though tame, was slightly higher, Atchison responding to an extent its recent leadership, but later yielding to the United States Steel shares. The extreme weakness of the steel stocks, which were sold in large volume, was a disturbing feature. Stories concerning the next action to be taken on the dividend on steel common, together with adverse trade reports, were freely circulated, but neither confirmation nor denial was obtainable from declaratives sources. A stock that showed marked weakness in the early session was Brooklyn Transit, the results of a pool dissolution. Norfolk and Western scored a one-point advance at the opening. Trading relapsed into extreme dullness in the second hour, and the drift of prices was again downward. The reduction in the price of Southern Pig Iron probably influenced the 1% per cent. decline in Tennessee Coal and Iron, and was not without effect on other stocks of that class. Colorado Fuel advanced two points for no apparent reason. Business came almost to a standstill in the early afternoon, but there was some covering of short contracts and prices hardened in some instances, only to lose their improvement later. For the rest or the day business continued dull, and sales from the further large offerings and increased weakness of the United States Steel stocks, together with reports of liquidation of Atchison, the last session was almost featureless, and closing prices were generally at the lowest. Only a few issues, such as St. Paul and the Pacific in the list of standard shares and some of the class specialties displaying comparative firmness. London's operations here were nominal, the only noteworthy feature being the heavy selling of Steel. These issues closed with a net loss of 2% for the common, and 1¼ for the preferred. The bond market lacked feature, and moved irregularly on a small range. Total sales, par United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

ELDRIDGE CONFESSES TO BIG SWINDLE.

IMPLICATES H. R. BUTZ AND ABOUT TWENTY OTHERS.

Two Santa Fe Employees Plead Guilty to Complicity in Fraud and Get Off With Light Punishment at San Bernardino—Butz to Fight.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 10.—A. E. Eldridge, arrested recently at Needles as the head of a gigantic conspiracy to defraud the Santa Fé Company by means of "straw men" on the pay rolls, today made a complete confession. Eldridge acknowledged himself chief in the plan, his lieutenant being H. R. Butz, also under arrest. The confession implicates between fifteen and twenty other employés.

No less than six men are now in the County Jail, all of whom are believed to have been connected in one way or another with the wholesale forgeries which cost the Santa Fé several thousand dollars before the clever plot was unearthed. The latest arrival is James McDonald, who was brought in from Needles yesterday.

Butz, whose preliminary examination is set for tomorrow, proposes to put up a hard fight for his liberty. Either Earl Rogers or Luther Brown of Los Angeles will represent him.

Butz was this afternoon released from custody under $1000 bonds, pending his preliminary examination before Justice Thomas tomorrow. McDonald and J. E. Young pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge in obtaining money through the issuance of forged pay checks by Eldridge, and each was sentenced to pay $100 fine or go to jail.

FOXY FLORES.

Constable Smith of Santa Ana was in the city yesterday looking for a Mexican named Flores, who tried to play a clever trick on a man who had employed him to cut a quantity of eucalyptus trees into kindling wood, for the stipulated sum of $100. Flores chopped wood several days, called on his employer, told him the job was finished, and was paid off. It was soon after discovered that he had only chopped sufficient kindling to cover the big pieces. The latter he piled up in the center and covered with the smaller pieces, making the pile appear like an immense stack of kindling. Flores is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

PICNIC FOR THE POOR.

The local Salvation Army Corps will give a picnic at Urbita Springs on Friday of next week for the benefit of the city's poor. All of the children and the mothers who are numbered among the needy will be invited to attend the outing, and everything—car fare, dinner, lemonade and baths, will be free. Donations of any kind that will help to make the picnic a success will be acceptable.

"OLD JEFF" PASSES.

Jefferson Melbourne, better known as "Old Jeff," died yesterday at the County Hospital of old age, augmented by a severe rheumatic trouble. He was 74 years of age, and was the oldest inmate of the institution, having passed the last ten years of his life there. The funeral took place this morning from Barton & Catick's undertaking rooms.

Pedro received a dangerous slash across the abdomen and one on the face. Jesus disappeared and up to the present time has not been caught. Pedro is still alive, but his life is in the balance, the doctor says.

OPPOSITION WHARF BEATEN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Sept. 10.—The date of the opening of the California Polytechnic School in this city has been fixed for Wednesday, September 30. The buildings will not be entirely finished by that time, but school will begin anyway. Many applications are being received.

The Supervisors yesterday granted a franchise to D. D. Barnard, an employé of the Commercial Bank of this city, to build a wharf near the town of Cambria. Only one other bidder appeared, E. S. Rigdon of Cambria, whose first bid was for $51.35. When the franchise was given to Mr. Barnard the bids had been raised to $650. It is supposed that Barnard was acting as the agent of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst. She owns large bodies of land near Cambria, and controls the only wharf in that section, consequently the proposition to build an opposition wharf in her end of the county met with disaster.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

PASADENA TO BUILD ANOTHER FINE CHURCH.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CONGREGATION IS GROWING.

Site of Worship on Fair Oaks Avenue Is Too Small and Thirty Thousand Dollars Will be Raised to Replace It. Various Puzzle Police.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 24 South Raymond Avenue, Sept. 11.—The next handsome church to be erected in this city of churches is to be built by the First Christian congregation. They have decided that the edifice, on the northwest corner of Mary avenue and Fair Oaks avenue is not large enough for the growing flock, and they will raise $30,000 to replace it with a handsomer one. The pastor, Rev. Frank M Dowling, has gone on a pleasure trip to Bear Valley. Upon his return the enterprise will be undertaken with vim.

The congregation has two sites in mind, perhaps the most favored is the southeast corner of Los Robles avenue and Walnut street, across the street from the new High School building. The property is owned by C. C. Thompson of North Lake avenue, and is held at $6000 front foot. The sum of $4150 is asked for the entire piece. There is a frontage of 83 feet on Los Robles avenue and 120½ on Walnut street. It is in the city limits.

Another site in the eye of the Christians is the northeast corner of Raymond avenue and Walnut street, opposite the public library and adjoining the Methodist church. This property is owned by Mrs. Ellen B. Farr. It is generally located than the first named, but it is regarded by many as being too much in the noisy district.

There are several reasons why the congregation wishes to move. One is that the present church has become too small to accommodate the attendance, and there is no room for a larger one on which they now worship there. Then, too, the electric car barns, on Fair Oaks street, is a serious disqualification.

CATS OR WHAT?

The police are much puzzled over a disturbance screaming that occurred in the vicinity of the Carlton Hotel shortly after midnight of Wednesday. All efforts have been investigating the matter to no avail. If anybody was murdered, they will confer a favor on the department by reporting the fact, but there is a suspicion that the yowling cats caused the disturbance after all. It is that a number of more guests insist that they were human. There are cats in the rear of the Carlton, but it is not known that have human voices. Another case for the police, perhaps, like the Point Loma mystery.

SPLIT-CHAT.

The Rev. J. F. Meredith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was yesterday assisted by Clerk George Church, with a verbal report of the meeting of the congregation the night before, when it was decided to call him for another year. The formal written call will be presented later. Dr. Meredith replied that he must have time to think it over before he makes answer.

Police Court yesterday Clyde Hall was fined $5 for neglecting to light a light at some street work he was doing. L. M. Green of Sierra Madre and R. C. Uncles were arraigned for having their horses standing unhitched.

There will be a bit of color in the Court room on Saturday morning. Judge Conley will answer to the charge of beating his wife, and he will be defended by Isadore D. Blair, the negro lawyer.

W. H. Roberts will build a handsome home on East Colorado street.

Mrs. Hall departed for the East yesterday on account of the serious illness of his child.

The heirs of William Charteris, who died the first of the year, occurred yesterday at the home of Elmira street. The funeral will be held on Sunday.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Harris Tyler, daughter of Mrs. Sylvanus Tyler of Orange, to Robert Henry Lee of Pasadena, Wednesday evening.

Trade is better than no trade. An advertisement in The Times is more business than it can attend to at all. Telephone Main 36 or Red 1431, and our agency will take your ad. Or call at the main office.

Cards issued at Wadsworth's.

DAWTELLE.

WATER SHORTAGE OVER.

DAWTELLE, Sept. 10.—One of the pumps at the water plant so filled with sand Sunday morning, the pump could not be raised and the sand removed by means of a sand pump. There was a shortage of water that day for several days. The well has been thoroughly cleaned out, over sixty feet of sand being withdrawn, so that the pump is now in good working order.

Mrs. Gillies has sold to Charles Fisher her lot and house on Sixth street, Oregon and Ohio avenues.

POMONA.

FINAL FOR LONG BEACH.

POMONA, Sept. 10.—Arrangements were completed yesterday with the Salt Lake road to run a special train from Pomona on September 17, the day the Board of Trade excursion, leaving here at 8 o'clock and going through to Long Beach via Hobart. A rate of $1.85 has been secured for the round trip, although the excursion is under the auspices of the Board of Trade which is returning a visit paid here by the Long Beach Board of Trade last winter, yet any one who wish can take advantage of the special rate. A big crowd is expected.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Pomona Real Estate Building and Improvement Company, the following board of directors for the ensuing year were elected: Isaac Rose, F. D. Green, Dr. F. E. Palms, H. W. Preyer, D. S. Carson, E. Morris and Morris Keller.

Mrs. Ida Strong is moving from his residence on San Francisco avenue to his new home on Holt avenue.

Mrs. W. M. Avis are now occupying their new home on Holt avenue.

VISIT OF GEN. BLACK CROWNS ENCAMPMENT.

HIS ELOQUENCE THRILLS VETERANS AT LONG BEACH.

Warm Reception and Banquet in His Honor—Bean Supper and Meeting at Tabernacle Closing Events—To Break Camp Today.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 9.—The crowning event of the sixteenth annual encampment of the Southern California Veterans' Association occurred today, in the visit of Gen. John C. Black of Illinois, Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R.

The features of the occasion were the reception of Gen. Black, his address and a banquet in his honor.

Accompanied by twenty-eight prominent Los Angeles citizens, Gen. Black arrived in Long Beach at 11:36 o'clock. The booming of cannon at the camp announced the arrival of the party. The distinguished visitors were met by a joint committee of members of the Board of Trade and Veterans' Association. All proceeded at once to the assembly tent, where an immense audience was in waiting.

Gen. Black was introduced to the assemblage by Commander Brady. The general's address was among the best ever given in Long Beach. For forty minutes he held his auditors spellbound. At times he had his hearers in tears, and then in a moment they would be laughing.

At the close of his speech Gen. Black, the committee, city officials and Los Angeles delegation repaired to Hotel Julien, where a banquet was given. Gen. Black and party left here for Los Angeles at 2:30 o'clock.

The last meeting of the Veterans' Association took place at the Tabernacle tonight. None except members of the association, Relief Corps or of Women's Auxiliary were admitted. As a grand finale a bean supper was served on the first deck of the pavilion. Tomorrow morning the soldiers and their wives and sweethearts will take their departure. The encampment has been a great success in point of numbers and interest taken. The registration is 1296; last year it was only 1057.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE SESSIONS.

TROPICO, Sept. 9.—The Farmers' Institute for Tropico and surrounding district opened its session at G.A.R. Hall Tuesday morning under the most favorable auspices. The hall had been tastefully decorated in quantities of greenery and roses. Tropico and Glendale were largely represented, while quite a few were present from Verdugo, Eagle Rock and Burbank. The morning session was presided over by D. H. Imler of Tropico. Miss Ellen Chase rendered a piano solo from Chopin, which was followed by invocation by Rev. E. S. Chase of Tropico. Otto P. Snyder, president of the Tropico Improvement Association, delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by Prof. A. J. Cook of Claremont. Frederick Maskew of Long Beach, horticulture inspector, gave an interesting talk on his work. Mrs. Minnie E. Sherman of Fresno read an instructive paper on "The Family Cow." P. W. Parker of Eagle Rock, gave expert advice and facts concerning "Tomato Culture." The morning's programme closed with a vocal solo by Mrs. Ida C. Strong. Miss Ellen Chase, pianist. Mrs. D. H. Imier of Tropico and Mrs. P. W. Parker of Eagle Rock served lunch in the hall.

The question box was conducted by Prof. Cook. Mrs. Sherman gave valuable suggestions regarding the mildew in grapes. Prof. Cook described the work of "thrips." Prof. Cook's talk on "Fuller's Rose Beetle" called forth a lively and interesting discussion. E. D. Goode of Glendale, road foreman, read an interesting paper on the "Public Highway" of this district. Owing to illness, W. W. Eshelman of Tropico could not give his paper on "Scenic Highways," but Ernest Braunton of North Glendale gave a talk on "Ornamental Trees," and dwelt particularly on the most desirable shade trees. M. C. Osborn of Los Angeles, representative of the Pacific Power and Lighting Company talked on the advantages derived from the use of electricity in this district.

The evening's exercises were presided over by Otto P. Snyder. Mrs. John Hobbs of Tropico and Samuel Fiske of Glendale rendered a vocal duet. Mrs. Fiske accompanist. Rev. D. M. Stewart of Glendale pronounced the invocation. The question box was conducted by Prof. Cook. Mrs. A. Basley of Prospect Park read papers on poultry which opened a very helpful discussion of the subject.

The subject of "Landscape Gardening and Ornamental Trees" was ably handled by Ernest Braunton of North Glendale. An interesting paper on "Marketing of Berries" was read by Dwight Griswold, of Tropico. "Berry Parasites" were discussed by Prof. Cook. An interesting paper on "Bacteria" was read by Dr. William Sherman of Fresno. A paper on "Home" by Mrs. Sherman proved one of the most interesting and instructive features of the evening. The session closed with a vocal solo by John Hobbs. Frank Marsh of Tropico, as chairman of the committee on exhibits, had arranged a very fine collection of fruits and berries grown at Tropico. Robert Devine's grapes and William McCarroll's boxes of honey were conspicuous exhibitions. The institute was pronounced the most successful, as well as interesting that has been held in Tropico. A resolution and vote of thanks was tendered Prof. A. J. Cook and his corps of efficient workers.
